DECISIVE BATTLE BEING FOUGHT IN HONAN

CHANGES MADE IN RULES FOR LOCAL MARKET

Aldermen Decide That Nothing Can Be Sold There But Farm Produce.

SALE THROWN OPEN

Dealers Allowed to Go on Market at Any Time—Fowl Must be Starved.

No more patent medicines, hardware, fish, oranges or anything that does not come under the cause, farm, garden or dairy produce, grown in Canada, may be sold on the market. The law prohibiting dealers, commission men, etc., to buy on the market before 10.00 o'clock is repealed. Horses must not be allowed to stand on the market attached to wagons on which produce is being offered for sale, or must the wagons be left there after the produce has been sold. All fowl offered for sale must have gone without food for twenty-four hours before they were killed, and the crops, if left in, must be empty. The section of the by-law requiring names to be on the baskets or otherwise displayed close to the goods, so that purchasers will know who is the seller, will be strictly enforced. These changes or decisions were arrived at by the City Council at a special meeting held last night to revise the market by-law. The by-law governing the Hamilton market was consulted and some of the clauses were taken from it.

The clause to exclude everything but farm produce was so drawn that a farmer having an implement to sell might bring it on the market, but people will not be allowed to sell implements which they picked up at auction sales. It was mentioned by the Mayor and Alderman Hocker that in some places the market is divided into stalls or sections, and the holders of these sections rent them for a certain sum per year, or other term.

Alderman Stocker gave warning that the exclusion of so many things would cut the market revenue, although he felt that the competition with merchants paying taxes should be stopped. Ald. Fife, who was chairman while the by-law was being considered in committee of the whole, reminded the Aldermen that their main concern was to provide a place where the citizens could buy fresh goods from the farmers.

Among the matters revealed by the by-law was the fact that every day is market day and that the market is supposed to be open from seven a.m. to two p.m. Games of chance, or the disposing of goods in any such manner, are forbidden, which led City Clerk Armstrong to ask if that included auction sales. Noisy yelling, singing or other loud noise is forbidden, while all persons, and not just firemen, are forbidden to use profane language.

Ald Fife objected to opening the market up to dealers on the ground that just at the season when the demand for fowl was biggest they could come in and buy up all available for shipment to some larger centre. The Mayor said that the market would be bigger as there would be more farmers come in, and they would have their produce sold early and have a chance to shop here. This led Alderman Hancock to say that this would be keeping the market open for merchants instead of for the benefit of the citizens.

When the tolls were being read, Alderman Stocker said that when he had been market clerk women had come with baskets piled high, paying four cents for two baskets, and

SHIELDS ATTACKS FOSDICK'S EFFORT

Urges Baptists To Fight Proposal To Abolish Immersion.

NEW YORK, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Rev. Dr. T. T. Shields, Toronto, addressing the Baptist Bible Union of North America, of which he is president, last night urged the Baptists to fight the "effort of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick' 'to abolish immersion as a requirement for Baptist church membership.

Dr. Fosdick, meanwhile, in a lecture in the town hall, was praising the Roman Catholic veneration of the Blessed Virgin's statue. "I cannot help but believe that my Roman Catholic brethren have the right idea," he said. Dr. Fosdick recently attracted wide attention in urging Protestant use of the confessional instead of the office of a psycho analyst.

Berlin Expert "Identifies" Writing By The "Tone" But Prisoner's Musical Voice Confounds Analysis

BERLIN, March 11—After writing experts had failed to agree on the authorship of a "black hand" letter figuring in the trial of Judge Jurgens and his luxury-loving wife for fraud, a new type of court expert appeared on the scene. Professor Seivers testified yesterday that Herr Jurgens was not the author of the letter in question because the reveberation produced by reading it was not in harmony with the voice of Herr Jurgens.

Professor Sievers took hours of the Court's time in explaining his methods of research, saying that the timbre of the voice and the method of expression possess a congruous vibratory rythm. He contended that he would be able to settle the old question of the authorship of Shakespeare's plays if he had heard the bard's voice. He also asserted that the Leipsic Supreme Court had used his expert testimony to convict a suspect and that later the accused person had confessed.

Professor Sievers said that he had never heard Judge Jurgens speak, but knew from the reading of his testimony that he possessed a high-pitched, raspy voice. Thereupon the Court got its first laugh in the two weeks of the trial, when the Judge replied in soft dulcet tones that he had a musical voice.

FERGUSON TO REMAIN AT HEAD OF DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Will Remain So Until Has Obtained Certain Objective in Education.

SAVES SALARY.

Criticized By Members of Opposition For Holding Two Portfolios.

TORONTO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Until he has completed the task which he set himself when he assumed the portfolio of education in addition to the Premiership, Premier Howard Ferguson intends to remain at the head of the Department of Education in this province. This in effect was his statement in the Ontario Legislature yesterday afternoon when items concerning the Department of Education were under discussion in committee of supply under the chairmanship of Brig.-General Tom Kennedy (Con., Peel).

Several times since the session opened members of the Opposition in the Legislature have endeavored to elicit a definite statement from the Premier on his holding a dual portfolio and whether he intended to relinquish the Department of Education, but it remained for H. Nixon (Progressive, Brant) to succeed in the quest.

"I would like to know if the province is to go through another four years without a Minister of Education?" asked the member for Brant in declaring that the Prime Minister already had too much work to do to give the time necessary to the Department of Education.

Until Objective is Reached

"Until I have reached a certain objective in education in this province I am going to retain the portfolio of Education," replied the Premier. "If at any time I feel that the department is suffering then I will be glad to call some distinguished educationist to the portfolio, and content myself with the Premiership, but until then I will hold on to it."

The Premier added that his holding of the Education Portfolio meant a saving of $8,000 yearly to the Province, as he did not take any salary for it, and suggested that was something which the Progressive member might commend.

Offers Criticism

A. Belanger (Liberal, Russell) offered some criticism of the standard of teaching in the training school for French teachers and declared that he had found some, of the teachers were not at all qualified for the work. It was not enough, he complained, that they should have French names to make them efficient teachers. Some of them had little knowledge of the language, and it appeared to him that where a teacher was proficient in English and could write a little French and speak a little they were acceptable to the department. This was a great mistake, said Mr. Belanger, who urged that all teachers in the training schools should be proficient in both English and French.

Premier Ferguson said he appreciated the point raised by the member for Russell and that the department, no doubt, would give the matter its attention.

ROTARY PLANS ARE ENDORSED

Many Societies Agree To Help in Promoting "Boys' Week."

ENTHUSIASM SHOWN.

Enthusiasm coupled with an earnest desire to make the proposed Peterborough Boys' Week, sponsored by the members of the local Rotary Club, one of the outstanding achievements ever attempted in Peterborough was the key-note of the preliminary meeting held in the Canadian Legion Hall last night.

Delegates were present from every organization in the city interested in boys and their problems; this fact causing several of those present to congratulate Chairman Thomas Dutton on his having been able to secure such a representative gathering.

Mr. Dutton outlined the scheme in detail, telling of the growth of the movement since its inauguration in 1920. Since that time, he said, it has been carried out in most of the principal cities of the world and has met with great success wherever tried.

He stated emphatically that Boys' Week was not to be considered a Rotary project alone; that the help of everyone interested in boys was needed. Rotary's part, he said, was to bring the plan before the public and assist in every way possible in carrying out the plans.

Describing the object of the plan, he said it was to focus public attention upon the boy as the world's greatest asset by making the nation think in terms of boyhood. They planned to interest everyone in boys, and to interest boys in themselves and to emphasize fundamentals in character building for citizenship; to develop a community esprit de corps in the home, school, church and spare time organizations dealing with boys, and to advocate for every boy an equal chance to work out his destiny without the handicap of underprivilege or overprivilege. It was not the intention, he declared, "to raise funds, or to exploit the boy, or to provide a week's holiday."

Father and Son Banquet

Tentative plans subject to the approval of the various committees to be appointed, he said, included a father and son banquet with which would be coupled a parade, after which there would be a circus under the direction of Doug. Loomis of the Y.M.C.A. and patterned after the style of former affairs which proved so popular in pre-war days. There would also be an industry day, during which various groups of boys would be conducted through the different factories in the city. A citizenship day would also be held when picked boys would be initiated into the manner in which the City of Peterborough is operated. The plans include a hobby day, the details of which are being looked after by F. G. McNeely of the Y.M.C.A.; also an athletic day with the climax on the Sunday, when it was proposed to have all the ministers in the city co-

Only Six Minutes Taken To Try Man For Murder

LONDON, March 11 (Canadian Press). — A murder trial lasting only six minutes was held in Old Bailey yesterday.

WARNS AGAINST JOINING LEAGUE WITHOUT STUDY

Senator Foster Urges Investigation Into Aims of Pan-American Union.

ASKS FOR PAPERS.

Senate Adopts Motion For Production of Correspondence in Matter.

OTTAWA, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)— A note of caution that Canada should not accept membership in the Pan-American Union without full investigation of the aims and legislation of the Union was sounded in the Senate this morning by Senator Sir George E. Foster.

Senator Foster referred to reports that the Dominion has been offered a seat in the union and that Canada would likely accept membership. Before any step towards giving a favorable reply were taken, assuming that Canada had actually been offered a seat, it would be advisable, continued Senator Foster, to make a careful search and investigation of questions respecting the basis of the Union's legislation, its aims and its dominating influences.

Following Senator Foster's address, the Senate adopted a motion for the production of all correspondence "with any member or officer of the Government of Canada, respecting the acceptance by Canada of membership in the Pan-American Union or affiliation with that organization or representation at its meetings, and any similar correspondence with respect to affiliation with or representation upon the Pacific Council or the institute of Pacific relations."

FLOODS SPREADING IN FRENCH RIVERS

Unless Rain Stops, Many Streams Must Soon Overflow.

PARIS, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Reaching the proportions of a disaster, floods in south-western France are spreading. Rivers in other parts of the country are rising rapidly and indications now are that, barring cessation of the rain, of which there appears no likelihood, the tributaries of the Marne and Seine will shortly overflow. Authorities do not anticipate serious floods in the Paris area, however.

THE WEATHER

At one o'clock to-day, the thermometer was up to 55 degrees in the shade, being the highest this season, up to the present time. The last few warm days have had a marked effect on the winter's snow, and it is disappearing very fast on the city streets but in the country the effects of the sun's rays are not noticeable to such an extent. If this is really spring, it is earlier than usual, and at least a month earlier than last year.—W.P.

ABE ROBINSON SAID ANGELS HAD APPEARED TO HIM AND TOLD HIM THE JURY WOULD SET HIM FREE

X-Ray Pioneer Dies Victim Of Own Device

WICHITA, Kan., March 11.—(United Press).—Dr. George H. Siegel, 57, one of the pioneer developers of the X-ray, died here late yesterday, a victim of his own ingenious devices.

Siegel was burned four years ago while treating a patient with an X-ray machine and never survived the effects. He underwent four operations.

Reports in Belleville Allege He Told of Visions.

GIDEON A VISITANT

Judge Regards Him as Unsafe to Be at Liberty.

Gideon and his band of angels have been counsellors of Abraham Robinson, the Madoc farmer, who was acquitted at Belleville Wednesday night, of the murder of Charles St. Charles, on November 15, 1926, according to reports of alleged hallucinations which have been emphasized by Mr. Justice Logie's condemnation of the man the jury freed.

His Lordship's comment, uttered without the slightest hesitation or reserve, was: "For myself I think you fired the sh. that killed St. Charles. You are free to go but I think some steps will have to be taken. I shall do so when I make my report. I think you are not a safe man to be at large."

Reflections upon the sanity of Robinson have been heard, and Mr. Justice Logie's expressed intention indicates that he has reason to believe Robinson should be committed to an asylum.

Angels in Jail.

Several persons told the Examiner that Robinson had described to them the visits of angels. One man said: "Abe told me that when he was in jail, angels dressed in long white robes, used to appear to him. They seemed to come through the wall and they told him not to worry and he cast down for he was going to be acquitted."

Abraham's angelic comforters at least had praeternatural prescience, for their assurance was fulfilled by the jury's verdict.

And at his farm Mr. Robinson received Gideon and his white-robed angels, so another story goes, and Gideon told him he should not have to pay the taxes which the bailiff St. Charles was ordered to collect by distress. This advice coincided with Robinson's desires, and was followed until the day the bailiff arrived with instructions from the municipality of Madoc to seize sufficient goods to pay the debt of $140.00. It is understood that the cattle St. Charles was preparing to take away finally were left at the Robinson farm.

On the strength of the report which Mr. Justice Logie stated he would submit to the provincal authorities it is probable that Robinson may be placed under observation to determine his mental condition. At any rate Robinson is alleged to have told others of his visions and mysterious messages, and it is altogether likely these, if not other, reports, reached Mr. Justice Logie.

Lemuel Missed Train.

The three elderly Robinsons, Lemuel, Abraham and Eliza, departed yesterday at noon for their farm near Eldorado in Hastings County. They were re-united for the first time since November 15th, when some one whom the jury decided was not Abraham, fatally shot the bailiff as he was about to open the gate of Robinson's lane to drive off the cattle seized for the township council.

Eliza and Abraham got on the train for Trenton but Lemuel lingered in the lavatery of the station, and when he returned to the platform the train was moving too f for him. And brother Lemuel had the three tickets in his pocket. A taxi-driver undertook to reach Trenton with him before the train waiting there left on its trip up into Hastings county.

Robinsons Celebrate.

At the Crystal Hotel Wednesday night after Abraham was liberated, the Robinsons celebrated the vindication of the protests of Abe's innocence. So overcome was the sister that she kissed and kissed Abe, and jumped around the room. It was a re-union of rejoicing, and the same high spirits were evident Thursday morning before the home-going.

Abe told the press that he objected to the judge's condemnation of him, and said that had the judge been the jury he would undoubtedly be awaiting death or life imprisonment. He felt keenly Mr. Justice Logie's announcement that he was going to report him to the provincial authorites for observation of his sanity. Abe Robinson is 62.

One of the jurors said they could have been out in "ten minutes except for the look of it." Then they took up the different features of the trial separately and finally when they returned at midnight His Lordship bluntly but respectfully told them in effect that he entirely disagreed with them.

Y'S MEN HEAR ABOUT LEAGUE

Lt.-Col. C. H. Ackerman Addresses Club About Accomplishments Among Nations.

INSTRUCTIVE TALK

That the League of Nations, at an annual cost of about one-fifth of the cost of a modern battleship, had prevented at least three probable wars, besides doing other work, was pointed out by Col. C. H. Ackerman at the meeting of the Y's Men's Club last night. Col. Ackerman said that members of the League brought their disputes to the common discussion around the Council table instead of settling them in conversations between ambassadors. They were also pledged to refrain from conflict for a certain period after attempts at settlement had failed, or else they would be dealt with by the league.

The speaker said that, in spite of the beliefs of many that there would always be wars, the League had done great things towards preserving peace and if it could keep this up for fifteen years or so the statesmen would be the men who had actually seen the horrors of war and they would endeavor to prevent any more conflicts. The strides made in destructive science which would mean that the people at home would be in as much danger as the men in uniform, were also given as a reason for supporting this agency for the prevention of war.

The speaker told of his own first interest in the matter, caused by hearing Lord Robert Cecil address a meeting in New York on the matter. He also recounted the reason given him by an American Senator that it would be a long time before the United States would enter the League, due to the feelings of the many newcomers from all the lands of Europe who distrusted the efforts of men to prevent wars.

The thanks of the members of the club were expressed by Alex. Fitzgerald and Tom Dutton, and conveyed by President Roy White. It was announced that the next meeting, to be held on St. Patrick's Day, would take the form of a ladies' night, and the meeting would be followed by a theatre party.

A violin solo by Arnold Spencer, accompanied by M. B. Chenhall, was much appreciated and a hearty vote of thanks was extended by Bill Hamilton.

Mongrel Dog Suvives Poison and Bullet Wound

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11 (United Press). — Spot, a dirty little mongrel dog which was accidentally poisoned, shot to relieve his suffering, and left in a vacant lot supposedly dead, cocked his head on one side today and observed the world that treated him so badly with manifest approval. The cur is something between a hound and a terrier, a foundling claimed by four youngsters who are working at odd jobs to dignify him with a dog license.

Spot's adventures started late last week when he picked up poison on an ill-advised foraging trip. He became violently ill, and the mother of one of his owners suggested that he be shot. So Spot was taken to an open space to be killed. A few days later he straggled back to old haunts, and now after treatment in a dog hospital, agitates his stubby tail with all the old time enthusiasm.

FREIGHT SHED IS NOW READY

Finest in Central Region, Says C.N.R. Official of Local Building.

TRACKS TO BE BUILT

"The finest freight shed and building in the central region" was the declaration of the Canadian National's engineer who inspected the building today prior to the handing over of the keys by the contractors, G. H. Thomas & Sons, of Galt.

The new shed is now ready for use but its opening is being held up pending the arrival of new desks and furniture for the office. The new tracks that it is proposed to instal will be laid as soon as the weather permits, Alpine MacNab, the local agent said.

John Cousland of G. H. Thomas & Son and superintendent of the construction of the building told The Examiner today that his firm had spent over $40,000 in Peterborough during the progress of the work. "He had", he said, "never had happier relations with business men during his experience than while in Peterborough." Anything that it was possible to purchase locally was bought in the city, he said.

All lumber used in the construction of the building was supplied by the McDonald Lumber Company; the roofing was laid by Fred Rowan; lighting and wiring by G. H. Watson; plumbing and heating by Archibald & Richmond; tinsmithing by W. R. Turner; steel by William Hamilton Company; millwork by Canadian Alladin Company; and the locks by the Kingan Hardware Company.

The new building is situated at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer Streets and is constructed of red brick with cement foundations. It measures four hundred feet by 30 feet, the floor being constructed of 3-inch pine plank.

The side facing west and adjoining the tracks has continuous steel doors installed so that the entire side can be opened and so facilitate the loading and unloading of the cars.

The side facing on Aylmer Street is fitted with a number of sliding doors which will permit the receiving and delivering of freight in the quickest possible manner.

A modern office building with every convenience is situated in the north end, facing Charlotte Street. It is finished in Georgia pine and measures forty by thirty feet.

In the basement there is in addition to a large room for the preserving of the records, a large room fitted up as a lunch room and modern conveniences for the shed staff.

At the south end, to cope with the demand for the unloading and loading of automobiles a ramp measuring fifty feet by fifty feet has been built thus enabling the new automobiles to be driven to the doors of the freight car.

A twenty feet cement roadway running the entire length of the building on Aylmer street has also been laid. The roof has been constructed so that there is a ten-foot overhang over this roadway, being so designed to give freight the maximum amount of protection while it is being handled to or from the drivers.

Fire equipment of the latest pattern has been installed throughout the building, being attached to the main water supply, so that in the event of fire it can be utilized at a moment's notice.

HE'S CHAMP DESERTER.

BOSTON, Mass., March 10. — Louis Sanders wanted to see the world, but joined the army instead of the navy. He conceived the idea of deserting and re-enlisting elsewhere for a change of scenery. Finally arrested at Fort Andrews, Sanders is said by army officials to have enlisted and gone A.W.O.L. 48 times in the past two years.

BATTLE RAGING IN HONAN MAY BE DECISIVE

Forces of Marshals Wu and Chang Clash in Interior.

CHANG ACTIVE.

Finds 60,000 Men on Toward Hankow While Attacking Wu's Flank.

Fighting which may have a decisive effect on the outcome of the struggle between the Northern and Southern Chinese is going on behind the scene in Honan Province. It appears that the long predicted clash has at last occurred between forces allied with Wu Pei Fu and those of the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso Lin, who is driving southward through Honan to attempt to halt the northward advance of the Cantonese.

Chang, known as a master tactician, is said to be planning a flank attack in Honan, meanwhile rushing sixty thousand reinforcements southward to carry on his main advance toward Hankow. The Cantonese forces are entrenched on the southern border to block the way to Hankow.

Special guards were reported to be protecting leading British military personages in Shanghai in the face of growing extremist agitation.

STATION LOOTED.

HONG KONG, March 11. United Press. — A Chinese mob broke into and looted the China Inland Mission station at Luchow near Chunking, it was reported here to-day.

MISSIONARIES WITHDRAWN.

LONDON, March 11. United Press —All but one man of the personnel of nine of the China Inland Mission Station at Luchow, China, reported looted by a mob, left the station some time ago, the mission headquarters here told the United Press today.

About 150 missionaries of the same organization had gathered at Shanghai but 1200 others were still at various interior points, the headquarters repored.

There are no United States' missionaries at Luchow, it is understood, but some Canadians were posted there.

FIGHTING IN HONAN.

PEKING, March 11. Canadian Press. — Six hundred wounded soldiers have arrived in Peking, indicating that the fighting in Honan is developing on a large scale. Undercover of Marshal Chang Tso Lin's artillery, the northerners are continuing to cross the Yellow River despite strong opposition from the forces of General Chin Yung Ao, the civil governor of Honan, and General Wang Kuai Ching.

COLDSTREAM GUARDS LAND.

SHANGHAI, March 11. Canadian Press. — The second battalion of the British Coldstream Guards was landed at Shanghai to-day. The battalion marched for five miles through the rain to billets in Jessfield Park.

Russia's second note in connection with the seizure by the Northern Chinese forces of the Soviet Steamer Pamiat at Lenina, is a strongly worded missive. REDICTS HUGE DEVELOPMENT OF AIR SERVICE

British Air Minister Says Bring Dominions Nearer Great Britain.

TRANSPORT TROOPS.

Laborite's Motion For Restriction of Air Armaments Is Overruled.

LONDON, March 11.— (Canadian Press.)— Development of a British air service which would bring Canada within reach of Great Britain in two days, South Africa in six, India in seven and Australia in eleven, was predicted yesterday by Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister, in discussing aviation estimates in the House of Commons.

Sir Samuel foreshadowed a future when the development of the imperial air service would enable the movement of forces to any threatened point with a swiftness that a few years ago would have appeared incredible.

He announced that a number of co-operative flights would be undertaken soon across the whole of Africa with the assistance of the South African, Sudanese and other colonial governments and eventually similar flights in other distant parts of the empire.

If his anticipation were fulfilled, he said, it will some day not only be possible to concentrate forces where needed but to economize force through its much great mobility.

Motion Overruled.

In the course of debate the Laborite, Susan Lawrence, introduced a motion which sought to induce the government to initiate steps by the League of Nations at the preparatory disarmament conference for the restriction and ultimate elimination of air armaments. She also sought international control of civil aviation which, she said, she regarded as equally dangerous as military aviation.

Sir Phillip Sassoon, Conservative, speaking for the government, frowned on the motion, arguing that such elimiantion would deprive the world of the numerous benefits of air traffic and that it was the government's duty to provide protection for the civilian population from air attack. He said that while the government was sincerely anxious to see limitation of air armaments, it could not take the suggested initiative or act alone in such a matter, which could only be based on a formula accepted by all other air powers.

The Lawrence motion was rejected, 225 to 112.

1926 a Wonderful Year In Opinion Of Depew

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Mar. 11. (Associated Press). — The world is to be congratulated on its latest inventions, and as for its woes and wails, Chauncey M. Depew yet has no word for them.

This was emphasized when the venerable New York financier addressed a large gathering of old friends and winter visitors in the drawing-room of a resort hotel here.

The occasion was his annual address before the St. Augustine Historical Society and Institute of Science of which he is president. Mr. Depew said that in many respects, and with most individuals and enterprises 1926 was a wonderful year and gave Secretaries Andrew Mellon and Herbert Hoover as authorities for the statement that it was the most prosperous in the history of the United States.

Bears "Sandwich" Sign To Find Death Driver

NEW YORK, March 11 (Canadian Press). — A sad-eyed woman in black paraded the streets for hours yesterday with a "sandwich" placard asking information about the "hit-and-run" automobile driver who killed her ten-year-old son. "I will walk up and down as long as my strength lasts," said Mrs. Spetko.

HEAVY RAINS HINDER TROOPS

Converts Front Into Lake-Studded Morasses, Stopping Military Operations.

ARREST STRIKERS

SHANGHAI, March 11.—(Canadian Press.) — Heavy rains have converted all the Shanghai fighting fronts into lake-studded morasses, effectively stopping all military operations of any consequence. Shantung troops continued to arrive at Nanking, however, where they took up positions to defend the Nanking-Shanghai lines of communication.

The Soviet consul-general went to Nanking yesterday morning in an effort to secure the release of Mme. Borodin, wife of the Cantonese adviser, and the three Russian couriers who were arrested last Saturday aboard the Soviet vessel Pamiat Lenina. He was met with the answer that the entire matter lay solely with the government at Pe-king.

The consul asserted that the Chinese military search of the Pamiat Lenina had revealed nothing objectionable aboard and that the ship's captain was making a deposition which would be used in further protests by the Soviet government against the vessel's seizure and the detention of the Russians.

Deny Report.

Reports current Wednesday that the three Russian couriers had been executed were emphatically denied by the Chinese authorities yesterday, who said that the men were being closely guarded at Tainan, but that they were being well treated. A close investigation is being conducted by the Chinese officials to determine the accuracy of the reports made by the arresting officers that a mass of Red propaganda had been aboard the Pamiat Lenina and very little ten.

Meanwhile reports received here indicate that Mme. Borodin and the three couriers, although detained as prisoners, are being "lavishly" entertained by their Chinese captors.

The three couriers were identified yesterday as M. Sierre, formerly clerk at the Soviet embassy in Peking, en route to his new post at Hankow, and Mm. Krill and Grirous, diplomatic couriers en route from Moscow to Hankow.

Action Against Agitators.

The Chinese authorities in Shanghai have begun to take action again strike agitators, many of whom have been arrested and remanded pending an investigation into the ramifications of the strike movement. The headquarters of the postal workers' union was raided and 79 men arrested, including a representative of the general Labor union and the secretary of the postal union. All but these two officials later were released.

During the raid police seized pamphlets advocating a general strike and lauding the republican revolutionary party which is affiliated with the Cantonese.

U. S. Army Balloonist Loses Senses At 27,000 Feet In An Attempt To Bre eak World's Altitude Record

SCOTT FIELD, BELLEVILLE, Ill., March 11 (A.P.).— Numbed by the intense cold, Captain Hawthorne C. Grey, engineering officer at Scott Field, became unconscious at the altitude of 27,000 feet yesterday and failed in an attempt to break the long-standing free balloon altitude record of 35,433 feet.

Captain Gray's balloon landed safely fifty-five miles southeast of Scott Field at 4 p.m. He ascended at 1.15 p.m.

"I returned to consciousness at an altitude of 17,000 feet," Captain Gray said, "and I was very cold. The bag was dropping rapidly, but I succeeded in disposing of more ballast and the landing was easy."

Captain Gray was taken to the field hospital for medical examination. Physicians said he apparently suffered no permanent ill-effects.

Scott Field officials said the balloon probably reached an altitude of a little more than 30,000 feet, or about five miles above the ground.

Captain Gray said he would make two more attempts to break the altitude record.

A radio receiving set and loud speaker were on a shelf in the balloon basket, with two sealed recording baragraphs which record altitudes automatically. Strapped to Gray's back was a folded parachute. On the floor were two tons of sand to be used as ballast.

The balloonist wore a fur-lined leather costume, and several men were required to help him don his heavy boots and clothing designed to protect from the intense cold.

W.C.T.U. MEETING AT CAMPBELLFORD

Business Matters Discussed at March Meeting of Society.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11.— The regular meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. J. H. Bell. The meeting opened with the customary devotional exercises, which were conducted by Mrs. Robert Moore. There was a drill given by several ladies after which several communications were read and business matters discussed. The hostess served a dainty lunch for which a hearty vote of thanks was given. The April meeting will take place at the home of Mrs. Richard Weston, Rear street.

had then spread the fowl and other contents over a large section of the table. When he had essayed to collect five cents, because of the large section occupied, he had been told, "Why, Mr. Stocker, we come here regular. You should pass us up once in a while."

In this connection Alderman Stocker urged that something should be done to get a revision in the tolls, which are now fixed by Provincial statute. Last year when the same matter was debated it was suggested that the charge be made according to the space occupied on the table, instead of by the basket, as it would be legal for someone to bring in a clothes basket full for two cents, but this change could not be made.

The matter of people bringing in hay and having it weighed at some coal dealer's scale for a smaller fee than that charged by the city, and selling it to his customer on that basis, instead of on the weight at the city scale, was brought up by Alderman Denne, who suggested that the weight given on the city scales should be official. Nothing could be done to stop this practice, it was decided.

Alderman Ackerman asked if the by-law could be changed requiring that all fowl should be drawn, as he said that the prices were the same here as at places where this was done, the people paying for an extra pound or so of refuse. The sanitary advantages of undrawn fowl were pointed out by the Mayor and Alderman Denne, and no change was made.

It was decided that no regulation could be made to stop dealers from buying up wood, fruit or fowl and selling it on the market, although they cannot sell anything but their own produce from door to door without a peddler's license.

Prince Sets a Record For Day's Activity

LEICESTER, England, Mar. 11 (United Press).—The Prince of Wales yesterday spent one of the busiest and most varied three and one-half-hour periods in his career.

H. R. H. began with an inspection of a guard of honor at the railway station here. He visited a home for disabled soldiers and planted a tree. Then he visited a home for knitters at Oadby, a suburb, and planted another tree.

University college next entertained the Prince, and he planted a third tree there. Visiting the city war memorial, the Prince placed a wreath on it. The Mayor of Leicester was H. R. H.'s host at luncheon.

The Prince of Wales was in an automobile accident here yesterday but emerged uninjured. A car collided with the rear of Wales' automooile, which was slightly damaged.

RUSH RELIEF TO 'QUAKE VICTIMS

Japanese Health Officials Work Steadily To Prevent an Epidemic.

COLD MODERATES.

TOKIO, March 11 (Canadian Press). — Relief measures for the thousands made homeless in Central Japan by Monday's earthquake were in full swing yesterday, all government agencies throwing their energy into caring for the victims still without shelter or medical attention.

Health officials worked steadily in the devastated area to prevent an epidemic, while thousands of coolies labored on the broken roads, collected bodies and built crude barracks to shelter the living.

Official reports yesterday stated that 2,948 persons had been killed, 4,107 injured and 88 missing. Nearly 6,000 houses were destroyed, either by collapsing or by fire which broke out immediately after the 'quake, and more than 2,000 were damaged badly.

Although the suffering of thousands of families made homeless by the disaster was still acute, the rate at which supplies were being rushed into the region was such that it was hoped the worst conditions would be ameliorated soon.

The government has ordered the shipment of a large quantity of rice from the government warehouses at Osaka to the Tango district, where are located most of the towns destroyed. The floods of local streams abated somewhat yesterday while the cold weather which had greatly added to the suffering grew milder.

Locate Centre.

Dr. Shinichi Kunitomi, seismologist of the Central Observatory of Tokio, who is now investigating the 'quake zone, reported that apparently the centre of Monday's 'quake was ten miles off Kyogasaki promontory, at the tip of the Tango Peninsula. Had the movement found its centre on land instead of in the sea, he expressed the opinion that the disaster would have been greater than the 'quake of 1923.

Another prominent scientist, now in the 'quake zone, Dr. Akitsune Imamura, estimated that the amplitude of the 'quake was twice as greta as that of 1923 and that its destructive force was five times greater. He expressed the opinion that the 'quake zone was gradually moving to the east.

Relief funds for the victims of the 'quake are being raised by the Tokio municipality and the Chamber of Commerce, while prefectural governors are being urged to collect supplies and money.

YOUTH MAKES GAME FIGHT AGAINST DEATH

Staves Off Death For 100 Hours Through Artificial Respiration.

LANDRY'S PARALYSIS.

Doctors Note Slight Improvement in Condition of Chicago Youth.

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press)—Jesting grimly with death, Albert Frick clung tenaciously to life last night after having staved off death for more than 100 hours through artificial respiration.

Victim of Landry's paralysis, a mysterious disease which attacks only youth, the courageous 22 year old boy gasped out a quip now and then as the gently thrusting hands of fifty friends, working 15 minutes each in relays of two, urged the life sustaining oxygen into powerless lungs.

The youth, attacked last Sunday evening by the little known disease which creeps stealthily but steadily up the body until it fixes itself, usually fatally, upon the life centres, last night provided a marvel for medical science.

Although he has slept only about an hour since Sunday and has taken nourishment only by injection or a few spoonfuls at a time, Frick last night bossed a gang of almost three score fellow employes who for five days and nights have labored in an endless chain of gentle, willing hands to keep the spark of life in his body.

His attention was riveted to the devoted comrades who through rhythmical, constant pressure on his diaphragm hour after hour and day after day have provided him with life-giving air.

Jokes with Nurse

Reclining on a cot at St. Francis Hospital in Evanston at a 45 degree angle, the youth cheerfully gasped out an answer to a question now and then, and once in a while cracked a joke and smiled at his jest.

"Wrong number," he gasped between breaths when a nurse entered the room paging a strange doctor. And "Hello," he said faintly between inhalations to-day when the telephone in the hall rang.

"Well, son, when you get well we are going to give a big party for you at Crystal Lake," Frick's father remarked last night.

The youth's eyes lighted appreciatively.

"What do you say, shall we do it?" the father asked.

"Sure," gasped the boy.

"And shall we invite the nurse so you can dance with her?"

"Sure thing," said the boy smiling at the nurse, who smiled back.

An oxygen tank at his head from time to time supplements the work of his friends.

"If I could only sleep again," he gasped last night as the constant pressure of the hands keeping him alive continued to interfere with his rest.

Frick's sensory nerves have not been affected and although he can move only his hands and head, sense of feeling remains. Sometimes he complains that his legs are cold and again he has a confused feeling that his legs are bent or crossed when they lie straight and parallel.

"Not so hard," or "harder", he sometimes says as the pressure of hands changes. This pressure, however, has not bruised the flesh, so gentle have the workers been.

"More air," the youth whispers when he wishes to talk.

Fed Liquids

Once yesterday he said "Ouch." That was when a needle containing a glucose solution was inserted in his arm. A bottle on a pole tied to the bed is filled twice daily with this nourishment and rubber tubes carry it to needles through wh two quarts a day are injected counter act body poisons as well provide food.

No narcotics has been used induce sleep, Dr. T. E. Conley s but added that a medication is ing injected in the hope of clear up the paralytic condition.

Slight Improvement

The principal ray of hope for yesterday was recovery of the of the soft palate. For three d Frick was unable to swallow, recovery of the use of the palate was regarded as a slight of improvement. Frick see aware of the passing of time though he has no idea of the day the week.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE THINGS FAMILIAR

The singers sing the same songs over.
And critics call them old;
But God has made no change in clover,
Or grass, or marigold.
It sometimes seems that all the true things
Are still the old things, not the new things;
For men have age and men have youth,
But it is hard to change the truth.

And so I say to you, my lasses,
And say to you, my lads,
It is the changing thing that passes,
We weary of our fads.
With more of loving, less of learning,
We find ourselves to things returning
That for a time we pushed aside,
For not a truth has ever died.

And so I say to you, O mothers,
And say to you, O sires,
Though truth must stand aside for others,
In time men's folly tires.
Then men shall weary of the new things,
Shall want the old things, want the true things,
The things familiar, not the strange,
That God has never thought to change.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST : Interviews with Jesus

Synopsis Arranged by Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Sketches by Kroesen.

To Nicodemus, "a ruler of the Jews," who came to him by night, Jesus expounded the doctrine of the new life: "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God." (John III : 1-21)

To the Woman at Jacob's Well, Jesus gave his great teaching, "God is a spirit and they that worship him must worship him in spirit and in truth." (John IV : 24)

As Jesus came again into Galilee a nobleman besought him to heal his son, who lay sick at Capernaum, and Jesus assured him of his son's recovery. (John IV : 46-53)

At Nazareth, his boyhood home, Jesus entered the synagogue, and preached. His townsmen were at first astonished at his knowledge and eloquence, but later were stirred to anger and sought to kill him. (Luke IV : 16-30)

TOMORROW'S TAG DAY.

The Examiner in again calling the attention of its readers to the fact that the annual tag day on behalf of St. Vincent's Orphanage will be held tomorrow, urges a liberal response to the appeal.

The orphanage has for many years been doing a most valuable and useful work in taking care of dependent and neglected children, and like the Children's Aid Society, which is engaged in a similar effort, depends to a considerable extent upon the support accorded by the public on the occasion of the annual tag day.

This form of raising much needed funds was first adopted by these two organizations, and their right to such a method has been recognized generally by the citizens.

It is a means of securing financial assistance that provides an opportunity for everyone to help, and at the same time does not press heavily upon anybody.

The sale of tags tomorrow should be brisk, for the cause is one that deserves hearty support at the hands of the citizens of Peterborough.

WIDE POWERS.

A feature of the Liquor Control Act is the wide powers that are being assigned the Commission headed by Mr. Hanna.

The board is given authority to establish stores, regulate the hours of sale, determine the quantity of liquor that is to be sold to any one person, fix the price of permits, determine the classes and brands of liquor to be kept for sale, and the prices at which it is to be sold.

The Government's attitude toward the board seems to be something like this:

"Here is a bill in which certain limitations are defined. Go ahead and administer it within those limitations, make your own rules and regulations. We have every confidence in your ability and integrity, and we give you a free hand in putting this measure into operation."

The Premier has at all times since this matter became an election issue stressed the importance of having "a strong man" in charge.

The reason is seen in the supreme authority that is being given Mr. Hanna and his associates.

Certainly a board with such great responsibilities would be no place for weaklings.

THE CONTROL ACT.

The liquor control bill introduced by Premier Ferguson on Wednesday followed closely the forecasts made before the measure was brought down, and indicated a successful attempt on the part of the Premier to live up to his campaign promises.

The pledges that there would be no sale of beer by the glass and that local option areas would be respected are implemented by the provisions of the measure.

The policy of the Government is to rely on strong, efficient administration rather than on statutory enactments, and the Commission headed by Mr. Hanna is given wide powers and cannot be interfered with either by courts or the Government.

Salient features of the bill include the following:

Individual permit to residents of Ontario, terminating at the end of each October.

Permits to temporary residents, good for a month.

Permits for physicians, dentists, etc.

Special permits for ministers of the gospel for sacramental purposes.

No sale by druggists.

Breweries and distilleries can sell in the Province to the board only under a permit from the board.

No liquor may be consumed in a public place.

Establishment of stores is left to the board provided local option or Canada Temperance Act areas are not affected.

The Attorney-General is to be responsible for prosecutions.

Jail sentences for illegal sale on the first offence.

A board official in every brewery warehouse.

No public advertising of liquor.

This summary serves to call attention to the restrictive nature of the legislation, and in this feature of the new Act those who view with alarm the restoration of the legalized sale of liquor may be able to find some reassurance.

The Act does away with the element of private gain in the sale of liquor, and puts restrictions upon the brewers that are not found in other Government control Provinces, seeing that all sales of beer must be made through the Government vendors, and a representative of the board will be on duty in every brewery warehouse to check sales.

Bootlegging is made a doubtful occupation, inasmuch as conviction for illegal sale means jail on the first offence—no option of a fine being provided.

The whole intent of the legislation is to provide a legitimate source of supply, and to deal strictly with those who abuse the privilege thus accorded or who seek for their own gain to defeat the purpose of the Act.

The measure is an experiment, the result of which will have to be determined by actual test.

However, it is apparently a better Act than any of the other Government control measures in the Dominion, and it is the duty of all citizens to do what they can to make the legislation successful.

This sentiment is expressed by The Globe, which consistently has fought for the cause of prohibition, and which winds up its review of the Control Act with the following paragraph:

"There is no question that Premier Ferguson had the support of the voters in his proposals to change the liquor situation. His bill is the result of public demand—a demand which, as is well known, The Globe regards as regrettable. He is entitled to credit for endeavoring to frame a measure which, in his opinion, will overcome at least some of the evils of the liquor business. If it becomes law the public can do nothing else than give it a fair trial and assist the authorities in every possible way to make it effective. It will not be satisfactory if the restrictive features are not observed, and in this particular public co-operation will be most necessary."

THE WOOLLEN INDUSTRY.

The full brief presented to Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Finance, by the Canadian Woollen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association last month in seeking changes in the tariff affecting their products contains much interesting material.

Peterborough, of course, is very much concerned in this matter, in view of the local industries affected by the tariff.

The association's statement to the Minister showed that the manufacturing interests affected by the woollen tariff schedule had 446 mills and factories in Canada, employing directly 33,704 people and paying wages and salaries of $29,873,371 annually.

Those engaged in the woollen and knit goods industries alone have mills situated in 140 municipalities throughout the country.

It was the contention of the manufacturers in presenting their case that wool manufacturing in Canada had been steadily declining, while at the same time the imports of manufactured woollen goods had been excessive.

In fact, in 1924 for every dollar's worth of cloth made in Canada $2.20 was imported.

In the same year imported yarns amounted to over 50 per cent. of the value of home production.

The imports of woollen and worsted stockings in quantity amounted to 60 per cent. of the Canadian production.

Changes made in the British preference in 1922 and 1923 are blamed by the manufacturers for leaving 40 per cent. of the Canadian machinery idle in 1923, and Canadian woollen and knit goods men are a unit in declaring that they are, under the present tariff schedule operating at a very serious disadvantage, because of the difference in wages here as compared with those paid in European countries.

They state that the average wage per week in Canada is $18.72, as compared with $3.15 in Italy, $4.05 in France and $8.99 in England.

Reasons why their industry should be encouraged include the following as given in the official statement to the Minister:

"Since work through the long winter months, as well as summer work, is provided by the mills, and to women as well as to men, and as the majority of the mills are in small towns, the industry provides a means of checking the drift of young men and women from the rural towns to the great cities, or to the United States, by providing them with congenial local employment. If for no other reason, and there are many others, the great value of the woollen and knitting industry to the life of Canada should be realized as 80 per cent. of the 276 individual establishments are in centres of under 10,000 population.

"That the smaller centres in Canada desire to have industries locate within their precincts does not need to be demonstrated, and the reason is that each new industry affords additional means of employment and produces greater prosperity which is shared by all professions and vocations in the community. Real estate values are increased and activity in building trades is promoted by the need for industrial buildings, housing for workers, and new and enlarged retail stores.

"Canadian mills on their land and buildings, on the profits earned by them if any, and through the wages and salaries they pay, supply taxes, Dominion, Provincial and municipal, towards lightening the burden on other tax payers. They supply raw material freight and passengers for our railways. The employees, shareholders and owners support Canadian retailers and professional men and women, the charities and the churches, and provide a home market for the farmers. Their children are native-born Canadians. Their homes are here and their interests are bound up in the future prosperity of our country.

"Mills and workers which make imported woollens and knit goods are not situated in Canada and so none of these national benefits are obtained from them."

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

No crowding for permits, gentlemen. The bill does not come into effect for some time yet.

Jail sentences on the first offence for bootleggers will take a lot of joy out of illicit selling.

It was not surprising to find that, unlike the Georgian Bay resolution, the liquor control bill was not seconded by Hon. W. E. Raney.

Judging by the number of games that have to be played, the amateur hockey championship competition would be more accurately described as the All-in series.

Peterborough's anti-profanity Fire Department bylaw is giving the city a lot of advertising, but the value of much of it is to be doubted.

Peterborough firemen are forbidden to use strong language while performing their duties. They may have to be careful in their selection of similes to describe the conflagration.—Mail and Empire.

PROPER BUSINESS FOR A GOVERNMENT

By Dr. Frank Crane.

A recent report to Congress for an appropriation for the Interior Department included some $750,000 for a dam in Arizona and some $2,500,000 for road construction, with other items of a similar character.

This is proper business for a government. It does not pay for a government to be paternal and to foster certain special interests, but it does pay for a government to engage in public works, the benefit of which shall accrue generally to the people.

When the Lord made Adam and Eve it is said that he put them in the garden in order to tend and keep it. Man's work ever since upon this earth has been in improving upon the natural conditions of nature.

He is to reclaim deserts, improve rivers, perfect harbors and make tunnels, etc., so that the earth will be a fitter place in which to live.

It is this kind of work in which the army should be engaged. In other words, be put upon constructive labor as well as to be kept in readiness for destructive operations.

Such a program might well call for the services of every boy and girl at some time in their lives, say from the years of 20 to 22, when they would be required to give their services to the government. Everybody ought to be made to realize that the nation is greater than the individual and has prior claims upon a man claims that come before his individual needs.

This would maintain an immense army of constructive workers who could be changed in a moment's notice to an army of defense against an enemy.

If this plan were adopted I should be in favor of compulsory military training and in compelling boys and girls to be trained not alone in the bearing of arms but compelling them at a certain period in their lives to work for the government.

The United States has vast stretches of land which need improvements. Much of the West is barren and needs only the proper use of its water courses in order to water it. Arizona might be as rich as Egypt if it were properly watered.

The use of the natural supply of power that is found in falling waters opens up tremendous vistas and in the application of this our youth might well be employed.

The making of good roads also is a contribution to the permanent welfare of our nation. Roads need to be constantly worked upon and new roads need to be built.

Altogether it is quite proper for a government to go into the business of improving the natural resources of the nation.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

SIDEWALKS ARE DISGRACE

The Examiner, City:

Dear Sir.—The letter written by "Citizen" certainly must have expressed the feelings of hundreds of citizens re sidewalks.

They certainly are a disgrace to a city like Peterborough to have such deep slushy sidewalks and it just seems that the people living here are too lazy to clean them off, for it would only take a few minutes in most cases.

There are people living near us who do not touch their sidewalk from one year to another,—they must either sleep all day or were born tired.

If the police department would issue a few summonses to these people, maybe they would "wake up," clean up, and make for a better Peterborough.—L.T.P.

PITIES THE COUNCIL.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Spring letter writers are almost as legion as spring poets. Probably one reason in your copy readers can fix up the most ungrammatical letter, while they are unable to doll up bad poetry. The former makes the grade while the latter is consigned to the baler. This agitation for spring cleaning of the sidewalks has a lot to commend it. The wielding of a scraper and shovel is good spring exercise, especially if followed up by an attack on the winter's accumulation of ashes in the cellar. About the time the last gob of snow has been swallowed up in the muddy road, and the last box of ashes deposited in the ashcart, we will be able to frisk in our own gardens like buttercups in poppy fields.

So why ask the Council to do anything? Like other good parents, the city fathers are interested in the physical well-being of their children, and if they didn't make us exercise they'd likely have to from door to door with spoons full of sulphur and 'lasses.

And there's the old gag with which all parents have a nodding acquaintance: "This hurts me more than it does you."

Think how the Aldermen and Mayor (especially the Mayor) must be suffering!

SANDOW.

ENQUIRES AFTER MAYOR'S HEALTH.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

Your editorials upon the condition of the streets and walks of this city are very commendable. Complaints from men and women of all walks of life are heard repeatedly regarding existing conditions. Much has been said about surface draining and the urgent need of completing it. What great value it is when the openings are not looked after on proper time, and the water running all over the streets following the course of the least resistance? It is a condition which would not be tolerated in a country village.

We have a paid city engineer, but men with average mentality, equipped with a pick and shovel and placed to look after alloted sections would give service which would be very much appreciated by every ratepayer.

No doubt we have representatives of this city who are men of brains, high-power thinkers, but they are not equipped with a starter, but have to wait until the press and some ordinary ratepayer do the cranking before they will move.

What has become of Mayor Holloway, the city's chief advisor. Has he developed sleeping sickness, and is he unconscious of the city's need just now?

Yours respectfully,
COMMON SENSE.

For QUICK CLEAN HEALING

SUGGESTS SLUSH REMEDY

Mr. Editor:

I would like to take up a little space in your valuable paper to express my views as to the condition of the sidewalks in this city, at the present time. I do not know whether there is a by-law to the effect that citizens should clean the sidewalks in front of their propert or not, but if there is not I should think that it is about time there was. No doubt we have a few valiant citizens who will try to get rid of as much of the slush as they can, and in a lot of places there work would be greatly improved if there were only a few ditches leading to the storm sewers. Then again there are others who do not put a shovel on the sidewalk from the time the snow comes in the fall till it goes away again in the spring, and I think if anyone would take the trouble to find out they would find that the most of these are the white-collared variety who mostly have their cars to drive around in so that the sidewalk does not concern them much.

My idea of the way to remedy this would be to discard the snow plows and make a by-law to the effect that every person would have to clear the snow from his own sidewalk before nine o'clock in the morning or else it would be cleared away by the city and paid for by the person who owned the property.

I lived in Toronto for eight years and I have seen this system work there with great satisfaction, and I don't doubt that you can go to Toronto today and walk on dry walks from one end of the city to the other while here we are wading to the boot tops over the greater part of our trips to and from work.

Thanking you, M. Editor, for this space,

A LOVER OF FAIR PLAY.

AGAINST CLEANING SIDEWALKS.

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

So many people are hollering for citizens to clean off their sidewalks that it seems necessary to take the other side of the argument. Maybe my contention will not be accepted by many, and yet I declare that in many cases it is better to let the snow lie.

It is alright on such streets as Park, Rubidge, and all the centre-city streets, to clear the snow off the sidewalks, because there is nothing at the edge of the sidewalk to stop the water running away.

Where I live, however, and on many other streets, there is a boulevard between the cement of the sidewalk and the mud which serves as a road. The grass is higher than the sidewalks and holds the water in a pond.

The obvious solution is to dig a drain through the sward. Well, then the snow melting on the lawn which is terraced) runs down over the sidewalk, making glare ice that is more dangerous than the slush is unpleasant.

'Twixt the frying pan and the fire, where will these clamoring writers have me flop?

THE BEST PROTEIN FOODS

It would be impossible for human life to exist without a sufficient amount of food containing protein material. In today's article, I am going to name a few of the best foods from which you can secure this indispensable protein material.

Lean Beef is the best protein food for all purposes. Between one-quarter and one-half pound can be used by the average adult each day without any harmful consequences, if used in proper combinations with other foods.

Mutton is one of the best proteins, and this mature meat is far superior to lamb, which contains more fat and is not so easily digested.

Chicken and Turkey. The meat of these fowls is good protein food, if properly prepared by roasting or broiling.

Rabbit is equally as nutritious as any of the others that I have mentioned, if the domestic rabbit is used. Wild rabbit, (and this is true of all wild game) is not as wholesome as game and fowl raised for the table.

Fish is an excellent protein food, if these varieties are used; sole, halibut, sea bass, pickerel, fresh cod, tom cod, perch, black bass and tuna. Fish should never be prepared by frying, but should be boiled, broiled or baked. All fish food takes longer to digest than the good meats, so great care must be used in selecting proper combinations and using only limited amounts of such food at the same meal.

Eggs furnish plenty of protein, but because of the large amount of sulphur contained in the yolk, it is not best to use many whole eggs in one day. However, if only one or two yolks are used, the whites of several others may be used in the same day. Eggs do not supply entirely the same food material that is found in meat, as the animal acids, which are present in meat are lacking in eggs.

Cottage and Cream Cheese is high in protein value, but is more difficult to digest, due to the presence of a large amount of butter fat, which interferes with the action of the digestive juices.

Gelatin is a form of protein which does not take the place of meat, but supplies the blood with a very vital form of protein, which assists in its coagulating power.

Frog Legs provide a suitable protein, if they are not fried, but prepared only by broiling.

Turtle meat is nutritious and affords a pleasant change, but again I must warn you not to prepare turtle steak in any manner except by broiling.

I have selected the above proteins as the best, because of their food qualities; digestibility, and their value when prepared properly.

In the next article, I shall name those proteins which are "NOT SO GOOD", but which may be used occasionally if the good ones are not available.

BICYCLE RIDING FOR PLEASURE AS WELL AS FOR CONVENIENCE

Great Increase in Number of Wheels in Recent Years.

USED YEAR AROUND

Estimated That 25 Per Cent. of Citizens Possess Bicycles.

Are bicycles as a means of conveyance in this city dying out? Is the question which is being discussed on the street and in the homes these days. After a little study of the question you will find as many riding bicycles today as in the years gone by.

The coming of the motor car to some extent curtailed the sale of bicycles in this city for awhile but the boy of today must have his wheel so as he can wander through the country in the summer seeking adventure and having all kinds of fun. A few years ago it was impossible to ride the bicycle except on well travelled streets of the city during the winter months; but today a wheel can be used the twelve months of the year for all the streets have become beaten down with the motor traffic.

Bicycle riding is coming back for in a survey of the city it was found that there were very few boys between twelve and eighteen who did not possess a wheel. Workmen are using the bicycle more than ever to go to their work and the young lady is developing that same wander lust that the boy has had for years.

No definite figures are obtainable as to the number of bicycle owners in this city for the bicycle riders are not licensed as they are in some other cities but it is a safe estimate that twent-five percent of the population ride bicycles and that ninety percent of the men rode bicycle at some time in their life.

It is a great pleasure for the boy who does not own a bicycle to go on a summer day and hire one from the shops in the city and then he will ride until he is tired right out over the streets and on the roads in the country.

The latest model of bicycle makes riding a real pleasure, the machine is easily propelled up hill and on the level and its coasting ability has shown a great increase. It is not tiresome to ride these new models and every boy and girl who has one delights in it and is most desirous of keeping it clean for they are the latest in finish and appearance.

"Our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel" (II Tim. 1-10). "He that believeth on the Son hath eternal life" (Jn. 3:36). "Art not thou from everlasting? . . . we shall not die" (Hab. 1:12). "Henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness" (II Tim. 4:8).

See—Matthew 25:34, 46; Romans 2:6, 7; 5:21.

MEDITATION: The hope of immortality is universal. The materialist may offer his explanations. But to assume that "Nature" has deceived man in begetting this hope gives pause to the careful thinker. Christ brought this hope of immortality out into the open. As Christians we share His thought of God, and of man "born from above." Therefore we may think with confidence of our "loved and lost," while our own hope of immortality grows bright.

"Thy immortality is God's immortality. Thy hope of vanquishing death is thy possession in thyself of the deathless One."

HYMN:

Dear Lord and Father of mankind,
Forgive our feverish ways;
Reclothe us in our rightful mind,
In purer lives Thy service find,
In deeper reverence, praise.

Drop Thy still dews of quietness,
Till all our strivings cease;
Take from our souls the strain and stress,
And let our ordered lives confess
The beauty of Thy peace.

Breathe through the hearts of our desire
Thy coolness and Thy balm;
Let sense be dumb, let flesh retire;
Speak through the earthquake, wind and fire,
O still small voice of calm.

—John G. Whittier, 1872.

PRAYER: Pray for—deathless life within; true friends; the unfortunate.

Collect—O thou whose will-to-do fails not, we thank Thee for freedom, for the responsibility which makes failure possible but success glorious. We bless Thee that Thou hast trusted us. Such friendship is beyond price. Give us now the inner power of Him who triumphed over every obstacle, yea, even over agony, hatred, and death. We fear for our souls before the high trusts of heaven. We confess our sinfulness in pursuing little things. Correct us by the call of Thy faithfulness. Give us increasing faith in the invisible, unfaltering courage for the conflict with evil and deliverance from the fear of death. Amen.

Sentence Of Death After Six Minutes

LONDON, March 11.—Six minutes after he entered court shouting his guilt, James Stratton, 26, and a packer, left it under sentence of death for killing a girl who had discouraged his attentions. Justice Branson accepted this plea of guilty, dispensing even with the formality of having the prosecutor establish the fact that a crime had been committed. But on representations by counsel that there had been many cases of insanity in Stratton's family, the Justice promised a thorough investigation before the death sentence is carried out.

HUNTER CHOSEN GRAND MASTER

Expected Battle in Orange Grand Lodge Fails To Materialize.

SAUNDERS DEPUTY.

GUELPH, March 11. The expected battle for the Mastership of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario West, failed to materialize, the coveted office going to J. J. Hunter, Kincardine, by acclamation, when L. H. Saunders, after receiving the nomination for the chair, withdrew.

Following his retirement from the contest for the Grand Mastership, Mr. Saunders was elected to the office of Deputy Grand Master on the first ballot over Rev. E. D. Baker of Meaford and Len Wallace of Toronto, who contested the Deputy's seat, Charles M. Carrie, of Toronto, Secretary-Treasurer of the Board of Directors of the Loyal True Blue and Orange Home, was elected to the Associate Deputy's seat, vacated by Mr. Saunders. Two ballots were necessary before Mr. Carrie carried the seat over Rev. Mr. Baker, Len Wallace and W. H. Crawford of Brantford. Rev. E. D. Baker of Meaford who was beaten for both the Deputy chair and the Associate Deputy office was re-elected Grand Chaplain over seven other clerical contestants. A. J. Marshall was chosen Grand Marshal of the Grand Lodge. J. A. Carson of London, received the Grand Lectureship, with W. E. Crawford of Brantford as his Deputy. Grand Auditors are W. H. Taylor of Aurora and James Mayor of Toronto. T. M. Fitzgerald, as was expected, was named Grand Secretary again, and William Cook, of Meaford, was elected Deputy of the office.

AN APPRECIATION.

We, the members of L.O.L. No. 2322, Petherick's Corners, wish to state that after a thorough investigation by all members into the character of Mr. W. I. Stillman, report most unanimously to the effect that he is a man of unreproachable character and unstained conduct and on behalf of one of the best lodges in Southern Ontario wish to certify that we have known Mr. William I. Stillman all his life and that his manly principles and Christian habits are adored by his enormous number of friends in this district, who send with us in these few remarks many inexpressible feelings of condolence in the late bereavement of his wife.

We will vouch for the statement that Mr. Stillman's actions, thoughts, and deeds are only those such as are censured worthy in the sight of Almighty God.

Although there is no one who can fill the empty chair left in his now cheerless home we are certain by his Christian example and his manly principles of honesty and sociability that he will not always be separated from his most lovable partner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Moore and Daughter Are Moving to Warkworth.

WARKWORTH, March 11. — A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Moore, Oak Heights, when about seventy-five of their neighbors and friends gathered together to spend a social evening with them before they leave for their new home in Warkworth. The evening was spent in dancing and cards, after which a dainty lunch was served. At the close of the lunch Mr. and Mrs. Moore and daughter Olive were caleld to the dining room, where they were presented with two beautiful wicker chairs and club bag, and the following address was read:

Dear Mr and Mrs. Moore and Olive—As you are about to depart from our midst we feel it our pleasant duty to-night to show some slight mark of respect and recognize in some tangible form our appreciation for the kindness shown toward us. Your life among us has been short, but a real source of pleasure and your genial manner has gained for you the confidence and appreciation of a large circle of friends.

Your loss to this community will surely be felt by all, but lessened by knowing that you are not going far beyond our reach. We would ask you, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, to accept these chairs and Miss Olive Moore this club bag and hope they will ever be a remembrance of your many friends on Oak Heights.

Signed on behalf of neighbors and friends—Mr. and Mrs. David Harnden and Mr. and Mrs. R. Potter.

Although taken by surprise, Mr. Moore and Miss Olive in a few words thanked the people for their kindness.

Mrs. Wallace Baker and son Cameron are spending a few days with friends in Castleton.

FERRY SERVICE FOR MOTOR CARS

Arrangements Made to Load Automobiles on Flat Cars.

AS TRIAL SERVICE

The Motor League branches and Chambers of Commerce in this part of Ontario have been trying for the past few months to have carferries between Rochester and Cobourg opened for automobile traffic. The management of the ferry has promised to give the project a trial in this coming season and the following letter was received by the Chamber of Commerce:

"It has been decided as a trial to determine the value of this traffic which might develop between Rochester, N.Y. and Cobourg, to open the carferries for automobile traffic this year.

"Permanent and adequate arrangements giving the greatest amount of convenience are not possible without very considerable initial outlay and it is expected that upon the results of the traffic moving under the proposed arrangements for this year we shall be able to determine whether or not it would be good business policy to go to the expense of providing permanent and better means of handling automobiles on the carferries.

"For this season's operations therefore, a certain number of flat cars will be fitted for carrying automobiles; two flat cars to begin with, which might be increased to four or six if occasion should call for such a number. The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railway Co. will make an extension to one of the tracks on top of the hill at Genesee Dock, with a loading ramp so that owners can drive their cars from the street at the top of the hill right on to the flat cars where they will be properly blocked and secured. They will then be shifted by a switching engine down the bank to the dock level yards and placed on the carferries after the regular freight cars are loaded. At Cobourg they will be taken off by a switch engine first before regular freight cars are unloaded and switched over to a loading ramp in Cobourg Yard, where owners of cars can take charge of them and unload themselves.

"In the reverse direction, at the proper time, owners of cars at Cobourg desiring to cross Southbound will drive their own cars up the ramp and on to flat cars, when they will be secured and switched by the Yard engine on to steamer the last thing and after the regular cargo of freight is loaded. At Genesee Dock they will be taken off first thing, placed to one side and switched up to the upper level unloading platform after the passenger train has loaded and gone up the bank. This will mean a little delay for Southbound traffic but is the best we can do under the circumstances, and it is to be considered of course that this arrangement is only a temporary one.

"It is obvious that a limited number of cars only can be taken each trip and it will be necessary for owners of cars to book their space the day before both at Rochester and Cobourg.

"The details of this whole arrangement have not been worked out yet, neither have the rates to be charged for carrying various sizes and types of automobiles. Information as to this will be furnished later for promulgation to automobilists, tourists and others desiring such information. This present communication is to advise of the decision having been reached to handle automobile traffic this year in the manner outlined above."

In 1572 the Earl of Leicester presented the first wrist watch to Queen Elizabeth of England. It consisted of a bracelet with the watch attached, but not in the modern way.

GOT HER FEET WET CAUGHT BAD COLD

Mrs. Ernest Hall, Cardinal, Ont., writes:—"Last winter I got my feet wet and I caught a terrible cold. I took different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good and I seemed to be getting worse all the time.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAKING THE WORLD CHRISTIAN

Text: Matt. 28:16-20; Acts 16:6-15.

Then the eleven disciples went away into Galilee, into a mountain where Jesus had appointed them.

And when they saw him, they worshiped him: but some doubted.

And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth.

Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost:

Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen.

Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the Holy Ghost to preach the word in Asia.

After they were come to Mysia, they assayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit suffered them not.

And they passing by Mysia, came down to Troas.

And a vision appeared to Paul in the night; There stood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, saying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

And after he had seen the vision, immediately we endeavored to go into Macedonia, assuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the gospel unto them.

Therefore loosing from Troas, we came with a straight course to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis;

And from thence to Philippi, which is the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.

And on the sabbath we went out of the city by a river side, where prayer was wont to be made; and we sat down, and spake unto the women which resorted thither.

And a certain woman named Lydia, a seller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worshiped God, heard us: whose heart the Lord opened, that she attended unto the things which were spoken of Paul.

And when she was baptized, and her household, she besought us, saying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my house and abide there. And she constrained us.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 13: Making the World Christian.—Matt. 28: 16-20; Acts 16:6-15.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

The title of this lesson for young people and adults is "Christian Missions, the Hope of the World." If the world is to be made Christian, how can this end be accomplished without Christian missions?

In relation to other religions and their sincere followers is there something pharisaic in the purpose to make the world Christian? Does it mean a better-than-thou attitude on the part of Christians? Are Christian missions the expression of a somewhat narrow and proselyting spirit?

Only a view of the matter that is itself very narrow and ill-informed could take these questions seriously. It is true that there are Christians whose spirit and outlook are very narrow, who think of Christianity as a good religion to the exclusion of all others and whose attitude toward life is essentially that of proselyting. No one can deny, moreover, that this spirit has sometimes actuated those who have gone forth to other lands in the name of Christ.

Not True Christianity.

But such conceptions and attitudes are not the expression of the finest types of Christian missionaries, nor are they expressive of the deepest purpose of foreign missionary activity. Probably few people anywhere have been so deeply appreciative of the elements of good in other religions, or have done so much to make these elements of good known, as have the Christian missionaries.

They have thought of Christianity as fulfilling rather than destroying all that is best in the religious inclinations and devotions of the people among whom they have lived. Moreover, they have represented Christianity, not so much as a system of doctrine, as a way of life, and they have tried, through service and right living, to show that Christianity is indeed and in truth a better way.

The problem of making the world Christian is not that of bringing all people to acknowledge some uniform creed. It is the problem of bringing love into all the relationships of life. The Christians' greatest message is the message of God's love. His greatest appeal to men is that they should love God and love one another as he has loved them.

This was what Christian missions meant in the beginnings of the Christian church. It is only love such as this that can create a world outlook and that can seek to bring all the relationships of life under the power of a true religion.

The willingness of a religion to be circumscribed or confined within a narrow area, to be only the religion of one people or one race or one nation or one group of adherents, is in itself the surest demonstration of the inadequacy and effective quality of such a religion. A religion that is not world-wide in its outlook, in its hopes and aspirations cannot be noble, true or adequate.

It marks the glory of the Christian religion that when its early disciples had found a rich and blessed experience they immediately wanted to share that experience with others. That experience of the love of God began immediately to break down barriers between class and class, between nation and nation. The Christian master was taught that the Christian slave was his brother in Christ. The Jew had enforced upon him the lesson that the Gentile, as much as himself, was the worthy heir of the promises.

And all this enriching, enlarging life of the spirit found its highest and most complete expression in this representation of the disciples as a company of people under commission to go and "make disciples of all nations."

Breadth of Vision.

It is the breadth of its view, the completeness of its purpose, that marks the truth and fullness of the religion of Christ. When Christianity means less than this to us, it has become merely one of the world's religions and not supremely religion for the world.

The expression of this world-wide purpose, this imperialism of love and grace, found its most concrete form in the Apostle Paul. The Macedonian call represented for him the appeal of the regions beyond, and Paul manifested the restless and never satisfied quest of spiritual adventure in his response to that call.

This passionate pioneer spirit that has constantly changed the face of the world, and that has been the most powerful incentive in history, can never be neglected in the realm of religion. Without this restless movement toward the regions beyond, the environment of Christian civilization would become very narrow, if not selfish and sordid.

MOTHER MINE.

A very interesting and well-performed three-act play entitled "Mother Mine," was presented in Knox Church Lecture Hall last evening, under the auspices of the Sunday School, with an attendance of over two hundred and fifty people, who appeared to enjoy to the utmost the efforts of the cast in their entertainment.

The play deals with the adventures of Jerry MacConnell, a "Home" boy, who is adopted by Mrs. Miranda Peasley, the "Mother Mine" of the story, whose kindly spirit and charitable nature make her a general favorite in the community. This part is taken in admirable style by Mrs. R. Lang, whose excellent portrayal of the role of Miranda brought her plenty of enthusiastic applause. Jerry MacConnell is enacted by Howard Hall in splendid fashion.

Jerry becomes involved in the theft of a sum of money from the safe of the village storekeeper, Joe Payson (played by John Herd, and premises to take the blame to shield the real criminal, Joe's son, Jack Payson (Don Gillespie) who wishes to marry Lillian Whitcomb (Miss Gladys Chambers) daughter of Deacon John Whitcomb (John Morrison). Paternal opposition prevents the young lovers from being happy together, but they finally elope, and Jerry is about to be arrested for the theft when Jack returns and takes the blame.

A further complication for Jerry is in the fact that he is accused by a Toronto newspaper of pilfering a sum of money while in its employ, the real thief being one of the paper's staff of writers. Jerry, however, upheld by the trust of "Mother Mine" emerges triumphant and happy, with his lady love, Mary Tisdale, a role taken by Miss Beatrice Whitfield. Minor characters in the unrolling of the rural drama, which has a pleasant setting in an interior depicting a farmhouse kitchen, are the deacon's wife, Cynthia Whitcomb (Mrs. T. Staples) a neighbor, Martha Tisdale, (Miss Zelia Johnson), a "newsy" neighbor, Lettie Holcomb (Miss Vera Foster), an officer from Toronto, Mr. Lewis (Kenneth McCannan), and a constable, Sam Blunt (W. M. Wedlock).

A great deal of the success of the play, which will be repeated this evening, is due to the excellent direction by Mrs. E. Huffman.

Between acts a very enjoyable programme is rendered, the Sunday school orchestra, directed by Mr. A. Nicholls, playing excerpts from "Pinafore," and "The Mikado," with vocal solos rendered by Miss Isabel Black and Messrs. P. Harrison, Stanley Willis and Sidney Willis. Mr. Sidney Willis sings "Little Mother Mine," as an appropriate number. Accompanists are Miss M. Pollock, Mr. K. J. Devey and Mr. A. Nicholls.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, March 11.—The first of the three St. John's Ambulance courses to be given at Deloro terminated last week. The examination has been fixed for next Monday evening and will take place in Deloro Hall with Dr. D. Thompson as examiner.

There was a goodly attendance at the Lenten service at St. Paul's on Wednesday evening. Delivering the first of a series of sermons on the "Parables of Redemption" the Rev. A. B. Caldwell discoursed on "The Lost Sheep."

Nurse G. Watt spent the week-end in Toronto.

Miss Helen Gaffney is visiting friends in Belleville this week.

Gerald Smith has been confined to his home through illness.

The rutty roads between Marmora and Deloro are causing a lot of inconvenience to the daily motor traffic.

Mr. Alexander McFaul attended the funeral of his sister, the late Mrs. William De Mille at Madoc on Wednesday.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR BAD STOMACH GIVES SWIT RELIEF

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet. Safe and Simple Home Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition.

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system with starvation diets. For within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach free from souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with three or four tablets of Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless, inexpensive, and handy tablet form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia tablets, which any good druggist can supply at trifling cost, should quickly convince you that 90 per cent of ordinary stomach distress is asolutely unnecessary. Be sure to get Bisurated Magnesia Tablets!

When in Morocco a traveller has the choice of camel, rail, motor or airplane as a mode of transportation.

HARD TIMES DANCE AT BRIDGENORTH

Large Attendance At Enjoyable Social in Foresters' Hall.

BRIDGENORTH, March 10. — A very successful hard times dance was held on Friday evening, March 4th, in the Foresters' Hall, Bridgenorth, under the management of Messrs. H. McConkey and M. McWilliams. There was a large attendance and an enjoyable evening was spent by all. Prizes were awarded as follows:

Best lady's hard-times costume, Miss Cooney, Peterborough; lady's consolation prize, Miss Ruth Bailey, Bridgenorth. The gentleman's first prize was carried off with honors by Mr. Andrew Jobe, Bridgenorth. Gentleman's consolation prize, Mr. Walter McConkey, Peterborough.

The judging was done in a very creditable manner by Messrs. A. J. Jones, I. P. McNabb and Dr. Craig. The music was supplied by the Selwyn orchestra. Mr. F. Jopling, as magistrate, imposed fines on those who were unlucky in not having old colthes.

Supper was served at midnight, and they tripped the light fantastic until the early hours of the morning.

DIES FOR A THIRD TIME

BRISTOL, Eng., March 11—Mrs. Alice Shrive, 55, wife of a tradesman, had twice been declared dead, but had awakened in time to interrupt the mourning. She "died" again recently, and relatives insisted on the severing of two arteries before they would permit burial. Thirty years ago she was found alive as she was being taken to an undertaker's. Two years later she had the same experience. Since then, she has had 31 operations for cancer.

YOUNG ORATORS IN COMPETITION

Five From Campbellford to Speak on Diamond Jubilee.

TRIP TO EUROPE

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11.—An event interesting to citizens will take place on Thursday evening, March 24, in the High School auditorium, when the oratorical contest will be held in connection with the European trip offered by a Toronto daily paper. There are five contestants from the Campbellford High School who are competing for the much coveted prizes which are offered. The subject of the contest deals with Canada's Diamond Jubilee. This should be of special interest to the people of the district, in that it is an education and encouragement for the younger generation. The champion from the local school will enter the lists for the district and the champion the district will compete for the provincial prize. Mr. Greig has been fortunate in securing the services of J. O. Herity of Belleville to act as one of the judges for the contest.

SIGNS OF SPRING

AT CAVAN

The weather continues to be quite mild and there are many indications that Spring is coming.

Occasionally during the Winter a lone crow was heard, but during the last week they are heard in ever-increasing numbers.

In more than one locality those little white-striped animals are reported to be prowling about. They venture out only in mild weather and are deadly enemies of all barnyard fowl.

Mr. David White's sawing machine is busy at Cavan Centre sawing for those who are fortunate enough to have their supply of wood home.

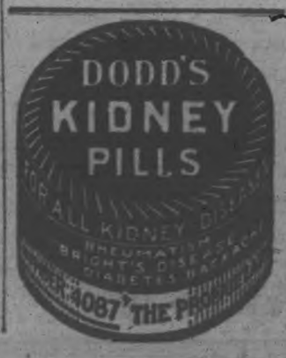
Everywhere farmers are preparing for the Spring rush, getting home an extra supply of chop, getting up wood, sawing, etc.

Mr. Nelson, Sixth Line, brought home a pew separator last week, in preparation for the good supply of milk in the Spring.

The clover and fall wheat are still well covered with snow.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11.—Everywhere, everybody, everything, all point to the one destination, Spring. We in Campbellford are proof positive spring is in its infancy. Crows are here in large numbers while many have had the opportunity to see Mr. Robin. Children are busy with wagons, skipping ropes, etc., while one has to often take the road for the boys who are occupying the sidewalk tensely interested in a game of marbles. Enough for the game—our roads, our bridge, our walks, all betoken spring with their deep ruts, bumpety bumps and lots and lots of slush and water. The road gangs are busily engaged in chopping ice, opening drains, and clearing walks and are often helped by the smaller lads who delight in digging ditches and drains for the water to seep out.



These bright sunny days tend to bring out the new coats and new spring bonnets—these are sure signs of spring.

Business also picks up in the early spring months. Campbellford has its share of new businesses. Mrs. Frank Hart has started a new bakery on Front street, and Mr. Pattenick of Cobourg is opening a general store, dry goods, boots, and shoes, etc., in the store in the Wallace block, lately occupied by W. I. Stillman.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, March 11.—Signs of Spring in this neighborhood include the arrival of spring birds such as robins, red-headed woodpeckers, and crows, all of which have been seen and heard within recent weeks, while spaces of sunny bank on some lawns with a south exposure are bare of snow, and look as though grass would soon be green, and crocuses and other bulbs would show signs of early growth.

Lilac buds, as probably everyone knows, remain green all winter, but where located on a sunny south lawn are now increasing in size and giving rather marked evidence of the approach of spring weather.

TIME'S HAND DOTH HEAL
By W. D. Packwood.

The hand of time alone can heal
The anguish in our hearts we feel.
When those we love have passed beyond,
And we are left in sad despond.

Time's gentle hand alone can mend
Our wound of sorrow, when a friend
We loved the dearest and the best,
Has passed into eternal rest.

Time's healing influence doth soothe,
And to our saddened hearts will prove
That love, lives on, and hath a power
To bless us in our darkest hour.

The original draft of the Declaration of Independence is kept in a vault in the State Department in Washington.

The world's first recorded holdup of a passenger train took place about 14 miles from Council Bluffs, Ia., in July, 1873.

SPRING'S Secrets Are Revealed Here

Practically Every Spring Frock is Bloused or Bolero-ed

And Smart Exceptions Prove the Rule

Sometimes this blousing is very subtle, just a slight graceful drawing in at the waistline. In other Frocks it is quite definitely marked by snug-fitting girdles or hip-lines. Or you might choose a Frock that is bloused in the back and bolero style in the front. Both of these are youth-effecting details. And just another evidence that Spring Frocks, with their loose, quite gaily flowing lines, tucked, tiered and ingeniously pleated, are certain to charm your fancy.

Spring Coats That Are Receiving the Most Enthusiastic Applause

These are the Coats which embody Fashion's distinguishing features, at the same time eliminating its exaggerations and fads. Their colors are smart, but not extreme—blue in navy and a few lighter shades, honey beige to brown, and many woollen mixtures. In their well-groomed way they exploit such modish details as intricate seamings, bolero effects, saddle shoulders, tuxedo revers and large pockets. You will note also that many of the smartest models are without fur trimming.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 11 (Canadian Press).—The feature of the export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday was the improved demand from Continental buyers for tough grades of Manitoba Spring wheat, and sales of several loads were made for March shipment. Business with the United Kingdom was dull. The demand for ocean grain room for March and April loading from Canadian Winter ports continued of a limited character and rates were about steady at 2s to 3s per quarter, the latter being asked for Avonmouth, Leith and Glasgow, while some spot room to the Continent has been let as low as 10 cents per hundred pounds.

Owing to the decline in corn futures in the Chicago market of late, a weaker feeling prevailed in the local market for cash corn, and prices were reduced 2 to 3 cents per bushel. Sales of odd cars of American No. 2 yellow were made at 90c, No. 3 yellow at 88c, No. 4 yellow at 65c, and sample corn at 83c per bushel, ex-store. The market for Canadian Western oats was steady and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of Spring and Winter wheat flour were well maintained under a moderate demand.

The trade in all lines of millfeed continued active and firm. A somewhat unsettled feeling has developed in the market for rolled oats and prices are rather irregular, but no actual change was announced.

An active business was transacted in all grades of eggs and prices were firm. The receipts were 923 cases.

The demand for potatoes showed an improvement and the undertone was firm. Sales of car lots of Quebec White stock were made at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The feature of the butter trade was the further strength that developed and prices scored another fractional gain, New Zealand finest creamery and Eastern Townships re-graded No. 1 pasteurized were quoted at 44c to 44 1-4c per pound. The receipts were 431 packages.

The cheese trade continued dull but the undertone was firmer. The receipts were 58 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Increased selling on the part of houses with connection northwest carried wheat sharply downgrade yesterday at the last. Corn and oats went lower with wheat. Resistance to selling pressure was evident in corn, but weakness of oats was pronounced. Receipts both of corn and oats were in excess of requirements.

A Public Question

The Examiner, interested, as always, in the civic welfare, and eager to serve the public good, feels itself justified in offering the people of Peterborough an opportunity to express themselves on the issue raised by R. R. Hall, K.C.

There is no doubt but that the operation of the street railway and the other utilities are vital questions to every citizen, and by ascertaining the public mind on this matter, The Examiner believes that it will be rendering a public service.

Citizens are requested to signify on the appended form their opinion as to whether a public meeting should be held, at which they will have an opportunity to discuss these vital matters. The forms can be mailed, or dropped in The Examiner letter-box, addressed to "The Editor, The Examiner."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

I am in favor of a public meeting at which citizens can discuss ways in which to keep the street railway running, to reduce the gas prices, to reduce power prices, and to assure the city of a supply of power that will keep pace with industrial development.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Before Faith could reach the door, with Bob following her loyally but with distress and embarrassment in his blue eyes, Stephen Churchill was out of his chair and moving toward her with remarkable rapidity for one so heavy.

"Wait a minute, Miss Lane," he commanded. "Don't fly off the handle too easily. We're just ready to get down to the brass tacks I mentioned a few minutes ago. Come—sit down."

His keen grey eyes were friendly, his voice almost coaxing. Faith obeyed, but her cheeks were still scarlet with anger.

"I'm convinced of one thing, at least," Church i said as he resumed his seat. "That you believe absolutely in your sister's innocence. It may interest you to know that Cherry gave me the same answer, when I proposed a self-defence plea. A lawyer has to be sure, or as sure as it is humanly possible to be, before he goes into a case. You must realize that. If the state should produce finger print evidence that Cherry's hands had grasped that vase, where would our case be? I have to be morally certain that no such evidence can possibly be produced."

"It can't be," Faith asserted confidently, relaxing a bit under his more genial gaze. "She has given me her word that she did not touch the vase. Cherry is not lying. Her story before the coroner's jury was the gospel truth, Mr. Churchill."

"All right. I'll concede that," Churchill rubbed his hand across the desk, and sudden as Faith grasped it, tears starting to her eyes. "But first we've got to look facts in the face. The state will contend that Cherry had both motive and opportunity—exclusive opportunity?—so far as is now known—to commit the murder."

"Motive!" Faith flared. "Why on earth should she want to murder Mr. Cluny?"

"For forget the will?" Churchill reminded her. "By the terms of Ralph Cluny's will, signed just two months before his death, Cherry Lane was to inherit one hundred thousand dollars in the event of his death before their marriage took place. I am afraid any jury will consider that a powerful motive."

"If she had planned to murder Mr Cluny for the hundred thousand dollars," Faith caught him up sharply, "would she have been such a fool as to call openly upon him just a few minutes before the ceremony was scheduled to take place? Would any sane person thrust her head into the noose for the sake of a hundred thousand dollars?"

"Just a minute, Churchill," Bob interrupted. "You forget the footprints that I saw in the snow beneath Uncle Ralph's window."

"They could have been made by a policeman searching the premises, as Chief Morehouse pointed out to you," Churchill answered, shaking his head.

"Churchill," Bob banged his fist upon the desk, "you've got to take those footprints seriously! I tell you they were made by the murderer, and I can describe him for you!" His blue eyes were ablaze with conviction as he leaned across the desk toward the astonished lawyer.

"The man who murdered Uncle Ralph is a cripple, a man who walks on the toe of his left foot. His left leg is shorter than his right, or is drawn up as the result of an operation on the knee, so that he cannot touch the ground with his left heel. Like this!" And Bob rose from his chair, placed his right foot flat upon the rug, and, with the knee sharply crooked, rested only the toe of his left shoe on the floor. "He is a tall man, probably thin—"

"How do you get that?" Churchill asked, unevenly interested at last.

"From these figures," Bob answered, dropping into his chair again. "I measured those footprints in the snow before they were obliterated by added layers of snow. Morehouse watched me measure them. He can verify what I say. Then I made footprints in the snow myself, and measured them, to have something to go by. I am a pretty tall man myself—six feet—and I wear a size nine shoe on a C last, fairly narrow, you see," and he thrust out a foot for the lawyer's inspection. "But these footprints were made by a man who wore a size eleven shoe, on the narrowest last made. That indicates that he had a very long and narrow foot. I've talked to a shoe dealer here—showed him these footprint measurements, too—and he gave me the dope on them. He says that a man wearing a long, narrow shoe is almost invariably a very tall, thin man. If he were fat, his foot would thicken, and he would wear a shoe both long and wide. That is not inevitably the case, of course. We have all remarked on the oddity of thin legs supporting a short, heavy body. But the extreme length of this man's foot, with the extreme narrowness of it, certainly points to only one conclusion—that the man who made these footprints is exceptionally tall—six feet two or three, probably—and thin. Very tall men are rarely fat, if you've noticed."

Churchill nodded. "I'll check up on the detectives and policemen who were first on the scene of the crime."

"I've already done so. Morehouse was interested," Bob told him quickly. "There is not a man connected with the police department who wears an eleven A shoe!"

"You may have something here," Churchill agreed thoughtfully. "Any other clues?" His smile was alittle amused.

"Yes!" Bob thrust a hand into a breast pocket of his coat and drew out the bit of stained, worn leather strap. "I found this under the window, buried in the snow. The cripple who murdered Uncle Ralph wears some sort of brace, to ease the strain on his bad leg. Probably a knee brace. In hoisting himself into the window—the open window!" he emphasized meaningly, "the strap of his leg brace broke, and this bit of it fell to the ground and was later covered with snow. There was snow under it—the snow had drifted pretty deep on the slope—as well as snow covering it when I found it. That indicates conclusively that it was dropped there after the snowstorm started, not before. Find a very tall, thin man, whose left leg is supported by a brace so that he cannot touch his heel to the ground, and you'll find the murderer of Ralph Cluny!"

FRASERVILLE NEWS.

FRASERVILLE, March 10.—The Young People's League at Fraserville journeyed to Bailieboro on Tuesday evening of this week in a sleigh-ride party to pay a return visit to the Bailieboro society. A feature of the program was a series of lime-light views, illustrating missionary work in British Guiana.

Next Sunday, March 13th, the local auxiliaries of the W.M.S. will hold their annual thank-offering services at Bensfort in the morning and at Bailieboro in the afternoon. A returned missionary or some other outside speaker will give an address.

Mrs. John Emberson is the president of the Bensfort W.M.S. for next year.

At Fraserville a two weeks' series of evangelistic services will be held, beginning next Sunday, March 13th, at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and continuing each evening at 8 o'clock with Mr. John J. Lindsay of Toronto, assisting the local church workers. Mr. Lindsay has had a wide experience in evangelism and is a man of great faith and power. SAINT and SINNER

Before Faith could reach the door, with Bob following her loyally but with distress and embarrassment in his blue eyes, Stephen Churchill was out of his chair and moving toward her with remarkable rapidity for one so heavy.

"Wait a minute, Miss Lane," he commanded. "Don't fly off the handle too easily. We're just ready to get down to the brass tacks I mentioned a few minutes ago. Come—sit down."

His keen grey eyes were friendly, his voice almost coaxing. Faith obeyed, but her cheeks were still scarlet with anger.

"I'm convinced of one thing, at least," Church i said as he resumed his seat. "That you believe absolutely in your sister's innocence. It may interest you to know that Cherry gave me the same answer, when I proposed a self-defense plea. A lawyer has to be sure, or as sure as it is hu be sure, or as sure as it is humanly possible to be, before he goes into a case. You must realize that. If the state should produce finger print evidence that Cherry's hands had grasped that vase, where would our case be? I have to be morally certain that no such evidence can possibly be produced."

"It can't be," Faith asserted confidently, relaxing a bit under his more genial gaze. "She has given me her word that she did not touch the vase. Cherry is not lying. Her story before the coroner's jury was the gospel truth, Mr. Churchill."

"All right. I'll concede that," Churchill offered his hand across the desk, and smiled as Faith grasped it, tears starting in her eyes. "But first we've got to look facts in the face. The state will contend that Cherry had both motive and opportunity—exclusive opportunity, so far as is now known—to commit the murder."

"Motive?" Faith flared. "Why on earth should she want to murder Mr. Cluny?"

"You forget the will," Churchill reminded her. "By the terms of Ralph Cluny's will, signed just two months before his death, Cherry Lane was to inherit one hundred thousand dollars in the event of his death before their marriage took place. I am afraid any jury will consider that a powerful motive."

"If she had planned to murder Mr Cluny for the hundred thousand dollars," Faith caught him up sharply, "would she have been such a fool as to call opeply upon him just a few minutes before the ceremony was scheduled to take place? Would any sane person thrust her head into the noose for the sake of a hundred thousand dollars?"

"Just a minute, Churchill," Bob interrupted. "You forget the footprints that I saw in the snow beneath Uncle Ralph's window."

"They could have been made by a policeman searching the premises, as Chief Morehouse pointed out to you," Churchill answered, shaking his head.

"Churchill," Bob banged his fist upon the desk, "you've got to take those footprints seriously! I tell you they were made by the murderer, and I can describe him for you!" His blue eyes were ablaze with conviction as he leaned across the desk toward the atonished lawyer.

"The man who murdered Uncle Ralph is a cripple, a man who walks on the toe of his left foot. His left leg is shorter than his right, or is drawn up as the result of an operation on the knee, so that he cannot touch the ground with his left heel. Like this!" And Bob rose from his chair, placed his right foot flat upon the rung, and, with the knee sharply crooked, rested only the toe of his left shoe on the floor. "He is a tall man, probably thin—"

"How do you get that?" Churchill asked, intensely interested at last.

"From these figures," Bob answered, dropping into his chair again. "I measured those footprints in the snow before they were obliterated by added layers of snow. Morehouse watched me measure them—he can verify what I say. Then I made footprints in the snow myself, and measured them, to have something to go by. I am a pretty tall man myself—six feet and I wear a size nine shoe on a C last Fairly narrow, you see," and he thrust out a foot for the lawyer's inspection "But these footprints were made by a man who wore a size eleven shoe, on the narrowest last made. That indicates that he had a very long and narrow foot. I've talked to a shoe dealer here—showed him these footprint measurements, too—and he gave me the dope on them. He says that a man wearing a long, narrow shoe is almost invariably a very tall, thin man. If he were fat, his foot would thicken, and he would wear a shoe both long and wide. That is not inevitably the case, of course. We have all remarked on the oddity of thin legs supporting a short, heavy body. But the extreme length of this man's foot, with the extreme narrowness of it, certainly points to only one conclusion—that the man who made these footprints is exceptionally tall—six feet two or three, probably—and thin. Very tall men are rarely fat, if you've noticed."

Churchill nodded. "I'll check up on the detectives and policemen who were first on the scene of the crime."

"I've already done so. 7orehouse was interested," Bob told him quickly. "There is not a man connected with the police department who wears an eleven A shoe!"

"You may have something here," Churchill agreed thoughtfully. "Any other clues?" His smile was alittle amused.

"Yes!" Bob thrust a hand into a breast pocket of his coat and drew out the bit of stained, worn leather strap. "I found this under the window, buried in the snow. "The cripple who murdered Uncle Ralph wears some sort of brace, to ease the strain on his bad leg. Probably a knee brace. In hoisting himself into the window—the open window!" he emphasized meaningly, "the strap of his leg brace broke, and this bit of it fell to the ground and was later covered with snow. There was snow under it—the snow had drifted pretty deep on the slope—as well as snow covering it when I found it. That indicates conclusively that it was dropped there after the snowstorm started, not before. Find a very tall, thin man, whose left leg is supported by a brace so that he cannot touch his heel to the ground, and you'll find the murderer of Ralph Cluny!"

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Agnes of Paris created this mid-season hat trimmed with a wide band of snakeskin.

The modern daughters of Eve settle their scores with their old enemy the serpent in a way that would not have occurred to women of other days. They not only wear snakeskin on their shoes but use it lavishly upon their hats. They have thus given an incentive to the trapping and killing of countless snakes that would have crawled about unmolested were there not such a definite price set upon their skins.

Bechoff of Paris extends the fashion of snakeskin trimming even to coats—and makes three-quarter length jackets trimmed with numerous snakeskins. There are fabrics printed and stamped to imitate the various sorts of snakeskin, but most women insist on having real skins. And thus the wholesale slaughter of Eve's enemy goes on.

The simplest—and most popular—way of using snakeskin in millinery is to use a strip of the skin as a band for the vagabond felt hat. If you have a felt hat from last year and want to bring it up to date you might take it to the hat renovators and have it cleaned and possibly reshaped. Then buy a length of snakeskin to add as a fashionable finishing touch.

Agnes of Paris is probably the most prominent promoter of the use of snakeskin among milliners. She has small rounded, close-fitting turbans made of dark material with a wide band of the snakeskin draped across the front and around the back—below this a band of narrow grosgrain ribbon to make a line of material between the snakeskin and the face.

Lizards being near kin of the snake tribe have fallen victims to this new fashion, and they are used as extensively for trimming coats and hats, shoes and purses as any of the snakes.

This year of 1927 is to be marked by gigantic undertakings of every sort and will add to the prestige of the United States, it is prophesied.

While there will be wars and rumors of wars in Europe, the seers say that the United States will remain aloof from active participation, except to protect American citizens.

There is to be a purifying of this country, a housecleaning in which political corruption and criminal organization will be eliminated, the seers predict.

Educators and educational institutions now come under a power that tends toward amazing development and increase in the number of students.

This country is on the verge of an expansion as an art and literary centre which will astonish he whole world, the seers prophesy.

For the youth of the land, great things are prognosticated, for all who have the gift of occult vision declare that the boys and girls of today are infinitely ahead of their parents and grandparents in morals as well as minds.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of money and success in the coming year.

Children born on this day should have happy, prosperous lives for friendly stars guide them. They may be too generous for their own best interests.

Rail Stocks Lead Advance Opposed By Bear Traders

NEW YORK, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Speculators for the advance continued in control of the price movement in to-day's market, Gulf, Mobile and Northern was the individual feature, soaring nearly ten points to 64. Atchison moved into new high ground and steady accumulation was noted in the Chicago Great Western issues, but Wabash common turned heavy on profit taking.

United States Steel Common, Hudson Motors, and General Motors held fairly steady. Tire stocks responded to predictions of advancing prices, Kelly Springfield jumping over three points to a new high above 20.

Several issues, such as Lehigh Valley, Rock Island and Remington Typewriter made up the dividends which came off the stock today.

Bear traders opposed the advance on the ground that many issues were being bid up too fast and that present quotations had discontinued all the good news in sight.

Mining Stocks Weaker On Active Market To-day

TORONTO, March 11. Canadian Press. — A geenrally weaker tone was in evidence on the Standard mining exchange to-day. The market was fairly active and broad. A decline of 35 in McIntyre was the feature price movement in the list. It closed at 25.85. The balance of the dividend paying stocks were weaker. Wright Hargreaves sold off five to 10.40; Hollinger Consolidated was down 10 to 21.00, and Teck Hughes eased off one to 6.41. Lake Shore declined 5 to 18.20, while Dome Mines remained unchanged at 8.70. The Quebec issues were active and in keeping with the trend of the market sold off. Area declined 2 to 36 while Countess of Haddington who is one of the youthful and beautiful peeresses of Britain. She and her sister, Lady Minto, were formerly the Misses Cook of Montreal. The Countess of Haddington has been married three years, but she seldom appears in London society.

Laval Quebec was an exception, gaining 3-4 to 38.

Wheat Prices Drop Again On Reports Of Good Weather

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Favorable weather conditions over most of the domestic Winter crop territory gave wheat an early downward trend today. Besides very large wheat shipments from Australia were reported and Argentine stocks have increased.

Opening at 1-3 to 5-8c lower, wheat underwent some further decline. Corn, oats, and provisions were easy, corn starting unchanged to 3-8c off and subsequently receding a little more.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 138 7-8, July 132 5-8; Corn May 75 7-8, July 80 1-2; Oats, May 45 1-8, July 45 1-2.

Toronto Exchange Quiet B. C. Fishing Is Leader

TORONTO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Trading was quiet and irregular on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, and with the exception of steady selling pressure in British Columbia Fishing and Massey Harris, little of interest developed. British Columbia fishing was the leader in activity, and was an outstanding weak spot, declining five and one-eighth points to 83 5-8. Previous to the close it sold as low as 81 7-8. Massey Harris came second in activity and was stronger, selling up 7-8 to 112 7-8. Brazilian was active and somewhat weaker, selling off one-half to 128½. Industrial Alcohol was in demand and sold up one-half to 96 7-8.

Noranda featured the unlisted section of the market. In active trading this issue gained 25 to 22.50.

SPEAKER TALKS ON INVESTMENT

Functions of Bond Houses and Bankers Explained To Kiwanians.

INTERESTING ADDRESS.

One of the most interesting addresses delivered this year at the luncheon of the Kiwanis Club was given today by Col. Gordon Weir of Toronto, on "Investments and Investment Bankers."

Col. Weir, who served with great distinction overseas in the same unit as Captain John Dewart, M.C., and who is a member of a firm of investment bankers in Toronto, showed a thorough knowledge of his subject and discussed it in such a way that the members of the club came away knowing more about the fundamentals of buying bonds and making investments.

"The investment banker of today is a result of the old bond house which opened in Canada in 1853. At that time Canada was purely a buying country. Every year since then the lot of the bond house and investment banker has been made easier because people have become more educated to the work of the investment houses."

In 1910 bond houses started to handle corporation bonds as well as municipal bonds. There are four things to be considered before making an investment. First, the security of principal; second, satisfactory interest returns; third, market ability; and fourth, some possible increase in the price," said the speaker.

Investment houses before buying an issue make a thorough investigation of the securities and make themselves sure that such bonds would be entirely satisfactory to the investor. The equipment of the firm must be up-to-date and favorably located as to markets, raw materials and labor. There must be good management and if the firm is dependent on one man, the houses insist that he be insured. The assets of the company are considered and whether a fair amount is set aside for depreciation. Two to three per cent is required for buildings and five to six on machinery.

The average of the earnings over a period of years is considered. This is why young companies find it difficult to start in Canada. Investment houses like to find strong competition amongst firms seeking money. An inventory is taken of the supply of raw material, amount in process of manufacture, and amount of goods ready for market. These are all valued below cost.

These houses do not like to go into any investment with an industry which has a high tariff on its goods, for it has been the tendency of governments in the past to gradually lower the tariff.

From these points the investment house is able to decide whether bonds issued for this company would be a safe investment for the investor, and if not it requires the management of the company to make certain alterations. The customer should never buy unless the investment is well recommended.

The investment house will give a purchaser the best of advice and will aid him in making a safe investment. All men, if possible, should carry life insurance and when they make their wills, if they have a family, leave a life interest to their wife, which goes to the children on her death. This overcomes paying the inheritance tax twice.

Industrial financing is on very much sounder basis today than after the war, and in Canada we have entered upon a period of prosperity which will see this country go forward, concluded Col. Weir.

Capt. John Dewart moved a vote of thanks to the speaker and to E. Humpage, the soloist of the day.

The guests present were J. W. Conroy of the Pensions Appeal Board, E. J. H. Vanstone, and E. Humpage.

ANCIENTS WERE GOOD ENGINEERS

Many Fine Buildings Still Standing Testify To Their Skill.

HAD WATER SYSTEMS.

Ancient Engineering was the subject of the address delivered by F. H. Dobbin at the meeting of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, held last night in the board room of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Dobbin in his address gave a brief outline of the beginning of the different forms of engineering. All forms have been practised in, no matter how primitive, a form, ever since the commencement of civilization and with the development of civilization so has engineering developed.

The ancient Chinese knew something of the magnet and its powers and in Egypt 3700 B.C. they had had fine buildings which required engineering and also had an officer who was in charge of erecting of these buildings. Solomon built a system of waterworks at Jerusalem which remains until this day. The ancients used the windlass to draw water, and early Babylon had a system of raising water 350 feet, or two and a half times the height of St. Paul's church steeple. This hydraulic lift consisted of an endless chain of pots which drew the water from the river Euphrates to a reservoir at the top of the walls of Babylon. From there is was spread through water pipes to the gardens by gravitation.

The ancients knew nothing of force pumps. They had no driving machinery to build their tunnels, but to-day long tunnels are found which were built in ancient times, the work being done with the mallet and chisel.

Architects in olden days deserve great credit for the work which they did, for to-day are found some of the wonders of the world in the art of construction.

History is full of the deeds of kings and statesmen, but very little is told about the engineering feats of ancient times. In reading the biography of former kings, people are able to see that some of them excelled in engineering.

Students Boast they're more Modern Than Westerners—John Dewey American Pragmatic Philosopher Taken as Their Guide—Confucianism Discarded With Christianity—Family Traditions Old Politeness Are Discarded—Girls Balk at Arranged Marriages and Seek Adventures—All Asia Affected by This Ferment.

BY UPTON CLOSE

"We are more modern than you Westerners," said a student of St. John's (a mission college) to me in Shanghai. "We are freed from all superstition, while you still have your religious-mindedness, your worship of wealth and your race prejudices. But we are getting our thought not from Russia, as you so loosely accuse us, but from a gentle, carelessly-clothed American called John Dewey, known only to intellectual circles in his own country, but to every schoolboy over here."

I talked this over with Dr. Hu Shih, thirty-eight-year-old "father of the Chinese renaissance," establisher of the new literature in the language of the people and intellectual leader of the Chinese Nationalists, as we crossed from London to New York a few days ago. Dr. Hu is on the way back to China from a conference to consider the return of Great Britain's Boxer indemnity payments. He returns because it was decided that with the supremacy of the national movement there will be no more indemnity to remit.

How Dewey Leads the Chinese

"We are thinking," he said, "in terms of the greatest contribution to philosophical thought since Aristotle, which most of you Americans do not know is coming from your country and age. It is the work of the pragmatic school, from William James to the greatest teacher of mankind today—Dr. John Dewey of Columbia University."

Dewey's thought, as the new Asiatic intelligentsia understand it, is briefly that no system of reasoning or religion pretending to explain or chart out life is of any value whatever, but that the results of experiment alone can constitute a rule of action. Only that which is demonstrated to be beneficial can be accepted as a guide. Chinese call the philosophy "materialistic experimentalism."

"We have attained the true scientific mind," remarked one. "That is easier for us than for you because we have never been so religious."

Soldier Elevated From Outcast.

New China would not only scrap the old treaties, but would scrap all traditions, customs and beliefs that are not supported by the fruits of experiment. Confucianism goes into the discard as well as Christianity. There is no place in the militant Nationalist movement for the old Chinese ideal of pacifism. The soldier must be elevated from outcast to hero.

The principle of personal loyalty to patron and family, which has been the cement of Chinese society, must make way for loyalty to party creed, for patriotism and nationalism. When the Christian General Feng betrayed his superior, Marshal Wu Pei-fu, and threw his patron, President Tsao, out of the "Shadow-Pavilion," the Chinese White House, all old China held up its hands in horror. But the foreign educated new leaders said: "He's right. If a man is in the way of the movement's success, throw him out, regardless of personal obligations."

They use the same justification of their attitude toward the missionaries who have educated them. "Surely they will not forget our return of the Boxer indemnity and our many acts of friendship!" a member of the House Foreign Relations Committee exclaimed to me in the hearings at Washington. They will certainly not remember if they feel that remembrance will trammel them in the prosecution of their program.

From Monastery to Army.

That is the mentality we must be prepared to meet, not only in the new China but throughout awakened Asia. In Siam, for instance, pacifist Buddhism drafts all young men into monasteries for at least three months' experience as priests, during which they are taught non-resistance and told the taking of life is an unforgivable sin. Now things have so changed that the monasteries are compelled to turn the novitates directly over to the army for the universal eighteen months' military training. In Turkey, when the Sultan is in the way of nationalism, the Sultan and the church must go, and this is now the spirit of the Moslem world from Algiers to Teheran.

Gandhi Holds to Old Ideals.

In fact the single great movement in Asia holding out for the old gentlemanly ideals of Eastern culture is that of Mahatma Gandhi.

The new Asia claims to have learned this attitude from us, who have always subordinated our Christianity and ethics to national and group interest or prejudice. The Asian nations have decided they must be strong to resist us, and that to be stronger than we they must go us one better on our own philosophy. If they feel resistance on our part to their reasonable aims we shall see a veritable plague of nationalism, such as has ruined Europe, sweep over Asia. Their nationalism will not feed so much, however, on hostility to one another as to us against whom they feel such deep resentment.

Such a new philosophy must produce a turmoil in society. There is more social experimentation going on in China today, with more real serious thought about it, than in any other country on earth. Shall the new generation uphold the old ideals, adopt wholly the western ways, try to combine the two, or scrap both in an effort to create a new society based solely upon reason?

Old Conventions Attacked.

Conventions dating to Confucius are in turmoil. The young generation of both sexes condemns the dignified old Chinese system of polygamy on grounds of its inequality and servitude. They are rebelling against clan control and family communism. The old group responsibility of clan and guild and peasant commune, which has stabilized Chinese society and kept the peace even in absence of formal government, clashes on the one hand with the individualism and on the other with the nationalism of the new generation.

Family-arranged marriages promise to become as extinct as the pigtail. "Love marriages" through individual choice are contracted and cards frequently come announcing trial marriages, called the "Bertrand Russell Marriage," since the British social revolutionist spent two years in China advocating his views. Daughters of families with 3,000 years of genealogy go alone to the movies and parade in the marvellous parks, once imperial grounds, in Peking.

Politeness Also Disappearing.

Most regretted of all by those who have loved the old Chinese ideals is the passing of the traditional courtesy and respect. This was based on the Confucian doctrine of the inherent dignity of man, whether he be coolie or mandarin. The new philosophy inculcates respect to fellowman only insofar as he is of value to the cause and prejudices of the onlooker.

Yet there is a reactionary movement against all this new thought developing in Japan and China. The champion of the old culture sees in it one more thing to blame on the West.

The next article in this series will appear in tomorrow's Examiner. In it Mr. Close tells of the British fear of the spread of the Oriental disaffection to their whole Empire in Asia and of the vast preparations being made to meet the danger. France also is affected by this peril.

CHARGES THAT REDS TEACH BLASPHEMY

British M.P. Says Sedition Also Taught in Sunday Schools.

LONDON, March 11.— (Canadian Press.)—Charges that atrocious blasphemy, sedition and class hatred are taught the children in the Communist Sunday scohols of Great Britain were made in the House of Commons to-day by Captain Herbert Holt, Conservative, in moving the second reading of his bill to make such teachings punishable by fines and imprisonment.

Captain HMolt stated that there are many such schools where children are taught sedition and mockery of Christ and religion. Moscow, he said, inspired the movement, which was being extended to State schools. Children were also being formed into groups to carry on propaganda.

FIGHT WITH DEATH PROVES UNAVAILING

Chicago Youth Kept Alive For Four Days Finally Succumbs.

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Albert Frick, the 22-year-old youth who lived four and one-half days although powerless to breathe, last his game battle for life last night.

Frick, a victim of Landry's paralysis which nearly always has proved fatal, amazed medical science by living for four and a half days while his friends, working in pairs for 15 minutes each, induced respiration by compressing and relaxing pressure on his paralyzed diaphragm.

He died after a valiant fight for life, and with many of the three score men who had worked over him in tears as they saw their efforts proved unavailing to check the creeping palsy that started in his limbs last Saturday morning to his diaphragm.

At 10 o'clock last Sunday morning Frick stopped breathing. His heart was still beating, however, and doctors resorted to artificial respiration. Then fellow-employees of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois were called in, and three score of them have forced him to breath since that time.

WITNESSES TELL ABOUT SHOOTING

Those Who Visited Farm Afterwards Describe Scenes.

ROBINSON TRIAL.

BELLEVILLE, Mar. 11—Evidence of the scenes at the Robinson farm after the shooting of Charles St. Charles, for which Abraham Robinson was tried and acquitted here, was given by several who visited there.

Dr. Samuel Eagleson of Madoc said he had been called on November 15 to attend St. Charles in Dr. Thompson's office at Eldorado. He found the injured man very pale and in a state of collapse. He was bleeding profusely from a bullet wound in the body. The bullet penetrated the body on the left side and in front and not in the back as first reported. It lodged under the skin at the back and was removed.

Dr. Eagleson said he attended St. Charles until he died on December 22nd. The cause of death was septic pneumonia following the gunshot wound. On December 15th St. Charles made a statement to witness saying that he was not going to recover.

Mr. Cunningham did not produce the ante-mortem statement at this stage.

To Mr. Payne witness said the symptoms of pneumonia did not develop until December 15, about a week before death. It was a natural sequel to the wound, and developed from an abscess caused by infection entering through the wound.

Mr. Payne — There were many cases of septic pneumonia treated during the war? Yes, but they were not 77 years old.

Dr. James Faulkner of Belleville who made a post-mortem examination, said the bullet had entered between the 5th and 6th ribs and 4 inches from the nipple.

At the inquest we decided Mr. St. Charles died as a result of a septic wound and pneumonia," Dr. Faulkner added.

Dr. Russel Thompson of Eldorado gave corroboratory medical tstimony. St. Charles was brought first to his office and remained there until the following evening when he was taken to his home in Madoc.

Walter Evans

Walter Evans, civil engineer, Belleville, identified a blue print he had made of the Robinson home and premises.

Robt. Clarke, photographer, further identified the pictures he had taken. In two of them, Mr. Payne pointed to a man standing near the gate. Clarke said it was Constable Hill who was instructed by Police Sergeant Clarke to stand in what was then believed to have been the position of St. Charles when he was shot. Hill was facing south toward the house.

Mr. Justice Logie remarked that Hills position was assumed on the understanding that St. Charles had been shot in the back and not in the front of the chest.

Provincial Constable Hill

Frederick Hill, provincial officer at Madoc recalled the events of November 15th last. With St. Charles, Joe Sharkey and Stanley Lewis he arrived at Abe Robinson's home about 9.30 a.m.

"Miss Robinson was the first one we saw, then her brother Lem. The bailiff proceeded to make a seizure of cattle. He drove 12 or 15 cattle into the lane and was going to select the ones he wanted. Before that Lem came out and said he wished to go to Bannockburn to see Anglican clergyman about trying to arrange payment. About ten o'clock some threshers came, and Lem went away in their car. There was no sign of Abe Robinson."

Mr. Cunningham—What happened then?—A shot was fired.

From what direction did it come?—The report was from the east.

Whose field is over there?—I understand the farm belongs to Empey.

You didn't stop then?—No. St. Charles sent a boy out the lane. He came back shortly after.

Hill said that 20 minutes later a second shot rang out.

Did you see anything? — Some smoke.

Where did you see it?—In the same direction as before. It was from a knoll about 100 yards north of the lane. I also heard the noise of a bullet. It was, I think, going in a westerly direction.

Hill took his car out to the road. Miss Robinson came out of the house and talked to St. Charles. Stanley Lewis was sent down the road to investigate the second shot. Twenty minutes later came the third shot which struck St. Charles.

Where was St. Charles?—He was at the gate.

What did you see?—He had passed through the gate in an easterly direction. When he was hit he hollered and fell towards the gate.

"What did he holler?"—"Murder, murder!"

What way was he facing? — He was closing the gate with his back toward it and facing north.

Where did that shot come from?—From the same direction as the other two.

Cross-examined by Mr. Payne, the witness said the bailiff's party entered the Robinson farm from the rear. At the house they asked for Abraham, but St. Charles was told he was not at home. A cartridge shell was found on the east side of the road about 100 yards north of the gate several days after the shooting on November 18th.

On the 16th you searched in the identical place?—I wouldn't say it was the identical place.

What were you searching for?—To see if we could find any cartridges.

And you didn't?—Not that day.

Mr. Ira Smith, tax collector, and George White, Madoc solicitor, told of the tax bill that was rendered Abraham Robinson for tax arrears.

Township Assessor

William Allen, Madoc township, accompanied the bailiff St. Charles to the Robinson home on October 15 to make the seizure of goods.

Abraham said: "Have you come to seize again." St. Charles replied "It is pay or we seize." Lemuel said he would resist. He spit on his hands and said he would not allow it." The party decided to retreat that day for reinforcements.

Foster Broad

Foster Broad, farmer, of Marmora Township, lives three miles from the Robinson home.

"I went over to Robinson's on November 15 to help in threshing. Arthur and Hugh Tompkins and Harold Long were there with me."

The bailiff's party was already at Robinson's and rounding up cattle when Broad arrived. Harold Long took Lemuel Robinson to Bannockburn.

Broad said he heard the first shot and saw smoke in the same direction Constable Hill observed. Twenty-five minutes later he heard the second shot. The report seemed to come from the same place as the first. Witness heard the third shot. He was about 40 feet from the gate. The shot apparently came from the same direction.

"What did St. Charles do?" "He threw up his left hand and put the right on his chest. He said 'Murder, murder, boys I'm shot, take me to a doctor quick'."

Both Hill and Broad stated that the shots had come from a knoll about 100 yards from the gate and up the concession road.

Saw Man Crawling

"After the third shot I saw a man crawling on his hands and knees over the knoll. All I could see was the gray color of his clothes."

Mr. Cunningham— "Could you identify him?" "No I could not."

Did you see him after that? Yes, farther north on the edge of the hardwood.

What was he doing then? He seemed to be walking from one tree to another.

What did you do next? I went down to the barn and waited until the machine came.

About half an hour after the shooting Lemuel came with the minister. Abraham also arrived later.

Did you see him coming? No. The first I saw him he was standing in front of the door.

How was he dressed? In a grey shirt and blue overalls.

Was he carrying anything? I did not see anything.

Was any of the other men without a coat? I didn't notice.

What kind of morning was it? Quite chilly.

To Mr. Payne, witness said he might have been one quarter of a mile from the man he saw on the edge of the woods and about 270 yards from where he heard the last shot. (About three city blocks of 100 yards each, the judge remarked).

Mr. Payne—"At the preliminary hearing you said all you could see of the man crawling was from the shoulder blades to the neck. He was crawling close to the ground." "I saw the shoulders to the hips."

"You didn't say that before. The first you saw was what you took to be a man?" "Yes."

Mr. Payne—I thought so.

"When did you see Abe Robinson first that day?" "About ten minutes after twelve."

"How long did it take the object to crawl over the knoll?" "About a minute."

Witness said St. Charles was facing south after the shot was fired.

Mr. Payne—You were with Abe Robinson the rest of that day? Yes.

"Did you observe anything strange about him?" "No."

Joseph Sharkey

Joseph Sharkey, a boy of about 15 rs, was next called. He and Stanley Lewis went with St. Charles to ound up the cattle on the Robinson farm.

After the first shot he went up to the knoll.

His Lordship—I suppose you stayed there as short a time as you could?

The boy nodded a smiling assent.

"He had more courage than the most of them," Mr. Cunningham remarked.

Sharkey said he did not see anybody at the knoll. He heard the second shot and saw the smoke in the same place as the first. Stanley Lewis was sent up then and went over the knoll.

After the third shot Sharkey saw a man in the woods.

"Could you tell who he was?" "No."

"Did you recognize him?" His Lordship asked.

Sharkey was silent nearly a minute.

His Lordship—If you did, say so. Did you know who it was? No.

"Why did you hesitate so long in answering?" No answer.

His Lordship—He either won't or can't. Are you telling the truth now when you say you didn't recognize the man? Yes.

Where did you first see Abe Robinson? He was near the drive shed.

When was that? About 11 o'clock.

Did you notice anything about him? I don't remember the color of his shirt.

"Why did you mention his shirt? Did he have a coat on?" "I don't know."

Sharkey said he did not go into the house for quite a while.

Mr. Cunningham — Were you afraid of him? Yes (after another silence).

"Was that why you did not go in?" "Yes."

Mr. Payne—You were not afraid of him when he came out and asked you into dinner?" "No, I was scared of him at first."

Stanley Lewis

Stanley Lewis was the other boy in the Robinson round-up. After the second shot he went up the road to the knoll.

"I looked around then, but could not see anything," witness said. "As Mr. St. Charles put his hand on the gate he was shot. He was facing the knoll. I was looking at him. The shot spun him around and he caught the gate-post. He groaned at first and then said 'Murder, murder, I'm hit." After a while Mr. Broad pointed a man out over in the woods. He was jumping from one tree to another."

"Could you see how he was dressed?" "No, he was too far away."

Where did you see Abe Robinson that day? In the field back of the barn southwest of the house.

What did he do? He came in from the southwest up to the house.

What time was it? About ten minutes after 12.

How was he dressed? In overalls and a gray shirt.

Mr. Payne—You told Mr. St. Charles you saw no one at the knoll? Yes.

And you did not see anyone? No. I went up to the fence and climbed on it and looked over it.

Tex Rickard Says He Has Maloney And Sharkey Tied Up

HEAVYWEIGHTS CAN'T BOX FOR ANYONE ELSE

Figures Bout Between Heavies at Yankee Stadium Means $750,000.

FIGHT ON MAY 19

Expects Them to Live Up to Agreements With Him.

NEW YORK, March 11. — Confronted with positive announcements by Syracuse and Cleveland promoters that Jimmy Maloney would appear in bouts there, His Imperial Pugilistic Majesty, Tex Rickard, brought his iron heel into play Wednesday.

Rickard said he has forbidden both Maloney and Sharkey to box for anyone until they have fulfilled their tete-a-tete for him. He has assigned May 19 at the Yankee Stadium for their act, and he does not intend to permit any side affairs in the meantime. He said:

"Both of these men have agreed to box exclusively for me. I have lived up to all my agreements with them, and I shall expect them to do the same with me.

Risk Too Great.

"Their coming match at the Yankee Stadium looks to me like a $750,000 attraction, and it would be silly for either of them to jeopardize this show. It would be even sillier for me to allow them to do so. Any time a big fellow puts up his hands he runs the risk of a broken hand or a cut that might put him on the shelf for a month."

Billy Ames, Syracuse promoter, announced that Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager, had promised to allow Maloney to box for him during April. Maloney defeated Tiny Jim Herman for Ames before he boxed Delaney here. Rickard said he would not give his consent to a Syracuse match, or any other match.

Rickard revealed that he has paid Walter Taylor, the Cleveland promoter, the sum of $2,500 for cancelling the much-discussed Maloney-Risko bout. It was agreed that Maloney would go through with the Risko bout on April 12, in Cleveland, in the event he was defeated by Jack Delaney.

In the event Maloney won over Delaney, Rickard agreed to pay Taylor $1,000 more, for which sum Taylor agreed to cancel all claim to Maloney's services. Rickard will send Taylor the final payment this week. He said:

Let Out Squawk.

Humbert Fugazy, who has been Tex Rickard's pet bunion for the past two years, let out a noble squawk Wednesday. He feels he is being used as a lamp-post for all the charity shows that come up.

In the past week, the natty nabob of the Polo Grounds has been propositioned to promote several benefits shows. He has decided to place the propositions before the boxing commission at next week's meeting.

Fugazy is willing to promote one show and apportion the proceeds equally between several charities. He points out that four of the six shows he has promoted in the past 18 months have been for charity. He said:

"I have only promoted two shows for myself—Sharkey and Wills and Delaney and Berlenbach. I feel I ought to get an even break, anyway.

"I am willing to promote one whopping big show if the commission will pick the charities and handle the tickets."

In the past year, Tex Rickard has been ducking charity propositions. The ingenious Rickard has evolved a clever alibi. He has only four dates this summer, and all of them are filled with his own fights. He simply points to his calender and shrugs his shoulders. He has no dates available.

ESKIMOS' SPEED GIVES THEM 4-1 WIN OVER GREYS

Outskate and Outcheck O.H.A. Champs in First of Series.

LEVER STARS.

Iroquis Falls Centre Outplays "Shrimp" McDougall All the Way.

TORONTO, March 11.—Blinding speed and a powerful defence gave Iroquois Falls Eskimos, champions of the North Country, a 4 to 1 victory over Owen Sound Greys in the first game of the O.H.A. Memorial Cup eastern elimination series at the Arena Gardens last night, with over 7,000 wildly cheering hockey enthusiasts looking on, and when it was all over they were just as exhausted as were the players. It was a game that will never be forgotten, and while the Eskimos have a three-goal lead to carry into the second game tomorrow night the Greys are far from done.

The Eskimos came down from the Paper Mill Town heralded as the best Junior aggregation that ever won the championship of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, and they played up to advance notices. They carried the Greys along at a terrific pace the entire sixty minutes, and in the last period had the O.H.A. Junior title-holders and conquerors of the smart Newmarket youngsters appearing a much-jaded team.

Greys Could Not Stay With Pace

Playing through the second game of the Newmarket series without relief the Greys did not have the stamina to stay with the Eskimos, who never let up the dizzy pace they started as soon as the puck was dropped on the ice at the opening of the thrilling exhibition. The Greys were done at the close of the second period, but they held on in the third like a "game" team should, and the winners scored only once, though they forced the play the full twenty minutes.

Speedy and strong skaters, with the ability to carry the puck, the Eskimos played championship hockey. They broke fast on the attack, repeatedly leaving the Owen Sound back-checkers far in the rear, and tearing in on the defence unhampered. And even when they were checked from behind and lost the puck, they wheeled like a flash, and without covering much ice often overhauled the Owen Sound attack and broke it up before it reached the defence.

From Kerr in goal out to the last sub. the Eskimos presented a well-balanced and well-coached team. Kerr, who was with the Red Ringers in the Big Four group last season, is a much-improved goaltender, and though not given the shots to handle that Grant was called upon to look after stamped himself as one of the best in junior hockey.

He was given wonderful support by McBride and Fillman, who proved a stubbborn pair for the Greys to beat. And they didn't with much consistency. McBride was outstanding in his all-round playing and broke up the majority of the Owen Sound attacks that passed the clever Lever, whose hook check had Shrimp McDougall lashed to the mast. It was the first time in many moons that McDougall has been outplayed, but though he was the pivot of many Owen Sound charges he was not the equal of Lever.

Lever and McBride

Lever, along with McBride starred at doing everything. Lever was just as sensational on the defensive as he was on the attack, though he does not carry much weight. McBride was a powerful rusher and with the ability to keep possession of the puck even when checked on all sides. He was cut below the eye in the second period, but after receiving repairs came back on the ice and was more brilliant than ever.

McLeod, the former Stratford boy, played fine hockey along the wing. He had Jack Markle tied in knots, the Greys' right winger being unable to do any damage with the shot which played a big part in the elimination of Newmarket. As a matter of fact, Markle had few opportunities to get his shot away without being harassed from the rear and a big part of the Owen Sound punch was lost.

RUTH SIGNS ON DOTTED LINE

THREE-ALL TIE IN FIRST GAME

Hydro and Clerks Play To Draw in Campbellford Finals.

CLOSE CHECKING.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 11.—The Hydro and Clerks battled to a three all tie in the first game of the finals for the Town League championship at Covert's Arena Wednesday night.

It was a great game between two evenly matched teams, with the front line players outstanding, as they tore up and down the ice with blazing speed.

The Hydro had the most shots on goal, due to the fact that they shot every time they got possession of the rubber and followed in for rebounds, checking the Clerks behind their own blue line before they had a chance to get started, while the Red, White and Blue gang adopted the more open style of falling back and waiting after a shot on Saunders.

The checking on both sides was very close and seldom did the puck carrier have a chance to shoot without an opponent draped over him. McArthur was through with only Saunders to beat, but laid the rubber on the goalie's pads, while at the other end Johnston was in a similar position only to be tripped as he was ready to shoot.

Despite the close checking the game was exceptionally clean, the Clerks drawing four enforced rests and the Hydro one, all for minor offences.

Right from the face-off the teams cut out a fast pace and after a session around mid ice, play drifted to the clerk goal, and Fox was kept busy. The Clerks relieved with individual rushes and 7 minutes after the start Labrash romped through the Hydro team and beat Saunders with a high shot to the corner of the net. The Clerks had the better of the argument for a time, and with three minutes to go Sloggett followed McArthur down on a rush and the Clerk captain took the rebound off the boards and passed out to Sloggett in front of the Hydro cage and Sloggett slammed it into the net, to put the Clerks two up.

With one minute to go Cowell was left uncovered in front of the Clerk cage while two men went after the puck in the corner, and Johnston's pass to Cowell resulted in a score for the Hydro.

The second period was scoreless. Both goalers were tested frequently, but both were performing in brilliant fashion. The Clerks were apparently tiring on the rather soft ice and their offensives were not as frequent as in the first period. The Hydro front line was subbed frequently while the Clerks stuck pretty close to the original line. McArthur was dangerous several times but failed to get the puck past Saunders. The period was very even.

Five minutes after the start of the third period Cowell slipped the puck past Fox from a scrimmage after the Clerk goalie had stopped four shots in succession. Seven minutes later Johnston beat Fox from close in to put the Hydro in the lead. McArthur was in the penalty box at the time. The Hydro had the better of the first part of the period. Labras' made many dangerous rushes but was always heavily checked by the Hydro defence. With two minutes to go, Wood started at centre and crossed over to the right boards and back across the net to flip the rubber in, and tie the score. The second largest crowd of the season saw the teams perform, and they will all be back for the final billed for to-night, if ice is available.

OVERTIME FAILS TO BREAK DRAW

Colts and Juniors Battle To Deadlock at Lakefield.

FINAL SCORE 5-5.

LAKEFIELD, March 11.—Colts and Juniors played twenty minutes' overtime last night and failed then to break the deadlock existing in the final game for the Lakefield District League championship. The final score was 5-5.

The game was clean and fast, hard checking eliminating much of the combination, and the large crowd present was kept in the throes of excitement all the way through. Stabler was possibly the best for the Juniors, while Sabatino and Ridpath were good for the Colts. The weight of the colts was offset by the greater experience as a team of the Juniors. The summary:

First period—
1—Juniors, Stabler, 3.
2—Colts, Sabatino, 14.
3—Colts, Ridpath, 1.
Second period—
4—Colts, Sabatino, 17.
5—Colts. Ridpath, 2.
Third period—
6—Juniors, Stabler, 2.
7—Juniors, Lawless, 7.
8—Juniors, Hamblin, 2.
First overtime—
9—Colts, Sabatino, 5.
10—Juniors, Lawless, 2.

Penalties were awarded as follows: Colts—Ridpath 2, S. Trude, M. Wanamaker. Juniors—H. Hamblin 2, Sherin 2, Lawless, B. Wanamaker.

The teams:

Colts—Goal, W. Hamblin; defence Simpson and Hull; centre, Sabatino; wings, Ridpath and W. Trude; subs, M. Wanamaker and S. Trude.

Juniors—Goal, Junkin; defence, Sherin and Morin; centre, B. Wanamaker; wings Lawless and Stabler; sub, H. Hamblin.

Referee—Braden Blewett.

The game will be replayed on Thursday, March 17.

HENLEY REGATTA UMPIRE RESIGNS

Famous English Oarsman Will Not Umpire University Race.

SUCCESSOR FOUND

LONDON, March 11 (Canadian Press Cable)—English rowing men have heard with surprise and regret that F. I. Pitman, famous Cambridge oar many years ago, who has umpired the University boat race for the last quarter of a century, has relinquished this office. Pitman was stroke in the Cambridge crew in 1884, 1885 and 1886.

The man who will umpire the boat race on April 2, however, is as renowned in sport as his predecessor. The new umpire is Col. G. D. Burnell, connected with the Henley Regatta for many years. He rowed for Oxford from 1895 to 1898 inclusive and was in the Magdalen College crew in 1895. Col. Burnell also rowed in the historic race between Leander and Cornell, when Leander was left at the post.

CANADIENS SAFE IN N.H.L. FINALS

Beat Toronto 4-2 in Fast Game—Maroons Beat Ottawa.

COUGARS WIN.

MONTREAL, Que., March 11. — Canadiens are now definitely in the Canadian division play-offs of the National Hockey League as the result of defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs here last night by a score of four to two. Rallying brilliantly in the second period, Canadiens made use of all their whirlwind speed to overcome a two-goal lead the Leafs had acquired in the opening frame.

A goal from a scramble by McCaffrey and a bullet-shot by Keeling gave the invaders a two-point advantage in the first twenty, but the Canadiens came back fighting, and after Herb Gardiner had shown the way, Howie Morenz bagged three more counters to boost his scoring average and give the Canadiens the game.

Maroons, 1; Ottawa, 0.

OTTAWA, March 11. — Montreal Maroons strengthened their third-berth hold in the Canadian group of the National Hockey League by taking a 1-to-0 victory over Ottawa Senators here last night. "Red" Dutton, brawny rearguard of the champions, swayed the tide in their favor with a spectacular goal that came after 48 minutes of scoreless hockey.

The outcome was ever in doubt until Dutton raced from his own cage down the right boards to beat the Senator guardian from far out. The disc literally smacked from the defence man's stick with such speed that Alex. Connell could not follow its flight.

The Senators were dangerous throughout the rugged contest. Hooley Smith, the dynamo, Clancy and Hec Kilrea charged hard all night, but the Maroon backs had a stone wall around their citadel that turned them back.

Detroit, 7; Pittsburgh, 1.

WINDSOR, March 11. — Detroit Cougars had things all their own way in a National League hockey game here last night and scored seven goals while the Pittsburgh Pirates registered one by a fluke. There were no penalties. Keats made three of Detroit's goals.

MOSTIL HOPES TO PLAY AGAIN

Chicago White Sox Outfielder Has Slight Chance of Recovery.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

SHREVEPORT, La., March 11—Johnny Mostil, outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, who attempted suicide by slashing his wrists, legs and chest, yesterday had a fighting chance for life and a motive for living.

The ballplayer is able to talk and says he wants to get well and return to the game.

His desire to recover may have been due to a letter from Miss Margaret Carroll, his fiancee.

"I love you, you must live," the girl wrote from Hammond, Ind. Miss Carroll was to have married Mostil two days before he left for the spring training camp, but the date was postponed until later in the summer.

Although persons said Mostil has a chance to recover they were skeptical over whether he will ever be able to play baseball. A deep gash in his wrist may prevent holding a bat, it was thought.

The other bill aimed at the abolition of the fifty cents monthly meter charges.

Havana and London To Talk Through Radio

NEW YORK, March 10.—Although for upward of 400 years Havana and London have been prevented by thousands of miles of seas from getting acquainted with one another, electricity today will make those two cities neighbors.

Some time during the day Dr. Martinez Ortiz, Cuban Secretary of State, will put a receiver to his ear in his office in Havana and will address Godfrey Locker-Lampson, of the British Foreign Office, in London.

The voice of Dr. Ortiz will be the first to be heard over the latest link in the trans-Atlantic radio telephone system opened recently between this country and London.

According to announcement yesterday by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, it will take one-twentieth of a second for his words to reach London. The distances will be more than 5,000 miles.

FIFTEEN BURNED BY TWO FIRES

Nine of One Family and Six of Another Die When Houses Burn.

OTHERS INJURED.

NEW YORK, March 11.—(Canadian Press.)—Fifteen lives were lost in two disastrous fires which occurred in the east to-day.

Nine persons, all members of the same family, were burned to death when flames destroyed the home of Clarence Marsh, at Tunnelltown, Pa.

William Stevenson, 55, four of his children, and one grandchild, were burned to death in a fire that destroyed their farm house at Sunset Lake, near Browns Mills, N.J. His wife was seriously burned, and a daughter, Clara, mother of the one month old child, is suffering from burns and a fractured hip, the result of a fall from the second storey.

The dead at Tunneltown are Clarence Marsh, 45, his wife, 49, and their five children, ranging in age from one to twelve years, and Mrs. Harry Montgomery and her one-year-old child. Only one person, Harry Montgomery, husband of one of the victims, escaped. He leaped from a second storey window. The victims were believed to have been trapped in their sleep. Montgomery and his wife and child were visiting Marsh's. How the fire originated was undetermined. Neighbors, attracted by flames in the isolated district where the house was located, hurried to the scene, but the dwelling was destroyed before the occupants could be rescued.

The Sunset Lake fire was caused by a flare up of kerosene placed on the kitchen stove by Stevenson, who had got up to warm some milk for his grandchild. Children aged from six to eleven years were trapped by the flames while they slept in rooms above the kitchen. William, Jr., fourteen, a son, fled from the burning house in his night clothes, and is believed to be at the home of a neighbor.

BANDITS BOMB PAYROLL TRUCK

Nine Men Escape With $100,000 Owned By Pittsburgh Co.

GUARDS INJURED.

PITTSBURG, March 11 (Canadian Press) — Blowing up an armored truck with a bomb while it was enroute to the Pittsburg Terminal Coal Company's Coverdale mine this afternoon, nine armed bandits escaped in an automobile with the payroll estimated to amount to $100,000. The driver of the truck and two guards were badly injured.

GRAFTON CHURCH NOW ORGANIZED

Presbytery of Peterborough Sets Up New Presbyterian Congregation.

COBOURG, March 11.—At a meeting of the Presbytery of Peterborough on Tuesday, the Presbyterians of Grafton, eight miles east of here, were formally organized into a congregation, elders having been ordained and a communion roll made up, which includes those Presbyterians of Grafton, formerly of the roll of St. Andrew's, Cobourg, who have been attending here of late and who are now transferred to Grafton.

TIMELY POSTERS ON LOCAL BOARDS

'Fire Prevention' and 'Safety First' Appeals Made on Billboards.

Two interesting large posters displayed on the city's streets just now are the panels devoted to the broadcasting of messages with regard to Safety First and Fire Prevention propaganda.

One of these is marked with the explanation: "Members of the Poster Advertising Association of Canada are donating this advertising in the interests of Fire Prevention," and depicts a stern-faced Fire Chief, clad in his service suit, colored in white, yellow and red, pointing a dexter index finger at the world at large, drawing attention to the slogan: "Help Us Prevent Fires," in red lettering. "1927—Fire Prevention Year," also appears on this poster panel, which is sponsored by the International Association of Fire Chiefs.

The other panel is a striking affair, with significant brilliance in its "Safety First" delineation of a scarlet skeleton hand, the finger dropping two red and yellow dice from claw-like extended talons. "Don't gamble with death," is the terse message of this panel, with white lettering: "Think Safety." This panel with a black background bordered in grey, shows the prize-winning design in a recent "Safety First" poster competition, and is donated by the Poster Advertising Association of Canada for the furtherance of "Safety First" propaganda. The local poster panels in these two instances are placed by the firm of Hodgson and Willison.

Traffic Is Diverted When Duchess Lies Ill

NELSON, New Zealand, May 11.—(Canadian Press.) The Duchess of York, suffering from tonsilitis, passed a comfortable day, says a bulletin issued this evening. The throat affection has not yet subsided, but physicians hope her condition will improve sufficiently by to-morrow to enable her to embark on the cruiser 'Renown,' on which the Duke and Duchess are voyaging to Australia.

When it became known that the Duchess was ill in a hotel in one of the busiest streets in Nelson, the authorities ordered all traffic diverted. There was ready compliance with the request that traffic noises be quieted as much as possible on adjacent streets.

COUPLE CELEBRATE 60TH ANNIVERSARY

Havelock Couple Celebrate Wedding Anniversary on Monday, March 7.

BURNBRAE, March 11. — An event of more than passing interest to Burnbrae folks took place Monday, March 7th, when Mr. and Mrs. James Ketchen of Havelock celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage.

Both Mr Ketchen and his bride of 60 years ago (then Mary Ann Whitton) were natives of the district and on the Ketchen farm in the 7th concession they began their married life. Here a large family was raised and for many years Mr and Mrs. Ketchen continued active work on their farm. Several years ago they began to feel the effects of approaching age and retired to take up residence in Havelock. Although the farm is now rented Mr. Ketchen makes frequent excursions to the old neighborhood where he spends happy hours talking over old times with his neighbors of bygone days.

Burnbrae people join in wishing Mr and Mrs. Ketchen many more years of life together.

FREIGHTER SINKS AFTER COLLISION

Galveston Vessel Goes Down in New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, March 11 (Canadian Press).—The Morgan Line freighter "El Sol," from Galveston, Texas, was sunk in New York harbor near the Statue of Liberty to-day after a head-on collision with the American Diamond Line freighter "Sae City." The crash occurred in a heavy fog that obscured the vessels from sight from shore. "El Sol's" crew normally numbered about fifty. Early reports did not indicate whether there had been loss of life.

The ill-fated freighter is in water fifty or sixty feet deep, half a mile south-west of Governor's Island. Only the tips of her spars are visible above the water.

Staten Island ferry boat passengers said the 'Sae City' has a gash five feet wide and ten feet deep in her side, two feet above the water line. Officials of the Southern Steamship Company issued a statement shortly before 11 o'clock saying that twenty-five members of 'El Sol's' crew had been saved and a wireless message to police headquarters a few minutes later read: "Police boat rescued crew of steamship 'El Sol'."

The message also stated that the sunken craft was a menace to navigation and requested that the lighthouse department send boats to the scene.

Elevator Operator Loses Suit For Fifteen Million

NEW YORK, Mar. 11 (Canadian Press)—Angelo Mellison, former hotel elevator operator, lost his suit for the $15,000,000 estate of the late Edward P. Searles, when a jury returned a verdict to-day in favor of Arthur T. Walker, formerly of Chatham, Ont., former private secretary and chief beneficiary of Searles under the latter's will.

GALE SWEEPS STRICKEN AREA

Delay in Relief Work in 'Quake Districts of Japan.

EPIDEMIC FEARED.

TOKIO, March 11 (Canadian Press)—Central Japan, recovering slowly from havoc wrought by Monday's earthquake, was swept today by a terrific gale which started last night. The storm brought new hardships in the Tango districts blowing down many of the hastily erected shelters after troops had experienced a considerable difficulty putting them up.

As relief by sea has been hindered by rough weather, it is feared the gale will further delay help for refugees in villages along the coast which suffered most in the quake.

Latest figures compiled by the Home Office, which are not looked upon as final, gave the number of dead through the quake as 2,687, with 6,993 injured. Home Office estimates that ten thousand buildings were destroyed.

Relief measures went on steadily yesterday and last night, despite the serious handicap, authorities giving particular attention to those in need of medical care. Their next thought was for the thousands compelled to camp out in the cold and snow through the collapse of their homes. Strenuous efforts were also being made to prevent an epidemic and to provide food and clothing.

Acts as Compass in Unchartered Sea To All Users.

No mariner would think of starting on a voyage without a compass. He would make but little headway if he attempted to depend only on his sense of direction. He could not accomplish much by mere guesswork.

So with our boys and girls who are unable to finish their schooling. They cannot afford to depend upon guesswork. They must not attempt to enter on the sea of life without a guide. They must have a compass, in the form of a dictionary—a guide to the correct expression of thought.

Here is that very book—the New Universities Dictionary—a sure guide to correct speech. It is now being offered through this newspaper on the popular coupon plan. Every reader should have a copy. Clip the dictionary coupon from an other column of this issue and learn how to get it.

"Not a Cent For Mother I'll Stay in Jail First"

WASHINGTON, March 11—The "meanest man" is in Washington County Jail here. He is O. L. Dille of Waynesburg, and he refuses absolutely to contribute the trivial sum of 75 cents a week toward the support of his 62-year-old mother, Mrs. Jane Dille, of Washington. For 26 years Mrs. Dille has lived with her daughter, Mrs. Ida King, of this city, who has been her mother's sole support. Recently she petitioned the court to have her three brothers aid in the aged women's maintenance, and an order was issued directing two brothers to pay $1.50 weekly and O. L. Dille to contribute but 75 cents. The other brothers complied, but O. L. Dille, when presented with the order, flatly refusing to obey and so told the court. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest, and last night he occupied a jail cell. "I'll stay here forever," he said, "before I'll give the old lady a cent."

CAFETERIA AND MODEL SUITE FOR DOMESTIC ROOMS IN COLLEGIATE TO COST BELLEVILLE $550,000

Vocational Training Feature In Projected Institute.

BEFORE COUNCIL.

Two Gymnasia and Auditorium To Accommodate 1,000 Persons.

The City Council of Belleville is expected to approve on Monday night the Board of Education's project for the erection of a combined Collegiate Institute and Technical School at an estimated cost of $550,000.

"I feel confident that we will have the sanction of the Council," Mr. John Elliott, manager of the Standard Bank and chairman of the Board of Education, told The Examiner. A prominent opponent of our plans has suggested that we should pare them to the extent of $150,000, in other words, to provide for a $400,000 building, but we have convinced ourselves that would be a mistake, for the reason that the Department of Education will contribute $145,000 to our funds for the $550,000 besides bearing its share of the cost of maintenance. That means the department pays the difference between a $400,000 and a $550,000 building.

We have gone into this question most thoroughly and find that the Collegiate-Technical School will actually cost the people of Belleville $220,000. Hastings County will pay $66,900 and Prince Edward County $66,800, and the Government $145,300. The inclusion of the vocational training departments obtains for us the generous grant from the Department of Education."

All those who know John Elliott, and his friends are legion in the Central Ontario district, recognize that the proposed Collegiate Institute and Technical School will be a splendid monument to a worthy, public-spirited citizen who has played a large and fine part in the upbuilding of Belleville, and whose interest and efforts have reached out through the entire province.

Colonel Ponton is the vehement opponent to the half million dollar investment in secondary education, and he is fighting the enterprise to the last ditch. Paved streets have swollen the tax rate and the Colonel visualizes a further upward tilt in taxing for the school even by issuing thirty-year debentures.

Belleville's Collegiate Institute is an antique, frowsy, wornout relic of the mansard roof age that never dreamed of nor imagined such luxuries (or are they regarded as modern necessities) as cafeterias for the students and smooth floors for "smart hoofers." Dancing may not be on the collegiate curriculum, but the social graces, including dancing, are not overlooked in collegiate activities.

J. Arnold Thomson of Thomson and Johnson, Belleville architects, who has prepared the plans for the Board of Education, told The Examiner there were no frills in the building of three storeys and basement he has designed. It comprises a total of twenty-one class rooms, two chemistry laboratories, two physics "labs," one lecture room, one junior science room, and various other smaller rooms, besides the accommodation for household science, dressmaking and millinery. There are also two gymnasia and an auditorium that will seat one thousand persons. And the outside dimensions of the building are 252 feet 7 inches by 160 feet 7 inches.

The basement includes shooting gallery, armory, bicycle room and one floor of two adjoining gymnasia.

The ground floor incorporates the upper part of the "gyms," principal's office, board room and office of the secretary, also teachers' room, three class-rooms for collegiate work, one vocational class-room, a woodworking shop 76 feet by 23 feet, machine shop 73 feet by 23 feet, and motor mechanics shop 50 feet by 23 feet. These have necessary store rooms. Each gymnasium is 40 feet by 80 feet, with a gallery on three sides.

The Second Storey.

On the second floor is the auditorium and stage with a 40 foot arch and depth of 20 feet, which can be increased by opening the 24-foot accordion door at the back to include the ten-foot width of the corridor. The floor of the auditorium has 800 seats. There is a library, 24 feet by 24 feet, seven collegiate class rooms, electrical shop and store room, four commercial rooms and one for typewriting.

The gallery of the auditorium with capacity for 200 persons is on the third floor, two collegiate class-rooms, one room, junior science, lecture room, two laboratories, modeling

Bandits Rob Patient While In Hospital Bed

KANSAS CITY, March 12 (A.P.).—Two bandits here last night robbed a patient in Research Hospital.

Charles W. Neal, of Tulsa, Okla., listed as suffering from a heart ailment, told the police two men appeared at his bed and covered him with a pistol. They took a ring valued at $1,000 and a watch.

A nurse said she showed the men to Neal's room after admonishing them that they could not stay long, as visiting hours were nearly over. They agreed.

AMENDMENT TO HIGHWAYS ACT

Bill Provides Side Light For Road Vehicles After Dusk.

SESSION BRIEF.

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 12 (Canadian Press).—Yesterday's session of the Ontario Legislature was comparatively brief, but a considerable programme of amending legislation and private bills was advanced through second reading and the committee stage of the house.

The most important matter before the House was an amendment to the Highways Act, sponsored by Geo. S. Henry, minister of highways and public works, which provides that every vehicle other than a motor vehicle or a bicycle or a tricycle on a highway after dusk and before dawn shall carry in a conspicuous position on the left side a lighted lamp showing white to the front and red to the rear. Any lamp so used shall be clearly visible at a distance of at least 200 feet. The amendment also provides that every motor vehicle equipped with four wheel brakes shall expose on the back and clearly visible to driver of vehicles approaching from the rear a red sign approved by the Department of Highways.

These two sections of the act on the suggestion of members of the Opposition will not come into force until October 1 of this year.

Speed Limit

The section of this amendment which increases the speed limit of motor vehicles from 25 miles to 35 miles per hour on provincial highways will come into force on the day upon which it receives royal assent. In explaining certain phases of the bill, Mr. Henry stated in connection with the operation of heavy trucks on the highways that the desire of his department was to reduce the heavy traffic.

At present trucks are permitted to carry a maximum load of ten tons on the highways, but this will be reduced to eight tons by a law which becomes effective on January 1 next. In order not to create a hardship upon those who have invested trucks carrying a maximum load of more than eight tons the department will issue them a special permit to operate during 1928.

The intention, said Mr. Henry, was to gradually eliminate the heavy truck from the highways.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, thought that the department might suspend heavy traffic entirely during the first days of spring so that the highways would not be broken up.

Mr. Henry also piloted an amendment to the Highway Improvement Act through committee. Under its regulations the department of highways will have power to order every gasoline pump on the highways to be at least five feet from the road and all gasoline filling stations to be at least fifteen feet from the road.

CHINESE TROOPS TRY TO ENTER FOREIGN AREA

Five Hundred Shantungese Soldiers Turned Back By British Forces.

GUARDS DOUBLED.

Authorities Expect New Cantonese Offensive Along Wide Front.

SHANGHAI, March 12. Canadian Press. — Five hundred armed Chinese attempted to enter the International settlement in Shanghai today but were kept out by a detachment of the Durham Light Infantry. It was understood this morning that one hundred Shangtungese had received permission to pass through the settlement but on provision that they first be disarmed.

Later two English guards on a bridge leading to the settlement, saw a large body of troops approaching. The guards refused passage to the Chinese and in response to requests for reinforcements two hundred men of the Durham Light Infantry rushed up, ready for action.

The Shangtungese apparently realizing the futility of attempting to force a passage, retired. The guards at the entrances to the settlement were doubled this afternoon.

SURPRISES HINTED AT.

LONDON, Marer 12. — Canadian Press. — A new offensive by the Cantonese along a wide front with the object of capturing Shanghai, is looked for within a week by reliable authorities in Shanghai, says a despatch to the Daily Mail from its special correspondent, Sir Percival Phillips. He asserts that the future in China is likely to be full of surprises but gives no hint as to their nature.

STEAMER CREW STRIKE.

HONG KONG, March 12. Canadian Press. — Immediately the police removed the anti-British posters from the British river steamer Fatshan to-day, the Chinese crew went on strike. The steamer was unable to sail for Canton. Other sailings have not been affected.

Chang Demands Money

SHANGHAI, March 12. (Canadian Press).—General Chang Tsung Chang, who is endeavoring to prevent the Cantonese from taking Shanghai, has managed to bring up further reinforcements, despite continued rains and resultant muddy conditions which have brought military movements almost to a standstill. Meanwhile, Chinese financial circles here are greatly perturbed at Chang's demand for a sum of money from local bankers to meet military expenses. The sum demanded is said to be about six million.

Honor Sun's Memory

SHANGHAI, March 12 (Canadian Press).— Two minutes' silence was observed at noon today to commemorate the second anniversary of the death of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, First President of the Chinese Republic. Some mills suspended work for the day.

POINCARE RECEIVES VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Deputies, Ending Interpellations on High Cost of Living Pass Vote.

PARIS, March. 12 (Canadian Press).—The Poincare Government obtained another vote of confidence yesterday when the Chamber of Deputies, ending interpellations on the high cost of living, voted confidence in the ministry, 393 votes to 130.

The vote came after discussion of the high cost of living and the unemployment problem that had occupied eight sittings.

A great majority of the deputies declared themselves satisfied with Premier Poincare's financial programme and with the efforts he has made to relieve unemployment. At the end of the session the Premier obtained approval for an appropriation of 40,000,000 francs to be used as doles for the unemployed.

FLYER TAKES OFF ON ATLANTIC HOP

Portuguese Aviator To Fly From Africa To South America.

LISBON, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Bound for Port Natal, Brazil, on the other side of the South Atlantic, Major Sarmento Beires, Portuguese aviator, hopped off from Bolama, Portuguese Guinea, at 5.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The aviator, who hopes to be the first man to fly directly from the mainland of Africa to the mainland of South America planned to make the 1715 mile hop in about 20 hours.

Major Beires on his start from Lisbon on March 2 announced that he hoped to fly around the world in ninety days. The Major made several unsuccessful attempts to take off from Bolama within the past week each time finding that his fuel load was too heavy.

FEAR VESSEL HAS FOUNDERED

Japanese Government Vessel Reported Adrift Off Cape Inubo.

47 ABOARD.

LONDON, March 12. — Canadian Press. — A Reuter despatch from Tokio says it is feared tha the small government vessel Kirishima Maru has foundered.

Distress signals were received on Wednesday from the vessel which was reported to be drifting 100 miles off Cape Inubo, with 49 persons on board, according to one report, including 27 students.

A destroyer which had been searching for the Kirishima Maru received orders to-day to return to Yokosuka.

The heavy storm which swept over Japan last night prevented aeroplanes joining in the search but they will be sent out to-day if the wind abates.

Crowds of parents and relatives of the student spent the day waiting for news at the Dagoshima Mercantile Marine School to which the Kirishima Maru belonged.

THREE CONVICTS ARE CAPTURED

Three Others Make Getaway To Chicago and Wound Three Men.

CHICAGO, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Three of six desperate convicts under sentence to be hanged for murder were subdued in their cell at the County Jail at Joliet early today after a battle of hours with officers, while their three companions in the sensational prison break escaped to Chicago, where one of them wounded two policemen and a taxi driver.

TWO MEN CAUGHT.

CHICAGO, March 12. — Canadian Press. — Two of the three escaped convicts, all of whom were Mexicans, were captured here early to-day.

Gregorio Rizo was probably fatally wounded in an exchange of shots with the police. The other man taken was Roberto Torriz, while the police still are seeking the third member of the trio, Bernado Roa.

As they clattered through south side streets, holding as prisoner a Joliet jail guard they had brought with them, a police squad attempted to stop the machine, and in the exchange of shots two patrolmen, William Frost and George Grant, and a taxi driver, John Marciniah, were wounded.

The Mexicans abandoned the machine and fled. Rizo later was discovered in an alley attempting to enter a garage, and was taken by a police squad. Torriz, found in a yard with two Mexican children attempted to flee when a policeman started to question him, but submitted to capture after several shots had been fired at him.

An investigation of the jail break was started to-day by the State Attorney's office after one of the subdued convicts asserted in his cell that it took $1500 to pull the job."

The prisoner declined to discuss in detail the escape, and statements obtained from his two trembling companions were incoherent.

SHIFTING LOAD OF ROAD COSTS IS CONSIDERED

Reduction in License Fee and Increase in Gas Tax Rumored.

MORE EQUITABLE.

Those Who Use Roads Most Would Pay Most, Says Minister.

TORONTO March 12. —(Canadian Press). —Consideration is being given by the Ontario Government to changes in the licence fee for automobiles and the tax on gasoline with the view of more equitably fixing the source of revenue for the maintenance of the Highways of the Province.

Representations have been made to the Government on behalf of motorists in the rural districts and the northern parts of the Province where, owing to the climatic conditions, automobiles are in use only about seven or eight months in the year, and it is claimed that even with the recent reduction of $5 in the license fee, motorists in the urban areas have an advantage because they are able to operate their cars almost the year round.

Speaking at Hamilton, last night Premier Howard Ferguson repeated the statement he has already made in the Legislature to the effect that he is in favour of a further reduction in the licence fee and an increase in the gasoline tax and while no decision has been reached by the government on the matter, it is forecast that next year there will be another reduction of $5 in license fees and an increase in the gasoline impost from three to five cents a gallon. Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways and Public Works, stated this morning that any changes being considered were not based solely on revenue, but "It is a matter of placing the burden where it belongs."

It was only right, he said, that the motorist who wanted to use the highways the year round should pay more towards the upkeep of the roads and this would be met by an increase in the gasoline tax." It would also mean that the tourist would pay his share of the road maintenance, giving relief to those who were only able to use the roads six or seven months of the year.

BRUCE THREATENS TO RESIGN OFFICE

When Gathering Opposition On State Rights Bill Threatens Government.

MELBOURNE, Australia, March 12. — Canadian Press. — Stanley M. Bruce, the prime minister of Australia, threatened to resign when gathering opposition on the state rights bill threatened his government with defeat.

"Is it necessary however," he asked, "to wreck a party if an individual is not wanted?"

Despite twelve divisions the government was sustained by a majority of six on the bill, which proposes to readjust the system by which per capita contributions were made by the Commonwealth to the States since the inauguration of the Confederation in 1901.

The original scheme, known as "The Bradden Blot," was approved for only ten years, but no alternative has been devised since an the contributions have continued.

Take Art From Churches On Immorality Grounds

ROME, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Removal of works of art from churches and other sacred places on grounds of immorality may shortly be ordained, says Osservatore Romano, apparently speaking for the Vatican, while discussing the rights of art as a pretext for immorality.

The rights of art, the Vatican organ asserts, must always subordinate theniselves to the rights of virtue. Not even the so-called classic arts of the ancients, it assests, should be immune.

GREAT INCREASE IN YEAR'S WORK

Reports Show Greater Demand on Peterborough Health Association.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

That the work of the Peterborough Health Association had increased by leaps and bounds over that of previous years was indicated by the splendid reports presented by the convenors of the various committees at the annual meeting and election of officers held in the Chamber of Commerce last night.

W. R. Breyfogle was unanimously re-elected President of the Association. The other members of the executive were also re-elected with the addition of C. D. Cook as Chairman of the Publicity committee.

Milk and eggs were distributed to forty families who were in straitened circumstances, the total for the year amounting to 5,694 quarts of milk and 241 1-2 dozen eggs. 1,370 visits were made by the Association nurse, covering obstetrical, medical, minor surgery, and tubercular patients.

Five dozen new swimming suits and some sweaters were purchased for the children and material was bought from which the members will make up dresses for those who will need them.

The summer camp was open from June 29 until August 28, during which 140 children had pleasant and beneficial outings, the daily average amounting to 53 children. During this period the camp was closed for only four days, when rain rendered it impossible to operate.

The following are the officers for the ensuing year: President, W. R. Breyfogle; First Vice-President, The Rev. Paul Costello; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Coulthard; Treasurer, E. J. H. Vanston; Secretary, Dr. G. Stewart Cameron; Chairman of Nurses' Supervision Committee, Mrs. R. R. Hall; Chairman of Finance Committee, E. J. H. Vanston; Chairman of Publicity Committee, C. D. Cook. The executive consists of Miss Archer, Miss Merrell, Mesdames Gardiner, Coulthard, R. R. Hall, Aylmer, A. W. Turner, C. G. Graham, G. S. Cameron; the Rev. Paul Costello, W. R. Breyfogle, Geo. A. LIVES ON DIET OF RATS

NORRISTOWN, Mich., Mar. 12 —In a cave on the edge of a quarry near West Conshohocken, an Italian who goes by the name of "Joe" has been living for twelve years, undiscovered. When contractors began working a steam shovel near his abode, he crawled out and protested the intrusion. Police, investigating, found him in a primitive state, living on cats and rats.

Wife's Dress Immodest Husband Is Boycotted

ROME, March 12 (A.P.).—The imposition of an economic as well as a moral boycott on persons who permit feminine members of their families to dress immodestly has been ordered by the Italian "Catholic Action."

This organization, the Vatican's most influential laical instrument, has instructed its members to support the Pope in his fight on immodesty by serving in the capacity of "morality police."

Their duties will be to spread the Pope's ideas both by personal example and by preachment, and to report "speedily and discreetly" to the central organization all cases of immodesty in dress.

World War Might Have Been Avoided If Problems Discussed.

DEFENDS BRITAIN.

Denies She Is Attempting To Form Union Against Russia.

GENEVA, March 12.—The World War might have been avoided if in the troubled years preceding the conflict an opportunity had existed for the Foreign Ministers of the different States to discuss problems personally instead of sending notes, Dr. Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister and President of the Council of the League of Nations, said in an interview he gave to the press yesterday.

"The Council sessions," Dr. Stresemann said, "are scarcely material for sensations. Their great importance lies in the possibility of taking great questions from the atmosphere of written notes and bringing them into the realm of personal contacts. Before the war there had been reunions of Foreign Ministers such as have been realized by the League—if these personal contacts had existed—perhaps it would have been possible to avoid the misunderstandings which came to trouble the reality of things."

Denies Report.

Speaking of the numerous interviews he had this week with Foreign Ministers, Dr. Stresemann declared there was no truth in the report that efforts were being made by Sir Austen Chamberlain to form a union of States against Russia.

"I know that since Locarno neither Sir Austen Chamberlain nor Great Britain has made such an effort by any means whatsoever. The section of the Soviet official newspaper Isvestia that Sir Austen Chamberlain proposed a plan for the return of the Danzig-Polish corridor or of a part of Polish Silesia to Germany, or to form a Cossack republic under the protection of Germany and Poland, is only a miserable fantasy. You can ask Healeski what M. Zuleski (the Polish Foreign Minister) what he thinks.

"The German attitude on this question can be characterized by saying that we regret enormously to see complications arising between Britain and Russia.

"I must to-day submit a report to the Council on the International Economic Conference. But world economics cannot be brought to normal if 150,000,000 people entrench themselves in East Europe and reduce consumption. We are neighbors of

KIWANIS CLUB HOLDS DEBATES

Contest Being Arranged Between Teams From Rural District.

FOR SILVER CUP

Kiwanis Club has arranged a debating contest for the rural districts to be held between now and the first of May, for prizes consisting of a splendid silver cup, donated by the President of the Club, and free trips to the Royal Winter Fair for the two contestants forming the winning team.

The contest is open to any rural club or association in the townships of Douro, Ennismore, Otonabee, Smith, North Monaghan, and South Monaghan, and the only limitations of personnel is that no professional men are to be included in the teams.

As planned by Kiwanis Club, each township will hold its own elimination series, and the teams will gradually work their way into the finals between townships, these final debates to be held under the auspices of Kiwanis Club. The final debate will be arranged by the Club. Debating teams consist of two members.

If the church, club, or association finds difficulty in securing a judge, Kiwanis Club will endeavor to supply capable men to fill this position. Requests should be made to G. C McLean, Canadian Packing Company, Peterborough. Entries should also be sent to Mr. McLean immediately.

The individual debating contests will be judged in the following manner: Delivery and manner, quality of voice, control of voice, modulation of voice, 15 points; ease of manner, 15 points; naturalness of gesture, 15 points; manner and preparation, selection of matter, arrangement of matter, 30 points; familiarity with subject, if memorized, not recited, 30 points.

APPROVAL GIVEN BY COMMITTEE FOR CHANGE IN HOSPITAL LAW

Concerns Admission of Indigent Township Patients To Hospitals.

EMERGENCY CASES.

Liability of County More Clearly Defined By Provision.

TORONTO, March 12.—The municipal law committee of the legislature yesterday approved amendments to the Hospital and Charitable Institutions act making the medical officer of health of a township the proper authority to sign orders for admission of indigent patients to hospitals. This provision, discussed at length a few days ago, eliminates reeves and councillors as signers of such orders, but gives hospital superintendents jurisdiction in case of emergency. In such cases, according to a further new sub-section, "the liability of the country shall not continue beyond a period of seven days from the admission, unless the medical officer of such township gives an order in writing approving of such admission."

E. R. Stedman thought the clauses should not apply to separated towns, but Hon. William Finlayson, chairman, pointed out that there were only a few, and uniformity of treatment was desirable.

Step Backward.

"This, of course, is a step backward, as far as the legislation of last year is concerned," said Law Clerk Wilkinson. "Under that, the county was the one primary unit with the right to go back to a local municipality and ask half a hospital bill. We did away with disputes between local municipalities and the hospitals."

Municipal Amendments.

The clause carried, and the committee dealt with 13 out of 54 clauses in the annual Municipal Amendment act. One provides that petitions for incorporation of a village must represent half the assessment instead of being on a population basis.

When a technical amendment was made in section 56 of the act, qualifying as voters the sons of farmers residing on the farm, Fred McBrien urged that farmers' daughters be placed in the same class. Chairman Finlayson thought it too late in the session to make an amendment that would involve many other changes, and Mr. McBrien did not press his suggestion.

The committee adopted this addition to section 56 of the act: "Any man or woman entered upon the list as husband or wife of a tenant who is disqualified from voting under the provisions of the two next preceding sections shall also be disqualified from voting."

Week To Qualify.

Candidates elected to municipal office get a week in which to qualify, according to another change approved. The present law, which requires the filing of a declaration before 9 p.m. of the day after nomination, will in future, apply only when there is a contest.

Answering a question Chairman Finlayson said that the clerk of a municipality need not be a voter therein and may give the casting vote in case of a tie regardless of the fact that he is not on the list. A proposed amendment giving villages and townships authority to submit a ballot containing the names of candidates for council as separate from those running for reeve and deputy, was declared to be unnecessary, and was struck out.

A number of changes were made in section 95 of the act regarding tax defaulters as a result of the many variations now existing in municipal dates.

Section 159 of the act, allowing half a council to name others to make up a deficiency at election time, was repealed in favor of section 70, which calls for a new election.

Section 13 of the bill recasts the phrasing of the statute in relation to the boards of control. No change was intended, but Fred McBrien protested perpetuation of the requirement that cites over 200,000 may pay controllers a salary up to $5,000 only, "will assent of the electors. On motion of Mark Vaughan that was was eliminated.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

MARBLE AND CLAY

If all there is to do is done,
And all to say is said,
Which moment matters more?—the one
Behind, or one ahead?
They who retrace old trails discover
Old ruins that the vines run over,
They who move forward find more fair
New castles liftin g in the air.

The past is marble, but today
Is clay within your hands.
A thing to shape some better way,
That now one understands.
However much we weep or falter,
Old marble we shall little alter;
Each day we have the clay of dawn
For wiser hands to labor on.

The old is marble, but the new
Is plastic as the soil.
God knows there is enough to do,
And tears are wasted toil.
Let not the past the present fetter,
Use it to shape the present better,
And that tomorrow you will win
You wish that yesterday had been.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST : Fishers of Men

Synopsis Arranged by Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Sketches by Kroesen.

Jesus, walking by the sea of Galilee, saw Peter and Andrew casting their nets into the sea, and he said, "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men," and straightway they left their nets and followed him. (Matt. IV : 18-22)

Going on he saw other two brothers, James and John, mending their nets, and he called them also to follow him. (Matt. IV : 21-22)

Jesus, preaching by the Sea of Galilee, was so thronged by the people that he got into a ship, and taught them. (Luke V : 1-3)

Afterwards he said to Simon Peter, who owned the ship, "Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught." The disciples, who had caught no fish all night, did so, and caught so many fish that their nets began to break. (Luke V : 4-7)

SOVIET RUSSIA WARNS CHINESE

Will Take Extreme Measures Should Mischance Befall Russian Prisoners.

GRAVE SITUATION.

SHANGHAI, March 12 (Canadian Press).—A grave situation is brewing between the Chinese Government at Peking and Soviet Russia over the seizure of the Soviet vessel Pamiat Lenina a week ago and the arrest of Mme. Borodin, wife of the adviser to the Cantonese Government, and three Russian couriers.

The Soviet officials clearly mistrust the assurances of the Chinese authorities as to the safety of the captives and fear that Mme. Borodin and her fellow-prisoners will meet short shrift should they fall into the hands of white Russians attached to the northern army.

Accordingly, the Soviet Government has sent a second and sterner note to Peking, warning that the Soviet Government will take extreme measures should mischance befall the Russians.

The note calls attention to lack of definite information regarding the fate of the Russians and says in conclusion:

"The Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics hereby declares that the Chinese Government will bear full responsibility for the safety of the couriers and other persons detained and warns the Chinese Government that any violation of their safety might certainly bring most serious consequences and compel the Soviet Government to appeal to exceptional measures."

Foreign Minister Wellington Koo at Peking assured the Soviet Charge d'Affaires, M. Chernyck, that he had nothing to fear for the safety of the prisoners, who are being detained at Tsinan.

Women Parade.

Factory women with bound feet and hundreds of girls, between the ages of seven and ten, who work 12 hours daily in factories for but a few cents a day, hobbled along in a procession numbering many thousands at Hankow on Tuesday in celebration of international women's day, say belated advices received from that city.

Mrs. Sun Yat Sen, widow of the great Chinese Republican leader, discussing the significance of the incident, was quoted in the despatches as declaring that under the influence of the Kuomintang, Chinese women had joined the ranks of world feminists in their struggle for equality and freedom.

SHOWER FOR BRIDE.

Friends of Miss Mary Shore Present Many Useful Articles.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 12.—A number of friends from the Baptist Church gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Hay on Wednesday evening to present Miss Mary Shore with a 'miscellaneous shower' in honor of her marriage. The evening was spent socially, and Miss Shore was presented with a number of handsome gifts from her friends. Lunch was served by the hostess.

REPLIES ASKED BY SECRETARY

Some Societies Have Not Yet Named Members of Jubilee Committee.

At the meeting of citizens held to authorize the preparatory steps to be taken in regard to the Diamond Jubilee Celebration of the incoming of Confederation of Provinces sixty years ago, fifty-one organizations in the city were written to and asked to name representatives to a further general meeting, and from which an executive committee could be selected and appointed.

So far only nineteen of these organizations have seen fit to make response. Thirty-two are still not represented and it leaves the further steps to be taken still undecided. It is urged that appointments be speedily made in order that the preparatory work may be put in hand.

Many suggestions have been received, and which can be considered further on after the executive committee has made a survey of the city and decided how funds will be raised to finance the celebration. It looks as if what is done will have to be out of local effort, if the funds to be raised are to cover the activities. Several offers to put on pageants, hire bands of provincial fame, vaudeville displays and other entertainments, all offered at a considerable fee for expenses.

To facilitate further action, it is urged that representatives to the committee not as yet named push themselves into office as soon as possible. There is little use making up a slate from general recommendations, for those so named may decline to act. A lot of work and some responsibility is involved and those who get behind the project must have hearty support and assurances, or the project will be snuffed out.

It would be deplorable if the occasion, coming to us once in sixty years should find lacking a public spirit to carry something creditable forward to a successful conclusion. Numbers of those spoken to seem to think that the whole matter should be handed over to the City Council to direct and organize, and this there is no likelihood of the Council doing. What is needed is a prompt acceptance of responsibility for details and some willingness to take hold and lift. Surely such a spirit is not entirely latent in the city.

Will the thirty-two organizations, as yet not represented get busy and appoint representatives or else notify those who are on the job that none will be named and appointed? The City Clerk will be glad to receive names and notifications.

JAPAN ACCEPTS NAVAL PROPOSAL

Three Power Conference on Naval Armament Limitations Now Assured.

UNCONDITIONAL.

WASHINGTON March 12 (Canadian Press).—Three Power conference at Geneva on naval armament limitation became assured yesterday with acceptance by Japan of the informal proposals of the United States. British acceptance was received Thursday.

Japanese acceptance was unconditional. It was accompanied however by a direct gesture from Tokio seeking to renew overtures to France and Italy to participate in the five-Power discussion originally suggested by President Coolidge.

Ambassador Matsudaira in advising Acting Secretary Grew of his government's acceptance stressed the Tokio belief that agreements to extend tonnage limitations to cruisers, destroyers, and submarines, would be facilitated greatly should the two European Continental Powers find it possible to join in the discussions at Geneva.

Japanese emphasis on the desirability of not accepting French and Italian refusals as final, brought to the surface again evidences of the strong hope entertained in Washington that actually the Geneva conferences will have a five-Power significance.

It is apparent that there have been informal interchanges with the French and Italian governments and that the belief is growing, particularly as to Italy, that her participation is not as unlikely as the tone of her note of refusal might seem to indicate.

Prior to the marriage, the bride was the recipient of a shower given by the choir of the Baptist Church, of which she was a member.

Mongrel Dog Suvives Poison and Bullet Wound

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 11 (United Press). — Spot, a dirty little mongrel dog which was accidentally poisoned, shot to relieve his suffering, and left in a vacant lot supposedly dead, cocked his head on one side today and observed the world that treated him so badly with manifest approval. The cur is something between a hound and a terrier, a foundling claimed by four youngsters who are working at odd jobs to dignify him with a dog license.

Spot's adventures started late last week when he picked up poison on an ill-advised foraging trip. He became violently ill, and the mother of one of his owners suggested that he be shot. So Spot was taken to an open space to be killed. A few days later he straggled back to old haunts, and now after treatment in a dog hospital, agitates his stubby tail with all the old time enthusiasm.

SIGNS OF SPRING

AT BETHANY.

BETHANY, March 12.—That spring is just around the corner has been felt by a good many, especially when the birds are beginning to come again. A robin was seen last week, and crows have been in the neighborhood for the past few weeks; sap is dropping from the branches of the soft maples. The snow is honey-combed by the hot sun and is disappearing rapidly without the usual spring flood which has always been so annoying to the citizens who live in the lower portions of the village. The new spring wall papers are shown in the stores and many women are already into the spring house cleaning.

GERMAN MINISTER

Russia and we were led to make exchanges with her, as with Poland. It is to our great interest that these exchanges be untroubled."

Dr. Stresemann went on to say that as to the chief policy of the Reich he could state that no secret clauses existed either in the treaty of Rapello with Russia or that of Berlin. It was Germany's wish to see Russia develop on a sound basis in an evolutionary sense and maintain good relations with Europe.

Germany's Foreign Policy

On Germany's foreign policy changes in her government had no effect whatsoever, he said. He pointed out that Foreign Minister Briand was continuing his policy in France, despite M. Marin, its bitte opponent being in the cabinet, and asked why he himself could not do the same with Herr Hu at his side.

"The essential thing is that the policy of conciliation which bears the name of Briand, continues," he went on. "It is the same with me, and the paths which conducted us from Locarno to Geneva, are intact. The chief of the Reichstag opposition himself recognizes that no change had entered into German foreign policy."

Speaking of the Rhineland he said he had discussed the problem with M. Briand but the question was when Germany should officially ask evacuation.

"We reserved the right to make a demand," he said, "and perhaps we will make it in the not distant future, as we consider that the provisions of Article 431 of the Treaty of Versailles have been fulfilled and wish to profit from the rights this article gives us.

"With the world understanding today one cannot talk of a great peace work and at the same time maintain occupation with 100,000 men. One thing or the other is necessary.

"We hope that considerations for public rights and considerations based on Article 431 of the Versailles Treaty undertaken in the spirit of the League will soon lead to a settlement of the question and a new step thus taken in the path of peace."

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

AS one who has more than a passing interest in the life and labors of churches and churchmen, I have been compelled, recently, to give some thought to the question of organization. In doing so I have almost inevitably been led to compare the church of today with the church of yesterday; and, even at the risk of being contradicted or considered a pessimist, I have been driven to the conclusion that the church of yesterday was in many respects superior to the church of today. I know that distance lends enchantment to the view, but facts are facts whether you look at them from a distance or face them near-at-hand. And on the evidence available I would rather have the church of the first century than the church of the twentieth. My chief reason for reaching this conclusion is the simplicity of the one as compared with the multiplicity of the other. Nowadays you can't hear the "still small voice" of God for the clanking of machinery. It's largely a case of din and dust!

A Methodist on Organization.

In his "Stars of Retrospect," Dinsdale T. Young has some very pertinent things to say, with all of which find myself in heartiest agreement.

"Looking back upon an extended ministry, I am disposed to form an unfavourable view of multiplied church organization. I know the exceeding value of adequate organization. But I also know the peril of too complex organization. I agree with Dean Inge that the church organizations of the future will have to be very simple. This has been, I frankly say, a cause of great searching of heart to me as I have grown older. I have feared the undue growth of organization in all the churches, and in my own in particular. Nor have I hesitated to run the risk of ill ODIUM by often warning my fellow-denominationalists of this danger."

If organization is elaborate it tends to absorb a minister's time and strength, and in my view it should not be so absorbed. Anything that deflects a minister from his preaching is, in the long run, a disaster. To make a minister a sort of business manager is a prostitution of the most deplorable kind. I confess I dread the growth of such a type of minister. Always soliciting subscriptions! Always filling in schedules! Always summoning a committee! Always planning a new departure!

And I dread the churches coming to desire such a ministry. If God's people "love to have it so," the church is doomed. Over-organization will inevitably deteriorate a ministry. When a minister prefers guarding machinery to preparing for the pulpit, and preaching and visiting his people, that secularized minister sounds the death-knell of his ministry. Moreover, ultra-organized churches give too great opportunity to men who are inferior in everything but ambition. They climb to the position of prestige to the detriment of abler men. On the score of being "administrators" and "good business men," they rule the church. And ecclesiastically, as everywhere, it is an ill sight to see "servants upon horses, and princes walking as servants upon the earth."

What Makes the Difference?

Another preacher says that a church may boast ambitious programmes and well-run machinery and yet be spiritually lifeless.

"I can never understand," once remarked an astute American, "how Jesus of Nazareth accomplished so much without being on a committee."

The late Sir W. Robertson Nicoll once told another minister that his favourite church was a cold, uncomfortable, repulsively ugly building in an obscure street, where the singing was barely tolerable and the service long and severely simple. But the preaching! Before the preacher had been on his feet five minutes you were lifted to the heights and the dusty, draughty kennel of a place was flooded with heavenly light.

I have read of a man who had in his office the most elaborate card index system imaginable. But it did nothing and got nowhere, for there was no business to keep a record of.

A great musical genius once gave a recital in a little Welsh chapel on a very inferior organ which had nothing to recommend it but a row of gaudy pipes. The audience was spell-bound by the heavenly music which came, not from the cheap little organ, but from the soul of the organist. If you had been present you would have seen the regular organist sitting in a pew with a puzzled look in his eyes. He was wondering what had happened to his organ.

A Questionable Achievement.

The strength of some ministers, and the secret of THEIR SUCCESS—such as it is—lies along the line of knowing how to run a church. To this type of minister a church is a complicated piece of machinery of which he is chief engineer. His chief concern is not "to seek and to save that which was lost," but rather to keep things moving smoothly. A little oil on that point, and a little tightening at that other! He is a profound believer in committees. No one under his care is allowed to stand idle in the market place and say, "No man hath hired me." Everybody has an office of some kind. The church is kept running at full pressure most of the year. If there is any let up it is only when most folks are off for a vacation. New schemes of work come from the fertile brain of this up-to-date church expert in such rapid succession that the ladies upon whom the burden of carrying them out mainly rests, lift their hands and exclaim, "What next!"

Organization Minus Power.

Organization, like the whistle on the ancient American steamboat, has its place, but it may demand more power than it is worth. There was a steamboat which, when it blew its whistle, had to wait for about ten minutes for more steam before it could continue its voyage. It did not have enough steam to drive the screws and blow the whistle at the same time. There are so many organizations clustering around the church that they overshadow its life when their real business is—if they have any right to exist at all—to express it. What a blessing it would be to both pulpit and pew if we had a return to the simplicity of the early church. That simplicity, with the power it possessed, would still work wonders in this supposedly superior age.

ALLAN FAIRBAIRN.

An Ungodly Critic

A GENTLEMAN of the above type once said of a minister who was strong on organization within his church: "Why does he keep flying around, trying everything except religion? Why does he not stick to his own special business of preaching the gospel?" And the question was not without both point and pathos. The minister must contract the waters of his life between the rock-bound banks of a settled purpose, saying, "This one thing I do."

TACT IN CHURCH

DON'T give a woman with a small babe, apt to cry, a middle-aisle front seat.

Don't leave your brains at home when you go to church; take them with you for use.

Don't accomodate one and disturb a thousand thereby.

Dont let a door squeak night after night for the want of putting a little oil on the hinge.

Don't walk up a long aisle with squeaking shoes when a solo is being sung, the Scriptures read, or the sermon preached.

Get your problems of ventilation fixed, and fixed right, before the preaching begins.

Don't wait for some one else to do what is needed. You do it, and without notice.

Choosing Your Friends

WE SHOULD choose friends whom we can take into every part of our life, into every closest communion, into every holy joy of our heart, into every consecration and service, into every hope, and between whom and whom there shall never be a point at which there shall never be a point at which shall not be in sympathy. We ought to accept only the friendship that will bring blessing to our lives, that will enrich our character, that will stimulate us to better and holier things, that will weave threads of silver and gold into our web of life, whose every influence will be a lasting benediction.

CHURCHES AND CHURCHMEN

By I. SEEWELL

Episcopal Faith and Works.

WINTON, Pa., is a small mining town near Scranton without a church building of any kind. Rev. Daniel P. Grififfths, rector of St. James' Church, in the neighboring town of Jermyn, began to call on the people some years ago, winning their love and confidence. He has baptized more than eighty of their children and has presented more than thirty for confirmation. As a result of his labors the people have bought a church site and the diocese is to erect a church and parish house this spring. The people will do the masonry work and Bishop Sterrett has awarded the contract for the frame building to a New York construction company.

Catholic Generosity.

RIGHT Rev. Monsignor Patrick J. McGivney, pastor of St. Charles Church, Bridgeport, Conn., and supreme chaplain of the Knights of Columbus, has sailed for Rome on an official visit to the Pope. Monsignor McGivney took with him a check for $500,000 which he will present to His Holiness in the name of the K. of C. for the Mexican relief fund. The check represents donations of members of the order from councils throughout the country.

Bishop to Rector.

THE bishop of Northwest Australia, who has spent twenty-five years as bishop in that diocese and in Nyasaland, Central Africa, has resigned his see to become rector of a small parish in the Isle of Wight. I wonder if homesickness has had anything to do with this change?

Enterprising Episcopalians.

IT is reported that the Episcopal diocese of Milwaukee plans a portable church to speed work in unchurched areas of the city. The structure is to be such that it may be put up overnight and taken down as quickly. As soon as a self-supporting congregation has been assembled, a permanent building will be started and the portable church moved into some new area. The young people of the city of Milwaukee are raising the necessary funds to do this.

Everything Is Mud.

A certain outspoken rector says that when you do wrong and get so you will really enjoy evil, you reach the bottom very quickly and then there is nothing to do but to play around in the mud. Everything is mud. There is really no deeper to go. But when you care for right and do right, there are no limits to the heights that you may reach. Every day you may find a new point to scale, a new achievement. That is the difference between doing right and doing wrong.

A Socialist Canon.

HAD the Rev. Canon Frederic Lewis Donaldson, first socialist ever to become a Canon of Westminster Abbey, being interviewed several days ago this is what he might have said:

The silk hat is a vicious, vile, ugly, symbol of the ungodly Victorian. It is hard, unyielding, uncomfortable and pretentious, with an outside gloss and an inside smell. It is responsible for much of the baldness of the late generation which it typifies.

Speaking After Forty Years' Silence.

Good Cheer From Korea.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR in Korea, according to Rev. W. J. Anderson, in report covering the last five years, speaks of the obstacles in his way five years ago and mentions partial support from some missionaries, active opposition from others, and indifference or only curious interest on the part of the Korean church leaders. The police were also suspicious of the new organization, and there was entire lack of funds for its promotion. Now, he says, the movement has the support of many missionaries. All opposition has been removed, and Korean church workers cooperate heartily. The police have ceased to give trouble, and nearly 300 societies have been organized, with a membership rapidly approaching 10,000. Six country union and a national Christian Endeavor Union also has been organized, and a regular Christian Endeavor magazine is Korean has been started.

A Clinic For Sick Souls.

SOMETHING of an interesting nature has been started at Wesley Methodist Church, Worcester, Mass. It is called a "Trouble Clinic", by the minister, Rev. William S. Mitchell. To this clinic those who are in trouble of any kind are invited to come irrespective of class, color or creed. The trouble may be sorrow or discouragement, desperate over problems of finance, employment, home life, or the question of sin. What ever it may be, all will be made welcome. Two minister and two deaconesess will be in attendance at certain hours.

IT is harvest time and the valleys are full of reapers. So busy are they that they can scarce attend to anything but the cutting of the corn. A strange sound is heard coming from the road that passes through the valley where they are at work. They pause and look with wonder and delight at the sight that presents itself. The reaping hooks are dropped, the corn is left to itself, and the workers assemble in a certain field and light a great fire. They little know that they are being watched by unfriendly eyes!

This is the tenth in a series of pen pictures of Bible History by a preacher whose name will be withheld for the present. The key will be supplied next week when another in the series shall appear.

The key to last week's picture is Acts 28:15.

HERESIES

THERE are many heresies in the world, but there is no heresy like TRUTH suddenly blazed into the face of a generation long accustomed to see things not in their natural dimensions, but only as refracted and distorted by passing through a false medium. In political and social matters there are large classes of persons, who by no possibility can be brought to see anything except under the partial and perverting influence of their peculiar position and predominant interests. Such persons, when the plainest political truth is spoken before them, will comport themselves like the bats in the subterranean galleries at Denderah, when a traveller with a wax-light suddenly made an incursion into their dim domains, blaze not your light before bats.

—PROFESSOR BLACKIE.

BE TRUE

IT IS not always easy. But it is worth while. The result of it is character tried and true; the fruit of it is an easy conscience, a sense of satisfaction, and a host of friends. In times of crisis the demand is not so much for men of genius nor men of world-wide fame, but for those who are true. It is not necessary that we should succeed as the world counts success, but if life be worth the living it is is absolutely essential that in all things we should—Be True.

Be True to your ideals. Set them high. You will hardly rise above them. Let them lift you in spite of life's undercurrents. Keep your eyes up, your vision clear, your faith steady.

Be True to your convictions. Only test them well. See if they will hold when the strain is heavy, the sky starless, your friends few. If they hold, follow them.

But did you know that there is only One who makes the true life possible? He uses old memories, high ideals, and earnest convictions to make men strong and good. His name is Jesus. He is within calling distance, nearer than you have realized. Better let Him help you to—Be True.

"Courage, brother, do not stumble.
Though thy path be dark as night,
There's a star to guide the humble,
Trust in God and do the right."

GOOD ADVICE TO SPEAKERS

THE day demands, and the people require, not doubtful men or men of doubt, but faithful men and men of faith to deliver God-given messages. Let ever Christian assemblage have speakers and preachers who will do seven things as they stand before the many or the few.

1. Speak as a living man to living men.
2. Have something fresh to say. It may not be new material, but let it be served as fresh as berries just from the bush, dead ripe.
3. Say it and say it well. Say it naturally. Say it in earnest.
4. Quit when you are through. It's an awful bore to listen to a man talking after he has finished.
5. Don't try to tell all you know in one address or sermon. The man who does this is not fit to preach.
6. Don't let manuscript or notes prevent you from watching the effect of your words on the people.
7. Have a purpose every time you speak, and hit the mark. It's wonderful how people like to be hit, and hit hard. The man who doesn't make me squirm a little is apt to find my seat vacant next time.

Try this for one day: Think as though your thoughts were visible to all about you.

THE ACT AND THE HOTELS.

The Liquor Control Act does not provide for sale by the glass, nor does it grant to standard hotels the privilege of selling liquor or beer to bona fide guests at meals, a concession that for some time was mooted as likely to be provided for in the bill.

However, it is evident that the Government will be under constant and heavy pressure to make further changes along this line, and already the hoteimen of the Province are pointing out that the Act just introduced is unfair to them on the ground that it makes bars of their bedrooms, while they are not sharing in the revenue.

The section that permits tourists to have and to consume liquor in their hotel rooms is the one that is strongly assailed by hotel proprietors, who maintain that if visitors are to be served with liquor the service should be at meal times or in the beverage rooms.

It remains to be seen whether or not the forebodings of the hoteimen are justified.

If the conditions prove to be as bad as they claim they will be, the Government will find itself faced with a situation that will require some adjustment of the regulations, but for the present at least there will be no concessions in this direction.

THE POSTMASTERS' CASE.

The Canadian Postmasters' Association is urging upon the Federal Government the adoption of a new schedule of commissions for postmasters, and the figures they have prepared in support of their case are interesting.

Canada and the United States are two of the few countries which pay postmasters on a commission of stamp sales, and in the case of many of the Canadian officials the remuneration paid for their services is surprisingly small.

Under the present scale postmasters receive 50 per cent. commission on the first $1,000 revenue, 30 per cent. on the next $9,000 and 20 per cent. on everything up $10.000.

This works out so that 10,722 postmasters out of 12,376 in Canada make an average of only 55c per day.

Five thousand, indeed, receive the minimum of $60 annually, or 20c per day, and 5,722 others are paid over 20c, but less than $2.00 daily.

With the 60 city offices and some 600 city sub-offices removed from the list, there are only 1,000 postmasters out of 12,376 who receive more than $2.00 a day for their services.

The association will ask the Government to sanction a scale that will provide 100 per cent. commission on the first $500 revenue, 75 per cent. on the second, 50 per cent. from $1,000 to $5,000, 40 per cent. from $5,000 to $10,000 and 25 per cent. on revenues over $10,000, pointing out that the reduction in letter rates has added 25 per cent. to their work in securing the same revenue, while the American sale is higher all round than that now proposed by the Canadian postmasters.

MR. FERGUSON'S DOUBLE JOB.

Premier Ferguson, pointing out that he is saving the Province $8,000 a year in salary in so doing, has announced his intention of remaining at the head of the Ontario Department of Education.

While the holding of two portfolios by one Minister is not always to be desired, and there is a natural tendency to point out that such an important department as that of education should have a full time head, it must be admitted that in spite of his other duties the Premier has administered his department well and has brought forward a series of constructive suggestions that indicate a deep interest in the subject of education.

The portfolio is probably being better looked after than if Mr. Ferguson had passed the appointment on to one of his followers, and at the same time the salary of the Minister of Education is being saved, as the Premier does not accept any remuneration for his work as Minister.

Mr. Ferguson is interested in a number of changes that he believes will cut down the expense and increase the efficiency of Ontario's educational system, and the people are inclined to give him a chance to work these out.

Certainly the fact that for four years the Premier had held his dual position was not in any way a factor in the last election campaign.

JUST A MARKET NOW.

Henceforth Peterborough's farmers' market is, to use an Octavius Roy Cohen expression, to be nothing else but,

The market building and the square are to be used only for the sale of farm, dairy and garden produce of Canadian origin.

No longer will the welkin ring with the hoarse voice of the auctioneer seeking to arouse interest in his second-hand wares.

The voice of the orange vendour will be heard no more in that vicinity.

The fish merchants will fold their tents like the Arabs and disappear.

All these will be missed they added noise, sometimes the element of excitement, and usually an odour to the atmosphere.

But the greatest loss to the small boy and his out-of-work elders will be the banishment of the wandering medicine man and his peddling comrades, who sold everything from razors to can-openers and often recommended the same article to serve the purposes of both.

The man who could tame tape-worms as Jack Miner has the wild geese, the Indian doctor with his "Oh-be-joyful" preparation that could cure anything from the foot-and-mouth disease to house maid's knee, the fellow who promised to pull teeth without pain and destroyed many a youngster's faith in human nature in trying to make good, are to be seen never again in Peterborough's mart.

To be sure, butter and eggs and vegetables will still be sold on the market, but what kick is there in those things for the people who found Saturday morning's varied programme just a trifle less exciting than a vaudeville show?

A CONSIDERATE COUNCIL.

Was there ever a City Council more considerate of the finer susceptibilities of the people than that of Peterborough? A modest four-line despatch to The Globe from that city yesterday states that the Council has passed a bylaw forbidding firemen using profane language while fighting a fire. It is evident that the Council has in mind the spectators who at the first sign of fire rapidly assemble and usually succeed in getting in the way of the firemen in the general scramble for grandstand seats. The City Council of Peterborough is determined that a perfectly good fire is not to be spoiled for the onlookers by any profanity on the part of the firemen. Profane language is inconsistent with the calling of a fireman, the Council deems. In speech and behavior their duties should be conducted with dignity and decorum. When an over-zealous spectator gets in the way or has his feet mixed up with the hose he should be gently but firmly admonished by the Fire Chief, and a better position in which to view the spectacle found for him. Profane language, this Council believes, should be reserved for the more exciting business of checkers and dominoes, with which the firemen are wont to fill their leisure hours.—The Globe.

THE "AWFUL" STREETS.

Indignation over the condition of the city streets does not get us anywhere. We had the snow—something like nine feet of it during the winter—and it takes a good deal of melting. Probably the worst now is passed, unless there are further heavy snowfalls, and it does not appear that anyone has suffered greatly. There have been no reports of flooded basements, not even a cat has been drowned, and the water is finding its way to the sea with considerable expedition.

Our memories are very short. Just such conditions are inevitable every spring, with the quantity of snow which falls to the share of Ottawa, and every spring we are quite sure the streets never before were in such awful shape. Tax bills are a long way off, it seems, and something should be done about it! One has a vision of the Mayor, armed with a divining rod, searching for buried sewer covers; overalled Controllers wielding shovels and axes; Aldermen digging trenches and guiding baby rivers. Nothing else would give quite the same feeling of satisfaction that "something" was being done.

The sun is very busy on the problem, with the intelligent co-operation of the Works Department. There is nothing in the least romantic about slush, and Ottawa is not at her best when the streets are "rivers of mud," to quote a wrathful correspondent. Slush and mud mark the transition stage between skiing and golfing and they please nobody. The devotee of winter sports sighs for the sparkling days which are ending; the golfer polishes his clubs and practises putting in the drawing room. For the time being they are on a common footing—and a very bad one.

The ire of the wrathful correspondent already quoted is aimed at those drivers of automobiles who speed through the mud and splash unwary pedestrians. This, too, is a situation for which we see no remedy save in a little extra precaution on both sides. There are times when the temptation is very great to hurl a fine, large rock through the window of a car with a rude and unmannerly driver, but the practice is not commended. The police are inclined to frown on it.—Ottawa Journal.

SIMPLE ADVICE TO MOTORISTS.

Through the Province of Quebec Tourist Association, an organization recommended by the Prime Minister, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, the sister Province, one possessing its full share of good roads, is doing much to retain the popularity amongst motor tourists which it has enjoyed for some years past. The Tourist Association was organized for the purpose of giving to visitors in concrete form accurate information and advice concerning accommodation and entertainment, and in fulfillment of that objective it has prepared a booklet containing road maps and the like which may be handed to every tourist entering the Province. But it does not neglect such a golden opportunity for impressing upon the visitor the need for observance of the law and of safety-first precautions if the tour is to be free from unpleasantness and danger. In a prominent position in the booklet, the association gives this timely warning:

"During the motoring season newspapers are daily filled with reports of casualties, bringing pleasant tours to a tragic end. Not a day passed but adds a victim to the black list of the road.

"Prudence and respect of the law are the watchwords automobilists should adopt. The day they reduce these watchwords into practice, a decisive step will have been taken towards perfect security in traffic."

Few motor accidents would occur if every person making use of the highways adopted the safeguards which the Quebec Tourist Association mentions. If every motorist obeyed the law and exercised due caution at all times, there would be an end of the daily list of casualties which are the disgrace of Canadian motoring and the despair of the authorities. Now that the opening of another season of motoring is in sight, the dinning into the motoring public of the simple formula, "prudence and respect of the law," does no harm and, conceivably, may do much good.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

A murder trial in London only lasted six minutes, and ended in a death sentence. Chicago should be interested in that story.

The number of letters received by The Examiner about the condition of the sidewalks indicates a general belief that the pen is mightier than the snow-shovel.

Crass commercialism is taking the joy out of life for the small boy. The City Council is chasing the patent medicine men off the market square.

If you listen intently you'll be able to hear the cheers of Ontario hotelmen celebrating because the Liquor Control Act doesn't allow them to sell anything stronger than 4.4 beer.

Mr. Raney's comments on the new liquor bill are being reserved for the debate on the measure, but somehow the impression seems to have become general that the Progressive leader doesn't altogether approve of the legislation.

On November 11, 1926, Mr. Frank Rush, Hatchley, Ont., delivered to Mr. J. H. Woolley, Burford, Ont., one carload of cattle. These were bought by Mr. Rush at the stocker and feeder show in Toronto, held around November 9. In the shipment were 23 heifers weighing 775 lbs., going in the barn; they were spayed heifers and cost $6.50 laid down Burford. The balance of the car was made up of ten steers weighing 870 lbs., going in the barn, and cost $6.50 laid down at Burford.

These cattle were fed by Mr. Wolley on ensilage and straw with barley, chop, bran and cotton seed meal mixed. The last month he substituted corn for barley.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., March 12 (Canadian Press)—The foreign demand for grain on the Montreal market yesterday was of a very limited character and little new business was accomplished. The trade in cash grain on the domestic market was also quiet, but values were unchanged.

A moderate amount of business was worked in spring wheat grades of flour and the feeling was steady. There was little business done in winter wheat grades, and prices were unchanged.

The demand on the millfeed market yesterday was confined to bran and an active trade was done in this feed at firm prices. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was inactive but firm.

The undertone to the egg market was easier owing to the more liberal supplies coming forward, but prices showed no change. The receipts were 983 cases.

There was little change in the potato market, the demand being small and prices unchanged. Quebec varieties were quoted at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of ninety pounds, in bulk, ex-track.

Prices for all grades of butter were well maintained under a fair demand. The receipts were 875 packages.

Owing to the continued absence of any important demand for cheese here and the continued discouraging advices from over the cable, a weaker feeling developed in the market and prices were reduced 1-2c per pound. The receipts were 116 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 12 (Canadian Press) — Despite good buying at times yesterday on the part of commission houses, wheat averaged lower. Widespread rain and snow, beneficial for the domestic winter crop tended to favor the selling side, and so likewise did prospects for big world shipments this week, nearly 20,000,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Thursday's finish to 3-8c off; corn 1-8 to 1-2c to 5-8c down; oats at 1-8c decline to 1-4c advance and provisions varying from 15 cents setback to a rise of seven cents.

Corn showed a firmer tone than other grain, and in particular appeared to run into good buying on the dips. Weather conditions were unfavorable for the rural movement of corn. Shipping call here for oats was better.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, March 12 (Canadian Press) — Hogs 24,000; top $12.30; 260 to 300 pound averages $11.30 to $11.45; bulk better grade packing sows $10.40 to $10.65; strong weight slaughter pigs upward to $12.25.

WEEKLY TRADE

WINNIPEG, Man., March 12 (Canadian Press) — The weekly trade report of the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association Limited for week ending March 12th is as follows:

Halifax: Manufacturers report business as satisfactory. Wholesale business continues to be well up to average with collections fair, but retail trade is slack.

St. Johns: Wholesalers report business as satisfactory. Retail trade fairly good. Collections fairly good.

Montreal: A satisfactory volume of business is reported by the wholesale trade generally. Collections also fairly good. Retail business continues active and merchants are now prepairing for spring trade as large orders are being placed with the wholesalers and manufacturers although buying continues on a conservative basis.

Toronto: A gradual improvement would appear to be taking place in the wholesale trade and the consensus of opinion is to the effect that the current year will be considerably ahead of 1926. Retailers report a fairly steady volume of business. Collection may be considered as good.

Winnipeg: Wholesale grocers report good volume of business. Boots and shoes and rubber footwear dealers advise they have been very busy filling orders on account of the recent soft weather. A steady improvement in the sales of retail merchandise is evident, particularly of spring goods. Collections just improving.

Regina: Grocery dealers report business as not very active during the past week. Dry goods sales improving. Boots and shoes dealers report fair volume of business. All other lines inclined to be fair. City retail trade during the past week has been good. Country sales, however, continue to be quiet. Wholesale collections slow. Country retail slow; city retail good.

Saskatoon: A fair volume of business is reported by wholesale grocers. Dry goods sales fair. Boots and shoes and rubber footwear picking up a little. Hardware fair. Business conditions in all other lines continues quiet. City retail is picking up although country sales continue slow. Collections generally slow.

Calgary: Business conditions generally quiet as is usual between seasons, but prospects for increased business have not been brighter at this time for many years. Collections just fair.

Edmonton: Wholesale houses report slight improveemnt in business over last year. Collections just fair.

Vancouver: Manufacturers report fair volume of business. All lines of wholesale trade advise business is rather quiet but improving steadily. The retail business, both city and country, is very quiet. Collections, while rather quiet, are likewise improving.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

"A SLUSHY STORY."

Once upon a time a city council discovered that most citizens used the sidewalks to walk on. They ordered all the walks to be shovelled off, hired men to do [illegible] rains, and all lived happy ever [illegible] Thank you.

J. WALKER.

P. S. The name [illegible] the city was NOT Peterboro.

Voice of the people

The Examiner has received the following letter from a reader, and the three dollars can be obtained by one of the officers of the organization calling at The Examiner Office and getting same:

To the Editor:

Will you please give the three dollars to the Big Sisterhood. I see by your paper that are asking for funds. They make a great mistake in not adding who are their officers, where such assistance could be sent direct. Personally I know parcels and money letters have been sent to them through the Chief of Police. All this trouble could easily be spared by an "ad."

"In His Name."

WATER POWERS NOW WASTED.

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Sir: For the past year or more letters have appeared in the Examiner from Mr. R. R. Hall, making certain claims that would lead one to suppose that Peterboro authorities are not conversant with the possibilities of making a large saving in the cost of electric power, and it would appear that Mr. Hall's statements are near correct as no attempt is made to show where they are erroneous.

The writer is well acquainted with possibilities of different water powers mentioned by Mr. Hall, and is inclined to credit Mr. Hall with a better understanding of the situation than many who while not willing to give him credit, are not able or desirous of pointing out where he is in error. On the face of his proposition it would appear to the writer that with all the power running to waste at Burleigh Falls, and on the river between this village and Peterboro much may be gained by having expert reports prepared. Yours,

J. F. LILLICRAP,

9th March, 1927. Lakefield, Ont.

To the Editor, Examiner:

I notice your editorials regarding the cars and the streets. They are about right in most respects, although it does seem to me that the weather has had a good deal to do with the bad streets and the only thing that would remedy this would be to cart away all the snow as it falls, and this would be impossible.

Now, about splashing water on pedestrians by autoists. There are two sides to the question also. Some pedestrians, when they cant' walk on the sidewalks, hog the street railway track and are more responsible than the car drivers for getting wet. Yet I have seen drivers who splashed water from about the middle of the road on people walking on the pavements. Everybody, to me, seems to be a little at fault, but one thing I will say, your own drivers have improved a lot over the way they drove a while ago. My gosh, they were awful in spots! But with their improvement, your articles are more consistent.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

POISON LIQUOR

By Dr. Frank Crane.

In pre-war days it was a pretty generally accepted axiom among the liquor people that the best campaigns were made "sub rosa." Whenever they came out in the light of open discussion it was bad for them.

Prohibition is based upon intelligence and upon the necessity of restricting the use of alcohol among incompetents.

The liquor business depends primarily upon appetite and the desire of people to have a good time. It will not stand the light of discussion.

Recently a great hullabaloo has been made about the use of poisons in denaturing government alcohol. Eight hundred and eight deaths have been reported as due to poison liquor during the year, 468 in Manhattan alone.

In the first place it is doubtful if all of these were due to poison liquor. Many of these were cases that could have been caused by any kind of liquor.

The bootlegger is a man who is out for gain, and is not unwilling to commit murder to obtain profits.

Those who patronize him should recognize the unreliable source from which they get their goods and anyone who drinks bootleg is taking his life in his hands.

A simple way to avoid danger from bad liquor is to not touch any of it, but this is a thing that the "wets" are not disposed to do.

A great effort is being made to justify the anti-prohibition movement as a stand for the morals of the country, but the liquor business has been too much smirched to have it now refurnished and made respectable in the eyes of the people.

The American public is tired of the open sale of alcoholic drinks and will hardly go back to it. We may expect a certain amount of ridicule and attempt at its repeal on the part of the reactionists, but nothing will stand in the way of the upright sentiment of the people, and that is distinctly against the liquor business in any way, shape or form.

When this agitation against prohibition has blown over, the moral sentiment of the country against the use of liquor will be found steadily on the increase.

The newspapers of course have played up the sale of poison liquor because it furnishes interesting news items but doubtless the news is too interesting to be accurate and the reports of deaths by poison have included a number of those due to excessive alcoholism. Just how the lipensing of certain liquors will lessen the amount or the use of alcohol has not been made plain.

INSANITY IS CURABLE

Most people are used to thinking of insanity as a definite disease for which there is no cure. Remarkable progress has been made in the last two years in the cure of all forms of insanity but the public at large does not know of these results. Our public asylums are being turned into hospitals from which between twenty-five and forty per cent are discharged either cured or improved. In the private sanitariums the results are even better because of the personal attention given to each case. It is true that in some institutions, even at the present time, very little is being done to bring about a cure in any of the different types of cases of insanity, but on the whole there has been much improvement on the method of treatment, and when all institutions for the nervous or insane will take up the study of diet-therapy there will soon be only a few incurables left in these institutions.

In my opinion, if the proper methods of treatment are used in every case, at least seventy-five per cent of those now confined in asylums could be turned into useful citizens with a complete cure of their mental disorders.

There are so many kinds of mental derangements just as there are many kinds of physical disorders and very few people are entirely insane or entirely sane, but the word insanity is a convenient word to use to denote irresponsibility in the eyes of the law. Such conditions seldom develop suddenly, but come on gradually through a variety of causes which can be easily removed as soon as they are ascertained.

Personal misfortunes and tragedies are frequently the precipitating causes of insanity, but however strong the mental cause may seem to be I consider that the most important thing which has brought on the mental trouble is poor physical health and the poisoned blood stream laden with toxic material which has not been eliminated. This viewpoint is true whether the mental breakdown came at the age of puberty or at the menopause or whether it seems to be hereditary or acquired.

The important thing to do is to see that the patient has a perfectly pure blood stream before you can expect to bring about any permanent mental change. I have seen a temporary change in insanity occur in a patient after being given a large dose of castor oil, which of course, brought about an extreme elimination of intestinal toxins. Of course, if the same habits of living are followed after the castor oil is given the patient will lapse back into a state of insanity again. An important point to remember is that the colon must be kept clean at all times, whether this is accomplished by the use of laxatives, enemas or by using such perfect food and food combinations that no extra intestinal poison develops. A short fast is always good in these cases which should be followed by a carefully selected diet, nourishing but not too bountiful. The insane patient is always bilious and those foods must be avoided which will tend to clog up the liver or intestines. The patient should be fed quantities of raw green vegetables which will furnish the necessary organic minerals the nerve cells need so badly, and also assist in the elimination of excess poisoning which may be lurking in the intestines.

If you have some loved one who is now suffering from insanity, do not be satisfied to give up attempting to cure him until you are sure that his body has been made perfectly clean so that the mental forces are given the proper chance to work in an uninterrupted manner.

POSTERS DRAW LARGE CROWDS

The Poster Brite machine in the window of the Canadian National uptown office on George street is attracting much attention. This is something new in the form of advertising and large crowds of people gather around at night to see the illuminated pictures which show up well.

This machine shows eight pictures which roll and unroll in turn, exhibiting slides of Mount Robson, Alaska, Jasper Park Lodge, Gateway to Quebec City, the Transcontinental Limited, Radio in a train, Maritime Provinces, and Highland Inn. These slides are run by a quarter horse power electric motor and are continuous.

CONDITIONS THAT CALL FOR A TONIC

Symptoms That the Blood is Thin Should Not Be Neglected.

Weak, lacking in strength, energy and ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms of a great majority of people who have been benefited by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The great value of this medicine in cases of this kind is proved by the statement of Mrs. W. Hensher, Kingston, Ont., who says:—"Following a severe cold I was left in a run-down, nervours condition; I had pains in the back and limbs and could scarcely move about. I did not sleep well at night and was despondent and discouraged. I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and can truthfully say that after the use of six boxes, the change in my condition was nothing short of marvellous. The pains vanished, I slept well, had a good appetite, and in every way felt well and strong. I also gave the pills to my daughter, who was in an anaemic condition and feeling quite miserable, and in her case, too, they restored health. I hope my experience may help some other weak person."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. A little book, "Building Up the Blood," which contains many useful health hints, will be sent free on request.

KINDLY ELUCIDATE

Young Lady Did Not Understand Meaning of Message

In reply to a notation at the botton of a letter which the bright young lady of the office force had passed along for his consideration, the "boss" wrote underneath, "Kindly elucidate," and sent it back to her for further attention.

Miss Blank, which is not her name, and we promised not to tell it, was at a loss to understand what the "boss" meant. Elucidate—what could that be? She did not know, so she consulted the head salesman, who always appeared to know everything. "Elucidate?" he said. "Why, that means—ah—I'm not so sure—but I think—" And just then a telephone call for him interrupted his heavy thinking and saved him further embarrassment.

Now it comes out that on the way home a few nights ago they both made it a point to stop in and get the New Universities Dictionary, which is now being offered to readers of this newspaper on the popular coupon plan. So now they both are able to elucidate whenever called upon to do so.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

IRISH SOCIAL AT ST. ANDREW'S

Ladies' Aid Society Group Gives Entertaining Evening.

GOOD PROGRAMME.

One of the groups of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Society, the South group, of which Mrs. C. R. Banks is leader, held a very entertaining evening in the auditorium of St. Andrew's Sunday School Hall last night. The affair took the form of an Irish Night, and was attended by a large number of people. The chairman of the evening was Mr. G. W. Gilman, who proved to be a particularly happy choice, and added immensely to the interest of the programme, with a collection of Hibernian jokes and a costume which was in keeping with the spirit of the evening, and included a green tie, a shilielagh, and a small flat hat adorned with shamrocks.

The programme included piano numbers by Miss Margaret Flowers and violin selections by Roy Rome, with accompaniments by Miss Marguerite Rome, also vocal solos by Miss Daisy Murray, Miss Alma Blanchard, Miss Jean Padgett, and Mr. J. W. Bryan, and a vocal duett by Miss Murray and Mr. Bryan, accompaniments for the songs being played by the Misses M. Flowers, A. Blanchard, and D. Murray.

Refreshments were served from a large table placed in the centre of the auditorium, arranged with a silver basket of white tulips, green candles in silver holders and St. Patrick's Day cutouts and shamrocks. The table was in charge of Mrs. M. T. Breckenridge and Mrs. J. Latimer, and tea was poured by Mrs. Alex. Richardson and Mrs. John Jamieson.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

Prepared by Rev. Charles Emerson Burton, D.D., for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

Copyright 1927

Topic for the Week: "MAN IS A SPIRIT"

Saturday: "We are to Practice Immortality"

SCRIPTURE: Read—Colossians 3 1-17.

"And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself" (I. Jn. 3:3). "If ye then were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above" (Col. 3:1). "And this is life eternal that they should know thee the only true God, and him whom thou didst send, even Jesus Christ" (Jn. 17:3).

See—Ephesians 2:4-6; I. Timothy 5:6; Revelations 3:1.

MEDITATION: If we want a dwelling for a month we may use a tent; for a lifetime we build of timber or stone. My life is not simply that of an animal, but of an immortal spirit. I cannot be content with an inferior character; therefore I am resolved on purity toward God, sincerity toward self and honesty toward men.

"Let me feel that I am already immortal; that death could no more destroy my life than it could destroy Thine, because mine is Thine."

HYMN:

Christian, rise, and act thy creed,
Let thy pray'r be in thy deed;
Seek the right, perform the true,
Raise thy work and life apew.

Hearts around thee sink with care;
Thou canst help their load to bear,
Thou canst bring inspiring light,
Arm their faltering will to fight.

Come then, Law divine, and reign,
Freest faith assailed in vain,
Perfect love bereft of fear,
Born in heaven and radiant here.

—F. A. Rollo Russell, 1893.

PRAYER: Thanks for our wide contacts, temporal and eternal.

Pray for—fearlessness; the bereaved.

Collect—O Lord, our God, Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, thy love is unsullied, full and free. Thou art conquering the hearts of men by the surrender of thyself. Thou art showing high trust in us, can we not trust Thee. We praise Thee for the life, death and resurrection of thy Son in whom we see the Father. Give us to know the fellowship of his suffering and the power of his resurrection with its pledge of our on going life. We beseech Thee to be our ally in the conflict with evil. Give us the love that triumphs. Use us for the transformation of the world into the kingdom of Christ. Seal within us our puspose to live for eternity and to Thee be all the praise. Amen.

VOCAL RECITAL

Madame Jeanne Dusseau to Sing Here Next Week.

The vocal recital to be given by Madame Jeanne Dusseau in the hall of the Conservatory of Music on Tuesday evening next, under the auspices of the Women's Music Club, promises to be an outstanding musical event of the season. Madame Dusseau comes heralded as a vocalist of great ability, and will have with her as accompanist, Mrs. A. M. Russell, formerly Miss Georgie Dennistoun, of Peterborough, well known to many residents of the city.

The programme is a varied one, including compositions in French and English by classical and modern composers. Mascagni, Puccini, Grieg and Brahms, Dvorak and Gounod are represented on it, as well as popular composers of the type of La Forge and Aylward.

Press notices of the work of Madame Dusseau are of the most complimentary type. Hector Charlesworth, in "Saturday Night," speaks of her as possessing a "voice of unusual range with lusciously beautiful notes and appealing silvery timbre in the upper register. It is one of those voices seemingly light and ethereal, which nevertheless have remarkable carrying power in large auditoriums." Augustus Bridle, in the "Toronto Star," says: "The almost supreme vocal art of Madame Dusseau was shown in the role of Desdemona. Her three arias in these scenes were as distinguished as they could have been done by any of the prima donnae of opera who have visited here during the past ten years." From the "Ottawa Citizen": "Madame Jeanne Dusseau's soprano voice is an organ of rare tonal beauty. She has a wide range, and throughout the gamut of her voice there is a delightful evenness of tonal quality that is rich and alluring."

"Ever since she came as a child from Scotland to this continent," say her advance folders, "Madame Dusseau has amply justified the promise of an exceptional career. Her experience with the Chicago Opera Association having broadened her dramatic talent, she pours forth in all her recitals the dazling beauty of vivid portrayals and the caressing enchantment of soulful melodies."

Students Blamed For Stink Bomb in Theatre

ANNE ARBOR, Mich., March 12 (Canadian Press).— Differences between the Arcade Theatre and students of the University of Michigan are believed to have been responsible for the explosion of a "stink bomb" in the rear of the theatre last night. Patrons were driven out by the fumes. Police action is regarded as unlikely.

Waste oil from automobile crank cases is being used in some southern states to soak up sacks of sawdust and sand which are then planted in mosquito-breeding waters.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL

CORINNE GRIFFITH HAS A COLORFUL TALE IN "THE LADY IN ERMINE"

Francis X. Bushman and Einar Hanson in the Cast

A mammoth set representing a palace on the Austrian-Italian border during the Napoleonic period was built for Corinne Griffith's latest starring vehicle, "The Lady in Ermine," coming to the Capitol next Monday.

Produced under the supervision of E. M. Asher, "The Lady in Ermine," a screen version of the famous operetta of the same title holds promise of being the most outstanding and colorful film that the star has yet attempted.

Laid amid a martial background in Italy and Austria during Napoleon's campaigns, the picture again gives Miss Griffith an opportunity to portray a highly dramatic role in settings of regal magnificence and splendor.

Pretentious Setting

Pretentious settings and costumes, characteristic of the era in which the romantically dramatic story is based, are features of the new production, according to Asher, who states, however, that in no way does the ornate setting of the picture supersede in importance the entertaining story which the film unfolds.

A triumvirate of male talent, consisting of Einar Hanson, Francis X. Bushman and Ward Crane fill the three most important supporting roles opposite Miss Griffith. Hanson, who was Miss Griffith's leading man in her most recently released film, "Into Her star in the role of a colonel in the Kingdom" again plays hero to the star in the role of a colonel in the Italian army. Bushman supplies the necessary villainy as General Dostal and Ward Crane characterizes the crown prince of Austria.

Able Staff

James Flood, whom Asher recently acquired from Warner Brothers, directed. Associated were the same production and technical crew which assisted in the making of "Syncopating Sue," Miss Griffith's last picture. Scott R. Beal had charge of the production activities.

Harold Wenstrom had charge of photography, with Harry Jackson handling second camera and stills.

AT THE REGENT

GEORGE O'BRIEN SEEN IN NOVEL CHARACTERIZATION IN "FIG LEAVES"

Portrays the Adam of the Garden of Eden, and Adam, a Modern Plumber

George O'Brien, wearing an old slouch hat and a pair of oil stained overalls, is seen in an entirely new role in "Fig Leaves," an original story written and directed for Fox Films by Howard Hawks. Olive Borden is cast as Eve Smith in this colorful comedy-drama which begins a three day run at the Regent Theatre next Monday.

O'Brien, who is renowned for his clever characterizations in "Nostromo," "The Iron Horse," "Three Bad Men" and other Fox releases which have had wide appeal, is cast as a stalwart young plumber in the Hawks production. This, according to intimate friends who have watched his career with keen interest, is one of the best parts George has had in recent months.

The graceful young star is given excellent opportunity for contrast, or opposed to his role of the plumber is a man designer in the person of Andre de Beranger. This masculine dressmaker becomes entangled in the domestic affairs of Adam Smith and before the action is ended O'Brien shows the marvelous use that can be made of muscle.

Then, too, O'Brien, with his magnificently-bronzed body, has ample opportunity to display his physical prowess in the Garden of Eden sequences. Here, amid jungle beasts and crawling monsters, O'Brien, as Adam, undergoes some of the most thrilling experiences of his motion picture career. It is said that his work in this picture eclipses even his fine showing made in "The Johnstown Flood."

Ribbons pleated and cascaded in imitation of a cock's comb over the crown of the hat is an amusing form of millinery trimming which has just arrived from Paris.

MR. A. COTE.

"I will never be without 'Fruit-a-tives,' for personally I consider it my family doctor"—writes Mr. Adelard Cote gratefully from Asbestos Mines, Quebec.

"'Fruit-a-tives'," Mr. Cote goes on, "really are a wonderful remedy. I had always been severely constipated, and as a result felt generally miserable. After taking six boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' I felt 100 per cent. better, and in fact not the same person."

"Fruit-a-tives" is nature's own remedy—a combination of intensified fresh fruit juices and tonics. That is why it is so universally beneficial. PUBLIC preference chooses the inimitable Chrysler "60"

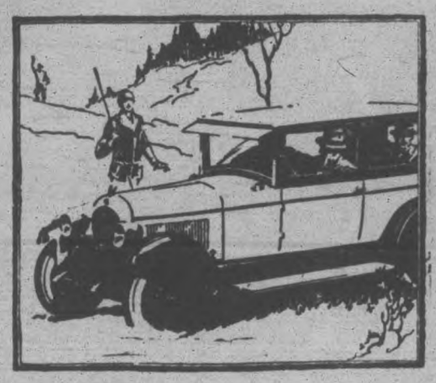
ONE of the most convincing proofs of Chrysler "60" superiority is trying to match its features in any other six of its type and price.

7-Bearing crankshaft;
Impulse neutralizer;
Oil-filter;
Air-cleaner;
4-Wheel hydraulic brakes;
Full pressure lubrication;
Manifold heat control;
Levelizers front and rear—

These, with many other features that cannot be imitated, have been embodied in the Chrysler "60" ever since its introduction.



These typical features of the Chrysler "60" were harmonized into the car's original engineering design—and are thus uniquely Chrysler—insuring that flashing speed of 60 miles and more per hour, enviable acceleration of 5 to 25 miles in 7¾ seconds, with the almost magical handling and operating ease that are typical of every Chrysler and endure throughout its long life.

It is for this fundamental reason that the Chrysler "60" has been accorded a public preference that has contributed substantially to Chrysler's dramatic rise from 27th to 4th place.

Chrysler "60" prices — Touring Car, $1520; Coupe, $1590; Roadster, $1620; Coach, $1685; Coupe (with rumble seat) $1820; Sedan, $1820.

CXXV—Why Fire Needs Air. by MAX HAHN

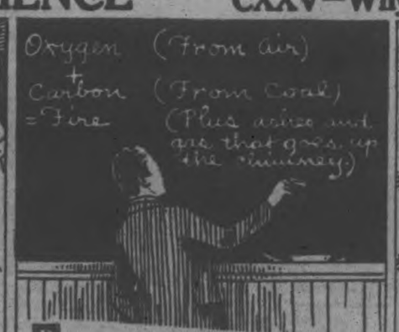
AFTER JOSEPH PRIESTLEY DISCOVERED OXYGEN HE DIDN'T UNDERSTAND ITS FUNCTIONS. HE STILL CLUNG TO THE IDEA THAT A MYSTERIOUS SUBSTANCE CALLED PHLOGISTON WAS THE ELEMENT WHICH CAUSED SOME THINGS TO BURN.



BUT THE FRENCH LAVOISIER AND MANY OTHER CHEMISTS IN PRIESTLEY'S TIME ABANDONED THE PHLOGISTON THEORY. THEY CAME TO UNDERSTAND THAT BURNING IS THE COMBINATION OF OXYGEN WITH A BURNABLE SUBSTANCE.

© McClure Newspaper Syndicate

FIRE NEEDS AIR BECAUSE OF THE OXYGEN IN AIR. SUBSTANCES QUIT BURNING WHEN THEIR SUPPLY OF AIR IS CUT OFF. THAT EXPLAINS WHY YOU SHOULD WRAP A BLANKET AROUND YOURSELF IF YOUR CLOTHES CATCH FIRE. THE BLANKET WILL CUT OFF THE AIR SUPPLY AND YOUR CLOTHING WILL STOP BURNING.

IF IT WERE POSSIBLE TO PLACE AN AIR-PROOF COVER OVER A BURNING BUILDING FIRE FIGHTING WOULD BE SIMPLIFIED.

Here Is Hand in The Examiner's Third Bridge Contest

HERE ARE RULES OF BRIDGE CONTEST

1.—Each week until further notice a different deal of bridge hands will be printed. These hands have been conceived by bridge experts and the bidding and play has been worked out by Ellis O. Jones, author of "Scientific Bidding," and a recognized bridge authority. The object of the contest is to bid and play the hands as they should be played in a regular game, with only the dummy in sight, to secure the highest possible number of points from each deal. The bidding and play has been carefully worked out by Mr. Jones and his solution, now on file in The Examiner office, will be used to determine the winner. The prize will go to the contestant who works out the bidding and play of each card just as Mr. Jones has done.

2.—In addition, each contestant must write an article of not more than 100 words explaining some particular point in the bidding or play of the hand. If several contestants submit exactly the same solution Mr. Jones has worked out, the prize will go to the one submitting the best article and the neatest solution.

3.—Each contestant should tabulate the bidding and play in the blank form at the right or on a separate piece of paper drawn up in a similar form.

4.—All contestants must have their solution in The Examiner office by midnight, Thursday, March 17.

5.—The contest is open to every reader of The Examiner except employees of this paper and their immediate families.

6.—A contestant may submit as many solutions as desired, but all must be in accordance with the rules.

7.—No one is required to buy a copy of this paper to compete. Copies of the paper may be examined at The Examiner office.

8.—As a condition of entry all contestants must agree to abide by the decisions and awards of the Contest Editors.

HOW TO FILL OUT THE BLANKS

Fill in each play in every trick in the squares above, just as you think each card should be played. Name the cards in this manner, for example: S—4 for the four spot of spades; H—K for the king of hearts; D—J for the jack of diamonds, and C—Q for the queen of clubs, etc. Do not use the letter K (Knave) for J (Jack). Indicate which hand leads in every trick by placing an (L) in parenthesis after the play. Thus if you believe in the first hand in the play North would lead the six of diamonds. East would play the king, South the ace and West the three-spot, you would put D—A under South and opposite Trick No. 1 in the squares above, D—3 under West, D—6 (L) under North and D—K under East. Then in one of the last two columns mark an X under which two partners won the trick.

HERE IS THE PRIZE WINNER AND ANSWER TO BRIDGE CONTEST NO. 2

Here is the way Ellis O. Jones, author of "Scientific Bidding" and bridge expert of The Examiner, says the hand in Bridge Contest No. 2 of The Examiner should be bid and played.

In the play of Mr. Jones, East-West made five diamonds, scoring a grand total of 200 points, counting 125 for game.

Here is what Mr. Jones says was the correct way to bid the hands:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
Pass	1 Heart	1 Spade	Pass
Pass	2 Diamonds	Pass	Pass
3 Clubs	3 Diamonds	Pass	Pass
4 Clubs	4 Diamonds	Pass	Pass

Final bid—4 Diamonds. Played by West.

Mr. Jones gives the following explanation of the bidding and the play:

BY ELLIS O. JONES
Author of "Scientific Bidding"

This is a notable example of what can be accomplished in a 4-card suit bid by astute playing. When East fails either to raise his partner's hearts or make a bid of his own, West mentions his diamonds as he has too strong a hand to give up so easily. When North and East let this ride and South goes to clubs, West now knows his partner has at least 3 diamonds and probably more, so he bids three diamonds and finally four.

The beauty of this hand, however, is in the play. In ruffling the heart at trick 5, East carefully notes that he has solid diamonds from the nine to the king, so he takes no chances with a small one and goes in with nine which must hold against everything but the ace. When North takes dummy's jack of diamonds, he promptly leads them right back in order to weaken the declarer all he can and stop the ruffling, but he is too late, for North's length in trumps has also proved his downfall. East can ruff another heart with the five in dummy, thus setting up a good heart in his own hand.

West had a bit of luck at trick 3 in getting a trick with the spade 10. North figured South for ace or king of spades as he had left his spade bid in, but any other lead would have been just as bad for him.

Dutch Troubled in East Indies—Chinese in South Seas a Problem.

French Forbid Shooting Parties in Siam Fearing Communism—Siam Dismisses Its Foreign Advisers Including Sayre—Dutch Sorely Troubled in Java and Sumatra—British Find Chinese in South Seas a Big Problem.

BY UPTON CLOSE

War in China and nationalistic plans to oust the white man flare in our headlines; but who knows about the similar demonstrations going on in Indo-China, Siam, the Dutch East Indies, the Straights Settlements and all the deep fringe round the south shore of Pacific Asia to the borders of India?

When I arrived in Indo-China I found the French authorities forbidding even foreign hunting parties to enter this closely guarded area. Why? Fear of Communist propaganda is offered as the reason.

In this French colony, full of irridentist segments of China and with a large population of southern Chinese deeply affected by the victories of Cantonese nationalism, the authorities feel they cannot be too cautious. They have dealt very fairly with the people and as the French colonial administrators entertain little race prejudice, the social element of discontent is not nearly so serious a problem as it is farther north.

But racially the Indo-Chinese are closely kin to the southern Chinese who have produced most of the disturbances during the past generation in Asia; so Indo-China will inevitably feel the effect of the revolt and the French Government has serious worries of its own not far ahead.

Sayre and Other Advisers Go.

What is remarkable all through Southeastern Asia is the self-reliance of these countries and their determination, with deceptive peacefulness, to do without the white man. This is happening in Siam, where some twenty foreign "advisers," all of whom have given fundamental services to the country, are being pensioned off and sent home this year. They will not be replaced, except by Siamese administrators. Francis B. Sayre, son-in-law of President Wilson, is the "biggest" man in the group.

There is no ill feeling about it. But Siam, a country as large as France, with an efficient railway system run by a Siamese graduate of Oxford, with an excellent standing army and the largest air force in Asia, feels thoroughly self-reliant. Ever since 1921, for instance, American citizens in Siam have been under Siamese laws, with the right reserved—very little exercised—to revoke cases back into consular jurisdiction. This is the most reasonable of all the solutions of the extra-territoriality problem, but it took a good deal of calm, determined pressure on the part of the Siamese to get us to adopt it—and unfortunately things have now gone too far to use it to stem the tide of China's crisis.

Uprising in Dutch Posssions.

There have been threats of Communist rising in Indo-China, but they have actually occurred in the Dutch East Indies, and when I visited Sumatra I found the Dutch officials still seriously apprehensive of the recurrence of outbreaks which came on unexpectedly and were put down with much difficulty last year.

In the great island of Java, the same size as Cuba but with ten times the population, the Dutch administrators have made lasting economic improvements in the status of the Javans, but over in Sumatra a much more restive population, of a less docile racial strain, has risen more and more frequently of late years in the big towns and on the plantations.

I found the Dutch East Indies not only the recipients of Communist propaganda from home—the secretary of the Third Internationale was for several years an American-educated Hollander, S. J. Rutgers—but the participants on their own behalf of an Asiatic nationalism reflected from Russia through the large Chinese colonies which have been for years the backbone of the nationalist movement in China.

Then, at the tip of the Federated Malay States, is the center of British prestige in this area and the great naval base-to-be at Singapore. It was no surprise to find that as my steamer passed out among the islands in which this base is to be constructed the order went out from the ship's officers: "No photographs!"

British Rubber Plans Menaced.

Back among the Malay States themselves—scene of the great rubber industry which Britain relied upon to pay the greater part of her debt to the United States—another large Chinese community, perhaps the wealthiest anywhere in the world, exercises an economic power wholly disproportionate to its numbers.

This Chinese element was a permanent factor in the stability of British control a few years back, but the challenge from Canton against British prestige, the long struggle between Canton and Hongkong and other rifts in Chinese-British understanding in the East may yet embarrass British control at one of its most vital points in all these southern seas.

What the traveler learns with the first impact of the new situations along this route is that they everywhere mean one thing: the predominance of Chinese influence among the South Sea forces of discontent and revolt. This was the original fortress of Sun Yat-sen's Nationalist movement. The South Seas Chinese gave him the first substantial contributions which made his pretensions possible. They were the financial backers of the Chinese Republic. They have watched with a proprietary interest the subsequent history of that experiment.

Now that the Nationalist movement that is its most formidable expression today has encountered British opposition as the most dogged obstacle to its development they, too, are beginning to "think nationally" in their own quarter of the world. They will be heard from before the history of the rich and strategically vital countries which border those seas is much older.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

The next article in this series will appear in tomorrow's Examiner. It treats of the danger to the British in India and their fear of a war with Afghanistan in the spring with Russia supporting their enemies.

ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING OBSERVED

Members of Lakefield Baptist Church Tender Gifts to Pastor and Wife.

LAKEFIELD, March 12. — On Tuesday evening a large number of the members of the Baptist Church paid a surprise visit to Rev. and Mrs. William Spencer at the Parsonage, the occasion being their wedding anniversary, bringing with them gifts, chiefly of flowers, and the hearty good wishes of the members of the congregation for continued happy years. Among the gifts of flowers there was a large bouquet of tulips and two flowering plants, a beautiful cyclamen, and a bright hued cineraria.

Mr. D. A. MacDonald was master of ceremonies and acted as spokesman for the party, expressing in a few words the good wishes of the people toward Mr. and Mrs. Spencer. A motto much used at present is "Say it with flowers," but a few words besides would tell the pastor and his capable helpmeet that their people appreciated their endeavors for the church and people, and that, on the occasion of their wedding anniversary, they wished to share the celebration and offer in more or less tangible form their felicitations.

The evening was spent in games and music, and was much enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer, who have made many friends during their residence in the village, received good wishes and gifts from callers during the day.

To-day is Shamrock tag day in Lakefield, the proceeds going toward St. Vincent's Orphanage.

TIME-HONORED DISH REVIVED IN LONDON

LONDON, March 12 (NEA Service) — The culinary skill of medieval England was brought back for just a night when the Chelsea Arts Club gave its annual ball recently. Among the dishes that were popular 300 years ago was "bubbley-jock," a veritable meal within a meal. It is made by stuffing a goose with a chicken, the chicken with a pigeon, the pigeon with a lark, and the lark with a quail. All of the birds are boned and cooked together.

W.M.S. SERVICE HELD AT CAVAN

Missionary Tells of Work Among Chinese Women.

CAVAN NEWS.

CAVAN, March 10.—On Sunday evening the services in Cavan United Church were under the auspices of the W.M.S.

The Rev. J.O. Totlton, pastor of the church conducted the service; Miss Marian Coon, missionary on furlough, gave a splendid address on her work among the women and children in China. Miss Coon was sent out by the W.M.S. and she explained that the object of their work was to send the gospel to those sisters in far-off heathen lands, and to seek to better their living conditions. She sketched the lives of six Chinese girls with whom she had come in contact and helped in her work in the mission school.

These girls are, while very young, given or sold in marriage to persons often not fit to have them spend their lives with. She showed what a difference it made, where the mother in the home is a Christian and has come under the influence of the Gospel.

It is through the girls and mothers that the W.M.S. is seeking to Christianize China and other heathen lands.

Miss Coon spoke in a very interesting manner as she told of the work to which she is devoting her talented young life.

She had an appreciative audience; many in the church having been warm friends of her father, the late Rev. C. Coon, and Mrs. Coon, while they were in charge of this circuit.

A number from the other appointments of the circuit attended the service on Sunday evening.

The choir sang appropriate music. The offering was for the W.M.S. work.

Miss Coon was the guest of the Rev. J. O. and Mrs. Totten at the parsonage.

A very successful Euchre was held in Cavan Community Hall on Friday evening. There was a good crowd in attendance and a very pleasant social evening was spent.

Euchre was played until ten o'clock, after which dancing was enjoyed for a time.

The Moncriel Orchestra supplied the music.

Miss Gwen Hunter, spent the week-end with her friend, Miss Hazel Slug gett, Lindsay.

Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Sutton, Miss Stark, Mrs. Staples, Mr. and Mrs. L. McNeil, Mrs. Seeney, Miss Hunter Mrs. Hunter were among Peterborough visitors on Saturday.

Mr. George Gow Smith was a visitor to Cavan on Thursday.

Mr. Fred Cann, Peterboro, — s the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. Armstrong a few days last week.

TWIN GIRL BORN WITH APPENDICITIS

Operation Performed Within an Hour of Child's Birth.

DETROIT, March 12. — Doctors marvelled Thursday at a tiny, day-old baby girl fighting for her life at the Receiving Hospital after one of the most extraordinary operations in the history of surgery.

The child, one of twins, was born on Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Ollie Choice, 5181 Hollford Street, with a ruptured abdominal wall and a severe case of appendicitis. The attending physician, Dr. H. J. St. Louis, wrapped the child warmly and handed her to the father, who sped in an ambulance to the Receiving Hospital.

Here Dr. Benjamin Freeman recognized symptoms of acute appendicitis, in which gangrene had developed, and he started an operation within an hour after the child was born. Using only a local anaesthetic, the physician removed the appendix, which was almost ready to burst, sewed up the ruptured abdominal wall, and the baby has a fighting chance to live.

How the infant developed appendicitis is a mystery to doctors, but they agree the child would have been dead if born a few hours later. While the father was racing to the hospital Dr. St. Louis remained at the home caring for the mother. The other twin girl is in perfect condition.

In his 17 years' experience, Dr. St. Louis said, he knew of only one other case where a child was born with a ruptured abdominal wall, and in this instance there was no appendicitis.

CHEESE FACTORY ANNUAL MEETING

Warkworth Patrons Decide to Sell Through U.D.C. This Year.

NORHAM, March 12—At the annual meeting of the patrons of the Warkworth cheese factory, held in the council chamber of the Town Hall on Wednesday, William Drewry was re-elected President and Joseph Greenly, George Poole, Nelson Hardy, and R. N. Potter were re-elected directors.

There was a good attendance at the meeting which was presided over by Mr. Drewry, who after a few complimentary remarks regarding the better quality of milk produced during 1926 and an explanation of several minor details in the matter of returns called upon James L. Irwin, cheese grader, from Belleville, to address the meeting. Mr. Irwin dwelt at some length on the matter of the difference in the price of cheese in 1925 and 1926 and made clear the circumstances which governed the price of cheese. The coal strike in England has cut down consumption in that country, and more cheese had been produced in England than was anticipated. The speaker advised against the feeding of turnips.

Mr. Drewry explained that the feeding of turnips might result in more milk but it would mean a smaller price per pound for the cheese.

J. A. Murray, Dairy Instructor, of Campbellford, then gave a short speech in which he pointed out the necessity of the patrons being careful about cans and utensils in handling milk. In as much as some factories are reported as having all number one cheese the milk drawn from the cow must be good, if turnips or other fodder that will taint it are not fed. Mr. Murray emphasized the need of special care with milk cans and milking machines and urged the proper cooling. Warkworth factory had risen about 20 per cent last year and he stated that he saw no reason why Percy township which was now nearly 92 per cent could not reach perfection in the manufacture and grading of cheese.

S. L. Joss, of Belleville, secretary of the United Dairymen's Co-operative Company, then explained the matter in connection with the establishment of a cold storage plant in Campbellford where the cheese would be assembled by Wednesday, graded on Friday, after it had been properly cooled and sold each week after grading and the patrons would be paid each week. The cost to be five cents a box, with no extra expense if the cheese should remain an extra few days because not ripe for grading. No contracts were to be signed. The company which had been operating since 1920 trusted to the loyalty of the factories and found it much better. A factory could withdraw at any time. The U.D.C. sells cheese only and seeks for quality so as to meet the desires of the producer. The cheese in cold storage is insured each week at current prices and not a cent can be lost to the patrons. Mr. Joss prophesied a more stable price for cheese in 1927.

The U.D.C. last year established a brand of its own which is acknowledged on the British market. The U.D.C. last year shipped 71,000 boxes of cheese to England and this year expected to ship direct at least 150,000 boxes. That company last year handled 206,862 boxes of cheese and expects in 1927 to handle 250,000 boxes which will make it the largest cheese handling firm in Canada. The English buyer is A. J. Mills of London. Mr. Moore of Montreal, the manager of the company, is in England at present arranging for the business of 1927.

It was moved by George Poole and seconded by W. A. Greenly that Wilbur S. Nelson be president. It was moved by Wilbur S. Nelson and seconded by James A. Sykes that William V. Drewry be president. The latter motion prevailed.

It was moved by Wilbur S. Nelson and seconded by Sloan Ewing that Mr. Neil, the new manager of the Royal Bank, be auditor.

It was moved by Ule Wartman and seconded by John Allen that James A. Sykes be auditor. The former motion carried. The auditor's salary is $10.00 a year.

It was moved by Robert B. Nelson and seconded by Mr. Mackenzie that turnips may be fed after the first day of November. It was moved by Charles Vansickle and seconded by Harold Skinkle that no turnips be fed until after the first day of December. The latter motion prevailed.

The patrons were almost unanimous in the matter of selling the cheese through the United Dairymen's Co-operative Company.

It was moved by Wilbur S. Nelson and seconded by Harold Skinkle that Mr. Drewry, cheesemaker, receive 3½ cents per pound of butter fat. This was the price paid in 1926.

Upon being asked the question Mr. Murray explained that any patron wishing the milk of individual cows tested, on communicating with Walter Smith, agricultural representative at Brighton, could make arrangements to have this done at a cost of 5 cents a cow for the summer.

Following is a summary of the financial report:

Pounds of milk received, 3,801,347. Cheese manufactured, 327,830 pounds. Gross receipts, $56,919.04. Cost of making, $9,834.90. Receipts from butter manufactured, $1,527.56. Cost of cheese used by patrons, $550.32. Net profit on cheese, $47,084.14. Total cash to patrons, $54,840.96. Gross per standard including whey at $1.00, 45.04. Net per standard, including whey, 38.16. Pounds of milk required to make a pound of cheese 11.50. Average selling a pound of cheese, 17.3.

A Public Question

The Examiner, interested, as always, in the civic welfare, and eager to serve the public good, feels itself justified in offering the people of Peterborough an opportunity to express themselves on the issue raised by R. R. Hall, K.C.

There is no doubt but that the operation of the street railway and the other utilities are vital questions to every citizen, and by ascertaining the public mind on this matter, The Examiner believes that it will be rendering a public service.

Citizens are requested to signify on the appended form their opinion as to whether a public meeting should be held, at which they will have an opportunity to discuss these vital matters. The forms can be mailed, or dropped in The Examiner letter-box, addressed to "The Editor, The Examiner."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

I am in favor of a public meeting at which citizens can discuss ways in which to keep the street railway running, to reduce the gas prices, to reduce power prices, and to assure the city of a supply of power that will keep pace with industrial development.

CANADA'S ARMY TO COST MORE

Increases in Estimates for All Branches of Canada's Forces.

MORE FOR MILITIA

OTTAWA, March 11 (Canadian Press).—For the first time since the war the parliament of Canada is asked to increase its expenditures for National Defence. The estimates for the fiscal year, 1927-28, total $15,900,000, which is an increase of more than $3,000,000 over last year.

The amount to be spent on Canada's permanent force remains unchanged, but the militia services, the Cadet services, the Naval Service and the Royal Canadian Air Force will all receive more money this year if the estimates pass parliament. The Air Force, which has only come into existence since the war, has for several years been consolidating its position by active work with civil government departments. It has been utilized for extensive forest fire protection work, for surveying and photography, and for the detection of smuggling along the coasts. The Royal Canadian Air Force has also complete control over the testing and licensing of civilian pilots and other matters relating to civilian flying. With the natural increase in flying activities the Air Force work has grown until this year it will require $3,800,000 to carry on its programme instead of $1,800,000 voted last year.

The 1928 programme of the Air Force calls for a nation-wide survey of possible municipal airdromes and the construction of two new flights of strictly military planes. In the past the Force has had to select planes with a view to civilian work but the present plans are for one flight of army co-operation planes and one flight of fast single seater scout planes.

The Royal Canadian Navy since the war has been maintained only as a skeleton force. There have been two destroyers and some mine sweepers kept in active service and the remainder of the million and a half dollars devoted to this branch has been spent on the training of naval reservists in various Canadian cities. This year the navy gets $1,725,000, which is an increase of $225,000.

For the training of cadets in the schools of Canada an extra $100,000 is set aside in the 1927-28 estimates, making the total amount for this purpose $500,000. The cadet services are invariably the subject of sharp debate in the House of Commons where the Progressives, farmer group, never fail to express their opposition to military preparations as a whole and to the training of boys in particular. Miss Agnes MacPhail, the only woman member of the Commons, is usually one of the most outspoken in the Progressive attack on the Defence department estimates. Usually 110,000 to 115,000 cadets receive a few days' training in Canada each year.

The non-permanent militia also receives an increase in the estimates for the coming fiscal year. Since the war about a million and a half dollars have been spent annually for military training but this year over $2,000,000 is to be voted for these part-time military units. The paper strength of the militia is about 125,000, though the number trained annually is far below that number. Many of the historic regiments are maintained partly through the private contribution of their officers.

Canada's permanent Force of hardly 4,000 of all ranks will remain unchanged, at a cost of $4,800,000 during 1927-28. This force includes 340 officers, who are highly trained and capable of undertaking commands in several branches of military work. The permanent Force in Canada is regarded by the Defence headquarters as a highly specialized body maintained chiefly for training purposes.

KING DISAPPROVES OF BOBBED TRESSES

Younger Royal Ladies in England Conform to His Wishes.

LONDON, March 12.—(Canadian Press Despatch).—Many observers may have wondered, at a time when the younger royal ladies of so many countries, such as Spain and Rumania, have bobbed or shingled hair, that no English princesses have fallen to the fashion. The reason according to the Manchester Guardian is the King's strong prejudice against short hair for women. While the Queen merely thinks the fashion ugly and recognises its practical advantage, the King's feelings are so strong on the matter that he refuses to sanction any of the ladies attached to the Court appearing with shorn locks.

No exceptions are made from the rule. The other day a certain notable lady, on her appointment as lady-in-waiting to the Queen thought to smarten herself up for her royal duties by having her hair shingled. As soon as she appeared at Court, however, it was intimated to her that she must at once let her hair grow, and while that was happening employ some art of the hairdresser to hide the fact of her unwisdom. Other ladies of the Court have had to wear "switches" to provide the necessary length of hair.

Although, of course, there is no official ruling in the matter, it is noticeable that most of both Princess Mary's and the Duchess of York's intimate friends wear their hair long in deference to the King's wishes. In these days when dresses are so much alike, and princesses or working girls all wear simple garments long hair instead of magnificence of attire is one of the few distinctive signs of being at Court.

SAINT and SINNER

Announcing that she had come to "stay a while"—an assurance which Faith received with mixed emotions—Aunt Hattie Lane arrived with Joy on Thursday afternoon in time to cook supper for the family. That service, at least, was thoroughly appreciated by the worn-out girl.

"Come along to supper now, Jim Lane!" Aunt Hattie commanded briskly, as she appeared in the dining room with a heaped platter of fried chicken. "I wrung the neck of one of my winter fryers and it's fried just the way you like it. Now don't turn down the corners of your mouth at me, Jim Lane!" she ordered sharply, as Jim shuffled gloomily into the room from the living room. "There's a time for everything, and supper time when they's fried chicken ain't one of the times I'd set asidefor mourning for a wife that's happier where she is—clean away from all the trouble that this poor family has let itself in for. Jony, can't I ever teach you how to set a table? Dumping all the silver on one side of the plate! And or heaven's sake, comb that stringy hair of yours. when I get around to it, I've got to give you a haircut. Look like a shaggy Irish terrier, you do. Come along, Faith. I guess there's plenty of this chicken for your young man, too."

"Sounds like home," Faith smiled at Bob, as they rose from the couch in the living room and obeyed Aunt Hattie's instructions to "draw up a chair and set."

"it's mighty sweet of you to go to all this trouble for us, Aunt Hattie," she told her acid-mouthed, kind-hearted aunt when the sadly reduced family was seated around the table. "Hot biscuits; chicken gravy, green peas, mashed potatoes and celery and apple salad. it's a feast, Aunt Hattie. And I do believe I'm hungry. Junior, you must eat, dear. It makes me feel dreadful to see you looking so pale and haggard."

"I—i was just thinking that Aunt Hattie had fixed up Mother's favorite dinner, and—and—"

"Now, you dry up, Junior!" Aunt Hattie commanded sharply. "Eat your grub! Them as is living has got to eat to live, and all the starving and mourning ain't going to bring back the dead. i'm going to fix up a basket of this supper and send you over to the—to the jail with it for Cherry, soon's you've finished. Now eat hearty, boy," she ended more softly.

They were all "eating hearty," their appetites whipped up as much by Aunt Hattie's sharp tongue as by the appetizing odors and appearance of the food, when the phone bell rang.

"it's for you, Bob," Faith called from the hallway. "it's Churchill. Hurry, dear."

She stood beside him as he answered. "Yeah—yeah. Of course, Churchill. I don't care how risky it seems. Yes, I have a key, fortunately. Uncle Ralph used to use me as a sort of messenger boy when he wanted things out of his office at night. If it's there I get it."

"What is it, Bob?" Faith whispered, her eyes shining with hope for the first time in days.

"Churchill has been to see Cherry, Bob told her in a low voice. "He asked her if she remembered any thing in his correspondence that would indicate an enemy—threats or anything like that. She did, thank God, and I'm going over to ransack the letter files. Unfortunately she doesn't remember the name of the writer of a threatening letter, but Churchill repeated as much of its contents to me as he could remember. Her only recollection is that the chap's name began with a C— and of course she may be wrong about that. Uncle Ralph's filing system is the decimated kind, so it may take me a long time to go through the Cs, but i'll get in touch with you as soon as possible."

"Won't the district attorney have taken possession of Mr. Cluny's papers?" Faith asked, still whispering, so that Aunt Hattie's sharp ears would not pick up any of the conversation.

"He's so sure he has the right party under arrest that he's bothering very little about the usual routine, it seems," Bob answered. "i believe Banning has left the files in the custody of Neff, Uncle Ralph's partner, until he gets around to examining them. It's early, so that my arrival in the building will not be particularly commented on. I'll get off at the fifth floor, where an architect I know has an office. The elevator man will think i'm calling on my friend, as i frequently do. Then i'll walk up to the seventh floor where Uncle Ralph's offices are, and take care that no one is in them before I let myself in. As I told Churchill, I have a passkey to Uncle Ralph's offices. He had it made for me more than a year ago. I used to play chess with him at night, and sometimes he'd send me over to the office to get paper he needed. If they haven't changed locks I can get in all right. I hope Neff's gone home to dinner and that none of the clerks is working late tonight. But I'm off now, dear. Don't worry. If they catch me at it—which they won't—they can't really do anything to me."

"Finish your supper first, dear," Faith urged him. "Aunt Hattie will be hurt if you don't eat three pieces of chicken, at least. And you do need food," she added, her anxious eyes on his worry-ravaged young face.

"It was a few minutes after six when Bob Hathaway left the house, on his burglarizing mission. During the two hours that Faith waited for word from him she was grateful for Aunt Hattie's unceasing flow of conversation, even for that indomitable spinster's furious arguments with Joy over the haircut she was giving the child.

"You're cutting it too short!" Joy wailed, her grief for her mother submerged in this new tragedy. "I'll look like a funny paper kid. I did hold still, too! Ouch, you cut my ear!"

"If you don't quit making all that rumpus over nothing, I'll tan your hide!" Jim Lane looked up from his paper to scowl at his youngest daughter over the top of his glasses.

Faith smiled behind the book she was trying to read. She was glad that her father was asserting himself at last. For years Martha Lane's word had been law in the Myrtle Street house. Now Jim was feeling his authority for the first time in years. "It'll be good for him, make him forget his troubles, if he bawls us all out," Faith told herself.

It was just after nine when three short honks of an automobile horn sent Faith flying out of the house.

"I wanted to see you out here, away from the family," Bob told her as she climbed into the car and took her seat beside him. "I think I found it—the letter, I mean. Of course Cherry didn't remember the name, it is signed with an initial only—and that initial is not C, but B. I had the devil of a time locating it. If it had happened to be a T or an S—good Lord! But fortunately B is the second letter of the alphabet. At that, I had to wade through all the Cs first, then start over again with the As. And it takes a whole drawer to hold the first four letters of the alphabet. I never realized Uncle Ralph had such an extensive correspondence file."

"Good heavens!" Faith laughed. "Are you going to talk all night? Let me see it, Bob."

"I took the original straight to Churchill. Bad business to monkey around with evidence, or what may be evidence, if we're lucky. But I typed a copy of it myself. Here—you can read it under the dashboard light. I can't make much of it, but it's evidently the letter Cherry remembered. Too bad she didn't have enough curiosity about it to talk it over with Uncle Ralph."

He unfolded a sheet of plain white paper and without further comment handed it to Faith to read.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

For Sunday, March 13, 1927.

Except in the early hours this is not a fortunate day, according to astrology. The evening has a kindly direction of the stars.

Under this sway correspondence should be fairly well directed but love letters should be avoided.

The aged may feel depressed while this rule prevails and for that reason they should be subject to special attention from younger folk.

Agriculturists may be discouraged by severe storms, but they are to profit later in the year.

Nerve-strain may be exceedingly prevalent at this time and for this reason patience should be shown toward irritable persons.

Both men and women are warned against the dangers of sleep starvation, which is common in all cities where persons burn the candle at both ends.

Churches should benefit, because the sway of the stars is supposed to give a religious trend to thought and to incline men and women to think of their souls more than their bodies.

All the signs appear most favorable for intellectual pursuits and all the arts should benefit.

Musicians are now subject to a sway making for success through increased demand for their services. Americans are to gain wide fame in 1927.

April is to be a month of general stimulation to business and large profits to persons in the learned professions, it is foretold.

Changes in journalistic methods are prognosticated, owing to improved facilities in gathering news and higher standards of editorial policy.

Bizarre fashions which will be worn by men as well as women next summer indicate important changes in life as well as clothing, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of success, through new methods of business or changed associations.

Children born on this day are likely to prosper all through their careers. They will succeed best through big business concerns.

For Monday, March 14, 1927.

Benefic aspects dominate to-day, according to astrology. Adverse influences, however, are strong.

This is a rule under which conservative enterprises should benefit and whatever is connected with the past should be fortunate.

Farmers and gardeners should benefit from this position of the stars, which makes for substantial profits.

Workers in all the trades have the prognostication of great demands for their services and generally high wages.

Engineers and contractors should make the most of to-day's opportunities which promise much.

Army officers should benefit from this direction of the stars, which makes for fame and unusual experiences.

Building of homes will receive a great impetus this month when there is to be unprecedented activity in real estate.

Many suits for libel and slander appear to be indicated, for the stars are read as presaging great daring on the part of editors and publishers.

New authors are to rise to fame and they are to gain recognition through poetic and romantic work, the seers foretell.

Taxation will continue to be heavy, despite efforts to relieve the burden, astrologers prophesy. Increase instead of decrease of rates may be expected, owing to world cataclysms.

The British government comes under a planetary rule that bodes ill for the sustaining of its traditions.

The great empire on which the sun never sets is to suffer astonishing changes and royalty will face strange problems.

Persons whose birthdate it is have a year in which they may make moderate gains in property and general prosperity.

Children born on this day probably will be trustworthy and high-minded. Many of those subject to this rule incline toward the religious life.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This suit costume consists of beige crepe jumper frock and three-quarter length coat of the material embroidered in tones of brown and beige.

Suit costume is a coupling of words much heard this season. There is no very great difference between the dress so designated and the ensemble of a season or so ago. There is a coat or jacket and a frock—which may be all in one piece or of skirt and jumper combination. There is a wide variety in the coats—which are in some cases as long as the frock but more often of three-quarter or seven-eighths length. Occasionally they are even longer.

Very smart are the three-piece tailored costumes that consist of mannish skirt and short jacket with a top coat to match. There are printed silk frocks with three-quarter plain material coats. One- or two-piece frocks have sleeveless jackets or coats. Embroidered crepe silk coats are made to wear with one or two-piece plain crepe frocks.

All these ready assembled costumes are desirable acquisitions to the wardrobe at this time—whether for the woman who can buy but one daytime costume for spring or the women who has many. An effect of smart continuity is derived from one of these costumes that cannot be secured from the separately chosen frock and coat. And for the busy woman who has only a limited amount of time to spend in the selection of her clothes there is comfort to be gained in a costume ready assembled.

One of the shops has been selling three-piece tailored suits with the long top coat to match—the three pieces costing less than a hundred dollars. The suit worn with the top coat makes a trim costume for cooler spring days and for travel or motor wear throughout the spring and summer. The skirt and jacket with a jumper or blouse beneath are appropriate for warmer spring days and the lightweight long coat made on severely tailored lines may be worn whenever a serviceable, straight-line coat is needed.

If you would be free from sorrow and care,
Get out on a cycle in God's fresh air,
Out in the country, there you will find,
Troubles will flee, where the highways wind,
With nature around as along you spin,
The hills and the woods bring peace within,
Your heart and your mind will fill with sheer joy,
Out where no meaner cares employ,
The country will charm all your worries away,
Joy, hope, and peace will replace dismay,
So when you are feeling with sorrow weighed down,
Get out in God's country, away from the town.

THE SWISS FAMILY ROBINSON

Just Before the Battle

That beauty and brains may be found in the one person is demonstrated by Miss Marguerite Steen. Although just past her teens, she already has won recognition as one of England's most promising young writers.

Tommy Walker, son of George Young's former swimming instructor, "Johnny" Walker, and amateur swimming champion of Canada, signing a contract to enter a professional swim against George Young. He will be under his father's training and Townsend Paull's management. From LEFT to RIGHT, the persons are Bill Hastings, Townsend Paull, Johnny Walker, Tommy Walker and Herbert Lundegren.

Vice-Admiral Sir Michael H. Hodges, who is now second in command of the British fleet in the Mediterranean.

Judge Jean Norris, New York's first woman magistrate, who presides in the Women's Court and the Domestic Relations Court of that city. She was a recent visitor to Toronto.

A Paris divorce has just written "finis" to the romance of Charles Douglas Woodhouse and his bride, the former Dorrit Stevens. Although Woodhouse's father, Lorenzo, shown ABOVE, had himself married out of his social class as a youth, he strongly opposed his son's wedding with the daughter of a soap salesman. After long litigation, Miss Stevens, also shown above, was awarded $125,000 heart balm by the Supreme Court of Vermont.

Although only nineteen years old, Mrs. Ranald has already "won her wings." She has astonished aviation experts at Brooklands by her skill. She is the youngest person in England holding a flying certificate and she is also believed to be the youngest aviatrix in the world.

Geo. W. Cross of Toronto, elected president of the Canadian Piano Tuners' Association.

Admiral Sir Roger Keyes, who, it is reported, will succeed Earl Beatty who is retiring from the post of first lord of the admiralty.

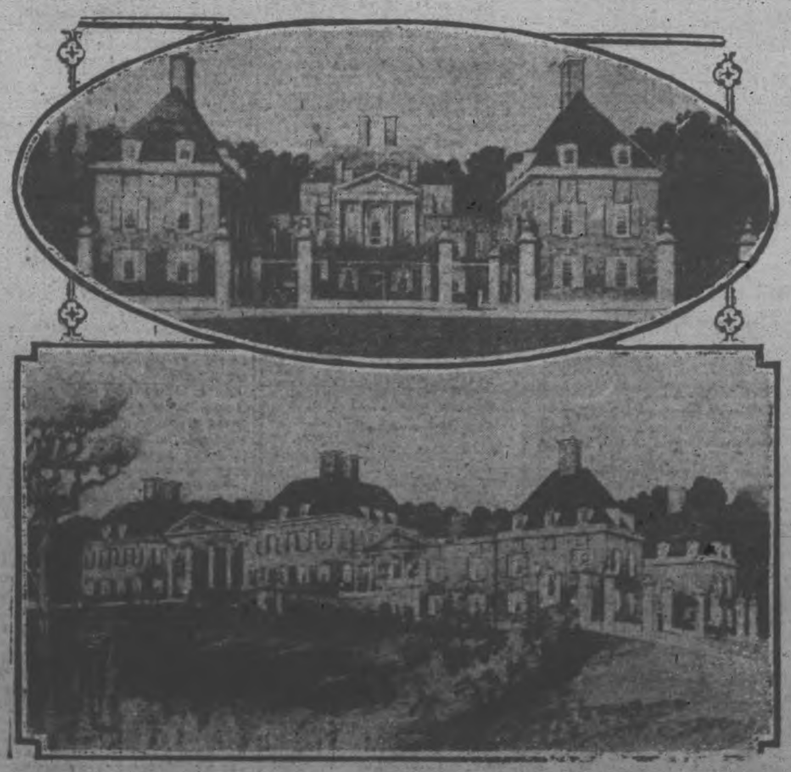
The celebrated Windsor Choir, now touring in Canada, is accompanied by the Dean of Windsor, the Very Reverend Albert V. Baillie. It is just four years ago since the Dean made a previous tour on this continent, when he became very popular wherever he visited.

The latest picture of Britain's former Labor Premier, Ramsay MacDonald, leaving Westminster Abbey, London, after the memorial service for the late Japanese Emperor.

Angelo M. Ellison, former elevator boy in New York, sued Arthur T. Walker, a former Ontario school teacher, for the entire fortune left him by Edward F. Searles, an eccentric millionaire. Walker was Searles' secretary and Ellison was a sort of adopted son, but was cut off with $10,000 in the will. Walker inherited something more than $15,000,000. Ellison is shown to the LEFT, and Walker to the RIGHT. The will was upheld.

Considerable regret has been expressed in canine sporting circles over the fact that Trumps, the "ski" terrier, has seen fit to forfeit his amateur standing and his Olympic chances in order to enter the professional field via the movie route. The wire-haired star is now engaged in making a series of films in which his exploits as a ski artist are featured.

An old picture that is interesting. Back in 1897 King George and Queen Mary, long before they became King and Queen, attended a ball at Devonshire House. The picture shows them as they were dressed for that occasion.



Britain, as well as Canada, is resolved to make its presence in Washington felt more fully in future. Plans are now complete for a new British Embassy in the United States capital.

In the above illustration, the upper picture shows an artist's drawing of the side view of the new building, while the lower one illustrates the facade. The entire structure will be unmistakably in the English tradition. It will be of red brick with white stone trimmings, and will be surrounded by gardens, with tennis courts and similar amusement facilities, while in front a tall iron fence will be broken by four gates, leading into and out of the Chancellery and the Embassy along separate paths.

Preparations are being made in secret at Washington, D.C., for a non-stop flight this spring from New York to Paris under the command of Lieut.-Commander Noel Davis, ABOVE, of the United States naval reserves. The Davis hop-off will take place in April or May and the proposed route is from New York to Newfoundland, across the Atlantic to Ireland and down to Paris.

"My soul revolts when I have to paint a cropped head," was the confession recently made by Sir William Orpen, president of the International Society of Sculptors and Artists. The noted British portraitist predicted that the fashion would not last much longer and that it could never inspire a type of art comparable to that of ancient Greece. There is, however, no connection between Orpen's antipathy to boyish bobs and the fact that he is seen ABOVE painting David Lloyd George with his famous leonine mane of hair.

W. R. Breyfogle.

"Through circumstances which seemed unavoidable, the annual meeting has had to be postponed from the regular time in January until now," declared Mr. Breyfogle. The various departments of the work have moved along in the usual way and as will be explained by the heads of the various departments in detail. "I have felt that heretofore I have invaded the precincts of the several committees in the annual statement offered, and this year have decided, in order to avoid repetition and lend emphasis to the importance of the several divisions of the Association work, to urge particular attention to the several reports which are to follow.

"The statement may be generally made, however, that the efficiency of the Association has not abated in any way, that the confidence of the citizens of Peterborough has been repeatedly shown through their continued support of the Association, from the City Council right down to the youngsters, who, on several occasions, have given little entertainments and devoted the proceeds to the furtherance of the work. A good many incidents of this sort could be narrated. To the ladies of the Executive who have been foremost in the practical application of the Association's activities, to the officers and heads of committees, and to all organizations that have in any way shown their interest in the alleviation of suffering and in the betterment of lives of children through Association auspices, this organization expresses its sincere appreciation."

Nurses' Report.

There were 1,370 visits made during the year, covering obstetrical, medical, minor surgery and tuberculous; we had very few chronic patients, six tuberculous and three cancerous, this lowering the total number of visits from that of the previous year. Tuberculous patients were visited regularly, given necessary attention and instructions as to proper precautions that should be taken and encouraged to follow these, not only for their own benefit but also with due consideration towards family and friends. All chronic patients receive visits as often as conditions require, one patient suffering from cancer was visited daily for six months. Medical and surgical patients are visited daily or as the attending physician requests and treatment administered according to his instructions; these vary according to illness of patient.

Obstetrical patients receive a daily visit from ten to fourteen days after confinement, these visits include care of infant as well as mother. Expectant mothers receive one or two pre-natal visits with instructions regarding necessary preparation for confinement with particular attention given to the necessity of cleanliness. In some of the homes conditions are such that considerable difficulty is encountered by the nurse in observing the standard of obstetrical care, though most mothers are anxious to have the necessities we often find that their financial means does not permit them to do so. These are reported and aid furnished by the Health Association, but it is often not only the mother and newborn who suffer, but other small children of the family; here particularly we have great need for social workers.

Two hundred and twenty-six dollars and fifty cents has been handed into the Health Association this being fees collected from patients who were able to pay.

—Margaret O'Laughlin.

Nurses' Supervision Committee.

The Nurses' Supervision Committee has a membership of twelve, consisting of Mesdames Hall, Aylmer, Gardiner, Coulthard, Cameron; Turner, Graham, Vanston, McNulty, Hill, Misses Archer and Merrell.

Meetings are held the first Monday of every month to receive Miss O'Laughlin's report of her months work. The bills for the month are gone over and milk and egg patients discussed.

We gave milk and eggs to forty (40) families, and during the year we gave out five thousand, six hundred and ninety-four (5,694) quarts of milk and two hundred and forty-one and a half (241½) dozen eggs.

During the winter, Mrs. Hall bought material for dresses, which she gave out to the members of the Committee to make up to have ready for the opening of the Camp in June. We had to buy five dozen new bathing suits and some sweaters for the Camp, so, during the winter, the Committee held a calendar bridge to raise funds, and made ninety-five dollars and eighty cents (95.80).

The members each help in looking after the Camp at Jackson's Park for a week, doing the buying and generally supervising the work.

We visited all the children during the winter months, and in cases where it was needed supplied clothing and food. This year we found most of the families in fairly comfortable circumstances. All the patients receiving milk and eggs are also visited throughout the year.

MARGUERITE MERRELL,
Sec., Nurses' Supervision Committee.

Summer Camp.

The following is my report of the Summer Camp at Jackson Park.

Camp opened this last summer on June 29th, and closed August 28th, during which period the camp was only closed four days on account of rain. It was the consensus of opinion that we had a very successful summer, during which time one hundred and forty (140) children had a very pleasant and beneficial outing, with a daily average of fifty-three (53).

The doctors who very generously gave their services for examining the children were Drs. Waite, Ray Scott, McCullough, Loudon, O'Rielly, Morgan, W. D. Scott, and Howson, and the Committee are very grateful to these doctors for the interest taken in the children and extend to them and Doctors Cragg and Buchanan (who operated on seven children for diseased tonsils) our most grateful thanks.

Our nurse (Mrs. Law) is to be commended on the splendid work done. She performed her duties in a very amicable manner and the children were all very fond of her.

Mrs. Smith again proved her ability to handle the cooking end of the camp very efficiently, and much praise is due her for doing her work faithfully and cheerfully.

The kindergarten teachers of the city gave freely of their time this summer, and Miss Gillespie, as convenor, arranged that a teacher was on hand each week for a couple of hours in the afternoon. They taught the children singing, sewing, to play games, and read to them. This was a great help to the camp and was a fresh interest to the children. It left the nurse free for a couple of hours to be with the doctor examining the children, as well as being very beneficial to the children, and we are very grateful to the following teachers for giving their time and taking such an interest in the children: Miss Richardson, Miss Gillespie, Miss Wagner, Miss Violet Buckham, Miss Anderson and Miss Elliott.

We wish also to thank our good friend, Mr. Rose, for his never-tiring efforts to make the camp comfortable for the children.

As usual, numerous treats of ice-cream, candy, fruit, etc., were given to the children, as well as forty-two dollars and five cents (42.05) in cash given to us for treats, all of which have been acknowledged through the press.

The general management of the Camp was carried out practically the same as last year, having a Camp Committee of four ladies to carry on for the summer, the committee being composed of Mrs. Coulthart, Mrs. Gardiner, Mrs. Hall and M. Merrell, thus easing the burden of the Camp duties so that no individual had a great deal to do.

The ladies in charge of the various weeks were Mesdames Hall, Vanston, Coulthart, Aylmer, Cressman, Gardiner and M. Merrell, and they were all agreed that the camp ran along very smoothly and were pleased with everything in general.

—Marguerite Merrell.

Treasurer's Report.

In submitting the Treasurer's report for your Association for the year ending December 31st, 1926, there is little to be added to what is disclosed in detail in the statements attached.

Your receipts last year were $1,558.62, your disbursements on general account or for what might be called normal activities, were $2,252.99; for operation of the Jackson Park Camp, $1,186.34; expenditure on capital assets, $577.36.

If it is the intention of your Association to carry on in 1927 as in 1926 there will be an estimated expenditure of $3,439.33, of which $880.61 was available in the bank on December 31st last. To bring this information somewhat more up to date, we refer to the bank balance of to-day, which is $683.77. In other words, with estimated receipts the same as last year and with the balance on hand, you will have just about enough funds to take care of everything without having anything for the Camp.

E. J. H. VANSTON,
Treasurer.

Wheat Price Takes Drop With Favorable Weather

CHICAGO, March 12. — Canadian Press. — With weather conditions favoring the domestic crop and with talk of heavy world shipments, wheat to-day tended to sag in the early dealings. The demand however improved on the down turns, starting at 1-2c off to 1-8c up, wheat later showed moderate setback all around.

Corn and oats developed firmness with provision easy, corn opened unchanged to 1-4c higher and then scoring slight general gains.

Chicago opening: Wheat May 138 5-8; July 132¼; corn, May 76 5-8; July 81; oats May 45 1-2; July 45 7-8.

Rails Remain Centre Of Speculative Attention

NEW YORK, March 12 (Canadian Press).—The usual week-end shifting of the speculative accounts imparted irregularity to the price movement in today's stock market, but the main tendency appeared to be upward.

Rails were again the centre of speculative attention. While some of the recent leaders, such as Atchison, Norfolk and Western and Gulf, Mobile and Northern fell back on realizing a number of others, such as Norfolk and Southern, Union Pacific and Lackawana, continued their march to higher ground. The usual merger rumors were again in circulation.

Disappointing trade developments tended to dampen speculative enthusiasm for the oils and motors, although leaders in these groups received fairly good support. Public utilities responded to publication of excellent curren earnings statements and rubbers again swung upward in anticipation of higher prices.

Nearly a score of issues reached a new high ground, including Westinghouse Air Brake, May Department Stores and Sterling Products. Closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 1,000,000 shares.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Life Saving Scouts.

The First Peterborough Troop of Life Saving Scouts held its weekly parade in the Temple Scout Hall on Friday. The scout-master and the first assistant being in charge, opening up with a series of games after which the Scoutmaster out-lined the programme for the spring term. The main feature being a scout display to be held in the near future, consisting of bridge-building, knot craft, pyramid building, first aid, magic stunts, club swinging, fire lighting, camp scene and various other Scout craft, proceeds towards our camp fund. It has been decided to hold two camps this year, one with the 1st Cobourg and the other to our own camp grounds. The troops owns its own equipment, with a good sized trek cart made by the troop.

At present, we have only 42 members against 110 last spring but things are shaping good. Thirty six of the present number are entitled to their 3 years service stars and a number of other distinctions which will be presented at a later date.

After the programme had been outlined, the patrols scattered to their dens for weekly instructions. The Patrol leaders in charge prior to the closing exercises, the weekly yarn was spun by the S.M., being on the Russian postage stamp dealing with the scouts duty and the good turn. Several of the scouts are making this a definite law. To the public it is desired that you should co-operate and have one Life Saver in your neighborhood. Do something in the way of a good turn—Our Motto, is to Save and To Serve.

Scout Master A. Barton,
1st P. L. S. S.

4TH PETERBORO TROOP.

The Boy Scout motto is "Be Prepared," and the members of the 4th are certainly living up to it as they are making plans for this summer's camp already. At present it is expected that most of the troop will be able to go, and all of the Scouts want to.

As a means of getting enough money to pay for the camp each Scout was given a bank book and whenever he has a nickel or a dime to spare he gives it to the treasurer who adds it to the scout's account and marks it in the bank book This makes it much easier to get the money and is also good practice in the 9th scout law: "A scout is thrifty."

The 4th advanced a little more in the Morse signals last Thursday. The practice is done on a buzzer, a wire being stretched from one end of the troop room to the other. As soon as the warmer weather comes the scouts are going to do some real signalling outside with both the semaphore and Morse codes, and with flags instead of the hands and the buzzers that are now being used.

The meeting last Thursday night was even better than usual, one reason for this being that there was almost perfect attendance, only one scout being absent.

The Scoutmaster believes in the old saying "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," so a number of lively games are played every night. Another regular feature of the meetings is the instruction work in the Patrol Corners. This is under the Patrol leaders who advance the scouts in their patrols in test passing and proficiency badge work.

Once a month a night is decided on on for stunt night. Each scout in turn has to entertain the troop with something: music, story, tricks, jokes, etc. This is held at the council fire, or sing song, and is very good practice in the entertainer's badge.

Mr. Corbett, the scoutmaster, told the first part of a story, which he is telling in installments, at the council fire also. This concerns a beaver family. The leader is the hero and proves that animals really do think.

After songs had been sung the meeting closed in the usual way, with the singing of the National Anthem and the lowering of the flag.

FLOOD DAMAGE HIGH IN CAHORS

Many Buildings Collapse as Flood Waters Recede.

SEVERAL DROWNED.

PARIS, March 12 (Canadian Press).—Although some of the overflowing rivers had subsided today, the flood situation in Southwestern France continued grave. The Garonne River was still rising slowly, adding to the destruction, with inhabitants of the villages along its banks being compelled to camp in the upper parts of their homes or abandon them altogether.

Along the river lot the population was greatly relieved when the waters egan to recede. Only as the waters disappeared were they able to get a idea of the real damage. The ancient City of Cahors was in a pitiable condition. Many of the buildings in the lower quarter were unmined and had collapsed. Several persons yesterday were drowned while on errands of mercy.

WOMEN AS PLEADERS.

EDMONTON, Alta., March 12 (Canadian Press).—The private secretary of many Cabinet ministers in a series of articles on politics and those who deal in them says: "When the job or favor seekers fail on their own account they often get their women folks to plead for them. I have often thought that a book could be written about the part women play in politics; but as a normally prudent person, I have no thought of writing it. The one thing which won my admiration during that long period of 40 years as a private secretary was the supreme patience of my ministers with these callers who not only wasted valuable time but made life a sore trial at times."

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

Truth versus Error.

"The pleasure of the Lord, shall prosper in his (Jesus) hands. Isa. 53.10.

"My covenant (Jehovah God's covenant) shall stand, and I will do all my pleasure." Isa. 46.10.

"He (Jesus) shall see of the travail of his soul and be satisfied." Isa. 53.10.

"Who will have all men to be saved and come to a knowledge of the truth. 1 Tim. 2.4.

"Blessed are they that mourn for they shall be conforted." Matt 5.4.

The above Scriptural statements are definite and unconditional; and are comforting to the humble honest soul.

Those who adhere tenaciously to old time erroneous ideas, may be so bigoted, as to refuse to read plain Scriptural statements.

It is not hard to understand that the pleasure of the Lord is the will of God.

In the 10th verse of the 46th chapter of Isaiah it is stated plainly, how much of their pleasure or will shall be done.

God's will or pleasure is to have all men to be saved and come to a knowledge of the truth. 1 Tim. 2.4.

God's will or pleasure will be done. Isa. 46.10.

From what will all men be saved? Answer—

From the penalty of sin, which is death. Note the words in 1 Tim 2.4.—Saved first from death, and then after the resurrection, coming to a knowledge of the truth.

This common or general salvation gives to very man a knowledge of God and an opportunity of obtaining eternal life.

There is a special salvation that pertains only to the little flock the elect, the real church. 1 Tim 2.5.

It is folly to be confused, by confounding the common salvation with the special salvation.

The world's judgement or trial day, which takes place after the resurrection, will not be so difficult a test, as that of the real church whose judgement is in this life.

All who mourn (irrespective of the cause) shall be conforted. This statement shows up the absurdity of the God defaming doctrine of endless torments.

It is said of Jesus, that he would see of the travail of his soul, and be satisfied. He could not be satisfied to see billions of Adam's posterity suffering and mourning in endless torments. Those who hold to the erroneous idea, that only a few, a little flock, are benefited by the work of the Lord Jesus, must come to the conclusion that the Gospel is a failure.—M. T. Butcher.

There never has been and in all likelihood never will be again such an impressive sport spectacle as that of the night of September 23, 1926, in Philadelphia.

On that evening 128,000 beings assembled on the outskirts of the quiet Pennsylvania city to watch two men stage a boxing match.

Important though it was from a sports standpoint, involving as it did a world heavyweight championship, the contest was dwarfed by the magnitude of its audience.

For years to come, they will be talking about that night, and writing about it, and about the genius and wizardry of George L. "Tex" Rickard, the promoter whose vision made it possible.

Yet to George L. Rickard, that night stands out as a funeral occasion. A great fistic triumph, to be sure, but one cannot live on glory. One must have cash.

In George L. Rickard's heart, that fight has left an ache that will last as long as he lives. He will remember it always as the night when he "out-smarted" himself.

It is the skeleton in Rickard's attic, the one feature of the big event he has never discussed for publication. It's his $500,000 heartache, and that's a big ache in any language but francs and marks.

Perhaps he had gone through another argument with the board of directors, or perhaps he was just depressed, but he sat back in a back room under the Garden the other night and talked for the first time.

With deep melancholy, he went step by step through the most costly series of mistakes a promoter has ever made. It was the confession of Tex Rickard, the super-gambler, that he had weakened on his biggest pot. He hedged on the best hand he had ever been dealt.

Through it all ran this regretful refrain:

"They told me Philadelphia was a $3 town, but I misjudged the bigness of America."

He believes he overpaid Jack Dempsey.

He KNOWS he overpaid Gene Tunney.

And he can prove that he paid $80,000 too much for Sesqui Centennial stadium.

Summed up, the money he would have saved had he been willing to gamble with guarantees instead of hedging with percentages would have amounted to $500,000.

"We live and we learn," he began, sadly. "I learned that the attraction is the big thing. The location is of secondary importance.

"I guess I became panic-stricken when I found I would have to move the Dempsey-Tunney match from New York to Philadelphia. All my life, men who should have known had told me that Philadelphia was a $3 town. By that, they meant that the boxing fans of that city had been accustomed to a maximum price of $3, and that they would not pay more.

"So I went to Philadelphia with a heavy heart, and great misgivings. I had mapped out the seating arrangements at the Yankee stadium when I had hopes of staging the fight in New York, and I had scaled it to gross $1,077,000. So I arranged the seating accommodation at the Sesqui-Centennial stadium to gross the same sum.

"I had arranged for only 7,000 seats at $27.50 because I thought it would be hopeless to figure on more than that number in a $3 town."

Rickard sighed a mournful sound right from the heart. "They offered to rent me the stadium for a flat guarantee of $100,000," he said. "I figured the fight might not draw more than $600,000, and I might save myself $10,000 by a percentage so I insisted on giving them 10 per cent of the gross. When I paid off, I had to give them $180,000—an $80,000 mistake.

"Then there was Dempsey. I know he felt as dubious as I did. If I had agreed to guarantee him $450,000 when we were forced to move to Philadelphia, he would have snapped at it, I am sure. But I stuck to the percentage, and I paid him off at over $770,000—a $320,000 mistake.

"I never dreamed that Tunney would get more than $100,000, if that much. When I got through, I looked at his contract and gasped. I had to settle with him for $204,000—a $104,000 mistake.

"I think Tunney will agree with me that he got the largest purse ever paid to a challenger. I know that I overpaid him. He would have been glad to fight for $100,000, or quite a bit less.

"The thing ran away from me. It became a gigantic success before I realized what had happened. My block of 7,000 ringside seats were sold so fast that I increased the $27.50 section to 20,000 seats in the first few days.

"Had I gambled, I would have come out with eleven-eighteenths of the proceeds; as it was I paid out that much.

"But if I could ever figure out who it was that sold me the idea that Philadelphia was a $3 town, I'd enter him in my elimination tournament and fight him myself. That's a half-million dollar headache to me, and I'd like to get even."

George L. Rickard, the gamblingest gambler that ever hit Broadway, confesses he lost his nerve in the biggest pot he ever made, or ever will make. The man with the steel backbone admits it reacts to human emotions, even as yours and mine. When he should have made the biggest bluff, he decided to be satisfied with a profit. Jack Dempsey fell heir to the fortune that should have been his.

A great promoter, yes—but he's no Steve Brodie. Steve dived first and thought it out afterward.

ONE STAR MAY AID CLUB WIN FLAG

BY BILLY EVANS

The addition of one star player often transforms a good ball club into a pennant winner.

By the same line of reasoning the addition of two star players should positively guarantee a championship.

Never before in the history of baseball has there been such a wholesale shift of players as during the winter of 1926-27.

Trading of outstanding stars, more or less a rarity in the off season, has been a common happening since the close of the 1926 campaign. A number of clubs in both major leagues hope to profit from these trades.

It has been two years since John McGraw won a pennant for New York in the National League. That is a long time for John to be in the championship background. Pittsburgh turned him back in 1925 while St. Louis, a dark horse, went over last season.

When clubs managed by John McGraw which he regards as pennant possibilities fail to win for him, he begins to change faces. McGraw doesn't believe in sinking each year with the same ship.

This year two of the biggest stars in the National League will try to supply the Giants with some of the punch in the field and the bat that they have lacked for two seasons in an effort to finish in front. They are none other than the great Rogers Hornsby and the brilliant Eddie Roush.

Three years ago McGraw thought Frankie Frisch the greatest ball player in the National League. He apparently has weakened on Frisch, since he went to the Cardinals in the trade for Hornsby. McGraw, who is seldom wrong in his baseball deductions, figures Hornsby will be more valuable than Frisch.

A weakness in the outfield has for several years handicapped the Giants, in an effort to remedy this fault the Giant manager parted with George Kelly to procure the brilliant veteran, Eddie Roush. Ten years ago Roush played a brief engagement with the Giants and was passed on to Cincinnati, where he became one of the greatest outfielders in the game. He comes to the Giants with his best days behind him but he is still a marvelous performer.

Will Rogers Hornsby and Eddie Roush give to the Giants a pennant punch? Manager McGraw thinks so.

To the contrary, Bob O'Farrell, who succeeded Hornsby as manager of the Cardinals, feels that Frisch will be able to fill the bill at second and help the world champs repeat.

Somebody is going to be disappointed on that swap, for there can be only one penant winner.

In the American League, three of the biggest stars in the organization, Cobb, Collins and Speaker, have changed clubs.

Connie Mack feels that Cobb and Collins will add the required initiative, poise and brains to put the Athletics over, while Clark Griffith figures his club is a cinch since Speaker was signed.

More disappointments. Yet there is no denying that the shifting of these stars to other clubs is going to add renewed zest and interest to both major league races.

MANY PEOPLE ASK FOR CONCESSIONS

Chief Advises Motorists To Get New Licenses Right Away.

"I have been inundated with calls recently, especially on Sundays, from people who ask permission to operate their cars on the 1926 markers on the plea that they have forgotten to purchase the new ones" declared Chief Constable Samuel Newhall to The Examiner to-day.

The Chief expressed the opinion that if most people would go to the Chamber of Commerce and obtain their licenses immediately upon arriving in the city they would be rendering themselves a favor, as it is impossible for him to permit infractions of the law in permitting them to use the old markers.

F. G. Stinson, the local issuer, told The Examiner that he was keeping his office open to 1 p.m. on Saturdays in order that people from the country would be facilitated in every way possible.

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thymé, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

Varsity Grads Defeat Eastern Champions 8-2 On Round

VARSITY GRADS IN NEXT ROUND

Beat St. Francois-Nationals 7-1—Trouble at Ottawa.

ROUND TIED, 3 ALL.

TORONTO, March 12.—Varsity Grads were not called upon to expend much physical or mental energy in defeating St. Francois-Nationals, champions of all Quebec, 7 to 1, in the second game of their Allan Cup elimination series at the Arena Gardens last night. As the game in Montreal ended 1 to 1, the Grads won the round, 8 to 2.

With the exception of Tony Baril, former Selkirk player, and Gaudreault, St. Francois players were outclassed by the Senior O.H.A. champions who scored four goals in the first period, two in the second, and the team divided a pair in the third.

The Grads met a leg weary team, St. Francois being able, only in spots, to show their reputed speed. They opened up for five minutes in the third frame and made it very interesting for the blue clad men and in a little over three minutes, Pednault beat Joe Sullivan for their only goal. It was a nice effort on the part of the centre man.

Grads Took It Easy

After the first period, the Grads did not extend themselves, but when they were at their best they played the brilliant hockey that carried them through their O.H.A. group without a defeat and eliminated Kitchener, Hugh Plaxton, Trottier and Hudson ungovering some smart three-man combination attacks that made the Montreal defence appear very weak.

Mixup at Ottawa

OTTAWA, March 12.—The Allan Cup play-down between Varsity Collegians and Ottawa New Edinburghs ended with the winners far from decided after the locals defeated the Toronto squad last night to tie up the home-and-home series. The "Burghs" outplayed their scholastic opponents, to triumph, 2-0 last night, and make the total goals on the round, three all. Varsity having won the first game in Toronto, 3 to 1. The disagreement which threw the winner of the series into abeyance came over the point of whether overtime should have been played last night to decide the verdict.

The amateur hockey rule book, cited by local officers of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, stipulates that 30 minutes of extra play will be contested to break a tie-goal verdict. However at the end of the third period, a telegram was received at the rinkside bearing the name of President Sandercock of the C.A.H.A., ordering that a sudden-death game be played in Kingston to-night between the intercollegians and the Burghs to decide who would meet Varsity Graduates for the Eastern Canada title.

Standing pat on the president's wire the Varsity squad shed their hockey togs and left the auditorium hurriedly for their train. The Burgh management on the other hand stood by the rule book, skated on the ice, and when Referee Billy Bell faced the puck the Burgh's forwards skated unopposed down the ice to bag the rubber for what they claimed a winning goal.

Final decision on the matter will have to be reached by the amateur ruling heads in committee room.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

Walter Johnson, generally considered greatest of all pitchers, boasts a record that fairly teems with extraordinary performances, uncanny pitching feats.

To herald his many successes would occasion no great surprise, for fandom is familiar with the many remarkable pitching feats of perhaps the most popular ball player that ever graced the game.

Therefore, to write of unexpected reverses suffered by Johnson would create far greater interest among the fans. To do this, one must go back to the season of 1914.

In 1912 and 1913 Johnson had been practically unbeatable. He had won 32 and lost 12 in 1912, while the following year he turned in the phenomenal record of 36 wins and only seven defeats.

When the 1914 season rolled around, Johnson was considered so effective by opposing managers that it was regarded as bad judgment to waste a first-string pitcher against the Washington ace.

Figuring the odds all against a victory, rival pilots made it a point to start a promising rookie or second-stringer against Johnson and save their stars.

Walter Johnson managed to win 28 games and lose only 13 in 1914, yet in many respects he suffered any number of unexpected reverses at the hands of some comparatively unknown pitcher.

On 25 occasions in 1914 recruit pitchers or second-stringers faced Johnson. Eleven defeats resulted because the rookies turned in some fine pitching. Johnson says it was the most unusual, but not altogether pleasant, year of his career.

The success of rookie pitchers in beating Johnson on 11 occasions in 1914 kept Johnson from his biggest year, as he suffered only two other defeats.

Here's What They Mean By Minor League Rookie

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 12.—The reader has a fairly good idea of what a major league rookie is, but what do they mean when they refer to a minor league player as a rookie?

In the opinion of major leaguers all minor leaguers are rookies or prospective rookies except the castoffs of the majors who have found a few years of base ball lease in the minors.

An expert on such matters defines a minor league rookie this way:

"A player who has not been at bat at least 100 times in a Class A league, and a rookie pitcher is one who has not worked at least 60 innings in a Class A league."

HOCKEY RESULTS.

The results of hockey games played last night were as follows:

TO CONSTRUCT ARENA

CHICAGO, March 11 (Canadian Press).—Construction of a gigantic sports arena costing $5,000,000 and with a seating capacity of 26,000 will be begun at once, Paddy Harmon, a sports promoter, announced yesterday.

The site, covering two blocks on Chicago's west side, has been purchased and the bond issue underwritten, Harmon said. The floor will be equipped with a freezing plant to permit ice hockey and other winter sports.

MAROONS TO PLAY LEAFS

Will Attempt To Make It Twelve Consecutive Wins From Toronto.

STRENGTHEN BERTH.

MONTREAL, March 12 (Canadian Press). — Montreal Maroons, who have whipped the Toronto Maple Leafs in the National Hockey League for the past two seasons, scoring eleven straight victories, will attempt to make it twelve consecutive wins when they meet the Toronto team at the Forum tonight. A victory would go a long way to aid the Maroons' cause, as it would leave the New York Americans with the heavy task of winning at least five of their remaining six games to oust the present titleholders from third place and play-off rights.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, them Varsity Grads is still staggering along in the Allan Cup serious, or was when this was wrote on Thurs. The x-students seem to be losing prestige as they go along, so if they ever go through they won't have a friend left. The trouble with the Grads is doped out to be a pronounced swelling from the neck up caused by the early season slush in the Toronto papers which named them a wonder team, a super-machine, and all that kind of flapdoddle. The Grads didn't stop to figger that all this applesauce was wrote by the office boys and the cubs left to look after the sporting pages of the Toronto sheets, while the 1st string sporting writers was out every night gathering in the jack as referees. They believed every word of it, and it wasn't until the Petes stepped out on the arena and stopped them cold that the idea penetrated the Varsity camp that this Allan Cup hunt was anything but a joy ride. Ever since then the Grads has looked none too good. A team what can only put the intermediate champs away by 3 on the round and can't get better'n a tie with the Quebec winners, with the Frenchmen playing their 4th game in 4 nights, certainly ain't got no right to be called wonders.

The Grads may win the All-in serious at that, but I can't help feeling that if there is left in the running any fairly good senior team with plenty of fight Mister Smythe's boys may find themselves in the discard.

Peterborough is got to be satisfied this year, Mac, with ⅙th of a championship, the fraction being represented by Mister Shrimp MacDougall with the Owen Sound Greys. In fact, from all reports, Mister Sporting Editor, we could claim more than ⅙th interest in the junior title, cause Mister MacDougall rates as about ⅓ the Owen Sound team. So far as he's concerned an old boys' reunion next winter is what the fans would like to see, for young Mister MacDougall is ready right now to step into senior ranks, and how?

The other night, Mister Sporting Editor, I dropped into the Brock st. ice palace to get a few minutes' glimpse of the St. Peter's-St. John's Hobberlin Cup game, figgering I'll leave after the 1st period and see the basket ballers tangle. But the last bell found me with the old bean stretched over the rail, for the youngsters put up a better battle than we seen in the jr. O.h.a. serious this winter. St. Peter's, with five of the juniors in line, was all out to beat the church leaguers by a goal, and the game was closer than the last 5 mins. before a thunderstorm. 3 or 4 boys was uncovered in this fixture that mighta been a help in the O. h. a. race if they had been located in time, and I for 1 feel that they oughta be a good junior league working here all the time as a feeder for the O.h.a. serious.

By the way, Mac, the game made me feel kinda old when 1 of the players on St. Peter's team was Detective Sergeant Meagher's son. It don't seem very long since the detective himself was out there battling all and sundry as a member of the old T.A.S. and Strathcona teams. And, believe me, when he checked them they stayed checked. The new edition is a battler, too, and looks like a chip of the old block.

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, the only local excitement right now is betting which fireman will be the 1st to break the new profanity bylaw. It looks like an even bet.

Sportifully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

OLENSKY FIRST AT PRINCE ALBERT

Leads Field in Final Lap of Dog Derby.

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., March 12 (Canadian Press).—Three thousand Northern Saskatchewan citizens yesterday lined the banks of the Saskatchewan River and cheered Harry Olensky, wiry musher of The Pas, Manitoba, as he drove his team of huskies to the finish line and victory in the second annual 160-mile Prince Albert dog derby.

Olensky led the field yesterday in the final forty mile lap, and covered the entire 160 miles in 16 hours, 58 minutes and 49 seconds, approximately 15 minutes slower than the time established by Ross Moxley in the 1926 derby.

Miss Claire Graham, Queen of the Prince Albert Carnival, presented Olensky with the Mackenzie King Cup, donated by Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Prime Minister of Canada, and a cash purse of $700.

Earl Brydges, the youthful The Pas musher, finished second, 17.42.42; Leo St. Goddard, was third, 18.28.18; and T. Elvery of Prince Albert, fourth, his time being 18.29.26. L. La Juenesse, another Prince Albert enfrant, was fifth, untimed.

The junior dog derby, open to boys under 16 years of age, was won by 12-year-old Ralph Allen. The distance covered was 20 miles—five miles a day. Ralph won a cash prize of $60 and immediately announced his intention of buying his dogs "the three biggest steaks I can find in Prince Albert." He drove a team of three dogs.

BUTLER OUT.

Brooklyn Rapidly Taking Semblance of Major League Ball Club.

BY JOSEPH GORDON

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 12.—Kinks are disappearing from athletic backs and arms. Faces have lost their Winter pallor and feet that have been parked on the family mantlepieces these many months are beginning to show signs of real life and usefulness. In other words, the Brooklyn Robins are rapidly taking the semblance of a major league ball club.

Friendly weather and a kindly sun are co-operating with honest hearts and willing hands. The result is most astonishing. Young as the current training campaign is, the Robins look ten times better already than they did at the close of the lamentable season of 1926, and Manager-President Wilbert Robinson has given up all ideas of suicide or murder or both.

The players were out in a body again today and work of the most gruelling variety was the order of the day. They worked in the heat of the morning for two hours, and in the afternoon they slaved under a scorching sun for another two hours. Everybody assisted. Even Johnnie Butler the invalid of last year and the hope of the next, came out for the first time this year.

Butler is the shortstop who spent most of last season in bed, with complicated illnesses. When he arrived a few days ago, he took to his bed again, this time with a mild attack of tonsilitis. This morning, however, he surprised everybody by showing up at the park.

Kept On Surprising.

He kept on surprising them in their practice game with some impossible plays at short. He kept on surprising them in his turn at bat by lacing a couple of slashing singles off the generous delivery of Jess Barnes, who was scandalized and wanted to know how these guys get that way.

Butler is greatly improved in health and it is hoped in this camp that he will continue to improve. His services at short are needed greatly indeed. In fact the whole infield problem revolves about his shapely head. It is bad enough to have to hunt for a second and third baseman without being bothered about some one to hold down a job at the short field.

Robbie supervised the workouts today and spared no one. He was desirous of getting in as many licks as possible while the weather held out, for in this part of the woods there is no telling when a cold snap will come around to bust up the best laid plans.

On the whole, everything looks encouraging and once again the Robin rooters may look forward to one of the hardest hitting ball clubs in the National League. Even with Fournier and Zach Wheat tending foreign pastures, Brooklyn will not lose anything in the way of hitting strength.

Sometimes you can't tell. Sometime you can. Let it be reported here, therefore, that Messrs. Meusel, Hendricks, Henline et al., the new additions to the Robins are hitting the ball with more than ordinary eclat, and if this is a sign of anything at all, which it probably is, they will be among the bitter pills which the league pitchers will have to swallow during the impending campaign.

MANUSH AIMS AT EARLY START

Means To Retain Batting Championship of American League.

DAILY WORKOUT.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Mar. 12.—Heinie Manush expects to get an early start this season to retain the batting championship of the American League.

Manush replaced by his roommate, Harry Edwin Heilmann, as the first batsman of the circuit last season, but he accomplished this after a bad start.

Until mid-season last year Manush was little more than a pinch batter. Ty Cobb was still in center was on the bench.

In the middle of July, Manush was sixteenth among the batsman in his league and no one gave him a thought as far as finishing on top was concerned.

When he finally got a chance to play regularly, Manush began to climb and he continued climbing until he landed on top. That is where he finished.

Reason For Delay.

Manush always claimed that he had to be in the line-up daily to be at his best, and he blames his early season failure last year on the fact that he did not play regularly.

Nothing like that will happen this year. Manush will start the season in centre field and he will remain in center field.

He came down here more than a week ahead of any other player and has been working out daily. He is in fine shape, a bit under-weight but that is more desirable than being a few pounds over-weight.

Last season Manush won the batting championship with an average of .377. Heilman batted .393 to win the title the previous season.

At that, Manush was the leading batter of the two major leagues, for Gene Hargrave, who headed the National League batters, accomplished the feat with an average of .353.

Ball Less Lively.

These averages give proof of the statements made last season that the ball was not as lively as before. By taking some of the "wing" out of the ball used the manufacturers succeeded in bringing down batting averages considerably in both major leagues.

Only three batters gave Manush genuine opposition last year and two of the three are Manush's companions in the Detroit outfield. The other one is George Herman Ruth.

Ruth finished in second place in batting last year with an average of .372, five points behind Manush.

Heimann and Fothergill were tied for third place. Each had an average of a few points under Ruth's.

No club ever had a record like Detroit's in 1926 and this year is likely to see a repetition with the championship resting among her three outfielders.

SOVIET RUSSIA CELEBRATES OVERTHROW OF ROMANOFFS

Moscow Celebrates Tenth Anniversary of Outbreak of Revolution.

PRESENT PLAYS.

Incidents Revealed of "Red" Upheaval That Swept Through Country.

MOSCOW, March 14. — Saturday Russia quietly celebrated the tenth anniversary of the outbreak of the revolution and the fall of the Romanoffs.

There are special presentations of revolutionary plays in the theatres, and a general holiday. But there are no workers' parades that tramp through the Red Square past Lenin's tomb until far into the night. This favored demonstration they save for the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution, which comes on November 7.

The fall of Nicholas II and his Tzarina, "that German woman" so intensely hated by the majority of Russians, is taken as a matter of course. The revolution began on this day ten years ago, but until it reached its grim and bitter peak, when the Bolsheviks took charge, it was a mild little bourgeois affair.

Having heard of the Czar's abdication, the Czarina wrote him at Pskov, "Such news drives me mad. How they humiliated you, those beasts! I feel that the army will revolt!" It is true that the army did revolt, but not to save the Czar's throne. As the weeks swept by, and the army crumbled at the front, and the aimless, terror-stricken flight of the defeated soldiers kept on, a real revolution gathered.

Proved Helpless.

Kerensky and his so-called democratic government proved helpless before that tide of cowed and hungry beings in the grip of a power greater than themselves.

A man called Lenin appeared on the scene. A fiery young Jew, born under the name of Bronstein, but who named himself Leon Trotzky, talked to the hungry workers of Petrograd and found them ready.

Lenin lies in state in his simple mausoleum on the Red Square, which through the centuries had witnessed many of Russia's gory dramas. Three million persons have filed past his bier to get a glimpse of the modern hero of Russia, his body so perfectly embalmed that he seems to be sleeping a dreamless sleep.

"Ilytch" (the pet name they give Lenin) they say, "was such a good man that his body will never turn to dust."

Trotzky, the revolutionist with the silver voice that fired the workers to rise and take power; the war lord of the first Red army; the diplomat who startled and puzzled and angered the whole world at Brest-Litovsk, is shorn of all power. To-day he is plumper, less daring, and almost as helpless as the Kerensky he overthrew.

Kerensky himself lives in Berlin and is now visiting in the United States. Until a short time ago he edited a newspaper which proclaimed every few weeks that the Red regime was on its last legs — but, alas! even this last venture of Kerensky's has gone into bankruptcy.

Now On Shelf.

Other revolutionists so active in those first stirring years of the new Russia have had their day and are now relegated to a back shelf in the hall of fame.

Zinoviev, so long chief of the Communist International, and from whose agile tongue poured revolutionary phrases to startle the outside world, now has a minor post in the Government Planning Commission. He fought Trotzky, who stepped into Lenin's place. After Trotzky's downfall, Zinoview suddenly found himself in a defensive position instead of an offensive one. On the horizon the figure of Joseph Stalin was casting a huge shadow. Stalin, rightly named Joseph Djugashvili, a quiet and clever Georgian, has shrewdly taken over the power Lenin left while the others were squabbling about it.

Village Of White Snakes Is Burned To Ground

TOKIO, March 14.—(United Press). — Uragajima, village of the white snakes, has been destroyed by fire. Uragajima lies between Kobe and Shomonoheki and is famous throughout Japan for its reptile residents. Long, fat, white snakes abound there.

They coil in the trees, frequent the streets, bathe in the village stream, and always are accorded the privilege of entering such cottages as they choose to visit.

Nobody harms the reptiles and the kindness is mutual. When the present Emperor Hirohito visited Uragajima as Prince Regent, the villagers gave him the finest present they could find—the largest of their snakes.

NICKLE BELIEVES NEW LIQUOR BILL IS GREAT ERROR

People Will Repent, He Says After Reading New Measure.

TOO EASY TO GET.

Drinking at Home Will Set Bad Example For Young People.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 14. — Hon. W. F. Nickle, late Attorney-General of Ontario, who resigned rather than support the Government control of liquor, after reading the bill just introduced into the Legislature, believes that from the social, industrial and commercial point of view, it is a great Provincial error of which the people, in the light of experience, will have reason to repent. He fears that Ontario will find in the workings of the proposed legislation the difficulties, the debauchery and the distress that other provinces have known and will, only after the lesson of bitter experience, retrace her steps and again advance. Mr. Nickle is convinced the proposed legislation will facilitate the purchase of liquor, its consumption will be radically increased, drinking at home in the midst of growing families of a State-approved commodity will become firmly established. "If we believe in the force of example as moulding character," he said, "who is there who would approve?"

BRITISH BRUSH WITH CHINESE

Body of Shantung Troops Tried To Enter International Settlement.

OFFERED RESISTANCE.

SHANGHAI, March 14. —(Canadian Press). — An incident that for a time threatened trouble between Chinese troops in Shanghai and the British defence force took place yesterday when a large body of armed Shantung soldiers twice tried to enter the international settlement without the necessary permission and were turned back by the British forces.

The Shantungese, in attempting to enter the settlement, were breaking a British regulation that troops must be disarmed before being allowed to enter.

Firmness and tact on the part of the British officers averted trouble and it is believed that the affair was merely the outcome of a misunderstanding.

The incident had its genesis in an application by the Chinese authorities for permission to march 2,000 troops through the settlement, but this request was refused. Later a force of 200 Shantungese sought to march from the northern boundary of the settlement to the Chinese arsenal. When permission was refused by the guards, the Chinese marched off and then returned later, 100 of them crossing the boundary. These were turned back by military police.

The second attempt came when 500 men with machine guns threatened to cross. Upon being refused, they loaded their rifles and machine guns, but eventually retired peacefully.

MANY SEEKING EMPLOYMENT

More Applications Received Last Week Than Previously This Year.

MEN COMING IN.

Sixty-three applications for work were received by the Government Employment Bureau last week, which is the largest number for any week so far this year. Men have been drifting in from all parts of the surrounding district looking for work. At present there are 129 on the list at the Bureau's office, and last week there were 39 placements.

Diamonds Worth $5,000 Found In Single Hole

LONDON, March 14 (Canadian Press).—One digger on the newly-opened diamond field at Grasfontein farm, near Potchefstroom, South Africa, has reported obtaining stones valued at $5,000 in a single hole, says a Johannesburg despatch to The Daily Mail. More than 1,000 natives already are employed in the new diggings, the despatch said.

AVIATORS TELL OF EXPERIENCES WITH TRIBESMEN

Forced To Land Through Bursted Pipe Off African Coast.

LOOT DIVIDED.

Feared Attack From Other Moor Tribes For Ransom Money.

CASABLANCA, Morocco, March 14. (Canadian Press.) — A vivid tale of hardships endured, of troubles increased by fears of attacks from hostile tribesmen, and joyous relief when he and his party arrived safely at Cape Jubi, was told by Major Tadeo Larre-Borges after the party had reached the Spanish cap here.

The Uruguayan major, whose plane was forced down to the sea near a desolate West African coast, when he and his three countrymen tried to fly from Africa to South America, said he and his companions swam ashore after a bursted oil pipe had put the plane out of commission.

Within hour of their landing 150 Moors surrounded and captured them. A systematic pillage of the wrecked plane when washed ashore availed them nothing except a bad shock to one who thought the batteries contained gold and silver coin.

Loot Plane.

The Moors seemed to spring from the deserted countryside, according to Larre-Borges and after the capture and the looting of the plane the aviators were conducted to a cave where tea was given them and a fire built to dry what few garments they had left.

The prisoners were searched carefully and all money taken as well as their watches. Even the soles of their shoes were cut open in the search for gold coin.

The loot was divided among their captors by trials of strength and boxing matches, presided over by a chief clad in the major's silk pajamas, which evidently had struck his fancy. The chief distributed with rare generosity the check from Larre-Borges' checkbook among the tribesmen but retained for himself all silver, gold and banknotes found among the prisoners.

As soon as the question of loot had been settled the whole party took up the trail for the interior. The aviators, without shoes, marched for many hours and later when given camels to ride, found that this mode of locomotion was not much better from the standpoint of novices."

Hidden under Rocks.

When the aeroplanes searching for the lost aviators came near the caravan the Uruguayans were hidden under sacks on the camels' backs, while the Moors took pot shots at the prying aviators.

Arriving at Puerto Caneado, the Uruguayans had their first rest under tents and were able to notify the Spanish commandant, at Cape Jubi, of their position and the conditions demanded for their liberation.

The food on the hike was far from palatable to the Uruguayans, consisting of rice and camel's milk, which were edible, but the meat offered to them could not be eaten.

Feared Attack.

During their captivity the aviators had no fear for their lives from their captors, who had early agreed that they would be ransomed, but despite a heavy guard around them at all times they feared capture by other tribes who had learned by means of the mysterious wireless of the desert of the prisoners' plight, and their worth in ransom if brought alive to the Spanish fort. If such an attack could have been made Larre-Borges and his companions believed they might have been victims of stray bullets during the melee which would certainly have followed.

The arrival at Cape Jubi was a most gladsome one for the aviators after many days of misery among what were really hostile tribesmen.

England boasts of two women who have won fame as composers of grand opera, a field in which very few women have achieved success.

CANTONESE GENERAL TAKES STEPS TO KEEP OPPONENTS IN PARTY FROM DOING HARM

Orders Minister of Justice To Go Abroad and Dismisses Underlings.

HOLDS AGITATOR.

Correspondent Says Troops of Both Factions despise British.

LONDON, March 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Delayed censored dispatches from Hankow reveal an under surface of Nationalist movement. The big struggle apparently continues between the extremists, backed by Russian influence and the moderates, rallying around General Chang Kai-Shek, chairman of the War Council of the Canton Government.

Chang made a move against his opponents on Thursday. He ordered Hsy Chien, extremist minister of justice, to go abroad, while Teng Yen Ta, who is said to be regarded as responsible for most of the anti-British agitation, was transferred to Chang's headquarters, where he will be under the commander's eyes. Other alleged Communists were dismissed.

The British minister in Peking has decided to maintain in continuous residence in Hankow a senior member of the Embassy staff, says a despatch from Hankow. This is considered in Hankow an indication of another step by Great Britain toward further recognition of the Cantonese regime.

Chinese Despise British.

A despatch to the Daily Mail says the fact that the Northerners are supposedly friendly does not diminish the danger with which foreign interests are menaced, because the Northerners share with the Cantonese the conviction that British prestige, as revealed at the surrender of Hankow, was all front and no backbone. The correspondent declares that Chinese soldiers of both factions now believe themselves equal to any foreign troops and certainly superior to British, who they say will invariably give way before a sufficient force. The declaration of martial law in the Chinese city is assumed to have been due to looting.

Battle In Snow Storm.

KAIFENG, HONAN, China, March 14.—(Canadian Press.)—A fierce battle is raging in a heavy snow storm between the troops of General Chang Tso Lin, Governor of Shengking, and semi-independent Honan troops at Hanschuang, mid-way between Kaifeng and Chenchow. The battle continued throughout the night with the advantage indefinite until Chang succeeded in making a material advance and captured the railway station at Chung Mosien. Reports from the North state that Mukden is in the grip of the severest storm in forty years. All communication and traffic is seriously impeded.

FORECLOSURE ACT REFUSED BY JUDGE

Stays Proceedings Taken By Bobcaygeon Lady.

TORONTO, March 14.—(Canadian Press).—The decision of the Master of the Supreme Court was reversed today when Mr. Justice Kelly stayed proceedings to foreclose in an action brought by Mrs. Hattie R. Croft, of Bobcaygeon, against Mrs. Minnie Hanley Neville, of Toronto, under mortgage.

Mrs. Neville agreed to buy property on Sturgeon Lake, Verulam township for $40,000. She paid $16,000 cash and gave a mortgage for $24,000. Mrs. Neville then left for England and while she was absent, within three months of making the mortgage, Mrs. Croft brought action to foreclose, although the first date for payment of interest had not been reached.

Girl's Coveted Diploma Is Awarded After Death

WASHINGTON, D.C., March 14.— (United News).— Marie Cecilia Reidy, 14-year-old student at St. Dominic's Parochial School, had her heart set on receiving a diploma in June.

On Tuesday she fell at play. The doctors said she could not live. "Oh mamma, I won't receive my diploma now", Marie whispered to her mother a few minutes before she died.

Father Scanlon heard it and signed the coveted bit of parchment. When the casket was carried to Mount Olive cemetery for interment the diploma was clutched in Marie's lifeless hands.

TO PUT SIGNS ON CITY BUILDINGS

Utilites Commission Wishes To Start Move For Better Looking City.

WILL PLANT TREES.

Peterborough to-day is far behind many other cities in Canada in the number of illuminated signs which appear over the buildings of the different manufacturers and storekeepers, was the opinion expressed by the members of the Utilitiss Commission at the regular monthly meeting held on Saturday. The Commission instructed the manager R. L. Dobbin to secure prices on two signs suitable to be erected on the roof of Aylmer Street sub-station and on the city buildings. The power rate for these signs is $4.39 gross per year for 100 watts and the commission is desirous of starting something which will make Peterborough a better looking city.

The Commission is going to take advantage of the offer made by the Provincial Forestry Department in ordering 3500 trees to be set out this year on vacant property around some of the dams.

Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C., recently discovered that for the past five or six years he has been paying water frontage rates on more land than he owns so he wrote to the Commission asking for a refund. The accountant said that Mr. Hatton had paid $7.37 too much which will be credited to his future water frontage account.

F. D. Pillsworth appeared before the Commission and asked for power to run a grinder.

Mr. Pillsworth lives about a mile across the Locks bridge, just outside the city limits and the residents of that district are served by two wire line that the township consumers have taken over. A three wire line will be necessary to supply Mr. Pillswirth with a ten horse power. The Commission promised him that they would consider the matter and report in a few days.

Residents of this city who are behind in their water rates are going to have the amount added to their tax bills in the next few days.

THE WEATHER

There was a heavy rain fall Sunday evening, though it was perhaps not so heavy as many who were unfortunately caught in it, were led to believe. It totalled .53, or a little over ½ an inch. On Saturday the temperature rose to 60 degrees. The higher temperature combined with the warm rain has completely finished the sleighing around town, and settled the snow greatly in the country.—W. Invents Parachute That Is Worked By Machinery Stops Automatically When Just Above the Ground

GENEVA, March 14.—A Swiss engineer named Kunzer has invented a parachute worked by machinery. It is so controlled that after it is launched from a balloon or airplane it automatically stops falling within a few feet of the ground, thereby preventing the contents of the basket from being damaged.

The Alpine Club intends to employ the invention for revictualing remote Alpine huts and for dropping food to mountain climbers who become lost.

Military authorities are considering a project to use the parachute for the quick dispatch of telegrams and correspondence. Perhaps the greatest utility of the invention is that it will enable safer landing of fliers at night.

Recent successful experiments at Basle proved that a powerful lamp attached to the parachute lighted a large part of the landing ground, enabling an airplane pilot to descend safely in the darkness upon unknown territory.

'It Just Ain't' Says Lady First Time She Sees Plane

DENVER, Colo., March 14.—(Canadian Press).—"It just aint"—declared Mary Cura, 73, who hobbled from her home in snowbound Silverton, to observe the first aeroplane she had ever seen. The plane carried supplies.

TWO ARE KILLED IN RENEWAL OF GANG WARFARE

Chicago Reported Again in Grip of Rival Gang Wars.

BREAK TRUCE.

Found Lying on Pavement After Terrific Battle of Cliques.

CHICAGO, March 14. — Two dreaded chieftains of gangland lay dead here on Saturday following a spectacular street battle between rival factions of boot-leggers. Another may have been killed and wounded in the terrific battle.

Frank "Lefty" Koncil, chief lieutenant for Joe Saltis, recognized head of a powerful South Side beer running syndicate, and Charles Rubrec, alias "Big Hayes," are the men known to have been killed.

The bodies of Koncil and Rubrec, riddled by machine gun bullets, were found at Ashland avenue, and Thirtyninth street near a sedan identified as the property of Joe Saltis.

The spot offered evidence of the terrible battle. The big car was riddled. Its floor was covered with gun shells and empty cartridges.

Like Great Explosion.

No witnesses to the battle have been found, but persons living in the neighborhood told police they had heard terrific bombardment that resembled a "magazine blowing up."

When a few daring persons ventured to the spot after the firing ceased they found the bodies of Koncil and Rubrec.

Police believe the Koncil machine was speeding along, probably with a cargo of Canadian ale, when it was overtaken by a car filled with rival gangsters. Koncil and Rubrec it is belived, exhausted their store of ammunition and then tried to escape on foot.

Their bodies were several feet from the bullet riddled machine.

It is further believed that Saltis himself was in the car as it was known he never permitted his favorite sedan to go on a trip without him. Police believe Saltis and several henchmen may have escaped on foot. Whether any of them were killed or injured is not known.

Hunt for Gang Chief.

Police have begun a city-wide search for Ralph Shelton deadly enemy of Saltis, and chief of a rival gang.

The shooting indicated that the gang warfare that spread terror over the city several months ago has broken out again. Following the shooting of Hymie Weiss and two other gangsters here last spring the leaders of gangland met at a downtown hotel and signed a treaty of peace.

At that time the authorities refused to take the "peace pact" seriously and remarked that it would be only a matter of time until the battle would again be on.

Saltis and Koncil were recently acquitted of a charge of murder.

SARRE ISSUE ON DEFENSE FORCE IS SOLVED BY LEAGUE COUNCIL

German Foreign Minister Effects Last Hour Compromise at Geneva.

CONCLUDE SESSION.

Hailed as Victor For Another Triumph in Conciliation.

GENEVA, March 14.—In the last few minutes of the forty-fourth session of the Council of the League of Nations on Saturday, after stubbornly fighting his case for five hours, Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, made sufficient concessions on the Sarre issue to effect a compromise, unammously accepted, settling the question and turning defeat into victory for himself and Germany.

Dr. Stresemann may meet with disagreement from the hotheads at home, but Saturday night he was hailed on all sides here as having played a role as head of the German delegation and President of the Council which places him high in rank as a diplomat and a tactician. And a large share of the credit is given to him for another triumph of the League in conciliation.

When Dr. Stresemann made his concessions, involving the policing of the Sarre Valley until the plebiscite in 1935, determines whether the region shall be under German or French sovereignty, he declared that he was acting more as a "League man" than as a German and that on the occasion of Germany's first Presidency of the League Council he desired to avoid creating a situation of conflict and provoking a vote which could not be unanimous.

He said that he was acting personally and not on instructions from his Government, but that he felt the sacrifice of Germany's claims should be made to the spirit of the League's unity.

Disagree on Defence Corps

The question was brought forward by the report Saturday of Major George W. Stephens of Canada, President of the Sarre Valley Governing Commission, providing for the maintenance of an inter-Allied force of 800 men as a special railway defence corps after the withdrawal of the French troops.

Dr. Stresemann opposed this plan, declaring that the local gendarmerie would give sufficient protection to transport.

Foreign Minister Aristide Briand of France insisted upon adherence to the recommendations of the commission, and in a speech remarkable for its good-humored, though at times ironic, eloquence, he placed the responsibility for peace in the Sarre Valley squarely upon the League, and declared that should an outbreak occur France would not want to send in troops and thus disturb Franco-German relations.

Then Sir Austen Chamberlain, the British Foreign Secretary, assumed the role of mediator, as he did at Locarno, and succeeded in bringing closer together the opposing positions of M. Briand and Dr. Stresemann.

Two-faced Calf Born Eats Three Times a Day

CAPE TOWN, March 14. — With two faces, but otherwise normal, a calf was born on a farm at East Tamaki. It has two jaws, two snouts, two mouths and three eyes. The two mouths, blending into one, and spreading the whole width of the animal's two faces, gives the beast a hideous appearance. Each mouth is perfect in formation, there being separate sets of teeth, and separate tongues. The calf is fed three times a day, and is making steady progress.

REV. DR. ROSE GIVES INSPIRING FINAL SERMONS

Two Eloquent Addresses on Last Sunday of Ministry Here.

AT MURRAY STREET.

"Hitherto" and Henceforth" Combines Backward Look With Encouragement.

The concluding sermons in Rev. Dr. Rose's pastorate at Murray St. Baptist church, were preached yesterday in two eloquent and impressive addresses, delivered in the reverend speaker's dignified and arresting style, the morning subject being based on the title "Hitherto and Henceforth," a retrospective sermon which concluded with a word of encouragement for the future, and the evening sermon being entitled "The Soul's Supreme Refuge." The music rendered for the occasion was in keeping with the valedictory nature of the services, and was rendered in excellent fashion by the choir, led by Dr. S. J. Graham, with Miss Muriel Bridge at the organ.

The following is Dr. Rose's adress of the morning.

Hitherto and Henceforth.

"I have selected two texts, the first giving a statement of fact, and the second an exhortation: 'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us," from I. Samuel 7.12; and 'Be ye steadfast and unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord, from 1. Cor. 15.18.

Hitherto Helped.

The backward look to recount God's goodness is wise. The worthies of old have given excellent examples. Samuel, the aged and beloved prophet, took a stone and set it between Mispah and Shen, and called the name of it Ebenezer, saying 'Hitherto hath the Lord helped us.' David, late in life, reviewed his past and set up a memorial of God's goodness in the 23rd Psalm. Paul at the close of a three years' pastorate in Ephesus, said: 'By the space of three years I ceased not to warn you night and day with tears, and now I commend you to God and to the word of His grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you the inheritance among all them that are sanctified.

The Work of the Lord.

Four years ago next month, we joined our forces in the work of the Lord in this city. We did this believing that such was the will of the One who has a right to direct His laborers and to expect from them

KEENE INQUEST IS POSTPONED

Crown Wants More Time To Collect Evidence in Marmora Case.

PUT OFF ONE WEEK.

BELLEVILLE, March 14. — The inquest to determine into the death of Jerome Keene, who was murdered in a shack near Marmora some weeks ago, which was to have been held to-day has again been postponed for another week. This step was taken in order to allow the Crown an opportunity to collect further evidence.

Inspector William Stringer of Toronto, and Officer McCoy of Madoc, are conducting a close investigation into the case and some startling details may be revealed within the course of a few days. Inspector Lougheed of the Provincial police, stated this morning that there is no new angle at the present time.

EMPIRE WINES WILL BE TAXED MORE HEAVILY

Forecast Churchill May Increase Duties on Foreign Wines.

OPPOSE LEVIES.

Tobacco Trade With the Dominions To Be Encouraged.

LONDON, March 14.—Secrets of Winston Churchill's forthcoming budget continue to leak out, the latest being that the chancellor of the exchequer has been compelled to strike a blow at imperial preference, especially regarding wines from the dominions.

The cabinet is known to object to any increase in taxation and to any additional burdens on industry, hence the chancellor is obliged to consider the revision of the present sources of taxation and it is believed he intends to raise the duties on foreign wines.

If he does the existing tariff agreements will compel him to readjust correspondingly the duties on dominion wines, which at present range from half a crown to six shillings or more, according to proof strength, with additional taxation on wines imported in bottles.

Reduced Rates.

At present overseas wines are subject to largely reduced rates, but it is expected that if Churchill undermines imperial preference with respect to wines, he may build it up with respect to tobacco, although one rumor in circulation has it that tobacco as well as wines will be additionally taxed.

The cabinet now has before it a proposal providing for increased tobacco duties, subject to preference for Empire-grown brands, and this, it is anticipated, would result in more tobacco being grown in the dominions.

Several Injured When Police Fire Upon Chinese Mob.

SINGAPORE, Straits Settlement, March 14 (Canadian Press). — Six Chinese were killed and eleven wounded by the police Saturday when the latter fired on a mob storming the police station. The disturbance grew out of a memorial celebration in connection with the second anniversary of the death of Sun Yat Sen, Chinese Nationalist leader. One European police inspector was severely wounded. The city is now quiet.

SIGNS OF SPRING

AT NORHAM.

NORHAM, March 14. — The signs of spring here are on the increase and every day makes one feel more sure that it is not far away. Crows are present in large numbers. Several robins have been seen, also a woodpecker or two, as well as a yellow caterpillar making its way across the snow. Where some of the snow has melted the grass bears quite a shade of green. The atmosphere seems full of the odor of the springtime. The stillness of the twilight seems to speak of the good old summer time.

WARKWORTH FAIR DATES ARE FIXED

William A. Kelly, president of the society, gave a length account of the Toronto Fair Association. Jas. Armstrong was appointed to have charge of the special prizes. There was considerable discussio over the Grain Growing Competition.

Walter Smith of Brighton, the District representitive, was unable to be present, and another meeting is to be held when Mr. Smith may find it convenient to attend.

BELMONT MAN BADLY INJURED

William Harris is Caught on Belt of Saw at Neighbor's Farm.

HEAD HITS BOLT.

HAVELOCK, March 14.—William Harris of Belmont narrowly escaped death about noon on Saturday while sawing wood on the farm of a neighbor, William Clarke, a few miles east of Havelock.

Mr. Harris had just stepped up to take the place of the man who was throwing the blocks away from the machine when his clothing caught in the belt and he was hurled around. His head struck a bolt in the runner of the sleigh, knocking him unconscious, and nearly all of his clothing was torn off. The muscles of his right arm and shoulder are badly torn, and he is also cut about the head and neck. Reports Saturday night were that it would be at least three days before the doctor would know whether he will recover or not.

It is the opinion of those who were working with him that if he had not been knocked unconscious he would have been killed, as his head was only five or six inches from the saw when they got it stopped, and the least move might have proved fatal.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY

At least five countries contend for the honor of being regarded as the birthplace of St. Patricks. Various localities in Scotland, Ireland, Wales, Cornwall and Brittany are pointed out as having cradled the Saint, but the weight of evidence supports the view that St. Patrick came from the land of the heather, and that his birthplace was in what is now known as Old Kilpatrick on the banks of the Clyde in Dumbartonshire.

His name Patrick suggests a fairly exalted origin. It is tolerably certain that at a very early age, he was captured by marauders from the North of Ireland, where he remained as a slave until he was sixteen years old.

Escaping from his master, he went to the Continent and entered the church. The missionary zeal was kindled in him and he resolved to return to Ireland, and with the object of converting his former master to Christianity—a task for which his knowledge of the Irish language rendered him peculiarly fitted. A collection of writings, the "Confessions of St. Patrick," believed to have been written by him shortly before his death, relates some of his experiences among the heathen inhabitants of Ireland.

St. Patrick's Curse

The principal enemies that St. Patrick found to the introduction of Christianity into Ireland were the Druidical priests of the more ancient faith who, as might naturally be supposed, were exceedingly averse to the new and strange religion which was brought into their midst by this itinerant missionary. Their obstinate antagonism was so great, says an old legend, that, in spite of his benevolent disposition, St. Patrick was compelled to curse their fertile lands, which became dreary bogs; to curse their rivers, so that they produced no fish; to curse their very kettles, so that with no amount of fire and patience could boiling water be obtained; and as a last resort, he cursed the Druids themselves, so that the earth opened and swallowed them up.

Another tradition, much better known, of his use of the favorite flower in a sermon dealing with the mystery of the Trinity accounts for the choice of the Shamrock as the Irish national emblem.

St. Patrick is credited with many miracles, the greatest of which was that of driving the venomous reptiles out of Ireland and rendering the Irish soil for ever after, so obnoxious to the serpents that they instantly died on touching it. Unfortunately for the truth of this claim, experiments made by scientifically-minded investigators have demonstrated that snakes on being liberated on Irish soil show none of the ill effects that were believed to follow.

An extremely apochryphal story relates that St. Patrick accomplished his miracle by the beating of a drum which he struck with such heartiness as to knock a hole in it, thereby endangering the success of the miracle. But an angel appeared, mended the story, and mended the drum and the task was completed.

But a more credible and truly beautiful story is connected with the name of Saint Patrick. It is related that when baptizing Aongus, King of Munster, the venerable preacher accidently rested the spike of his ironshot crozier upon the royal convert's foot, and leaning forward pressed it into the great toe, inflicting a painful wound. Aongus, knowing nothing of the rites of Christianity, bore his painful ordeal to be part of the ceremony, made no sign of suffering and with calm and reverential demeanor, allowed the unconscious missionary to proceed, despite the fact that the blood flowed so freely that the Irish named the place Struthfuil (stream of blood).

St. Patrick is said to have been a man of small stature, but of great energy and activity of mind and body, and we have some proofs that his very aspect inspired regard. He was truly humble, wore coarse garments, and worked cheerfully and laboriously with his own hands. He was "most sweet and affable in conversation, by which he accommodated himself to all sorts and conditions of people." Countless gifts were pressed upon him, which he always refused, unless to relieve the poor or build churches. He is said to have slept on the bare ground with a stone for his pillow until he was 55 years old.

He travelled continually—a winged laborer, as Chrysostom terms St. Paul—until too old; when he spent his last years in retirement and contemplation though not neglecting to give helpful counsel to the infant church. The latter part of his life was spent at Armagh in the North of Ireland, where, according to Lanigan's chronology, he died full of good works and honors on the seventeen of March in the year four hundred and sixty-five.

An old song tells us that it was St. Patrick himself who taught the Irish the art of distilling. The word Poteen, applied to a favorite beverage, is said to be derived from his name, but most authorities represent him as a man of very abstemious habits and a strict promoter of abstinence if not exactly a total abstainer.

In the mountainous region on the borders of Cork and Tipperary is Lough Dilveen, where, it was once believed, St. Patrick when expelling the reptiles chained a monster serpent, telling it to remain till Monday. Peasants of a generation ago firmly believed that every Monday morning this imprisoned serpent called out in Irish Gaelic:

"'Tis a long Monday, Patrick."

OBITUARY.

MARMORA, March 14.—On March 10 death removed a highly respected former resident of Marmora in the person of Miss Frances Sara Jones, who had reached the ripe age of 81. The deceased lady, who passed away at 362 Clinton street, Toronto, was the sister of the late Dr. Henry M. Jones, of Marmora, who also died at an advanced age four years ago. For the past two years she had resided with her sister-in-law, Mrs. H. M. Jones, and her two nieces, Misses Muriel and Olive Jones, at their home in Toronto. Her death was hastened by a paralytic seizure the early part of last week, following one of a year previous.

The deceased lady was a devoted Anglican and identified herself with Sunday school and Ladies' Guild activities for a large number of years. She had a long record as treasurer of St. Paul's Sunday school and was instrumental in the past in the production of plays for the benefit of her church. The present pulpit in St. Paul's church, which replaced the one at present in use at St. Mark's, Rawdon, was donated as a result of her efforts. The funeral service was held on Friday evening, March 11th, at the parlors of McDougall and Brown, St. Clair avenue west, the body being brought to Marmora on Saturday afternoon for interment.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Treated Well.

LONDON, March 14 (Canadian Press).—The Peking Government has informed its legation in London that Mme. Borodin and the three Russian couriers seized by the Chinese more than a week ago are being well treated and that the whole circumstances of their case are under investigation. This may take some time, the message said.

Seize Newspapers.

DUBLIN, March 14 (Canadian Press).—A truckload of 30 bales of English Sunday newspapers were seized and burned by an armed body of masked men on its arrival at Kingston, it was learned yesterday. The papers were consigned to a local distributor.

No reason for the act is known.

Resumes Flight.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, March 14 (Canadian Press). — Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italian aviator, yesterday resumed his four continent flight, arriving here yesterday morning from Buenos Aires, where he had remained ten days.

The aviator was greeted enthusiastically.

Storms in Japan.

TOKIO, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Heavy snowstorms which have swept Japan in the last 72 hours have interrupted cable communication due to the crippling of land lines between Osaka and Shimonoseki.

Messages from the earthquake zone indicate relief work is progressing satisfactorily, but is being impeded by raw weather conditions.

STILL AT FREEDOM.

Police Fail To Find Bandits Who Bombed Automobiles.

PITTSBURGH, March 14.—(Canadian Press).—Despite an all night search by the State Police and detectives the bandits who bombed two automobiles and escaped with the $102,000 payroll of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company yesterday remained uncaptured early today.

VOLUNTEER CORPS PARADE STREETS

Resident Foreigners at Shanghai Show 1,700 Strong in Review.

SHANGHAI, March 14 (Canadian Press).—The most thoroughly international spectacle since the Shanghai concentration began took place in the streets of the city yesterday when the Shanghai volunteer corps paraded, 1,700 strong.

The marchers included English, Scotch, American, Japanese, Italians, Portuguese, Philippines, Chinese, and Russians. The corps consists of resident foreigners in Shanghai and was organized to act in any emergency.

A feature of the parade was the presence of a recently recruited Russian company of 200 men, most of them veterans of the czarist armies. It is believed that this company is the only mercenary body employed by any municipality in the world. It constitutes the only paid unit in the volunteer corps.

F. W. Linde, Soviet Consul at Shanghai, returned yesterday from Nanking after an unsuccessful attempt to release Mme. Borodin, wife of the Cantonese adviser, and three Russian couriers who were arrested by the Shantungese more than a week ago.

Promised Assistance.

Mr. Linde said that the Shantung leader, Chang Tsung Chang, had promised to use his influence in behalf of the Russians but that since the matter was now in the hands of the Peking Government, he was powerless to take any action without approval from Peking. The Russians interpret this as merely a process of "passing the buck."

The Pamiat Lenina, Soviet vessel, aboard which the Russians were seized, had been re-named the Ichang, and is being used to transport Shanghai troops on the river. It is reported that a crew of white Russians will soon be put aboard. Thus there are little indications of any intentions of the Chinese to return the vessel to Russia. The Soviet authorities scout a report from Peking that one of the three couriers is a woman.

Raid Shops.

A state of virtual panic prevails among the Chinese shopkeepers of the native city of Shanghai who are feeling the heavy hand of the Shantung soldiers whose tactics are believed to be doing much to swing native businessmen over to the Nationalist cause.

Chang Tsung Chang's troops are said to be maintaining the evil reputation they have gained in other parts of the country. A dozen shops have been looted and many merchants are afraid to open their doors. Large sums of money have been demanded at the point of the bayonet while the native police are powerless to interfere.

NAVIGATION OPENS ON ST. LAWRENCE

One of Earliest Openings in History of the Lower River.

QUEBEC, March 14.—(Canadian Press).—Three small coastal vessels, the steamer Miron L, the barge Tremblay and the schooner Lodilus are at present actively engaged in the transportation of freight between various ports on the north and south shores of the lower St. Lawrence. The Miron L and Lodilus left Tadousac on Thursday morning and arrived at Godbout yesterday while the Miron L is sailing the north shore. The barge Trembly sailed from Riviere Pentecote for Shelter Bay and Matane.

This is one of the earliest openings of coastal navigation in the history of the lower St. Lawrence and it taken as a good indication of the unusually favorable ice conditions which prevail at the present moment below Quebec.

Wales Quites Smoking In Training For Racing

LONDON, March 14. — (United Press).—The Prince of Wales stopped smoking today as part of his training for two steeple chase races similar to the one in which he almost suffered a broken neck three years ago.

Even more strenuous callisthenics than usual form part of Wales' training programme for the Bicester and Warden Hill point-to-point races at Hillesdon March 16 in competition for the Manners Cup. Wales thrice has ridden for the cup without success but this year he has a new steeplechaser, Cark Courtier, with which he hopes to win.

FACTIONS RENEW FIGHTING, EAST OF LAKE TAIHU

Lull in Military Operations Broken in Cantonese Drive Northward.

DERAIL TRAIN.

Missionary Leaders Are Considering Withdrawing the Workers For Nanking.

SHANGHAI, March 14 (Canadian Press).—The Cantonese push northward, which is menacing the lines of communication of General Chang Tsung Chang, Shantungese defender of Shanghai, way more pronounced yesterday.

The lull in military operations in Kiangsu Province was broken yesterday. The Cantonese, who are working their way forward along both lines of Lake Taihu, west of Shanghai, became involved in fighting on the east shore of the lake, between Pingwang and Wukiang. The sound of the heavy gunfire could be heard plainly in Soochow on the Grand Canal 57 miles northwest of Shanghai.

Tear Up Tracks.

Still another evidence of the Cantonese threat to the north-westerners' communication was furnished last night. An armed band of seventy men removed some rails from the Nanking-Shanghai railroad only five miles from Shanghai. A passenger train passing over the line was derailed but no one was injured.

General Chang Tsung Chang's personal actions indicate that he is worried about his line of communications from Shanghai to his capital, Tsinau Fu. He visited various points along the railroad to Tientsin yesterday and conferred with his generals in charge of guarding the line of communication.

The Cantonese, or Nationalists, are continuing to advance down the Yangtse River toward Nanking, capital of Kianosu Province, and about 200 miles west of Shanghai. They are reported now only 30 miles from Nanking and rumors of its imminent fall have been circulated.

Missionary leaders here are seriously considering withdrawing their workers from Nanking, in which city it is estimated there are hundreds of foreigners. Many Chinese refugees are arriving at Shanghai from Nanking and the neighboring city of Chinkiang.

May Evacuate.

The increasing threat to his communications is lending color to the reports circulated by Nationalist sympathizers that General Chang Tsung Chang may evacuate Shanghai and withdraw north-westward to the Yangtse River, thereby admitting the impossibility of defending his long line of communications against the thrust of the Nationalists. Reports that some of General Chang Tsung Chang's subordinate leaders may desert him also are circulated in Nationalist quarters.

Saturday's observance of the second anniversary of the death of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, pioneer Chinese Republican leader, did not bring the intense Nationalist drive to capture Shanghai which had been prophesied by some for that date. The only fighting reported was in the region of Lake Taihu.

Battle in Storm.

KAIFENG, Honan, China, March 14 (Canadian Press)—A fierce battle is raging in a heavy snowstorm between troops of General Chang Tso Lin, Governor of Shengking, and semi-independent Honan troops at Hanschuang, midway between Kaifeng and Chenchow.

The battle continued throughout the night with the advantage indefinite until Chang Tso Lin succeeded in making a material advance and captured the railway station at Chung Mohsien. It is not known whether this position is secure because the storm is bound to affect the despatch of reinforcements which are due from Mukden to assist Chang's main advance line.

Reports from the north state that Mukden is in the grip of the severest storm in 40 years. All communication and traffic is seriously impeded.

MANY SCHEMES OF MEMORIAL

Dr. Kaiser Proposes Distribution of Plaques To Original Ridings.

ON DOMINION DAY.

OTTAWA, March 14 (Canadian Press).—A multitude of suggestions is waiting the consideration of the National Committee on the Dominion Day Jubilee cerebrations when the committee meets here on Wednesday of this week. Dr. O. D. Skelton, Under Secretary of State for External Affairs and chairman of the group, will present the accumulation of proposals.

Dr. T. E. Kaiser, Conservative member from Ontario, is putting forward a scheme by which the Federal Government would present plaques bearing the portraits of all the Prime Ministers since Confederation to the County Councils of the 181 original constituencies. Each plaque would contain a blank space in which would be placed a picture of the member of parliament from the County at the time of Confederation. Dr. Kaiser has undertaken to locate contemporary pictures of the members of the Confederation parliament, and he has succeeded in locating most of the 181 who sat in the first Federal House of Commons of the Dominion.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE OLD GRIP

The old grip looks the worse for wear.
On many a trip, and here and there,
Old grip and I, from town to town,
Both low and high, and up and down,
Have traveled far and traveled near,
And here we are, and many the year.
The brass is dull, the leather, too,
Less beautiful than something new,
A corner gone, a rivet loose,
But moving on, and still of use,
Although perhaps we're not as neat
As younger chaps and grips you meet.

And yet I like the old grip best.
We've had to hike both east and west,
And south and north, and to and fro,
Yes, back and forth we've had to go.
And that's the thing you can't forget
That makes you cling to something yet.
Although they say the thing to do
Is throw away, for something new,
This ancient grip, I guess we'll make
Another trip, for old times' sake.
Although they scold, I'll tell you why:
The grip's grown old, but so have I.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

Synopsis Arranged by Dr. Wm. E. Gilroy, D.D., Sketches by Kroesen.

A leper fell on his face before Christ and said, "Lord, if thou wilt, thou canst make me clean"; and Jesus, saying, "I will, be thou clean," touched him and he was healed. (Luke V:12-14)

"Great multitudes came together, to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities." (Luke V:15)

The disciples crossing the Sea of Galilee were terrified by a storm while Jesus slept. They awakened him and he stilled the tempest. (Mark IV: 35-41)

A sick woman touched the hem of his garment "saying within herself, If I may but touch the hem of his garment I shall be whole," and Jesus, turning about, said: "Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole." (Matt. IX: 20-22)

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S PAPER BASKET

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

In one of the rooms of his hollow stump bungalow Uncle Wiggily had a desk where he often sat to write letters or think up ways of having adventures. Besides the desk was a large basket.

"What's that for?" Baby Bunty once asked when she was visiting the rabbit gentleman.

"That is a paper basket, Bunty," answered Mr. Longears, signing a letter he had just written.

"It doesn't look as if it were made of paper," said the little orphan rabbit girl.

"Oh, I don't mean it's made of paper!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "The basket is made of willow twigs, like the bodies of some baby carriages. But the basket holds waste paper that I throw away, so it is called a paper basket." And into the basket the bunny uncle tossed some old letters he had finished reading and last night's paper with the Bedtime Story in it. "All my old odds and ends of paper I stuff in that basket, Bunty."

"And when it's full what happens?" Baby Bunty asked, for she could see that the basket was almost running over.

"Oh, Nurse Jane sets it out on the street and the trash dog comes and empties my paper basket," said Mr. Longears. And then, having finished eating an apple he tossed the core with the seeds into the basket with waste papers.

And after Baby Bunty had gone out to play, Uncle Wiggily took from his pocket some cracked nuts that Mrs. Bushytail, the lady squirrel, had given him.

"I cracked them for you," chattered Mrs. Bushytail, who was the mother of Johnnie and Billie, "because you rabbits haven't teeth to gnaw nut shells as we squirrels have."

"That is very true—thank you," said Uncle Wiggily. So now he picked the meats out of the nut shells and tossed the shells into the paper basket. Though, as it happened, some bits of nut meats still clung to the shells.

After putting more old papers into his basket, Uncle Wiggily hopped out to look for an adventure. And, no sooner was he away from his bungalow than in through the window sneaked the Bob Cat, who had been hiding beneath the sill, waiting his chance.

"Oh ho! Now I know how I can catch Uncle Wiggily!" snickered the Bob Cat to himself. "I'll burrow down in his scrap basket and hide under the papers. He'll never know I'm there and when he sits at his desk I'll pop out at him! Ah ha! What a trick that will be!"

So the Bob Cat climbed into the scrap basket and burrowed down beneath the papers. There he waited until Mr. Longears should come back. But while the Bad Chap waited, hidden from sight, along came creeping Squeakie Eekie the mouse cousin of Jollie and Jillie Longtail. Squeakie Eekie was a very little cousin mouse and she had no trouble at all in crawling in between the willow sides of the waste basket.

"I smell apple seeds in Uncle Wiggily's paper basket," whispered the cousin mouse. "And I smell nut crumbs. He wouldn't care for them but they will be a great treat to me."

Squeakie was browsing away amid the waste papers, creeping in and out of old envelopes and scraps, nibbling here an apple core seed and there a bit of nut in a piece of shell, when, all of a sudden, the little cousin mouse saw the Bob Cat's tail. Then she saw the Bob Cat's legs and all the rest of the bad chap, and she knew he was hidden in the waste paper basket to catch Uncle Wiggily.

The Bob Cat climbed into the scrap basket.

"But the Bob Cat doesn't see me, because I'm so little," whispered Squeakie to herself. "And, besides, he's asleep. I'll slip out and tell Uncle Wiggily's what's in his basket."

When the cousin mouse met the rabbit gentleman coming home, and told about the Bob Cat, Uncle Wiggily said:

"I'll fix him! I'll get the Police Dog to come in and take out my basket, the Bob Cat and all." And just as the Bad Chap was waking up and wondering how much longer he would have to stay hidden in the scraps of paper until Uncle Wiggily should come, all of a sudden he felt himself, basket and all, lifted up and the Police Dog growled:

"Off to jail you go!" And the Bob Cat went. So the bunny's ears were saved. And this story teaches us that you should always look in a waste paper basket before going to sleep in it.

REV. DR. ROSE GIVES INSPIRING FINAL SERMONS

full-hearted response. We had no narrow idea of the work of the Lord, such as building up one unit at the expense of others. We knew that the field was the world, and that there should be co-operation on the part of all groups of Christians. With this point of view ever before us we have labored together. If in any degree we have discouraged, or made the work of any other company of believers more difficult, and so less productive, we sincerely regret it. The work of the Lord is the main thing; not the comfort of any laborer, not any one church. Prophets and apostles, missionaries and ministers, lay workers by the thousands, have been willing to be lost sight of or to suffer that the work might go on. We should also live to forward "The work of the Lord."

Workers Promoted.

The last four years are but a link in a chain reaching back through many years. Worthy men and women preceded us. We have many times reaped where they sowed. We remember them with love and loyalty. During these four years some of the choicest spirits that I have ever known, men and women of God, who have left an influence for good, which will abide to sweeten, to strengthen, and to sanctify, have graduated from life's university of work on this side, and entered into the service of God on the other side. We miss them, but catching their spirit we carry on, endeavoring to do what they did, prove faithful to the Master Workman. The leaves drop each autumn, but the tree lives. Laborers drop also, but the work goes on, the work of making a new world in which will dwell righteousness and peace. We can best honor those who have gone on ahea do us by living as they did, for the good of mankind. The Lord has helped us to continue without these brave, generous, noble souls.

The banners they upbore,
Our hands still lift on high,
The Lord they followed evermore,
To us is also night.

Years of Tribulation.

These years for the Church of Christ, in all of her great branches have been years of seven-fold tribulation. Things have happened within each group which no modern prophet, however, keen of eye, could discern. What member acquainted with conditions as they have existed, and as they still exist, will ever forget the bitter words of accusation which have been spoken? This crisis in the churches generally is enough to make angels weep and to force again the spear into the side and heart of the Son of God. A parallel in history is found in the case of the inhabitants of Jerusalem, surrounded by a Roman army which hemmed them in on every hand, while the people within the city, who should have been united against a common foe, fought among themselves until their enemies broke the bolts of the city gates and laid it, with its magnificent Temple, in ruins, and left the people robbed of their rightful heritage. We can well understand why Jesus, knowing her future, looked over the city, and wept, saying: "If thou hadst known, even thought, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they they are hid from thine eyes. For the days shall come upon thee, that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they shall not leave thee one stone upon another; because thou knewest not the day of thy visitation."

We can also appreciate the prayer that Jesus offered, under the shadow of the cross, that His followers might be one. He knew that such divisions prevent belief in Himself as heaven-sent. Fortunately for Murray street church the storm generally has not prevented local progress, though it has made the work difficult and robbed, in part, us of the fine fellowship that we should have in the church of the living God.

Facts From Records.

The average attendance of the Sunday School for the last two years has been 65 per cent. larger than for many previous years. The organized classes, Baraca, "Others," Ever-ready and Hustlers, for young men and women, have had an exceptional record of attendance and work. The pastor's Bible class has averaged 81 for the two years ending January 31st. The new Sunday school plan has made the increased attendance possible as well as double the time for instruction.

Many new members have been received into the church, a total of 160. By baptism there were 84 and by letter 76. These additions have helped to overcome the heavy losses through death and removals from the city of many experienced and most helpful workers. Probably in no other period of four years has this, or many other churches, lost so many efficient members.

Financially as well as numerically the period under review has much to encourage. The church debt has been reduced from $6,900.00 to $1,550.00. A total for all purposes of about $50,600.00 has been received. Of this amount, over $10,000 has been given to missionary efforts. The offerings on current and benevolent accounts have steadily increased. The year just recently closed was one of the best. This record in view of the loss by death of several of its largest supporters is considered worthy of note.

The church property as a whole has been greatly improved. Organ chimes, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Matthews, in memory of their son, Lt. Harold Stratton Matthews, were installed. The Mann memorial, the gift of the parents of Dr. and Mrs. John Burette Mann, in the form of apartments, furnished with every reasonable comfort and convenience for the choir, were also provided. Church 'phones for the assistance of those who do not hear distinctly were presented to the church by Mrs. Harry Webber, in memory of her husband, and the "Others" class, in memory of Miss Daisy Webber. Four rooms in the church which were not used have been put in order and are now occupied by the large adult classes.

A pulpit Bible presented in memory of Mrs. James Montgomery by her husband, Mr. James Montgomery, and her daughter, Miss Maymee Montgomery, is also much appreciated. Urns also of unusual design were given by the Women's Association.

These facts, and others which could also be given, indicate the help of God through the years. Like Samuel, we too declare: "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us." The work of the past is now beyond recall. We sincerely hope that when it is submitted to the severest of all tests that it will appear that we have built together, on the one enduring foundation, Jesus Christ, and of gold, silver, and costly stones, instead of hay, wood, and stubble.

Exhortation and Encouragement.

"Wherefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast and unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, inasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord."

The exhortation of this text was needed then and is greatly needed to-day. When Paul visited the churches of Asia Minor he confirmed believers and exhorted them to continue in the faith. The Ephesian Christians he commanded to 'stand,' having put on the whole armor of God. Jesus also exhorted His followers to continue. Back of these words was a knowledge of the needs of men more perfect than that of any other. Listen to what He said to believers: "If we continue in My word then are ye My disciples indeed." "He that endureth unto the end shall be saved." Almost His last words before His death were these: "Continue ye in My love." To continue, to endure, to abide in His love, one must labor.

This continuance is to be in "The work of the Lord." You may be very busy and persevering and yet your efforts may not be linked with the work of the Lord. You may be very loyal in word to this or that pastor, to this man or some other who stands at the head of a faction or a solid force for righteousness, to this institution which is under the fire of criticism or to some other that is not, and yet be far away from the work of the Lord. The Lord's work finds its centre in Christ and His Church, and its circumference in the world with its appalling needs.

Your greatest opportunity to abound in the work of the Lord is in connection with the church of which you are a believing member. There is work for every one, in every church of our city, and if you will, you can be of great service.

Encouragement.

This is the word of encouragement: "Inasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." Every bit of real work in the interest of mankind is of real value. There will be benefit from it and one will be with the Lord a builder of that kingdom of goodwill, of righteousness and peace which will know no end. The Lord's laborers are all paid in the coin of heaven. Workers, one and all, you are associated with Christ, with the good of all the past, and you will be connected with His servants in all the future! See to it that you do your part well! Look unto Jesus the Master workman! His directions daily study and ever follow."

DAINTINESS

"DAINTINESS is the keynote of this age . . . not that spurious and soiled 'daintiness' of smudgy and scented deodorants . . . but the genuine cleanliness of warm water and soft, foaming Lux suds—that freshness of April showers and of bayberry skies. This, and this only, is the daintiness of immaculate women—everywhere!"

This letter was received from Mrs. Harvey Mitchell, R.R. No. 2, Hamilton, Canada.

Nothing could be a more fitting aid to daintiness than a complete wardrobe of washables, kept constantly refreshed by the exclusive use of Lux.

SHORT COURSE BY POULTRY MEN

Large Attendance at Two Days of Lectures at Norwood.

A very successful two day poultry short course under the auspices of the Asphodel Egg Circle, and the Ontario Department of Agriculture concluded here on Friday. In spite of the condition of the roads, there was a large attendance of farmers, there being an average of 68 for each day. John Clarke, the well-known poultry breeder of Cainsville, and F. H. Buker, of Brockville, were the lecturers.

Subjects taken up were:

The Profitable Farm Flock.

Equipment required for a farm flock of 100 to 200 laying hens.

Feeding laying hens and flock management.

Brooding and rearing chicks.

Markets and Marketing Poultry Products.

Mr. Clarke advised any one contemplating starting in the poultry business, in order to build up a profitable farm flock to start with good foundation stock of the breed one likes, but of a high producing egg laying strain. The male should be purchased from a recognized and reputable breeder. Early hatched chicks are also an essential for a profitable flock. June hatched chicks, said Mr. Clarke, were unprofitable. In hatching chicks it is necessary to-day to use an incubator, as the day for using the hen for this purpose is past. Another essential for a profitable flock is culling which should be done in June or July. The hen which lays less than 100 eggs per year is not a profitable one and should be culled out.

In discussing the equipment required, Mr. Clarke advised a cheap house, which should not cost more than from $1.00 to $1.50 per bird to build. The house should be well ventilated and free from draughts.

With reference to markets, Mr. Buker of Brockville, in comparing the consumption of eggs per capita of the different countries of the world, quoted from statistics that Canada leads the world with a per capita consumption during 1926 of 337 eggs, while its next nearest competitor was 100 less. Canada at the present time, said Mr. Buker, is not producing nearly enough eggs for its own requirements. At the World's Poultry Congress which is to be held at Ottawa next Summer, one of the big features will be to impress the foreign delegates with Canada's consumption and have them return home enthused with the idea of building up their home market, which in turn will reflect favorably on the Canadian producer.

MAN TO BE TRIED FOR HURTING BOY

Lad Lies in Home Near Cobalt, Weak From Loss of Blood.

COBALT, March 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Roger Emden, 10 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Emden, Mileage 104, is at his home in a weak condition from loss of blood, and Mike Gleason, a neighbor, is held on $2,000 bail to appear in court next week on a charge of inflicting grievous bodily harm to the boy. It is alleged that when the lad threw snowballs at Gleason's house, the occupant ran out, carrying a pair of scissors, and that he caught up young Emden, the points of the shears entering the boy's flesh underneath one arm. The boy had a narrow escape from bleeding to death, it is stated. Gleason appeared before the Magistrate on Saturday and was remanded for a week.

SHIPWRECKED MEN ARRIVE AT HALIFAX

Eight Survivors of Schooner On Way Home After Disaster.

HALIFAX, March 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Captain W. E. Rutledge and seven men, survivors from the four-masted Boston schooner 'G. Noyes,' which foundered in a gale some 2,000 miles off Virginia, on the fringe of the Gulf stream, over a week ago, arrived here yesterday on the White Star liner 'Regina,' en route to their homes in the United States. Three men were lost from the Noyes when the huge ship, loaded with creosoted railroad ties, turned on her beam ends and went to pieces and the survivors spent four days and nights on a piece of wreckage before being taken off by the steamer 'Topeka' and later transferred to the 'Regina.'

Just accept, please, this remarkable dental test. Note how "off-color" teeth go. Note how delicate gums become firm when DINGY FILM is removed

THAT cloudy teeth, yellowish, discolored teeth, can be made whiter and toneless gums firmed is now an accepted fact. Foremost dentists of the world are widely urging this new method. You can have clean, pretty teeth and gums like coral if you will start today.

This is accomplished by combating a viscous film that covers teeth. A stubborn, hard-to-remove film that old-type dentifrices did not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you can feel this film. Under it are the clear, attractive teeth you envy in others. Combat it, and your teeth become many shades whiter—more glistening.

The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. They, with tartar, are the common cause of pyorrhea. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth, you can't have firmer, prettier gums unless you combat that film.

How they hold their trade

"NO," said Mr. S. to the travelling salesman as he entered, "I have just placed my order by telephone."

Back in the wholesale warehouse the Long Distance order was received at 4.25 p.m. It was shipped at 5.10 p.m. The order was a long one and the charge for Long Distance was $4.25, but this expense amounted to only one-third of 1 per cent of the sale.

This convincing example of the wonderful service to customers Long Distance makes possible—quoted from the subscriber's own statement—is only one of many in our files.

Willingness to pay such trifling percentages to secure orders by Long Distance coupled with such almost instantaneous service, is an effectual bar to competition.

LIGHTS AT LAST.

Although the legislation will not come into effect until October 1st, in order to give those affected a chance to secure the necessary equipment, the Ontario Legislature has at last passed an amendment to the Highways Act making it compulsory for vehicles of all kinds to be illuminated after dusk.

For years Automobile Associations, the Safety First League and the press of the Province have sought to have this safety first legislation passed, but in spite of the number of accidents in which unilluminated horse-drawn vehicles were involved, rural opposition to the proposal was so strong that no progress was made.

However, the necessary amendment has been finally approved, and when it comes into effect one element of danger on the highway will have been removed.

Motorists will, and farmers should, breathe easier in the knowledge that this menace has been eliminated.

A GOOD THING ALL AROUND.

The success of the new policy inaugurated by the Canadian General Electric Company by which employees of the company were given a chance to become shareholders is gratifying not only to the officials of the C. G. E. but generally, inasmuch as a wise investment on the part of a large number of local citizens is a good thing for the whole community.

With the subscription lists closing tomorrow, it is estimated that 50 per cent. of the local employees will have taken advantage of the offer; up to the middle of last week 42 per cent. of the shop personnel here had purchased a total of 2,500 shares, an investment of $125,000, and meaning dividends to the investors of at least $10,000 for the first year.

The response must be a matter of satisfaction to officials of the company, who in inaugurating the plan had no stock-selling scheme in mind, but merely sought to provide a safe and profitable investment for their employees and to give them a greater interest in the affairs of the company.

The readiness with which their offer was taken advantage of by the company's employees is a very healthy sign, and the plan promises to be from all viewpoints a most gratifying success.

SHIFTING THE BURDEN.

The report that the Ontario Government is considering the advisability of decreasing the automobile license fee and increasing the gasoline tax in order to put the burden of road maintenance upon those who use the roads the most is not surprising.

"It is a matter of placing the burden where it belongs," is the explanation given by Hon. G. S. Henry, Minister of Highways.

Undoubtedly, it is possible to make out a very strong case in favour of such a policy.

Motorists in rural districts and in the northern part of the Province where winter driving is almost impossible have under the present system to pay the same license as the man who is able to drive his car twelve months in the year.

A lower license fee and a higher gasoline tax would correct this situation to some extent, as motorists would pay in accordance with the extent to which they used the roads.

At the same time an increased gasoline tax would mean that the thousands of motor tourists who visit Ontario every year would help to pay for road maintenance—in fact, the revenue from such a source would be a very welcome contribution.

THE HEALTH ASSOCIATION.

An illumining glimpse of the splendid work that is being carried on by the Peterborough Health Association was furnished by the reports given at the annual meeting and published in The Examiner on Saturday.

It is only indeed when such reports are supplied the public that a full appreciation of just what the association's activities mean to the community is arrived at by the citizens.

The reports of the summer camp and of the work done by the association's nurse comprise a modest and uncoloured recital of a splendid year's effort.

The Examiner hopes that every citizen has read the record of what was accomplished last year by the association in order that the value of such an organization may be fully realized.

The summer camp at Jackson Park provided an outing, under conditions that gave under-nourished children every chance to improve their state of health, to 140 youngsters during the two months, with an average daily attendance of 53.

That in itself was an achievement that calls for general support for the association.

But the camp is only one activity.

The work of the association's nurse is indicated by the fact that 1,370 visits were paid during the year, covering obstetrical, medical, minor surgical and tuberculous cases, one patient being visited daily for six months.

The value of the service provided in maternity cases cannot well be estimated.

Not only does the nurse visit the home daily for ten to fourteen days after confinement and care for the infant as well as for the mother, but expectant mothers receive pre-natal instructions that are of great assistance.

With the importance of this and similar work being done by the association generally recognized, the report of E. J. H. Vanston, the Treasurer, should not pass unnoticed.

The Treasurer estimates the expenditure this year, if the programme of last year is repeated, at $3,439.33, of which sum $885.51 was available in the bank at the beginning of the year, and adds: "With estimated receipts the same as last year, you will have just about enough funds to take care of everything without having anything for the camp."

The Examiner is confident that the people of Peterborough would not care to see any of the activities of the association abandoned, and that they are prepared to support any effort that may be made to raise the funds necessary to balance this year's budget.

Last year, owing to the fact that the association was able to start with a bank balance of $3,338.68, the public was not called upon for assistance.

THE UNITED STATES FARM RELIEF MEASURE.

The action of President Coolidge in refusing assent to the McNary-Haugen bill—the so-called farm relief measure—has apparently met with wide approval in the United States. In fact, it does not seem to have had much support except from those whom it was designed to directly benefit, and many of them were not sure as to its effects. By way of comment the National City Bank in New York says:

"If there was any guaranty that the scheme would not prove harmful the plea to give it a trial would have weight, one who believes that it would make the farm situation worse would not be justified in accepting it. A sensible person does not try a quack remedy on a member of his family whose life might be imperilled simply to see how it would work. The President refuses to have any part in the enactment of a law which he thoroughly believed would be harmful to the very people said to be in dire need of help.

"The bill was hopeless as a relief measure because it violated fundamental principles. It was an attempt to cure a surplus by subsidizing it, to maintain the status quo in production in the face of evidence that there was need for readjustments. Its advocates created a strong presumption against themselves by the references to the price-fixing experiments of other countries, which all show that price-regulation inevitably fails unless accompanied by production-control, which is not provided for in this measure. It requires no profound knowledge of economics to convince a practical person that if any product is produced in excess of the demand for it, so that an increasing surplus is carried over from one crop year to another, the Government cannot continue to buy the surplus indefinitely. It will pile up in the visible supply, and eventually the policy will have to be abandoned.

"Two-thirds of the normal crop of cotton will be carried over from the present crop year into the next, and who will venture to say that the establishment of a Government Board to fix the price backed by the United States Treasury, would not enhance the prospect of a still larger carry-over next year?"

To Canada the President's action is certainly a relief, for whatever happened in the United States the measure could scarcely have helped Canada. That the bill got as far as it did shows that experimental legislation comes up across the line just as it does here, and schemes for controlling markets have not been entirely killed by war-time experience.—Monetary Times.

THE BILL COOLIDGE VETOED.

The press has been filled with articles on President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill and of the possible consequences of that act in the next presidential election. Few of the articles explain precisely what it was that President Coolidge vetoed.

The McNary-Haugen bill was a bill to control the price of United States farm products for the benefit of United States farmers. In other words, price-fixing. Its most easily comprehended elements were:

1. There should be a Farm Board—a great Government brokerage corporation. Its members to be appointed by the President from nominations made by various farm organizations.
2. The Farm Board was to be handed over $250,000,000 of Government money.
3. When the Farm Board saw fit to do so, it should declare that more of a certain crop had been produced than the United States could consume.
4. It would then determine how great the surplus was, and proceed to dispose of the surplus by
   (a) buying the surplus and holding it against whatever price it could get.

5. The loss and expense of the Farm Board's operations were to be paid by an equalization fee. This fee was to be collected as an internal tax on every unit of the crop in question—bushel, bale or pound.
6. The plan was to be labelled an experiment. If it succeeded, it would take nothing directly out of the Government purse; as the equalization fee would pay all. If it failed, the Government would lose the $250,000,000 capital, and whatever other capital it might later put into it.

The arguments used against the bill were that it was price-fixing, a species of communism; that it would do the farmer no good, because as soon as higher prices were created for a crop, more of that crop would be produced and the last state become worse than the first; and that it would give occasion for graft.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It won't be long now until the people who are writing about the slushy streets will be filling the Voice of the People column with fretful complaints about unoiled roads.

The proposal in Rome to boycott husbands whose wives dress immodestly is barely just.

Belleville's proposal to spend $550,000 on a combined Collegiate Institute and Technical School makes Peterborough's building programme along the same lines appear very modest indeed.

A patient in a Kansas City hospital was robbed by bandits who were evidently working fast to get in ahead of the doctor's bill.

"Bass cannot be caught until July 1," reads a newspaper heading. And from past experience, they cannot be caught very easily after that date either.

The impression gained from some of The Toronto Star's articles that a tourist is an individual who motors all day and spends his nights breaking furniture in his hotel bedroom.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 14 (Canadian Press)—Export sales here and at the Gulf of Mexico brought about a late upturn in wheat values on Saturday, largely overcoming earlier declines. Wheat finished irregular, 3-8c net lower to 1-4 and 3-8c advance, corn 1-8c and 1-4c off to 7-8c up; oats at 3-8c to 3-4c gain, and provisions varying from 2c decline to a rise of 5c.

Corn and oats closed strong and at about the best prices of the day. Stormy weather and slackening of receipts of corn were chiefly responsible. There was talk, too, of export business in oats.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, March 14 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here Saturday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.85 11-16.
Sterling cables $4.86 1-4.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL March 14 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in Canadian grain on the local market Saturday was again of a very limited character, there being practically no demand from any source.

Trading in cash grain in the domestic market was also slow, the demand being only for odd cars to meet actual wants, but the undertone was steady.

The movement of Spring and winter wheat flour was small, but prices ruled firm.

A fairly active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone was steady. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and the feeling was still unsteady.

An easier feeling developed in the egg market and prices were reduced 1c per dozen. This was attributed to the increased importations from the United States, and the larger receipts of Canadian grades. The receipts were 403 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade and the undertone was easy. The receipts were 119 boxes.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

A REFRESHING GESTURE

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

The report of Secretary Mellon on the state of finances in the country and the conclusions drawn therefrom are refreshing. He finds that we have had an era of unexampled prosperity and sees no reason why this prosperity should not continue.

Perhaps these facts were well known to most of us and we have all been enjoying the good state of things in America. But the question comes with regard to our financial state of well being, what shall we do with it? It is one thing to be rich and have the strength of a financial giant, but it is another thing to use that strength wisely.

A man may be strong physically. He may use this strength to lift a piano or to be a prize fighter or to be a thug. How he shall use his strength is a very vital question.

There is quite an element in the United States that insists we should keep aloof from the rest of the world, we should build up high walls of protective tariff, abstain from the League of Nations and will go it alone, leaving the rest of the world to work out its own salvation.

This point of view is not especially beautiful. It is too selfish, and in the end selfishness does not pay.

Many a business man has found out in his career that it pays him to be thoughtful, courteous and helpful to all with whom he comes in contact, for he never knows when he is going to need friends and the time to make friends is during our fat years.

A great deal of talk is made about American safety. One of the greatest elements of safety in a Nation is to have the good-will of other Nations. It is because France had the friendship of the greater part of the world that she was enabled to resist Germany in the late war. The battles with Germany were not won by the prowess of the French alone, although they are a brave people, but the fact that England, the United States and Japan and almost every other nation, sprang to her defense.

Good-will may seem to be a very intangible thing measured in dollars and cents, but it is the strongest staff to lean upon in times of crisis.

If America now uses her immense wealth to help to stabilize the world she is going to win the good-will of other nations.

If she uses it merely to enhance her own conditions at the expense of other people it will be found to be a short-sighted policy.

Being decent pays.

Being generous pays.

And it pays a man or a nation when strong to come to the aid of the weak. This should be done generously and promptly and not grudgingly nor by force.

Mr. Mellon points out the extraordinary position in which the United States is placed as being the creditor nation of the world and intimates that it is time for us to use this unexampled position to aid the world in its finances. No better means for defending the nation in time of war can be found than for that nation to observe the Golden Rule in time of peace.

PROTEINS WHICH ARE NOT GOOD

If one were marooned on a desert island and could get no other proteins than the ones listed below, it would, of course, be possible for them to live a long time on these unwholesome foods, but as all of you can secure the best proteins by simply calling your grocer or butcher, I consider it unwise for you to ever use the following proteins:

HEART, KIDNEYS, LUNGS AND LIVERS of various animals and fowls are often used for food, but these meats contain many poisonous substances which cause more trouble in the body than the good received from the small amount of protein nourishment which they contain. The odor from a kidney stew is the same odor as that from boiled urine, and is an evidence of the large amount of urea contained in the kidney tissue. At death, the liver is literally choked with poisons and they cannot be eliminated by any method of cooking. The lungs, likewise, are eliminative organs and contain certain poisons which, during life, they eliminate in the form of gas. As soon as the animal stops breathing, the sudden cessation of lung action makes these poisons accumulate and they cannot be removed afterwards by any method of preparation.

SMOKED AND PICKLED TONGUE are not desirable foods because of their seasoning.

PORK SAUSAGE should never be used for food, even if it is made in the best way at home, as the large amount of fat renders the protein indigestible. In some cases, even days after sausage has been eaten it will cause ptomaine poisoning, because the protein particles have not been digested, due to their being covered up by so much fat.

BOLOGNA AND HOT DOG are generally not made from the best of meat and usually are too highly seasoned with garlic, etc., to make desirable food.

CORNED BEEF is usually prepared from beef meat which cannot be used for any other purpose, and a large amount of saltpeter is used in its preparation. This has a depressing effect upon the sexual functions and is injurious to the system in many ways.

PICKLED PIGS' FEET contain very little protein and interfere with the digestion of other food, because of the vinegar used in their preparation.

LIMBERGER CHEESE is full of putrefactive bacteria and is a rotting, unwholesome cheese, which only adds to the poisonous bacteria usually found in excess in the intestines of most people.

CANNED FISH is subject to rapid changes after being removed from the can and must be used at once, and not held over, for another meal, after the can has been opened.

Avoid all of these unwholesome foods as long as you can purchase the good ones in the meat market or grocery store.

The Proof of the Pudding

Many arguments are made against Osteopathy—rather futile, begging-the-question sort of arguments—advanced by persons either inspired by self-interest or actuated by sheer ignorance and prejudice. According to their pronouncement, "there's just nothing to it."

The irrefutable argument against all such mouthy fatuousness lies in the fact that there are in the United States and Canada hundreds of small villages and towns wherein Osteopathy has been practiced by the same individuals for periods of from fifteen to thirty years, with a large and constantly growing clientele.

These hard-headed, practical village and farm folk have given Osteopathy the acid test; have tried it out in the crucible of actual experience in the office and at the bedside, and have not found it wanting.

COUNCIL APPROVES CHILDREN'S FILMS

'White List' of Good Pictures Prepared By Child Welfare Board.

The Canadian Council on Child Welfare has just embarked on an interesting experiment in the publication of a "White List" of approved motion pictures. This list includes over a hundred titles of well known films which the Council has listed for showing to children or family groups. These pictures have been carefully selected from thousands of titles. They have also been checked through screen estimates and reviews. The Canadian Motion Picture Distributors' Association has collaborated in the preparation of the list, which includes both British and United States' films.

The Censor Boards of all the Canadian provinces have co-operated cordially in the experiment, which represents months of careful, painstaking inquiry by the Child Welfare Council. The listings include well-known dramatic films, comedies, travel tales, etc. They also list Canadian and Ontario educational and travel productions.

Additional copies will be issued from time to time if the experiment proves successful.

In the selection of the pictures listed, the Council officials state that they have been governed by appreciation of the fact "that the active imagination and interest of the child demand action, stories of romance, adventure, sport, and unreality, but every endeavor has been made to eliminate any picture containing unwholesome features or tending to excercise an unwholesome influence in the child's mind. Films of all types which are so handled as to show evil in its proper perspective that it may not dwarf what is good and sound and such as are free from sordid, sensual, brutal and criminal detail unduly stressed are included in those aproved."

Copies of the list are being supplied to every motion picture theatre in Canada through the co-operation of the Distributors' Association.

Copies of the list will be sent free upon request, made to the Canadian Council on Child Welfare, Plaza Building, Ottawa, Ontario.

A Public Question

The Examiner, interested, as always, in the civic welfare, and eager to serve the public good, feels itself justified in offering the people of Peterborough an opportunity to express themselves on the issue raised by R. R. Hall, K.C.

There is no doubt but that the operation of the street railway and the other utilities are vital questions to every citizen, and by ascertaining the public mind on this matter, The Examiner believes that it will be rendering a public service.

Citizens are requested to signify on the appended form their opinion as to whether a public meeting should be held, at which they will have an opportunity to discuss these vital matters. The forms can be mailed, or dropped in The Examiner letter-box, addressed to "The Editor, The Examiner."

To the Editor of The Examiner:

I am in favor of a public meeting at which citizens can discuss ways in which to keep the street railway running, to reduce the gas prices, to reduce power prices, and to assure the city of a supply of power that will keep pace with industrial development.

GEORGE O'BRIEN REAL COMEDIAN IN "FIG LEAVES"

Fox Star Given Chance To Create Laughs In New Film.

One of the most completely equipped plumbing shops ever used in a motion picture production was erected by Fox Films for "Fig Leaves," an original story written and directed by Howard Hawks in which George O'Brien has the leading masculine role. Dainty Olive Borden is seen opposite the stalwart star. "Fig Leaves" is now at the Regent Theatre.

In the plumbing shop sequences, O'Brien is shown in some highly amusing scenes with Miss Borden, but it is in a number of intimate close shots with Charles Conklin that he shows a phase of character hitherto hidden in his screen appearances.

"Oddly," said Mr. Hawks, "George felt he had no bent for little tricks of this kind, but with Conklin and Miss Borden in the plumbing shop, we succeeded in uncovering some laughs which made even the electricians and grips chuckle. There were odds and ends in every nook and corner, for the shop was very practical, and it was our desire to make the best possible use of these. The scenes wherein Miss Borden, with a woman's inherent desire for clothing, made a demand for a larger financial allowance were especially conducive to quiet humor."

It was in these scenes that Conklin, the all-wise plumbers' helper, tells George how to manage women. His smart remarks gave O'Brien ample opportunity for some clever comebacks.

GOOD TRAFFIC WORK.

The traffic committee of the Canadian National Millers' Association contemplates holding more frequent meetings than has been its custom, and will probably get together hereafter at least once a month. Its next meeting may be held at London, Ont., on March 18. This committee handles an immense amount of work for the association, and it would be difficult to compute the value in money of what it has already done for the Canadian milling industry. E. V. Morphet, Peterborough, Ont., traffic manager of the Quaker Oats Co., is the committee's chairman for the current year. He and his predecessors in that office have devoted themselves without stint to the general good and welfare of Canadian mills in all things relating to freight rates, and there is not a miller in Canada who has not benefitted very substantially as a result of the good work this committee has done.

A Reporter's Appreciation

This is a little acknowledgment to Peterborough County Council.

It is melancholy paradox that one usually has to leave home to appreciate it. And this common experience applies perhaps with equal truth to the city and county of ours, and likewise to city councils and county councils.

We in Peterborough have heard too long and too much about an implied if not assumed superiority of the councils of counties around us. Pleasant and inoffensive rumor and probably not intentional propaganda these opinions may be, but certainly they are not true.

Peterborough County is not as rich as most of its neighbors, but it can be proud of its public buildings, court house and jail, house of refuge and so on. And one of the most glaring points of difference is found in what many persons might regard as a wholly negligible obligation, and that is accommodation for the press. This may be a factor which might prejudice the opinions of newspaper men, but as a matter of fact Peterborough County Council deserves thanks and congratulation for their splendid and generous treatment as compared with at least four counties nearby.

Long, spacious quartered oak tables and oak chairs are furnished within the court by the County Council of Peterborough and with the approval of the court authorities.

In Cobourg and Belleville newspapermen are hardly tolerated, one might conclude from the scant and shabby elbow room that is supplied. The Northumberland Court Chamber affords one table which is required for the most part by the lawyers, those engaged on cases, and those who are only auditors but claim and are perhaps entitled to a ringside seat.

Hastings County at Belleville provides a couple of narrow tables, which are not conducive to comfort and facility of reporters. They are beyond the pale of the railing that encloses the principals in the court dramas, and the newspaper men are often lucky to hear undertoned evidence.

Apparently the press in these places, not to mention others, are satisfied and if they are content, why should outsiders grumble? But being accustomed to the advantages Peterborough County has provided, Peterborough reporters have to visit around Central Ontario to realize more appreciatively the little, necessary conveniences they enjoy in their home county court quarters.

And as for the councils themselves, it is easy to find more swank, airs, and that sort of thing than Peterborough's council assumes, but nowhere can you find a better spirit than that which has pervaded Peterborough County Council sessions, and it has never been said that a reeve or deputy-reeve in this county was either elected or defeated, preferred or black-balled because of his politics.

Probably Peterborough County Council might preen itself a little more than it does, but that is only a matter of manners which leads in the direction of snobbishness. Of more intrinsic importance is the soundness of its spirit and its attitude to one another.

Roving about the district is reassuring that none of the neighbors is superior to Peterborough County Council. It is doubtful if some of them, considering all things, are its equal.

John Duncan mails $200 to himself each Year

THE envelope which carries this money is addressed to the North American Life Assurance Company. The $200 is John Duncan's annual payment on his Four Way Policy. But John Duncan knows that he is actually sending the money to himself. Whatever happens in the future, he or his family will benefit directly from the $200 he puts away each year.

Here's how his Four Way Policy operates:

(1) The $200 he sends each year represents so much money saved. When the time comes for him to retire he is absolutely sure of a regular income on which he will live in comfort and independence.
(2) If he becomes unable to work through sickness or an accident, he will receive a monthly income of $100 as long as he lives.
(3) When he dies his family will receive $10,000.
(4) If his death is accidental his family will receive $20,000.

No system of saving or buying protection for the future covers so completely the four emergencies of Life and makes such perfect provision for the comfort of one's self and one's family as this Four Way Policy.

By putting away a modest sum each year for yourself on this Plan you can be sure that the future is fully provided for.

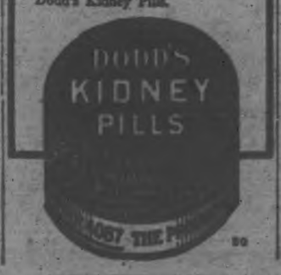
Bad Backache Relieved After Seven Years

John Hallahan Now Praises Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I have been subject to a bad back for the last seven or eight years," states Mr. J. Hallahan, a well known resident of Princeton, Nfld. "I have tried all kinds of medicines but have found them no good. My wife was reading your Almanac and found where lots of people were relieved of complaints like mine, so I got two boxes and now I am feeling much better. I recommend your Dodd's Kidney Pills to all who suffer with backache like I did." Other sufferers tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills.



GANGLAND ENDS CHICAGO TRUCE

Two Lieutenants of One Leader Riddled By Machine Gun Fire.

TIP-OFF BLAMED.

CHICAGO, March 14.—(Canadian Press).—Gangland's truce has ended. Two henchmen of Joe Saltis, who recently signed a peace pact with members of a rival band of liquor gangsters were slain late last night when they were riddled with machine gun bullets, poured into their automobile on the west side. The belief exists that Saltis himself may have been the intended victim of the fusillade, as the car in which his slain lieutenants were riding belonged to the south side gang leader.

The recent arrest of four men who were siphoning whiskey from a government warehouse holding a million dollars worth of pre-prohibition liquor was believed to have started gangland seething. Rumors were prevalent that the arrests were the result of a tip off of liquor rivals.

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS

A subscriber has sent us a portion of an old, time-yellowed copy of the Orillia "Expositor," dated Friday, 6th of August, 1869, which conveys a little keyhole view of the life and happenings of times of over half a century back. In it are the dignified advertisements of those days, the formal announcements that "Mr. O'Brien has just received some of the latest English and French Fashions," and that business in the same will be conducted on a cash basis. W. Bingham says that as he is determined to make Orillia noted for heap hardware, he will sell a large and very fine assortment of brass and enamelled kettles for preserving, at the very lowest prices; and Gribbin and McLaughlin make the potent query, in advertising their wares: "Why is Gribbin and McLaughlin's new grocery, liquor and provision store (next to Slaven's) so continuously crowded by eager and delighted customers?"

The advertisements of staples included such things as 26 pounds of rice for $1; 25 lbs. new currants for $1; 14 lbs. new raisins or 13 lbs. best Turkey prunes at the same price, while 14 yards of print or 10 yards of good grey cotton may be purchased for a dollar also; and as for drinkables, one might have had in those days, the choice of 5 gallons best malt whiskey, 5 gallons best old rye, or 5 gallons best toddy for $4 each; 5 gallons of port wine or of sherry wine for $4.75, 5 gallons ginger wine, 5 gallons brandy, 5 gallons of rum or 5 gallons of O.T. gin for $5; and "good common whiskey" is offered at 62 cents a gallon, by the barrel.

Other advertisements deplore the loss of Rev. Dr. Mark's pony, whose height is 56 inches, also of a yoke of red oxen, each with a star on its forehead. The easiness of those far-off days is indicated in the announcement that "a number of local items and communications and other interesting matter is deferred until next week.

Under the heading of "Let Orillia Flourish!" appears a lengthy report of a meeting called to consider an extension of the P. H., L. and B. Railroad, and the enthusiasm manifested over this project. It says that the meeting was well attended by the "yeomen of North Simcoe, Mara and Rama," and after five columns of very small type have been devoted to this report, one gentleman is recorded as having said that "the subject had been so thoroughly exhausted that it would be perfectly uncalled for, were he to attempt to add anything more," a statement probably in accord with the minds of his hearers at the moment.

This report refers to the utterances of William Cluxton, Esquire, of Peterborough, vice-president of the road, who "assured the people that Mr. Covert and the company would make no promises that they were not prepared to fulfill." Mr. Cluxton is reported later on as having responded at the banquet which closed the proceedings, to the toast to "The Guests of the Evening," and referred in the course of his remarks to the fact that "Peterborough when but a small place gave 30,000 pounds ($120,000) for railway communication, and her people never had cause to regret her enterprise in doing so. Peterborough and Lindsay were a few years ago small villages, already they are large and growing towns."

With regard to this banquet, the size of the bill of fare is interesting to note. The painstaking scribe who reported this gathering says: "The banquet had been announced to take place. In the large dining room of the hotel three large tables had been laid, and they were quickly surrounded by as many as they could accomodate with comfort. The dinner was got up in first class style, and received that justice which well got up dinners invariably receive from appreciative epicures who have been compelled to wait a couple of hours after the hour at which they are in the habit of dining. Later on, he says: "After the more urgent part of the proceedings had been concluded, the "feast of reason and flow of"—wine, was commenced by the chairman."

The bill of fare follows: Boiled—Chicken, Tongue, Cold Ham, Leg Mutton, Pork. Roasts—Beef, Leg Mutton, Leg Lamb, Loin Mutton, Leg Veal, Turkey, Chicken, Duck. Vegetables—Potatoes, Cabbage, Carrots, Cauliflower, Turnips, Beans, Pease, Beets. Relishes—Celery, radishes, cucumbers, fresh tomatoes, onions, lettuce, cress, mixed pickles, pickled beets, Worcestershire sauce, mushroom catsup, tomato catsup, mint sauce. Pastry—Cherry pie, raspberry pie, plum cake, mountain cake, marble cake, lemon tart, strawberry pie, silver cake, jelly cake, white cookies, ginger snaps and wine cakes. Dessert—Blanc mange, strawberry jam, raspberry jam, plum jam, cherries, almonds, raisins, figs. Ales—Bass and Company's, Jeffrey's, Pale Ales, Edinboro Ale, Guiness' Dublin Stout. Wines—Green Seal, Sparkling Hock, Grand Vin Imperial, Pale and Brown Sherry, Fine Old Crested Port, Myatt and Claret.

Under the Hammer

THE late F. W. Woolworth, of five and ten-cent store fame, left an estate of fifty million dollars. But his widow was obliged to sell his home in New York City to provide the ready money with which to pay Inheritance Taxes.

If, at the time of your death, your total worldly possessions have a value of $50,000 or more, your executors will be called upon to pay out—promptly and in spot cash—a very substantial sum of money to cover your Succession Duties (otherwise called Inheritance Taxes). In some cases the amount exempted from this Tax is only $25,000, and the tendency is for such levies to become heavier as time goes on.

Not many estates are of such a nature that any considerable proportion of them could be turned into cash on short notice without serious losses resulting, particularly if business conditions or the state of the money market should be unfavorable at the time the money is needed.

If you had a business obligation of several thousands—or even hundreds—of dollars to meet some years hence, would you not commence now making provision for meeting it? Well, if you are even moderately well off, Succession Duties will constitute a first charge against your estate at your death. Have you made a provision for meeting that obligation?

An Imperial Policy offers a most convenient method of providing for Succession Duties. Ask us to tell you all about it.

CLUBS CITADELS

Legislature Takes Sides With Chinese in Clash With British.

From Burma to Persia Observer Caught the Rumble of an Approaching Storm—Officers' Clubs Turned Into Citadels and Women Kept Within Bounds—Legislature Takes Sides With Chinese in Clash With British—Trouble With Afghanistan Expected in the Spring.

BY UPTON CLOSE

India is a melting pot of nations, filled to the brim with the seething broth of revolt. British officers' and civilians' clubs are today little citadels with stored-up provisions guarded by machine guns. While the British look on in pretended detached superiority at the Indian parties, contending among themselves for the newly created electorate, they do not disguise their real apprehensions over the fact that every one of these parties has as its ultimate aim ejection of the British. Regulations all over India, not spoken of publicly, but enforced rigidly in private, forbid officers' wives and other British women to stray more than ten minutes distance from the post.

I journeyed through Inkia from Rangoon to the Baluchistan border. I visited the headquarters of the parties at Allahabad. I watched an election in swarming Calcutta. I visited the session of the Council of Princes, England's gilded upper chamber at Delhi for the millionaire princes, and I traveled along the famed border among the hillmen of the north.

From Burma to Persia I caught the rumble of an approaching storm. Almost every Englishman you meet candidly admits the British are preparing to get out of India, yet every action of the all-responsible Indian Government betokens that it is not so easy to demobilize this immense experiment in alien government without making added and feverish efforts to stay.

Show Sympathy With Chinese.

The Swaraj party gained at the recent elections, which means that determined nationalism, if for the moment non-violent, has become the order of the day throughout India. The country has begun to think and act like an independent nation. The Indian Nationalist Congress passed a resolution of support for the Chinese nationalist movement. It has recently protested threateningly against the dispatch of British troops to China.

Russians, as you find everywhere, are insinuating this common destiny idea into the minds of the great Asiatic nationalist movements—a most portentous threat for the future. They are also provoking a more disquieting "co-operation" on the Afghan border, where, it was believed on every hand while I was in India, an extensive recurrence of border raids will break out this spring, which may necessitate another punitive expedition against Afghanistan. The greatest mobilization of "tanks" in history waits on the border, reinforced by airplanes, while Afghanistan replies by creating an airforce through Russian assistance.

So grave is the problem of holding India becoming that at the present time a very strong school of thought has grown up among the British community in favor of setting the rest of the Indian Empire adrift, save a few of the valuable smaller states, and cling only to Burma. There is much plausibility in this idea. Out of every 100 rupees of taxes paid in Burma, 76, it is said, are spent in making up deficits over the rest of India. From Burma come tea, lead, tin, teak, oil and the allurements of a vast general trade which is the cream of possessorship in India. Burma produces 300,000,000 gallons of refined gasoline, for instance, per year, gradually increasing with the aid of American extracting machinery of the latest type.

Signs of Trouble in Burma

The Burmese are totally different from the rest of the Indians in racial type—Mongoloid rather than Aryan. They are more docile, much less infected with the secession movement, though this has spread and is spreading with what the British scornfully call "Babu infection" from Bengal across the shallow bay. I found temple restrictions in Burma, however, enforcing on the white man the obligation of taking off his socks as well as his shoes and polluting his sacred white skin with the unparticular temple floors. A host of such small signs in Burma show that the rule of the British carries no more the sacred sanction of Kipling days.

The great Chinese communities of Rangoon and Mandalay are also steady factors in nationalist fermentation. So, in spite of the fact that Home Rule seems to be an innocuous success in Burma, and the chosen province is already marked out for the last British stronghold in India, yet it is at best an unstable peace and in the end, whichever way India goes, Burma will follow.

India is moving toward democracy as well as toward freedom, with the disappearance of the caste-lines and the violent disapprobation of the immensely wealthy princes of the native states, whose subjects are among the most destitute people on earth. I had just attended one of the gilded sessions of these rajahs at Delhi—where the most—when I heard one of the most widely respected Nationalist leaders say, "As soon as the British have stepped out, we will attend to these pampered swine."

Legislature Working for Freedom.

The Indian National Legislature is, of course, expected to support the British. But with its control by the nationalist parties it is bound to become, from the understanding I gathered by talking with leaders of all the parties, more an engine of separation and independence than of complaisant legislation under British direction. Great Britain's experiment of limited self-government in India is working so oppositely to the way intended that many Britishers there advocate its withdrawal at the end of its tentative term in 1929, or sooner. But such a thing is like a marriage proposal—the only way out is to proceed.

During East India Company days Great Britain "lived off of" India. Her trade with India is still more than that with all her white dominions combined. The caravan trade over the 6000 miles of Indian border alone is $500,000,000 a year. The British Isles still take $150,000,000 a year "invisible import" of wealth in the shape of dividends from enterprises—money that never finds its way back to India. But this is small return for the best British blood that goes to India.

"We've Still Got Africa Left!"

As a secretary to the Government at Delhi expressed it to me: "The sooner we get out of here the better off we'll be."

"But what will Britain's field of enterprise be then?" I asked.

"Oh, God always takes care of the Empire," he laughed. "We've still got Africa left!"

The revolt in India against the white man's domination is only a shade less acute than in China. Its prospect of success is to have a united people behind it. And although terrific obstacles of race and religion exist, that prospect is far nearer than most think.

Regardless of the conditions into which the white man believes the countries he governs will go should he leave, he must ultimately accede to the native demand expressed by Manuel Quezon of the Philippines, and equally true of India: "We would rather have a government like hell, and have it our own, than have a Utopia served to us by some one else."

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

The next article in this series will appear in tomorrow's Examiner. It will tell of a new movement by Mahatma Gandhi, India's leader. This movement will be directed against the white man's quantity production and "skyscraper culture."

MISSION CIRCLE HOLDS MEETING

Mrs. T. A. Kidd Made Life Member By Park Street Ladies.

LEAVING CITY.

The regular monthly meeting of Women's Missionary Circle of Park street Baptist church was held Tuesday afternoon, March 8, at the home of Mrs. T. A. Kidd, 259 Reid street. The president, Mrs. George Whatley, was in the hair. The meeting opened with devotional exercises, and a very interesting talk was given by Mrs. W. M. McClelland of Murray street church, which was much enjoyed and appreciated by all. The ladies were then favored with a solo by Mrs. Lorne Campbell, which was beautifully rendered. An interesting feature of the programme was the making of Mrs. Kidd a life member. Mrs. Wright read the address, which was as follows:

Mrs. Kidd—

Dear friend and co-worker in the missionary activities of our church for a number of years, we regret today to say farewell to you and your home, in which we have so often met and enjoyed fellowship together in the work of the Master's kingdom, and as one who served so faithfully and well as president of our Circle one term, and now as our band president, we realize we are losing one who will be greatly missed. Also Phyllis, who has grown up in the Band work and is now a very much appreciated worker, we will miss you very much, and hope occasionally to see you among us as a visitor, as well as to hear of your usefulness in another field of labor. We ask you to accept our making you our life member for 1927 as a parting token of our esteem.

Wishing you and yours every success in your new home. Signed on behalf of Mission Circle—

KINGSTON SAILORS DISCUSS MYSTERY

One Man Offers Explanation For Appearance of Capt. Smith.

KINGSTON, March 14.—There was a good deal of discussion going on here in marine circles regarding the mystery of the late Capt. John Smith, of the schooner George Marsh, which was supposed to have foundered off Pigeon Island, west of Kingston, on August 8, 1917. Local marine men have advanced opinions regarding the apparent escape of Capt. Smith from drowning. One man prominent in marine matters at that time stated today that he believed Capt. Smith was not on the schooner when she foundered. He says the vessel foundered and sank on the night of August 8, 1917, between Pigeon Island and Amherst Island, but that there was no storm at the time. It is his belief, he says, that the captain was not on the vessel, and that the men were unable to navigate her to this port. Further, he states that it would seem that when the captain heard of the accident and the drowning of his entire family, he stayed on the other side of the boundary and made his way west.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

The mysterious letter, copied from the original in Bob Hathaway's neat, small handwriting, like copper-plate engraving, was brief and ominous:

"I'll be out of this hell soon, Cluny, and you've got to make restitution. Ten years of hell from which you might have saved me if you had not lain down on the job. Drunk when you made your summation before the jury. Drunk! Good God! And I've paid by ten years in hell for your spree.

"You cannot give me back the ten years, but I shall hold you to an accounting for the fortune you took from me to defend me. Defend me! God, I could tear out the bars of this damnable place with my bare hands when I think of you and the weak-kneed, doddering, drunken defense plea you put up for me.

"I shall come out a penniless, prematurely old man. But you shall restore to me the fortune you took from me for what no right-minded lawyer would consider a defense. If you do not—but you know me, Cluny. You know that if you do not meet my just demands, you will pay. This is the last warning I shall give you. The next time I will warn you face to face. B."

"What a horrible letter!" Faith's hands quivered away from the sheet with disgust. "It should be easy to trace the writer, darling. Oh, it is a clue, isn't it?"

Bob's face was more grave than she expected it to be. "I'm afraid it won't be so easy as it looks, sweetheart. The original letter was written by a very crafty man. Crazy, of course, but crafty with the cunning of the insane. As you see, there is no date. The original was not ever written. It was done entirely in words and letters cut from a newspaper and pasted upon a sheet of plain white typewriting paper, which hasn't even a watermark to help us."

"But if 'B' was in prison, and had been defended by Mr. Cluny, it is safe to assume that he was in a state prison here, isn't it?" Faith asked.

"He might have been a federal prisoner in Leavenworth or Atlanta, or in some other prison," Bob pointed out. Unfortunately the envelope was not kept."

"But he says this as a 'last warning,'" Faith reminded him. "Didn't you find other letters from him?"

"Not a trace of one," Bob answered gloomily. "Uncle Ralph probably destroyed them or there is a bare possibility that he turned them over to the district attorney. I doubt it, though. Uncle Ralph was not afraid of God, man or the devil. I don't understand how he happened to file this one. Probably dropped into the file basket, instead of destroying it."

"The writer accuses your uncle of having been drunk during the trial," Faith shuddered. "Do you think that's true?"

"I don't believe it for a minute," Bob asserted defiantly. "Uncle Ralph was never a hard drinker, and I never heard of his being drunk on a case, or any other time. This chap has simply brooded until he's lost his mind. He undoubtedly paid Uncle Ralph a big sum of money, and the jury found him guilty. The fact that he was evidently denied a new trial indicates that the supreme court thought the sentence was just."

"What did Churchill say?" Faith asked hopefully.

"Churchill is not inclined to put much stock in the worth of the clue," Bob Hathaway admitted reluctantly. "He says that every lawyer is pestered with crank letters of this sort—written by prisoners who brood over fancied wrongs. Every district attorney receives thousands of threats and never pays any attention to them."

"But isn't Churchill going to trace the sender of this letter?" Faith demanded indignantly. "After all it is a threat, and it was received during the months that Cherry worked for your uncle. It seems to me it should be an easy matter—comparatively easy anyway—for Churchill to check up on all the men defended by Mr. Cluny and sentenced for ten years."

"The sentence was probably indeterminate," Bob pointed out. "Or his term might have been whittled down by good behavior. By the way, there is one thing I didn't tell you. By good fortune the original bears the date it was received. All his letters were stamped with a rubber date stamp and we can be sure Uncle Ralph saw it for it is marked in a corner by his initials. He always initialed letters after reading them, and if he intended to answer them, made a pencilled note or two. There was nothing but his initials, however, on this bird's letter."

"He was sent to prison ten years ago," Faith interrupted impatiently. "Surely not so awfully many of your uncle's clients were sentenced to prison just exactly ten years ago."

"But we don't know how long after the trial he waited for a supreme court ruling on his appeal. But of course Churchill will ferret out the writer of this letter, if it is humanly possible."

"Court records are available," Faith protested. "And you at least have his initial—"

"This bird is crafty," Bob pointed out. "That may not be his initial at all. If he took such pains to conceal his identity from everyone but Uncle Ralph it is at least conceivable that he signed an initial that only Uncle Ralph would recognize. Whoever it is, he isn't taking any chances on getting sent back to prison for blackmail. This letter, if it could be nailed on anyone, would convict him, you know.

"Then as Churchill says, this may be from a completely demented crank, whom Uncle Ralph, if he were alive today, could not possibly identify. But don't look so distressed, child. Of course Churchill is going to investigate. But he doesn't want us to pin much faith on the thing as a clue. He says if I went through the files I would undoubtedly find other such letters."

"How are you sure that this is the one that Cherry remembered?" Faith asked suddenly.

"Because she remembered that it was written as I have described—not written at all, but pasted up from words cut from newspapers. She remembers being interested in it when she filed it, but she says Uncle Ralph was not in his office at that time, and she didn't remember later to speak to him about it. She does say, too, that it was the only threatening letter of its kind that she filed during the time she worked for Uncle Ralph. He had as few enemies as any criminal lawyer ever made, I believe."

"Did she remember if your uncle ever had a visit from a newly released prisoner?" Faith asked, frowning—thoughtfully, at the copy of the letter she still held in her hands.

"Churchill asked her, of course, but she doesn't remember any such visit. Of course such a man might have called and not been noticeable enough to make an impression on her memory. Uncle Ralph saw a lot of callers who did not state their business to his secretary."

"I know!" Faith exclaimed. "Ask Mr. Neff, your uncle's law partner. He ought to know."

LINES WRITTEN ON LEAVING FOR CANADA

By W. D. Packwood.

O! winding lanes of England,
Where'er this world I roam,
Your fragrance and your sweetness,
Will 'ere remind of home.

O! hills and vales of England,
I never can forget,
Your beauties and your splendour,
I'm leaving with regret.

O! scenes so far in England,
When I've departed o'er,
The wide Atlantic ocean,
I'll seem to love you more.

I'm leaving you for Canada,
Where there's a chance for all,
But ever in fond memory,
Old England I'll recall.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The gold and black handle of the umbrella at the left opens to reveal a mirror and powder-puff in the top and a lip-stick is hidden in the tassel. The mauve parasol at the right is fitted with a handle topped with a bunch of painted wooden violets which when taken from the parasol prove to be the holder for a lip-stick.

Handles of some of the new umbrellas serve a double purpose. They may hide a lip-stick and mirror, or a mirror and powder puff while the lip-stick is hidden in the tassel of the umbrella. Some of them serve as cigarette cases.

But this idea of giving the umbrella another use beside that of keeping off the rain in case of a shower is not as new as you may suppose. Some one pointed out the other day that in France in the Revolutionary and Directoire period umbrellas were made to carry all sorts of small objects. They were called parapluie-necessaires, and there was place within them for ink, pens, paper, penknife, compass, a knife and a pair of scissors. These were carried by the men of the period, for in those days the umbrella was hardly considered an accessory of the feminine wardrobe. At least no really fashionable lady carried an umbrella—she stayed home when it rained or went out in a chair or carriage. If she had carried an umbrella doubtless it would have been fitted up with lip-stick, powder, etc.—for cosmetics were as well liked in those days as they are today.

Some of the new umbrellas have handles shaped like the heads of birds and animals. A little knob is pressed and out comes the tongue, which turns out to be a tiny lipstick in disguise.

Some women hold to the more conservative types of umbrella but there is a growing vogue for those with a handle made to resemble the head of beast or bird, fruit or flower. If possible you should choose the animal that you have taken as a mascot. There are elephants, eagles, ostriches, ducks, owls, dogs, cats and many others to choose from. These interesting handles may be found ready attached to some of the less expensive umbrellas, though the woman who spends lavishly on such details as her umbrellas selects a handle from the jewelry shop first and then has it attached to an umbrella of the size and color she desires.

Shortness still seems to be a virtue in umbrellas. The long, thin ferrule is but seldom found and there is a Japanese look to the tip of most of the new umbrellas. It used to be the custom to stand umbrellas up in racks, when not in use—and hence the long ferrule. Now every umbrella is provided with a cord, which serves to pass around the wrist when the umbrella is carried or to use as a loop by which it may be hung when not in use.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR TUESDAY MARCH 15 1927

This should be a fairly fortunate day, according to astrology which finds a benefic star dominant.

Women are well directed under this configuration and they should push all their affairs.

The rule is most fortunate for romance and it gives fair promise for weddings.

There is to be a strong reaction toward sentiment and love-making of the poetic sort, it is foretold.

Great extremes are to mark the coming months when women will dress in the most masculine manner or will return to the most feminine attire, the trend being in favor of what is artistic and picturesque.

Astrologers say that the recent reign of short skirts and cropped hair is but a sign of preparation for many sorts of public service, made necessary by world upheavals.

The seers who preach peace now give warning of the importance of preparing for defence and foretell excitement that will not end in wholesale troubles.

Theatres are to continue to multiply, for the drama is to serve as a reconciling force during times in which men and women suffer severe real life experience.

Music is to become more and more a solace of all the people and orchestras as well as bands should prosper.

Again there is to be renewed interest on the part of women in all the household arts.

Censorship problems in many forms are to come up this spring and to be more than common import, since they affect the intrigues of enemies.

There is a sign making for the deepening of religious prejudices and the revival of old misconceptions.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which much love is expressed.

Children born on this day are likely to be visionary and fond of occult studies. They should be diverted toward practical interest.

Telephone operators in Jerusalem must understand 11 languages.

Topic for the Week.

"CHRIST IS A SPIRIT"

Monday

"This Makes His Words Significant"

SCRIPTURE: Read—Matthew 7:13-29.

"The words that I have spoken unto you are spirit, and are life" (Jn. 6:63). "As the Father taught me I speak these words" (Jn. 8:28). "Every one therefore that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them shall be likened unto a wise man" (Mt. 7:24, 25).

MEDITATION: "The multitudes were astonished at his teachings," and so are we. His words were not presumptuous because His was the mind of the Infinite. Is it hard to conceive of Christ as one with God? We know His love, His long-suffering, His goodness, His self-control, His self-sacrifice. Now His oneness with God means at least that these same qualities are in God. Can a life rise higher than its source? Certainly God the fountain is as good as Jesus the stream. I will understand it if I can; I will live by it whether or no. I want the words of Jesus to rule my life and the life of the world.

"Thou wouldst not have me accept Thy will because I 'must' but because I 'may.'"

HYMN:

Christian, rise and act thy creed,
Let thy pray'r be in thy deed;
Seek the right, perform the true
Raise thy work and life anew.

Come then, Law divine, and reign
Freest faith assailed in vain,
Perfect love bereft of fear,

PRAYER: Pray for—light on God's word; victory in vexations; churches, schools; young people's societies.

Collect—O Thou whose will-to-good fails not, we thank Thee for freedom for the responsibility which makes failure possible but success glorious. We bless Thee that Thou hast trusted us. Such friendship is beyond price. Give us now the inner power of Him who triumphed over every obstacle, yea, even over agony, hatred, and death. We fear for our souls before the high trusts of heaven. We confess our sinfulness in pursuing little things. Correct us by the call of Thy faithfulness. Give us increasing faith in the invisible, unfaltering courage for the conflict with evil and deliverance from the fear of death. Amen.

"WHAT DID BOBBY SAY?"

Solve This Puzzle and Win $1,000.00 in Cash Prizes.

Annabel has been down town shopping. She is standing at the curb, just about to cross the street, when Bobby Jones glides up in his handsome big automobile, accidentally splashing muddy water over her stylish new hosiery.

"Oh, Bobby," Annabel exclaims, "that means a present from you."

"It's a go," Bobby replied cheerfully, "2-21-20 25-5-8-20 5-18-1 15-20 5-2 13-15-18-6 5-5-20 12-1-14-15-9-20-1-14 25-18-5-9-19-15-8 3-15-14-16-5-14-25." The kind I like to see girls wear.

Each group of numbers represents the proper word in the sentence. Number the alphabet from A to Z. A is number 1, B-2, C-3, and so on.

The rest of the missing words in the sentence are in their proper place, but the letters are misplaced.

There are ten missing words, which are represented by numbers.

The first missing word is "But" and the last one is "Company." These are correctly spelt.

Follow These Rules and Win

1. Write your answer OF THE TEN MISSING WORDS ONLY with pen and ink, NEATLY and PLAINLY in the middle of a square sheet of paper.
2. Place your name and full address on the top right hand corner of the sheet. State whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss.
3. Place the name and date of this paper on the top left hand corner of the sheet.
4. Only the above should appear on your entry. Further remarks, if any, should be written on a separate sheet.
5. Only one entry will be accepted from a household.
6. Employees and their relatives, or people connected in any way with The National Hosiery Company are barred from this contest.
7. Entries will be judged according to points gained, and prizes awarded by a committee of prominent Toronto business men that are in no way connected with the Company.

Why We Offer These Prizes

This is an advertising contest to acquaint still more satisfied customers with the money saving values of National Hosiery, Lingerie, and knitted goods from the world's leading mills.

This is not a Sales Contest

You do not have to sell anything to win any of the prizes. You have the same opportunity to win $500.00 as anyone else. Send your answer now.

When your entry reaches us, you will immediately be advised of the number of points you have gained, and we will ask you to fulfill a simple condition that need not cost you a penny.

If your entry is qualified you will immediately receive absolutely free a pair of silk stockings or a silk knitted tie.

TOUGH OAKES

A personal visit to this property shows that sinking of the winze from the 1330 ft. level on the S. break is well under way and has advanced to a depth of 110 ft. The first station to be cut will be at a depth of 150 ft. which will probably be reached within the next week or 10 days. This sinking on the S. Break is in ore which is going to the mill. A slight decrease has been made recently in mill tonnage. However this decrease has been taken care of by the necessary increase in grade and production will not be affected. Other work underground at this property was fully covered in our last since which time there has been nothing particularly new. No further work is contemplated for east of the dyke until the winze now being sunk was reached its objective of 150 ft. of 1500 ft. below surface. When this work is completed the S. break will be opened up W. of the dyke and a cross-cut driven to the E. of the dyke to locate the downward extension of the ore found on the 1350 ft. level in this section of the property. In addition to this work it is the intention to explore the favourable structure S. of the South break. This has never been done on the property before and as there is some 1500 ft. in width of porphyry to be explored, which porphyry is known on surface at least to show very interesting fracturing, we look for important results to be obtained. Owing to the programme which the management have mapped out for the immediate future in regard to this lower level work, and considering the present results being obtained, fully described through this Service previously, we consider Tough Oakes at present prices to be a decidedly attractive speculation. Conditions have entirely changed in the lower levels from what they were in the upper where ore deposition was in general narrow and decidedly erratic. The definite vein system comprised of veins 1002 and 1004 on the 1000 ft. level, down to 1302 and 1304 on the 1350 ft. level, together with the ore found E. of the dyke, taken in conjunction with the fact that the mine has today two years of ore in sight, changes the complexion of things at this property entirely.

ARGONAUT

Shaft sinking from the 1000 ft. level is continuing as before and has now reached a depth of 1175 ft. A station was cut at the 1125 ft. level and sinking is proceeding to the 1250 ft. level when the second station will be cut, sump put in and cross-cutting started immediately to drive direct for the downward extension of Vein 1018 on both the 1125 and 1250 ft. levels. Between two and three months from now we expect that very important information will be forthcoming from this work.

MACASSA

A personal visit to this property shows drifting to be continuing west on the 500 foot level along the main break. From this drifting every three or four hundred feet a cross-cut is put in to locate what is known as the North break. This break has in all instances where cut, shown a strong fracture, good structure, and in fact everything but ore. The drifting now under way to the West, has as its objective a very considerable showing of porphyry on the Oakes claim. In this porphyry two strong veins junction on surface and show possibilities of becoming important at depth. We are doubtful as to whether a depth of 500 ft. will be sufficient as we are of the opinion that good results will not be obtained in this section of the district until depths below 1000 ft. are reached.

Two machines are being employed on the above work. Up to date some 1800 ft. of drifting has been done on the 500 ft. level and another four hundred feet should reach the downward extension of the vein junction mentioned above. The property is still very much in the prospective stage.

Mining Market Quiet; Most Stocks Drop In Price

TORONTO, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Trading on the Standard Mining Exchange today was quiet and devoid of any significant price movements. Barry Hollinger featured the proceedings with a 3 1-2 point gain in active trading to 43 1-4. The majority of the stocks which made their appearance on the board showed weaker tendencies. Area was active and weaker, declining 1 1-2 to 39 1-2. Dom. Mines gained 20 cents a share in small lot trading to 885. Hollinger declined five to 20.85, Lake Shore ten to 18.10, McIntyre thirty to 25.45, and Teck Hughes eight to 6.25. Keely was a strong spot, advancing two to 143.

Buying Of General Motors Causes Revival In New York

NEW YORK, March 14 (Canadian Press).—Heavy buying of General Motors, which crossed 104 to the highest price recorded under its present capitalization, relieved bullish enthusiasm in today's stock market after an early period of nervousness. The calling of bank loans was regarded as a natural development incidental to the heavy shifting of funds in connection with government financing and income tax payments tomorrow.

Mack Trucks, Pierce Arrow, Packard, and Hudson moved up in the wake of General Motors despite recent rumors of further price cuts. Dupont, which has large General Motors holdings, crossed 200 for the first time. Acute weakness developed, however, in Stewart Warner Speedometer which sank to the lowest level in several years.

World Shipments Heavy; Wheat Prices Take Drop

CHICAGO, March 14 (Canadian Press)—With world shipments heavy and the domestic crop outlook good, wheat values to-day underwent an early sag. Word that chain stores in New England had cut bread prices one cent a loaf tended somewhat to emphasize bearish sentiment. Opening at ⅛c off to ⅛c up, wheat soon showed a moderate general set-back. Corn and oats were easier and provisions firm, with corn starting 1-8c decline to a shade advance, and then receding slightly all around.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May, 138 3-4; July, 132 3-4. Corn, May, 77 3-8; July, 81. Oats, May 46 1-8; July unquoted.

Demand For Massey Harris On Toronto Market To-day

TORONTO, March 14. —(Canadian Press). — Violent fluctuations in British Columbia fishing and an unusual demand for Massey Harris featured trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. British Columbia Fish opened firm at 81 1-2, but under a flood of selling orders, rapidly declined to 78. It recovered partially at the noon close finishing with a net loss of 3 1-8 at 78 1-8. Massey Harris was the active leader and a strong feature of the market and under persistent demand sold on a higher level at 116 7-8, a gain of 1 7-8. Barcelona sold off 1-4 at 44. Seagram dropped 1-8 to 23 7-8, and Shredded Wheat declined 1-4 to 60 1-4, while City Dairy sold off 1 1-2 to 101 1-2.

NICKLE BELIEVES

stores and the free access of those from dry areas to buy liquor, Mr. Nickle is convinced the motor car and the right of import will rob the rural dry area of much of the protection many electors who voted for Government candidates thought they would have under the Prime Minister's then suggested legislation. Mr. Nickle thinks that the easy acquirement of liquor will give the Attorney-General an impossible task if he tried effectively to enforce consumption in residence and temporary residence. Those who want to defy the law can do so with craftiness and ingenuity. If stores are not kept open to all hours, bootlegging will prevail.

The Attorney-General cannot prevent it for the reason that acquisition and possession being legalized, those who can easily make a profit will take the chance. Mr. Nickle looks for much illicit bootlegging, as Government store bottles can be filled and refilled, and those in traffic will count on the Crown being unable to sustain its charges.

Mr. Nickle regretted that brewers, hotel proprietors and permit holders robbed the 4.4 beer act of much of the chance of its being a successful solution of a social problem, by their great greed for gain. "If there had been co-operation and a genuine desire fairly to try the experiment with well-brewed beer," Mr. Nickle added, "I do not believe Ontario would have ever had the proposed legislation with its tendency to promote the home consumption of hard liquor."

LINDSAY, Ont., March 14. — A fatality occurred at the Standard Chemical Company Camp at Mink Lake, Haliburton, a few days ago. A young man just three weeks out from Finland was instantly killed when struck by a falling tree, he is survived by a young wife, and two small children in Finland.

DOWNIE STREET BREAKS BOUNDS

Inundates McDonnel Street Early This Morning—Floods Houses.

DYNAMITE USED.

McDonnel street, between Downie and Reid streets, took on the appearance of a river early this morning when the Downie street creek, running true to form, overflowed its banks, inundating the street to a depth of one foot of water.

The annual outburst occurred in the neighborhood of 1 o'clock, when one citizen awakened to the noise of rushing water. He descended to his cellar and found three feet of water, he told The Examiner. Several cellars in the neighborhood were also flooded, a furnace being extinguished in another. On Reid street a resident who had just moved into the house on Saturday came downstairs to find four inches of water flooding his parlor and kitchen.

City Engineer Parsons and a gang of men attacked the ice with dynamite and by four o'clock had the creek running in its proper course.

SENTENCE REDUCED.

Chatham Negro Goes To Jail For 20 Years—To Be Whipped.

TORONTO, March 14. —(Canadian Press). — The sentence of death imposed by Mr. Justice Fisher on William McCatherine, colored of Chatham, was this morning reduced by the first divisional appealate court to twenty years imprisonment and twenty lashes. McCatherine was found guilty recently of a serious offence, in connection with an assault upon eighty year old Chatham woman. The appeal was heard nearly two weeks ago, judgment being reserved.

"It appears to us," says Chief Justice Sir William Mulock, writing the judgment of the court, that the prisoner's low mentality and baneful environment, although not sufficient to render him irresponsible for his acts, were circumstances which, if brought to the attention of the trial judge before sentence, might have been regarded by him as removing the case from the category of offences to which Parliament intended the death sentence to apply, and we, therefore, deem our duty to modify the sentence and in lieu of that pronounced to impose a sentence of imprisonment for twenty years and twenty lashes, ten with six months and 10 with in eighteen months from the date of the delivery of this judgement."

The judgment points out that four times since 1869, Parliament has considered and fixed the punishment for this offence. Referring to the fact that the death penalty had always stood on the statutes since that year. Sir William, states that it must be assumed that Parliament intended that sentence to be pronounced in extreme cases calling for extreme punishment.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

3RD PETERBOROUGH TROOP "VIMY"

There were great changes in the standing in the Patrol Competition last Friday night. The Hounds, under P.L. Archie Inch, are now on top with 241¼ points. They have had the most regular attendance for the last four or five meetings, every Scout turning out. The Hawks (Jack Gray, P.L.) have also had good attendance and are now in second place, 235 points. The Chickadees have been first since the competion began, but are now in 3rd place, 6¼ points behind the Hounds. The Chickadees have been handicapped in that they had no Patrol Leader—Roger Herrick has been carrying on the patrol as best he could, but it is a pretty big job for him. The Wolves have dropped out of the race, and seem to have lost all interest in the meetings, only one Scout showing up at the last three meetings. Better things than this were looked for from the winners of the last competition.

The early part of the evening was spent in games of different kinds. The Troop had been invited to spend the balance of the evening at the home of Mrs. Bennett, where refreshments would be provided, on the understanding that the Troop would sing a few Scout songs. Well the Third tried hard to sing, but if anyone with an appreciative ear for harmony had happened to hear the "concert"! But what's the use, we did our best. Mrs. Bennett was good enough to say that she liked to hear the boys sing, anyway. Sandwiches and coffee, ice cream and cake were given as a reward for our vocal efforts, and they certainly were appreciated.

The Third heartily thank Mrs. Bennett for her interest in the troop.

On the way home, a snow ball fight ensued, but not much damage was done, everyone having a good time.

CANTONESE GENERAL

LONDON, March 14. Canadian Press. — The Labour situation at Shanghai continues disturbed. "Red" activities are becoming more intense. Assassins on Sunday shot dead a foreman of a Japanese cotton mill and made their escape.

An increasing number of posters placard the mills. The urge workers to rise "immediately and seize the administrative power." They also laud assassination of loyal workers, espatches state.

Rain continues to fall and the country is sodden. Yesterday despatches indicated that Cantonese troops are keeping up their steady movement toward Shanghai, their chief objective in the war fare against the northern forces. They are menacing gravely long lines of communication of the Shantungese General, Chang Asung Chang, defender of the city.

U. S. MARINE MURDERED.

Shanghai, March 14. Canadian Press. — The body of Sergeant Jas. Montague, United States marine corps, was found to-day in Whang Poo River. The police believe he was murdered and are working on that theory.

Some of the big tourist agencies now employ women to take charge of their personally conducted European tours.

Horse Taken From Church Shed For Sunday Joy Ride Arrives Home, After Hard Night About Two O'clock

Horse sense came to the fore when a horse stolen from the sheds during the service at St. James Church, last night, returned home unaccompanied this morning at the early hour of 2 a.m.

Fred Kitney, the owner, started out to church, last night, and upon arriving there hitched his horse and buggy in a stall in the shed. On coming out after the service, the outfit had disappeared and a search of the neighborhood failed to reveal the stolen animal.

The horse eventually reached its home at 1:40 this morning, bearing traces of having been driven hard. It was plastered with mud and presented a sorry spectacle as it was in an exhausted condition. The buggy also bore traces of the adventure, the seat being badly damaged. The police are investigating the occurrence.

Leafs Defeat Maroons For Ninth Shutout of the Season

MAROONS ARE GIVEN SHUTOUT BY MAPLE LEAFS

Referee's Decision Gives Lone Counter of Game in First.

NINTH OF SEASON.

Title Holders Miss Many Chances To Score in Tussle.

MONTREAL, Quebec, March 14. —Canadian Press. — The Montreal Maroons absorbed another shutout defeat on home ice—their ninth of the current season—when they were beaten by the lowly Toronto Maple Leafs, 1-0, before a crowd of 8000 fans who had turned out at the forum Saturday night in the hope of witnessing the title holders just about clinch third place in the Canadian section of the National hockey league by putting the position practically out of the reach of the covetous New York Americans.

It was Referee Bobby Hewitson who supplied the big moment of the battle when in the first period he awarded a goal to the Leafs—a tally which proved the lone counter of the game, even if the puck did not go in the net. Maroons were playing four men against five at the time. Bailey, a speedy Leaf centre, and a Maroon cast off, broke through the weakened Montreal guard. A stick appeared loose on the ice, Bailey shot, and Benedict saved. Butch Keeling attempted to poke in the rebound and again the Maroon goalie cleared the deck to safety.

Then Hewitson, who had been blasting away on his whistle, awarded the puck, skated over to the official scorers for a conference and started for the centre of the ice to face the puck. The score board flashed "1" for Toronto.

The crowd was dumfounded and at a loss for the ruling. Hewitson had ruled that a Maroon stick had been thrown to interfere with Bailey's shot. Just who had heaved it was not certain at first, though eventually Reg. Noble was given the blame for the act.

It was a tough break against the local team in a tussle in which the Hoodoo that has followed them all season on home ice, persisted. The titleholders missed chance after chance to score early in the game, and once Dame Fortune intervened with a gift goal to the Leafs, they missed a dozen opportunities to beat the Toronto goal through over anxiety, the splendid net guarding of John Roach and their inability to pick the corners in games at home.

Both goal keepers turned in excellent games, but when it came to downright threatening scoring chances, Montreal had a distinct edge.

Consistently during the game the Maroons worked the puck into promising positions only to be foiled by a combination of brilliant net guarding by Roach and the falling of the Maroons on home ice this year to ram home goals. Practically every member of the Maroon team had a chance to tie up the game at one stage or another, but invariably they drove straight into Roach, or were wide, or the Toronto goalie smothered the puck, or else they were spilled to the ice by Slim Halberson, whose long stick tripped up Maroons on a goal hunt five times during the game, three of the penalties coming in the final period.

It was in the second session that the Maroons dominated the shooting in a fast session, though in the final period the Montrealers waged a terrific onslaught, only to run into a strenous defensive system, which occasionally violated the anti-defence rule. Penalties flew fast and thick in the excitement; the crowd was in an uproar, but the Toronto team held on to the end.

HYDRO WINNERS IN TOWN LEAGUE

Electric Boys Beat Clerks 5-3 in Final Game

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 14. — The Hydro are champions of the Town Hockey League for the second year in succession, when they defeated the Clerks in the final game Friday night at Covert's Arena, 5 to 3. The first game resulted in a tie, 3 goals each, so that the Hydro win the round, 8 to 6.

Played on ice that, if not exactly covered with water, was nevertheless decidedly wet. The game could hardly be called a perfect exhibition of hockey. It was featured by close checking, heavy bodychecking, fine goal-tending, and clever stickhanding, and the crowd that jammed all the available space of the rink cheered every move of their favorites. Many of the audience were of the opinion that on hard ice the decision might have been reversed.

The Hydro adopted a bodychecking game from the first faceoff, and on the heavy ice it proved very effective against their lighter opponents. The Clerks had slightly the better of the first and second periods, and made a determined effort to pull the game out of the fire in the dying moments. An analysis of shots on goal shows Saunders blocking the rubber 33 times, while Fox turned aside 29 Hydro attempts, but the Clerks seldom got their shots away without a Hydro player draped over him, while Cowell was allowed to camp, uncovered, in front of the Clerk cage for the first Hydro score, and the same player walked around the defence, and pulled Fox out of the net for their last tally. The Clerks were also without Wood, their regular left wing, and started the midget, "Doug." Runions, in his position. The youngster went great in the first period, but he faded badly in the heavy going, and was not so effective.

The Hydro worked their subs to good advantage, and kept a fresh team on the ice at all stages of the game and in this way they stood the heavy going better than the Clerks.

Every Hydro player turned in a fine game, and no matter what lineup Manager Shillinglaw had out there they appeared as strong as the original starters. Cowell turned in one of his best efforts of the season, bagging three counters and doing more than his usual amount of back-checking. He was the high tension line of the Hydro attack, while Brown, on the defence, was the lightning arrester, stopping the Clerks with hard body-checks.

For the Clerks, Labrash's effort was outstanding. The flashy right-winger was at a disadvantage on the soft ice, and was the central figure of the Hydro bodying game. They evidently figured if they could stop Labrash they could stop the Clerks, and the game was hardly under way before the peppery Clerk wing had taken the count from a body check. He was carried off the ice, but was back in a few minutes. He was out again in the third period when he got in a jam with three Hydro men in front of their net.

Labrash was in the game the full 60 minutes, gave every last ounce he had to bring victory to his team and was a very tired and sore athelete after it was all over.

McArthur although he has played better games this season, was extremely effective. Going both ways, the sturdy clerk centre being right at home in the heavy going.

McArthur opened the scoring in 16 minutes, slamming home the rebound of "Doug" Runions shot. After the clever midget had stepped around the big Hydro defence.

Cowell duplicated his effort of the first game, standing in front of the Clerk net, while two men went after Johnston in the corner and Johnston beat them to it and passed out to Cowell and he picked the corner of the net.

Although the Clerks had the better of the second period, they were outscored two to one. Watt got the first from the blue line, the puck hitting Fox's pads and dropping into the net.

Cowell made it three to one from a scramble in front of the Clerk cage.

Athinson kept the Clerks in the running with a long shot that rolled over Saunder's foot. Watt increased the Hydro lead again in the third on a shot from the left rail.

Then Cowell come across with the prettiest goal of the night, he checked the Clerk puck carrier just outside the blue line and dashed around the defence, when Fox came out to meet him, he drew the rubber to one side and flipped it in the empty net.

The Clerks swarmed around the Hydro net and McArthur beat Saunders for the Clerks third marker. They continued to press but the Hydro checked hard and on occasions hoisted the rubber to the other end of the rink and the Clerks could not collect any more markers.

LAUDER SCORES FOUR FOR GREYS TO WIN ROUND

Owen Sound Shuts Out Iroquois Falls, Overcoming 3 Goal Lead.

SCORE 5-0.

Offensive of O. H. A. Champions Renders Losers' Defense Useless.

TORONTO, March 14. —(Canadian Press). — It was clearly demonstrated for the benefit of some 8,000 raving hockey fans here on Saturday night, that a dashing offensive is the best defensive in maintaining an advantage over the opposition when the Owen Sound Greys, champions of Ontario Hockey Association, playing like a well oiled machine, defeated Iroquis Falls, Northern Ontario Hockey Association champions, five to nothing and thereby wiped out the three goal lead secured by the Eskimos in the first contest, to triumph on the round, 6 to 4.

Iroquis Falls played a style of hockey from the opening face off that savored strongly of the defensive brand, but under the smashing attacks of the Greys they weakened and when "Sir Harry" Lauder, tied the score on the round with his second goal of the game in the middle session, the Eskimos tried valiently to get going offensively. They could not strike their true stride, however, and the triumph of the Greys was complete when Lauder went through for another counter, which put his team in the lead, 4 to 0, on the game and 5 to 4, on the round. Lauder scored his fourth goal of the night early in the final period.

Varsity Grads left for Ottawa this morning, where they will meet Ottawa New Edinburghs in the first of home and home games for the right to meet University of Toronto in the Eastern Canada Allan Cup Final. The return game will be played here on Wednesday night.

Owen Sound Greys are marking time until Thursday, when a sudden death game will be played against Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, Quebec Champions, at Arena Gardens here, for the Eastern Canada Championship.

AMERICANS ARE DEFEATED 4-3 BY SENATORS

Second Period Rally Notching Them Three Goals Wins Game.

INCREASE LEAD.

Dynamic Rushes and Peppery Shooting Brings Triumph To Victors.

OTTAWA, March 14 (Canadian Press).—A second period rally that notched them a trio of goals gave Ottawa a 4 to 3 victory over the New York Americans in a National Hockey League scoring fest here Saturday night. The win increased to three full games the lead which the Senators hold in the international circuit of the league and at the same time dimmed considerably the chances of the American squad catching a place in the titular play-offs for the championship.

It was the dynamic rushes and peppery shooting of the Red, White and Black clan that brought them triumph in a battle which twice developed a knotted score. First the Americans came from behind to tie up the count in the opening period after Frankie Finnigan had given Ottawa a goal lead. The star-spangled jerseys swarmed around the local citadel after the Finnegan counter and before the Senators could put them to rout, Leo Reise had sent home a pair of tallies while Mickey Roach added another.

But when some thirty minutes of play had elapsed, the Ottawa men rose to spectacular heights and the shower of rubber they sent on "Jumping Jackie" Forbes between the New York goal posts was withering. The diminutive tender withstood the gruelling steadily until Cy Denneny banged his way right to the front of the New York cage and slammed the disc between Forbes' skates. Another three minutes had ticked off when Frank Nighbor let fly a drive from outside the Yankee defence at such a speed that the visiting goalie could not follow its flight. The score at this point was tied, three all, and both sextettes were setting themselves for a final attack that would bring them victory when the referee faced the rubber, Nighbor flipped it over to the waiting Denneny, and Cy, once considered the most dangerous shooter in hockey, drove the puck from where he stood, between the blue lines. It was a smoking shot about three feet in the air and Forbes, with hardly time to regain his composure after the previous tally, was beaten again. The latter counter which proved after a scoreless final period to have been sufficient to bring the league leaders a well-earned victory, came seven seconds after the preceding goal.

Standing out in the ranks of the losers was Reise who notched two of his team's tallies. The big rear-guard blocked, rushed and shot like a fiend all night. Every man on the Senator team turned in a brilliant performance. The line-up:

Americans. — Goal, Forbes; defence, Reise, Conacher; centre, Burch, wings, R. Green, McKinnon; subs., Simpson, Roach, Bouchard, Scott and Himes.

CALIFORNIAN WINS BALKLINE HONORS

Defeats Jake Schaefer, of Chicago Fame 400 To 180.

WASHINGTON, March 11. — (Canadian Press). — Welker Cochran, 30 year old Hollywood, Calif., real estate dealer won the world championship 18.2 balkline billiard tournament on Saturday, defeating Jake Schaefer, of Chicago, 400 to 180.

Although he had been a threat in several tournaments, Cochran never before had won the championship. His victory gave him a final standing of five victories and one defeat, that at the hands of Willie Hoppe, of New York, the champion.

Previous to their match Cochran and Schaefer, twice champion, were tied for first place. Defeat by the Californian gave the Chicago expert whose father in his day was without a peer as a billiard player, a final rating of four wins and two defeats.

One of Schaefer's setbacks was administered by Erich Hagenlasher, of Germany, who in matches won and lost, was tied with him for second place.

With a fifty-fifty standing of three wins and three losses were: Edouard Horemans of Belgium, and Felix Grange, of France, while below them and topping only Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan, who lost all his six matches, was Hoppe, winner of the world championship nearly a score of times.

FIRST DIVISION STATUS IS SAME ENGLISH LEAGUE

Newcastle United Dispose of Blackburn Rovers at Blackburn.

BURNLEY DEFEATED.

Battle For League Title Is Between Newcastle and Huddersfield.

LONDON, March 14 — (Canadian Press Cabled). — The status of the first division of the English Soccer League remained unchanged following the scheduled contests on Saturday for the league leaders, Newcastle United managed to dispose of Blackburn Rovers at Blackburn, and the runners-up, Huddersfield Town, were able to shut out Burnley by a couple of goals.

Huddersfield's victory on their own ground was anticipated, particularly in view of Burnley's recent lapse, and this game now sees the battle for the league title very definitely joined between Newcastle and Huddersfield.

In the other portions of the divisionsal list much interest was drawn to the struggle at West Bromwich where the homsters entertained Aston Villa and scored half a dozen goals against them. It was a bad day for the Villa, who were able to respond with only two counters in the face of the Albion's whirlwind attacks.

With the exception of Blackburn, and the drawn game at Sunderland, where the cup semi-finalists, Cardiff City, played the home team to a two-two decision, all the clubs engaged on their own grounds yesterday emerged with victories Interest was centered on the two semi-finalists, Arsenal and Cardiff Arsenal gave an indifferent display against the Wednesday and woke up only towards the end of the game when they scored twice in seven minutes. No cup-final form was revealed by the Highbury club, who permitted Trotter of the Wednesday to register a hat-trick getting three of Wednesday's goals one after the other.

At Sunderland, the home team had a two-goal lead over Cardiff City, at the interval, but they were greatly assisted by the wind. At the turn of the game, the Welshmen had this breezy advantage and reacted to it by playing an irresistible game which netted them the equalizers. This was done in spite of the fact that they lost their left-back, Watson, due to injuries.

The other cup semi-finalists Reading and Southampton had varied luck in their league encounters on Saturday, Southampton won at Darlington by two goals to one and Reading were defeated on their own ground by Wolverhampton Wanderers by the same score. Reading gave much better account of themselves than the score would indicate, their forwards playing a powerful game, but the Wanderers defense was next to invulnerable. The Wolves secured their victory by the last kick of the game.

Southampton's game at Darlington was featured by poor work on the part of their front men. A compensating element. However, was a brilliant defense coupled with Allen's wonderful goal-keeping.

Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, Secretary of State, is in full charge of arrangements for the elaborate inaugura with of New York when he begins his fourth term.

OTTAWA GAME TANGLE CLEARED

Varsity Grads Play Two Games With New Edinbrugh.

STUDENTS IN FINAL.

TORONTO, March 14. Canadian Press. — After five hours of heated discussion on Saturday, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association through its president, Frank Sandercock, issued a statement which definitely settles the disagreement which arose between the University of Toronto and Ottawa New Edinburghs.

The president's statement is to the effect that the Allan cup elimination arrangements will continue as scheduled. That is, New Edinburghs and Varsity Grads will meet in the first game at Ottawa to-day, with the return game at Toronto on Wednesday. President Sandercock's statement specifies that the winners of this series will meet Varsity Intercollegiates in a sudden death game on Friday.

If the Grads win the game will be played here; if New Edinburghs win the game will be played at Kingston.

MONTREAL, March 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Word reached the head office of the Canadian Pacific Steamships Company this morning that its liner, 'Empress of Canada,' had been in collision with the Japanese collier 'Jingshu-Maru' in the Shanghai river and had sustained heavy damage. The cable said the Empress had reached her landing stage and that there had been no casualties. Later reports from Shanghai, however, said that two lives were lost aboard the collier.

IRELAND BEATS WALES EASILY

Show Better Form All Through International Rugby Game.

LEADS IN STANDING.

LONDON, March 14. — (Canadian Press Cabled). — Ireland climbed to the top of the International Rugby table on Saturday when in a vigorously fought battle on home ground they defeated Wales by a score of 19 points to nine. The game marked the wind up of the International series as far as these two countries are concerned, only two more games remaining to be played. These are Scotland vs. England at Murrayfield Park, Edinburgh, next Saturday, and France vs. England at the Colombes Stadium, Paris, on April 2nd.

Saturday's game saw Wales finish of the poorest international years they have experienced for some time, only one victory, that against France two weeks ago, having been registered, while for the Irishmen it has been markedly successful, their only defeat having been suffered at Twickenham at the hands of England. France, Scotland and Wales have all fallen before the onrush of the Irish.

The game was featured by some rowdyism on the part of the Welsh supporters who had travelled to the Emereld Isle to cheer the wearers of the leek. They made a set against the referee and jeered his decisions.

For the greater part of the game Ireland had the best of it, their forwards smothering the Welsh pack and their rear men displaying some rare speed and flishes of combination. Wales revealed some crude play and did not seem to get settled on their game.

G. T. S. Stephenson was the hero of Ireland's fifteen, this player scoring a try, kicking a penalty goal, bringing out additional points from Ganly's try all in the first half. In the second half Stephenson scored and converted his try, but was unable to do the same for a second try by Ganly. The nineteen points thus produced, of which Stephenson was responsible for thirteen, constituted Ireland's tally.

The Welshmen's scoring came in the second half when Morgan scored a try which Powell converted and Windsor Lewis dropped a goal.

The International standing now is: —

	P	W	D	L	F	A	Pts
Ireland	4	3	0	1	39	20	6
England	3	2	0	0	10	15	4
Scotland	3	2	0	1	26	12	4
Wales	4	1	0	3	43	42	2
France	3	0	0	3	16	56	0

OLIVER'S ADVENTURES — BIG WORK AHEAD. — By GUS MAGER

CARTOON FOLLIES OF 1926 — By RUBE GOLDBERG

ROBT. FAIR CO. LTD.

Our Miss Gillespie and assistants of the Millinery Department and Mrs. Hurley of the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Section have both returned from the fashion centres, overflowing with enthusiasm and ideas about the new modes for spring. It also constituted their buying trip, and already large deliveries are coming into their departments, adding to their completeness and up-to-date standing. Flashing colors are the keynote for all kinds of street or house wear, with materials of a rich finish predominating.

1927's Newest in Spring Millinery Now on Display

Naturally, with the uniformity in costume that is so popular today, all the colors seen in the Dresses are reflected in the Millinery Display as well. Among the new shades is a pretty brown called monkey skin, and there's a bewildering array of greens, rose, reds, browns, blues, and the always wanted blacks.

The small Hat leads in numbers, with large shapes for matrons, and one point is also emphasized—there's sizes for large heads.

For misses and children an extra attractive lot is shown, made of fine straws, silk and ribbon. Prices are remarkably moderate.

Rich Models in Airy Spring Dresses and Nifty New Coats

The Dresses for spring are exceedingly pretty and perhaps a trifle less plain in design than last year. Materials are charmeen, Poiret twill, flat crepe, satin-faced crepe and georgette. Among the new colors are monkey skin, meerschaum, palmetto green, pigeon blood, queen blue, Venetian blue, etc., in great variety.

Misses' Jersey and Cloth Dresses are most attractive with contrasting colors, embroidery touches and bright colors.

Coats are extremely neat in design, made of novelty tweeds and black brocaded silk. Most of the new Coats have a tastily added narrow collar trim of fur, twin beaver, squirreline, etc. Attractive Coats for spring wear, and priced surprisingly reasonable.

ETCHING METHODS WELL EXPLAINED

Mrs. J. E. R. Munro Gives Interesting Talk and Exhibition.

An interesting exhibition of prints and engravings and an explanation by Mrs. J. E. R. Monro of methods used in making etchings and engravings was the programme of the meeting of the Women's Art Association in the Conservatory of Music studios on Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Munro explained carefully, in detail, the processes employed in the manufacture of various types of etchings and engravings and prints, with their various ramifications in line, wood, steel and stipple engravings, in aqua and mezzo tints and lithography.

The exhibition included very interesting examples of different types of prints and engravings, showing the variety in the methods employed and the many examples possessed by local members of the society. These old and new samples of a difficult art demonstrate the skill of the makers and are more interesting when an insight is afforded into their manufacture, as in the case of Mrs. Munro's careful explanation of processes.

Some of the beautifully colored Baxter prints were objects of interest, also a series of small colored steel engravings from "Belles Lettres," an old magazine of the mode published in London in the early part of the last century. These showed costumes of ladies in those days, with ballgowns of the utmost length and concealment, and bathing suits which were voluminous in the extreme. Forerunners of the modern picture postcards were in a series of small copper plate etchings, and a large wood cut showed "The Taking of the Cashmir Gate at Delhi, during the Indian Mutiny of 1857." There was a colored stipple engraving with soft outlines, depicting a fashionable picnic party of long ago, and a mezzo tint, in blurry soft effect, of an old man and woman. A civic building of Belgian architecture was an outstanding example of fine etching, also a bit of a Venetian canal. A quaint picture of Queen Victoria with her homely face and beautiful hands, was in an oval frame, and an engraving reproduction of one of Rosa Bonheur's deer studies, and of a Morland interior.

A colored wood cut of the King's Manor House at Etaples was very effective, and a small painting on ivory attracted much comment, also an oil print of the interior of a Harem and a Medici print of mediaeval atmosphere, depicting Dante in an allegorical surrounding. A small Florentine picture painted on wood, with brilliant red tones, was another odd example of ancient art and an interesting piece of stipple engraving was a colored "Horse Fair" reproduction. A comic note was emphasized in a collection of gaily-colored old English cartoons.

Among those who contributed to the collection on view were Mesdames Sutton, Aylmer, Johns, Connolly, Widdess, Harstone, Manning, Kennett, Gliddon, Blackwell Munro, Stapleton, and the Misses Wood, Howson and Rogers.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Finch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL.

Speaking at the morning masses at St. Peter's Cathedral yesterday, Rev. P. Costello remarked on the veneration and honor paid by Catholics to relics of the saints. Worship was given only to God, but relics of the saints were honored because of their close connection with Christ and the virtue of their lives.

Scriptural quotations were given to show that God worked miracles through St. Paul, by the use of handkerchiefs and other portions of his clothing, in healing the sick, as related in the 19th chapter of the Acts of the Apostles, also in the 9th chapter of St. Matthew, in which is told the story of the woman who wished to touch but the hem of the garment of Christ, to receive healing of disease. In the 13th chapter of the 4th book of Kings is also described the raising to life of a dead man whose body touched the sacred bones of a dead prophet.

Writings of fathers of the Church, in St. Augustine, St. John Chrysostom and St. Ignatius, all testify to the belief adhered to by ancient Christians who honored and preserved the relics of departed men and women of outstanding virtue.

Three Dozen Features.

All Carefully Prepared and Admitted on Account of Merit.

All kinds of "features" are offered in various ways to the public. The circus attracts crowds by its special features. Motion picture houses offer new features to attract patronage. Merchants bring out special features in their advertising Newspapers print special feature articles. So the word "feature" must be well understood.

Ordinarily a dictionary consists of a vocabulary, with more or less interesting appendix matter. It remained for the New Universities Dictionary to introduce a wealth of special features that are of intense interest to everybody. In addition to its greatly enlarged vocabulary, it has dozens of educational features—more than thirty-six in all.

Among the exclusive features are contibutionrs from the foremost authorities in leading universities, and an entire section devoted to everyday errors in speaking and writing. Also there are dictionaries of a dozen and more popular sports and pastimes, including radio and aviation. All of these features were carefully prepared and admitted only on account of unusual merit.

Such a complete dictionary of contributions from the foremost authorities in this nature has never before been pulished and it now being offered to readers of this newspaper on the well known coupon plan. Clip and present your coupon today.

BILL SHOULD BE KILLED FEDERAL MEMBER THINKS

E. A. Peck Discusses Georgian Bay Canal Project With Rotary.

TO-DAY'S PROBLEMS.

Budget Maritime Rights and Other Matters Talked About.

"It is of great moment to Ontario that this bill should be killed," declared E. A. Peck, Federal member for West Peterborough, in discussing the Georgian Bay Canal measure before the Rotary Club today in the course of an address at the weekly luncheon of the club on some of the problems confronting the Canadian Parliament at the present time.

Mr. Peck gave an interesting resume of the present session of parliament, discussing first the question of finance which he said was a problem that had to be faced by all governments. He referred to the great financial obligations undertaken by Canada during the war and stated that some progress had been made last year in reducing the debt and that there would be a further reduction this year.

Of the Budget, Mr. Peck said that it was a moderate one. He explained the chief features and stressed the fact that no tariff changes had been made, a condition that had not pleased those who wished lower tariffs or the others who felt that some industries required further protection. The government's attitude toward the question had been set forth by Hon. Charles Dunning, whose statement was quoted by the speaker.

The question of Maritime rights was discussed by Mr. Peck, who said that the matter would likely be before the House tomorrow. He explained the agitation of the Maritime Provinces for consideration in the matter of greater subsidies, lower freight rates, etc., and referred to the findings of the Duncan Commission upon which he said there would doubtless be a pronouncement from the government in the near future.

The Imperial Conference and its results were briefly discussed by the speaker, who said that was not one of those who felt that no great change had been brought about by the conference.

The Georgian Bay Canal Bill was the final matter referred to by Mr. Peck, who explained that the original charter had been granted in 1894, and in the 33 years no work whatever had been done on the scheme. It was a matter of great importance to Ontario and Quebec that the very large amount of power that could be developed along the Ottawa River should not pass into private hands, and he felt that the present bill should be killed.

About twenty members of the Peterborough Club are attending an inter-city meeting at Oshawa tonight.

Rotarian H. R. H. Kenner at today's meeting, referred to the honor conferred on Rotarian Ross L. Dobbin in his being chosen by the graduates in Science of Toronto University as their representative on the Senate of the University.

CHURCH RENEWS ATTACK AGAINST CANAL ISSUE

Scheme One To Hand Over Country's Power To Siftons.

IS PUBLIC BILL.

Already Whole Industrial Future of Ottawa Valley Held Up.

OTTAWA, March 15.—Opposition to the charter renewal of the Georgian Bay Canal was renewed by T. L. Church, M.P., in the House yesterday afternoon. Mr. Church declared that if ever there was a public bill this was one, and the question had no right to be dealt with as a private one. It was a palpable scheme to grab the great power rights of the country and hand them over to the Sifton interests. Already the whole industrial future of the Ottawa Valley was held up owing to the resources being handed over to a handful of American millionaires.

More Like Farce Comedy.

The Georgian Bay Canal scheme, Mr. Church went on, dated back to the days of Queen Victoria without anything being done about it. Now, it was sought to revive the charter as a means of securing valuable rights, the property of the provinces. Mr. Church buttressed his opposition by quoting a number of newspaper editorials opposed to the bill. He demanded a statement as to the Government's policy. Why, he asked, should private interests, private greed and private gain be satisfied but of a domain that belonged to the public?

The Dominion Government had nothing to do with it, anyway. Its authority related only to navigation, while the ownership of waterpowers came clearly within the sphere of the different provinces. This point had been adequately established. The Canal Bill was nine-tenths a power and one-tenth a canal proposition. In its latter aspect it was a joke, a fitting subject for a farce comedy. If the bill went through it would make millionaires of Sir Clifford Sifton and his sons.

No Surrender.

The policy of the Conservative party on this question was one of "no surrender." Where, he asked, did Liberal Ministers and members stand who came from Ontario "Hydro" counties where the slogan was no private monopoly of a public utility?

If a canal were needed, Mr. Church proceeded, it should be built by the Government the same as the Welland Canal, the Rideau Canal and the Newmarket Canal of "blessed memory." "The canal" was all a smoke screen to build up the United States at the expense of Ontario.

Modern Gaul.

"Ancient Gaul," declared the member for N.-W. Toronto, "was divided into three parts. Modern Gaul belonging to the Siftons was indivisible."

Mr. Church thought it strange that any member for the Ottawa Valley would support such a bill when industry there was stagnant. He believed the Government was supporting the bill. If it were not, the Government should say so and choose between the policy of Hydro, the public and private greed for the individual. The measure, he held, invaded both provincial and municipal rights.

"Sir Clifford Sifton never did anything except to get a title for himself," Mr. Church said.

Every time Sir Adam Beck had tried to get into Eastern Ontario with Hydro, he had been beaten back by Sir Wilfred Laurier and George Graham when the Liberals were in office, and by Sir Robert Borden and Frank Cochrane when the Conservatives were there. In thirteen sections of the bill, Mr. Church saw nothing but a grab.

Fight to Bitter End.

"In the days of the G.T.P. it was said: 'Cox can't wait.' In this case, Sifton can't wait, but he will wait a long time before he gets this bill through to hand over to American interests the great power heritage of the Ottawa Valley. This fight is to be bitter end. There will be no surrender. God help the people of Eastern Ontario if this thing goes through. They will stew in their own juice."

What About C.N.R.?

Mr. Church next raised the question as to where the Canadian National Railways was in regard to this project. Sir Henry Thornton could make it his business to help defeat Hydro radials, but was prepared to help surrender the whole Ottawa Valley to private gain.

"The more I survey this particular bill the more I think it is well that Labrador has been handed over to Newfoundland. Otherwise its pow-

COUNCIL READY FOR ROAD WORK

North Monaghan Appoints Road Superintendent and Orders Culverts.

INSTRUCTIONS GIVEN.

Preparations for roadwork for the coming season were advanced by North Monaghan Township Council at a meeting held yesterday. Culverts were ordered for the corners of Braidwood Avenue with Lock Street and the Monaghan Road and for Lansdowne Street. The road superintendent was ordered to have a culvert installed at the corner of Lane and Frederick Streets.

Archie Patterson will again hold the position of township road superintendent.

It was moved by Councillors Hunter and Kent, "That the Council expects each road commissioner to divide the money spent for roadwork among the ratepayers as nearly equitably as possible. The Council has had good reason to believe that some of the commissioners are doing the work at their own convenience and a little too much for their own benefit. The dragging of the roads should be done only when instructions are given by the Township road superintendent."

A communication from the clerk of Lindsay was received and passed on, urging the Ontario Government and the local members of Parliament to try to make arrangements with the C. N. R. for the proper loading and unloading of automobiles at the port of Charlotte, New York, so that freer access might be given tourists from New York and other states to the south and east to visit the Kawarthas and other lakes in Eastern Ontario. It was felt that they could then come in by one port and leave by another, instead of being compelled to go around by Niagara.

Reeve Lillico, Deputy Reeve Dobbin and the Clerk were appointed a committee to meet Mr. Muir of the Department of Highways in connection with the subsidy due the township for road work done in 1925.

Steps will be taken to have Edison Avenue, omitted before, added to the area to be served by the Peterborough Fire Department under the recent agreement.

The following accounts were ordered paid:

G. N. GORDON, K.C. GIVES ADDRESS TO MEN'S CLUB

Splendid Programme Given at Meeting in St. Paul's Church.

SOLOS RENDERED.

Messrs. Galvin and Kelly Provide Old Time Fiddling Exhibition.

That a man's destiny was the result of his own individual effort, was the declaration made by the Honorable G. N. Gordon, K.C., in a stirring address entitled "The young man's opportunities to-day; and there should be no old men," delivered at a meeting of the St. Paul's Church Men's Association last night.

The meeting, which proved to be one of the most successful in the history of the organization, was featured by a splendid programme of music and readings, including an exhibition of old time fiddling by Messrs. J. F. Galvin and E. Kelly. That the numbers were popular was indicated by the volume of applause that greeted the artists on each appearance.

Herbert J. Rush sang several baritone solos in his usual effective manner. Mrs. Hazel Davidson McClelland, in addition to rendering very pleasing solos, also delivered several readings.

Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., and Mrs. Elliot acted as accompanists for the various artists, Mr. Chenhall also presiding at the piano during the community singing led by Alex. Donnelly.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon.

The Hon. Mr. Gordon, who was introduced by the Rev. William Allan, declared that when Solomon said nearly 2,000 years ago "that where there is no vision the people perish," he announced a decision that is just as true to-day as it was then.

He traced the life of Joseph, who, despite persecution, attained the premiership of his country and the struggles of Moses to emancipate his people and who maintained his leadership until within six miles of the promised land to which he sought to take them.

"He was denied the privilege and right; denied the ambition for which he had lived and worked—the lesson to be learned was that there is a point at which certain things a man may have worked for, may be denied to him," he declared.

True success, declared the speaker, was not simply being known as a prominent man; it is that something that is earned slowly and by doing everything we do, the very best it can be done. Edison, he said, in speaking of genius, declared that two per cent. was genius and the other 98 per cent. was hard work.

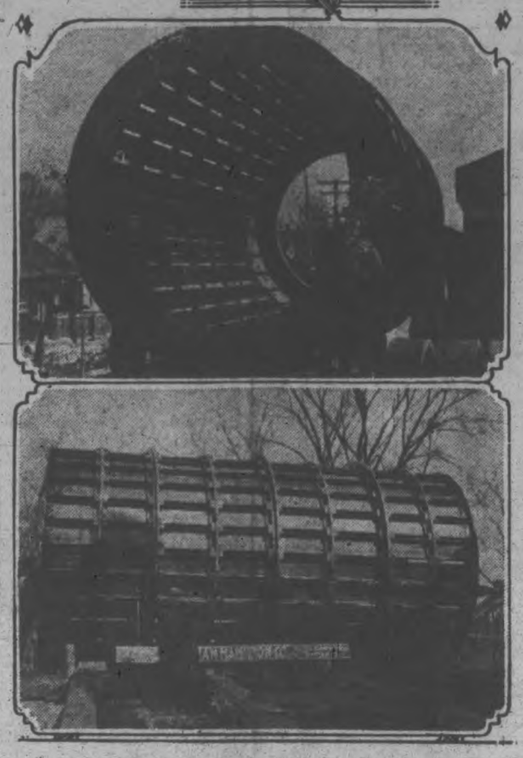
The highly developed civilization that existed to-day demanded, he said, specialization and thoroughness. There were too many men who can do anything—but can do nothing.

Canada, he declared, had unsurpassed possibilities for success to the man with ambition and vision to see the future, the man who was able to think for himself. By reason of its location, its development of water power which rendered it the greatest producing nation in the world; a sturdiness and vigorness in its people, Canada had openings and opportunities unequalled by any other country in the world.

The thanks of the association was conveyed to the speaker by James Dutton and William L. Ferguson.

Patents for a microphone built by a German inventor, Emil Berliner, were filed in the United States nearly fifty years ago.

HUGE MACHINE BUILT HERE



A triumph in the world of modern machinery, this machine, the first of its kind in the Dominion of Canada, was designed by P. P. Westbye, superintendent of the William Hamilton Company, Peterborough. It is a barking drum used for the purpose of barking pulpwood and is the first of an order for six to be completed for the Port Alfred Pulp and Paper Company, Port Alfred, Quebec, by this company.

So immense is the machine that it has to be assembled in two sections. The diameter of the drum is twelve feet and its length forty-five feet, the total weight of the machine being 220,000 pounds or 110 tons. Two hundred horse power of electricity is required to drive each machine.

When in operation the drum revolves and a continual flow of water passes through. The logs rub against each other, causing the bark to peel off, and eventually to find its way to the bottom of the drum, drop through slots made for it, and then fall into a trough to be carried to the barking press. The capacity of this machine is 300 cords a day.

A special permit had to be obtained from the railroad company to allow for its transportation.

CITY OPPOSES CANAL CHARTER

Council Asks Government To Consider Combining Dams Four and Five.

SPECIAL MEETING.

Opposition to renewing the charter of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Company was expressed by the City Council last night at a special meeting, through the following resolution to be sent to the local member of Parliament and members of the Cabinet:

"Moved by Ald. Greene and seconded by Ald. Denne,

"That the Council of the City of Peterborough respectfully urges the Parliament of Canada not to renew the charter of the Montreal, Ottawa, and Georgian Bay Canal Co., known as Bill No. 78, as, in our opinion, this bill is not in the interest of the Province of Ontario, as it is an attempt to deprive the people of this Province of their right to the powers to be developed from the water of the Ottawa River, and, further, that this charter has been in existence for thirty-three years, and no actual construction has taken place, and we believe the renewal of this charter would be contrary and prejudicial to the public interest."

A resolution was also passed, to be forwarded to the Minister of Railways and Canals and others, asking that the rebuilding of Dam 5 should not be proceeded with until consideration is given the possibilities of combining Dams four and five for the purpose of developing power and also as an aid to navigation.

"After the passage of this act, no criminal proceedings shall be instituted in any court against any person for achism, heresy, blasphemy, blasphemous libel or atheism."

SOUTH AFRICA TO SEND ENVOYS

Will Appoint Charges D'Affaires in Several Countries.

CAPETOWN, South Africa, Mar. 15. Canadian Press. — Die Burgher (the official organ of the Nationalist party and representing the views of the government) says it is practically certain that the Union of South Africa soon will appoint charges d'affaires in several countries.

It remarks that in view of the decisions of the latest Imperial Conference regarding the status of the various commonwealths of the British Empire, the union should have diplomatic envoys in the principal countries.

War Spirit Marks Germany's Day of Mourning For Those Who Fell During the World Conflict

BERLIN, March 15—Germany's day of mourning for her soldier dead resolved itself rather into a glorification of the Reich's fighting past than an expression of grief over the 2,000,000 German lives lost in the World War.

In the presence of President von Hindenburg, Chancellor Marx and the entire Government, Pastor Siems, head of the organization for the upkeep of German graves, speaking at the day's principal ceremony in the Reichstag, laid chief emphasis on the fallen warriors' fidelity to their Kaiser. The audience, composed mostly of anti-republican "patriotic societies" and retired officers wearing the imperial uniform, evidently welcomed this tribute to the old regime.

At the second most important gathering three of the Emperor's sons, Princes Eitel Frederick, August William and Oscar, were the stars.

President von Hindenburg appeared in the Reichstag flanked by the commanders of the army and navy. After the ceremony, which besides Pastor Siem's speech consisted of old war songs and hymns, the Field Marshal reviewed the Reichswehr guard of honor.

HEAVY FINES FOR VIOLATIONS OF CUSTOMS ACT

Law With Respect To Smuggling To Be Completely Revolutionized.

$200 TO $2,000.

Courts Have No Power To Impose Smaller Penalty.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 15—The Customs Act in respect to smuggling will be completely revolutionized, and the penalties greatly increased by a bill which the Government is bringing down. The general principle of it is to remedy the conditions which were disclosed in the customs inquiry last session or in the meantime. The minimum penalty for an offence under the act is a fine of $200, and the maximum $1,000, the minimum imprisonment is one month and the maxium one year, and the courts are to have no power to impose a smaller penalty under any circumstances.

Bill Very Bulky

The bill is very bulky, and among its outstanding provisions is one that provides that where wines or liquors are shipped from Canada, the bond of a guarantee company must be put and be surrendered only when a landing certificate at the port of destinations is produced. Special precautions are taken against the faking of such certificates.

Another section increases the responsibility of a master of a ship, who must declare not only the general cargo, but anything which may be in the possession of passengers or other on the ship. Customs officers are given power to make arrests without warrants where necessary, and on ships suspected of rum-running or violation of the Customs Act the presence on the ship of anybody is to be prima face evidence of knowledge of the illegal traffic being carried on.

Heavier Penalties

Heavier penalties are provided for violations of the law attempted between sunset and sunrise. It will be recalled that in the inquiry this night business was shown to be extensively practised along the border. Forfeiture of goods and automobiles or motor boats accompanies the penalties.

The Act is stiffened up and made severe in regard to conductors or other railway employes who are parties to smuggling. Blank invoices are prohibited. To overcome a situation disclosed at Rock Island, Que., it is made an indictable offence to put a warehouse on the international border, and at such places officers will be located. There are many other changes in the law with the general effect of providing heavier penalties and a more adequate prevention service.

Balloon Jumper Is Killed By a High Power Wire In First Demonstration Of New Sport In England

LONDON, March 15—The first demonstration in this country of the new sport, "balloon jumping," ended in a tragedy when the demonstrator, Aircraftsman Dobbs, was killed by an electric shock under extraordinary circumstances.

Balloon jumping originated in America. A small balloon, the buoyancy of which is just a few pounds less than the weight of the jumper, is attached to him by a harness. He then springs in to the air and the balloon carries him across country in a series of long leaps.

Dobbs was not very successful in his morning experiment at Hendon, but he rapidly gained experience and in the afternoon was negotiating the low hedges in fine style. He then essayed an ambitious leap over a group of trees. Partly concealed in the trees were high-power electric wires, carrying 11,000 volts. Dobbs sailed gracefully over the trees, and then the onlookers saw a vivid blue flash, and when they rushed to the spot they found Dobbs lying dead on the ground, with charred hands and clothing. His contact with the wires was only momentary, but death was instantaneous.

World's Greatest Monarch Calls On Duke Of York

CHRIST CHURCH, New Zealand, March 15. — (Canadian Press.)—The Duke of York met the world's 'greatest' monarch yesterday in the person of King Tamf Solomon of the Chatham Islands. The king weighs 392 pounds, and made the five hundred mile voyage from his realm, east of New Zealand, solely to pay his respects to British royalty. Solomon is a king without subjects, as his people, the Morioris, have been all but wiped out by the Maoris. It was a trying journey for Solomon, but he felt amply repaid by the Duke's warm welcome and his obvious admiration of the King's girth.

FEW PATIENTS NOW ISOLATED

Only Two in Queen Mary Hospital at Beginning of March.

BOARD OF HEALTH.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning with Alderman Hancock in the chair, and Dr. T. W. H. Young present.

The report of the Isolation Hospital was read and showed a considerable decrease in the number of patients in the hospital suffering from contagious diseases. On February 1 there were seven patients in the hospital, six suffering from small pox and one from scarlet fever. During the month four were admitted and nine patients were discharged, leaving two in the hospital on March 2.

William Tinker, secretary-treasurer of the Canadian Woollen Mills, was present and submitted plans which had been drawn up by the Provincial Board of Health whereby the sewage from his mill would not be dumped into the river. The local board has been endeavoring in the past few years to get the dumping of sewage into the river stopped and this plant is one of the few that remain. Mr. Tinker promised that work would be started on these plans as early as possible, and it is expected everything will be cleaned up by the time the bathing season opens.

Dr. Young, the Medical Health Officer, reported that at present there were twelve placarded houses in the city, five for smallpox, five for chicken pox, and two for German measles.

The City Council will be notified that the sanitary conditions of the bathing house at Lake Street must be improved or the building will be closed.

The Sanitary Inspector was instructed to see that the back-yards and lanes were cleaned up, for now is the time to do this work when the dirt and refuse can be easily scraped off the ice, saving a lot of work later on.

Pansies Are Blooming In Gardens At Sault

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., March 15—J. S. Prentice, 136 Church Street, has in bloom in his garden a fine array of pansies which have thrust their stems through the snow and appear in all their summer glory. The plants probably were in bud last fall, and needed only the warmth of the sun, which we have been experiencing for nearly a month now, to burst into bloom. In a number of Sault gardens early spring flowers are making their appearance in spots near walls and fences where the rays of the sun are deflected to the ground, removing the snow and warming up the earth. Some pansies are also in bloom in the C.P.R. yards.

FEAR NEW CRISIS AT EXPIRATION PRESENT PACT

British House of Commons Discuss President Coolidge's Naval Plan.

SAFEGUARD ROUTES.

Liberal Member Hopes Conference Will Lead To International Agreement.

LONDON, March 15 (Canadian Press).—General approval of President Coolidge's naval limitation conference plan was expressed last nigh: during a long debate in the House of Commons on the annual naval estimates.

Walter Runciman (Liberal) expressed fear that a new crisis might arise at the expiration of the Washington naval agreement when a new outburst of naval shipbuilding might easily develop unless the Washington agreement were renewed or replaced by something better.

Everyone hoped, he said, that the conference, wherever held, would lead to an international agreement for co-operative reduction in armaments and that even if the worst came to worst, it could surely provide for the continuance of the Washington agreement.

Compares Routes.

Vice-Admiral Sir William Reginald Hall (Conservative), on the other hand, compared the British sea routes with United States railroads and said that both required policing. He objected to Great Britain's limiting her cruisers to the 5-5-3 ratio.

"If for the first time, the United States like to class herself as an enemy, it is her affair," he said. "In my official career at the Admiralty, the size of the United States fleet never entered into the Admiralty calculations. We are not going to build against the United States."

Bigger Than Needed.

Hilton Young (Conservative) contended that the cruisers which Britain is now building are bigger than are needed for the defence of British trade routes. He urged that the Government should enter the Coolidge conference with a programme calling for a reduction of big cruisers and the total cessation of the construction of battleships.

Commander Joseph Kenworthy, who recently joined the Labor party, made the novel suggestion that Japan should safeguard the British sea route to the Pacific and Britain safeguard Japan's trade route to the Mediterranean. In the same way, he said, the United States might agree to safeguard the British trade route in the Western Atlantic in exchange for a guarantee from Britain in the Mediterranean.

Charles Ammon, Laborite, said that all new British naval construction should be suspended until the results of the conference were known.

Lady Astor, Conservative, caused laughter by saying that she felt that in voting for naval construction, the House was only voting for what was wanted to keep as far as possible from world peace.

"If England and the United States would only set the pace," she said, "they need have no fear of France and Italy, for their record on sea is not enough to alarm anybody."

Carry Out Duty.

The British Admiralty's view of the three power naval conference at Geneva proposed by President Coolidge was laid before the House of Commons yesterday by W. C.

All the students passed with high standing in the practical work, and Capt. Heron was highly pleased with the showing they made, indicating a good grasp of the work. The results of the written examinations have not yet been announced.

ADVICES FROM HANKOW TELL OF INTERNAL STRIFE AMONGST CANTON REVOLUTIONARY PARTY

ms Little Doubt It Is Affecting Prospects of Southerners.

DECLARE TRUCE.

Peking Trying To Induce Powers To Negotiate Treaty Question.

SHANGHAI, March 15 (Canadian Press).—With the next serious fighting now expected at Nanking, political developments yesterday assumed an important aspect in both Hankow and Peking.

Belated advices from Hankow told of a bitter internal fight in the Kuomintang, or Cantonese Republican revolutionary party, whose central executive committee is now in session there. Despatches report that a truce has been declared by the contending factions, there seems little doubt that the dissension is adversely affecting the prospects of the Southerners and has reached a pitch where conciliation is highly doubtful.

At the same time, the Peking government made plain that it is still doing its best to induce the Powers to negotiate the treaty question with Peking. Wellington Koo, acting Premier, explaining the position of the Northern Government to the foreign correspondents, asserted that the whole of China was united in its opposition, not to foreigners but to special privileges to foreigners and that therefore any agreements entered into for revision of one-sided treaties would be accepted and respected by the whole of China.

Situation Vague

No news of fresh fighting was received in Shanghai yesterday and the military situation remains somewhat vague. Anticipating that the next serious fighting will be for the defence of Nanking, a vital point in his line of communications, General Chang Tsung-Chang, accompanied by his staff has gone to Taiping, just below Nanking, to meet the Cantonese advance.

Investigating Death

Working on the theory that he was murdered, police are investigating the death of Sergeant James B. Montague, United States Marine Corps, whose body was found yesterday in the Whangpoo River. Sergeant Montague, a native of Virginia, served in the Marine Corps for many years and was with the forces that arrived from San Diego on the transport Chaumont.

The Cantonese split at Hankow is one involving fundamental divergencies between the moderates, headed by the Nationalist Commander in chief, General Chang Kai-Shek, and the left wing or radical faction of the Republican revolutionary party. With a view to preventing the split from shattering the military chances of the Cantonese, it appears that a truce has been agreed upon and that the National Council, composed of both military and political representatives has been revived to carry on the conflict with the north.

This council apparently will supercede Chang Kai-Shek as Generalissimo and it is reported that he has refused acquiescence to such a development.

Chang Kai-Shek remained at Nanchang during the conference, refusing to attend the sessions, and it is uncertain just what attitude he will take on the truce terms which are tantamount to a setback for him.

Lack of Unity

In his talk with the foreign correspondents at Peking, concerning the unequal treaty question, Wellington Koo declared that China's lack of unity could not justify delay in the negotiations of new treaties, while the fact of a change in government in China might lead to repudiation of such new treaties were entirely groundless.

He said that he wished that the British government would open negotiations for a comprehensive revision of the treaties instead of dealing with them piecemeal, but agreed that the situation as far as the

OLD MASTERS

And what is so rare as a day in June?
Then, if ever, come perfect days:
Then Heaven tries the earth if it be in tune,
And over it softly her warm ear lays:
Whether we look, or whether we listen,
We hear life murmur or see it glisten;
Every clod feels a stir of might,
An instinct within it that reaches and towers,
And, groping blindly above it for light,
Climbs to a soul in grass and flowers;
The flush of life may well be seen
Thrilling back over hills and valleys;
The cowslip startles in meadows green,
The buttercup catches the sun in its chalice;
And there's never a leaf nor a blade too mean
To be some happy creature's palace.
—James Russell Lowell: From "The Vision of Sir Launfal."

ers would be handed over to the Siftons."

As to the suggestion of regulation by the Railway Commission, Mr. Church asked, "Did you ever hear of the Commission regulating anything?"

Mr Church charged that the Liberal party, by its actions, was proving itself the party of the big interests.

Grits For Interests.

While Mr. Church wore the Tory uniform he wore it as a volunteer, not as a conscript, and he would never fail to challenge any legislation which was not in the public interests. He paid high tribute to Sir Adam Beck and his patriotism and foresight and told of the battle he had waged to save Canada's power resources for the people. He quoted Sir Adam Beck's opposition to this particular bill in years gone by and urged his opinions upon the House.

In the kitchen of the H. F. Brockmiller farm home, 10 miles southeast of here, the girl was using a large kitchen knife in preparing their lunch for school when Irvin started bantering her. Suddenly she turned and tossed the knife at him. The blade pierced his chest above the heart, and he died within a few minutes.

A coroner's inquest will be held today.

JULY DISASTER IS PROPHESIED BY CLERGYMAN

Says Egyptian Pyramid at Gizeth Indicates Trouble On Eleventh.

NATURE UNKNOWN.

Believes That Red Plot May Be Revealed on That Day.

CHESHAM, Eng., March 15. — (Canadian Press).—Beware of the eleventh of July, warns Rev. Walter Wynn, who makes a practice of reading the world's future in the great Egyptian pyramid at Gizeh and sees in its dimensions a forecast of disaster on that date.

"I have no right to predict the exact nature of the event which will happen July 11," says Mr. Wynn. He explained that it may not be clear until some time after July 11 what makes the date momentous. But he thinks Russian activities, working through many means and nations, may reach an "unveiling which will let the world know the nature of the coming conflict and its extent.

"The events in China are symptomatic of the conditions which are now surging throughout the world."

Anglo-U. S. Struggle.

Mr. Wynn believes the final form of the struggle will be a deadly opposition to Great Britain and the United States. He also finds that May 19, 1928, is a fateful date, which in his opinion, will mark in some form "not necessarily war, the beginning of tribulation which will be world wide from which, after much sorrow, Great Britain and America will emerge triumphant."

GRANTED REPRIEVE.

Appeal Court To Hear Further Evidence in Indian's Case.

VANCOUVER, B.C., March 15 (Canadian Press) — Joseph Sankey, 22-year-old Indian, sentenced to hang on Wednesday next for the murder of Miss Loretta Chisholm, school teacher at Port Essington, last fall, was given a further reprieve yesterday when the appeal court decided to hear further evidence. Sankey was originally sentenced to die on January 16.

As a new witness must come from the north it is unlikely the case will be heard at the present appeal court sittings, necessitating a special court.

MRS. FRANCES TWIGG.

BETHANY, March 15.—The funeral service of the late Mrs. Frances Graham Twigg, beloved mother of Miss Pearl Twigg, and widow of the late George Twigg, who passed away at Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on Thursday evening, following an operation, was held in St. Paul's church on Saturday afternoon. The beautiful old church, which the deceased had long made her church home, was filled to the doors with sorrowing friends and neighbours. The funeral service was in charge of Rev. G. Fierheller. Rev. A. T. Wier, of Omemee and a former pastor and friend, read the scripture lesson taken from 1st Corinthians, 15th chapter. Commencing to read at the 20th verse and continuing to read to the end of the chapter.

The casket, which stood just before the chancel, was banked with many beautiful floral tributes from friends near and far.

Rev. Fierheller, rector of the church, gave a very comforting message to the friends gathered. He chose his text from 1st chapter of Philippians, and the 21st verse, "For me to live is Christ, to die is gain."

Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, Manvers. The casket was tenderly borne to its last resting place by four nephews and two intimate friends of the family, namely, John Staples, Byron Davis, Fred Gray, Walter Rowland, Louis Staples and Richard Vance.

She decided to go to the city of Peterborough to be with her daughter and only child, Miss Pearl Twigg, who was employed in the express department of the C.N.R. company, Peterborough.

Mrs. Twigg was in delicate health at the time, but her friends and relatives in the village thought she was improving in health, and only two weeks previous to her death, she had spent the greater part of a week in the village, so the notice of her death came as a great shock to the villagers. While living here Mrs. Twigg was always of a bright, cheerful disposition and people loved to have her come about; she was interested in everything that was for the good of her church home and the community She was an active member of the W. A. of St. Paul's church, also an active member of the Woman's Institute.

To her sorrowing daughter Pearl, her brother, Thomas Graham, of Cornwall and her sister (Hattie), Mrs. Swales, of Midland, the heartfelt sympathy of the community is extended.

Among the friends from a distance who were noticed present were Miss Hannah Staples, Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Eakins, Messrs. Douglas, William Rowan, Millbrook, Mrs. Delbert Adams, Mr. John Staples, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rodgers, Lindsay, Mrs. Percy Fitzgerald, Mrs. Mildred Soden, Mr. Herb Vance, Peterborough, Mr. Cecil Edwards, Rochester, Mr. Tom Graham of Cornwall, and Mr. and Mrs. Swales, of Midland, and many others.

FEAR NEW CRISIS

Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty.

Making the reservation that he could hold his present attitude only as long as the Admiralty was able to carry out its sacred duty of maintaining a fleet equal to that of any other power and providing reasonable security for British sea communications, Mr. Bridgeman expressed the belief that nothing but good could come of such an exchange of views.

He insisted that perfect frankness between the powers concerned was essential for the success of the conference. Likewise they would have to respect and consider each other's special difficulties.

The head of the Admiralty said he earnestly hoped that France and Italy would re-consider the position taken when they failed to accept President Coolidge's original suggestion of a five-power conference, and would agree to take part in the Geneva meetings. But even without them he believed Great Britain, the United States and Japan could make considerable progress toward naval disarmament without risking the sacred obligations which he had mentioned.

Cheers greeted Mr. Bridgeman's reference to prospects of France and Italy taking part in the conference.

Mr. Bridgeman also declared the Admiralty had no desire to encourage competition in warship construction. His declarations were made while introducing the annual naval estimates.

PART OF REPORT WAS SUPPRESSED

Concerns Vast International Trafifc in Women and Children.

LONDON, March 15 (Canadian Press).—The Sunday Observer asks editorially why Geneva has countermanded publication of the League of Nations recent report on the international traffic in women and children which it describes as an "astounding account of organized infamy."

The paper says that publication of this section may have been countermanded because of the unwillingness of some governments to have all the facts published. Whatever reasons there were, the paper says, there must be no room for suspicion of concealment.

Publicity is the league's best weapon and must be used fearlessly, The Observer says, and if it is expedient to publish everything, then the press should be called into council.

Several Belleville People Convinced He is Former Captain.

BELLEVILLE, March 15. (Canadian Press).—Photographs of John Smith, who died recently in Harrah, Oklahoma, identify him as Captain John Wesley Smith, of this city, who was reported drowned when his steamer sank off Pigeon Island, near Kingston, on August 8, 1917. Several persons acquainted with Captain Smith viewed the photographs and are positive as to the identification.

PALM BEACH BANKS IN BAD CONDITION

Three Remain Closed, While Fourth Faces Heavy Run.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 15.—(Canadian Press).—Three Palm Beach county banks failed to open their doors yesterday, while another local financial institution sought to stave off a severe run. A long line of men and women braved a pelting intermittent rain here yesterday morning in a determined run on the Citizens' Bank. Mild excitement prevailed while friends of the bank sought to talk with each person in line in an attempt to influence against the withdrawal of funds, but the line remained intact.

LADIES' AIDS HOLD SPLENDID SOCIAL

Playlet, "How the Story Grew," Given at Codrington Orange Hall.

NORHAM, March 15.—A very successful entertainment and social was held in the Orange Hall at Codrington on Friday evening under the auspices of the Bethany and Mount Olivet Ladies' Aids. Both societies shared in the proceeds and contributed to the lunch and programme.

A playlet was given by Mrs. William Goodfellow, Mrs. Aubrey Woof, Mrs. Stanley McNaught, Mrs. Charles Armstrong, Mrs. Harper Piester, Miss Vera Plumpton, and Miss Ora Goodfellow. The title was, "How the Story Grew." It is a portrayal in old fashioned costume of a family who moved into a small village during the night. The natives did not even expect anyone and were overcome with surprise, the next morning, upon discovering that there were new neighbors in the village. One housewife went to her neighbor friends and told what she had learned. This one went to another and repeated the story and this continued until several homes had been visited, and until the new comers had been pictured and branded as negroes of a vicious and dangerous type. Ridiculous things had been reported about them as each time the news was repeated a little was added. The closing revealed the fact that the whole thing was only gossip and the moral made plain to the auditors was how even today many things that are told for truth, but which are false, begin to make their rounds.

Other numbers on the programme were, community singing, "There is a long, long trail", "Old Black Joe" and "The Old Folks at Home."

A recitation by Lulu Hazelwood.

A duet, "Roamin' in the Gloamin'" by Thomas Shepherd and Gordon Cooney.

A quartet, "Spreading the Rumor" by Robert Hazelwood, Harold Reddon, Thomas Shepherd and Gordon Cooney.

A duet by Mrs. Robert Ryckman and Mrs. Samuel McCall.

A delicious lunch was served at the close. The proceeds amounted to $30.00.

RECREATION CLUB DANCE SUCCESSFUL

Presentation Made During Progress of Social at Havelock.

HAVELOCK, March 15.—The Havelock C.P.R. Recreation Club held a very successful dance in the town hall on Thursday night. The programme consisted of round and square dancing, Messrs. Jack and Frank Buchanan and A. Plunkett furnishing the music.

A pleasing feature of the evening was the presentation of a set of pipes, cigaret holder and cigar holder in a case, to Mr. Wilford Hartry who has been transfered to Toronto and who left on Friday morning to take up his new duties. The following address was read:

Dear Mr. Hartry:

It is with our regrets that you are leaving us but what is our loss is another's gain. Since you have come among us with your good nature and ever-smiling countenance you have always been willing to help any one in need and have been a booster to all social gatherings. You have grown into our hearts and you will be missed by all of us very much and we hope that you will often come down and pay us a visit.

Therefore we, your friends, wish to show in a small measure your good fellowship with us, we ask you to accept this small gift and hope that when you are having a smoke you will think of the many friends in Havelock. We all join in wishing you health, wealth and prosperity.

Signed on behalf of the Club: C. Jamieson, H. Gordon, P. Pincombe.

Build up Weight in 3 Weeks with New Combination of YEAST and IRON—or Pay Nothing Pleasant Because Tasteless

"A Lovely Skin for an Ugly One"

"Since starting your IRONIZED YEAST I have found wonderful improvement. The pimples on my face were very bad and now they are gone. I thank you very much and I will never forget the benefits I have received from IRONIZED YEAST, recommending it to all my friends."—Miss Annie B., Montreal, Canada.

It seems incredible how fast IRONIZED YEAST adds pounds of good firm flesh—on women and men, children and old people. Doctors know the value of vegetable iron and yeast in building up and improving the body. IRONIZED YEAST, in a highly concentrated form, contains all the blood-building properties of vegetable iron with yeast. It is nine times more effective than a cake of ordinary bakers' yeast or iron alone.

New Complexion For You

People ask—what is the magic in IRONIZED YEAST that transforms sallow, lifeless, faded complexions into the fresh, smooth, lovely skin of early girlhood? Wrinkles disappear. Eyes renew the sparkle of youth. Hollows fill out.

Thousands have given up cod liver oil for IRONIZED YEAST. Gives all the weight-building benefits of the oil. Vegetable iron and yeast have been used for years to vitalize the body; to make rich, healthy blood; to improve digestion and bowel action and add weight. In IRONIZED YEAST these two valuable elements are combined in a special formula that is nine times stronger than yeast and iron used separately. That's why IRONIZED YEAST works so quickly. So get a generous test treatment—60 nine tablets in a handy package. No nasty, pasty taste—Safe to take—contains no harmful drugs.

LONDON, March 15. (Canadian Press).—The Daily Mail's Johannesburg correspondent sends a discouraging account of the new Grasfontein Farm diamond field. Couriers Safe

MOSCOW, March 15 (Canadian Press).—The charge d'affaires of the Peking Government in Moscow yesterday said that he had been instructed that Mme. Borodin, wife of the Cantonese adviser, and the three Russian couriers now detained at Tsinan, were in complete safety.

The statement was in reply to the Soviet protest against the arrest of the Russians by the Shantung authorities and in answer to demands that word of their safety be transmitted.

EVEN RICE HURT STOMACH, SAYS GIRL

"I had indigestion so bad that I was afraid to eat anything. Couldn't even eat rice. Adlerika has done me so much good that now I eat anything. I have taken a lot of medicine but Adlerika is the best."—Ardenia Howard.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleasing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicine, it acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. Just one spoonful relieevs GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

SIGNS OF SPRING

A boy living on Otonabee street has seen and heard several different birds. He has seen a robin, woodpecker, blackbird and crows, and heard a chickadee.

AT NORWOOD.

NORWOOD, March 15.—Signs of spring's approach are both felt and seen. The atmosphere is such that makes the women feel like donning their spring hats and coats. Men have already been making their appearance in their shirt sleeves and without either cap or hat. Cutters and sleighs are being put away and the automobile and motor truck are seen more frequently. The young boys are playing marbles on the streets but as yet the girls haven't produced their skipping ropes. Crows have made their appearance and the pussy willows are about ready to burst forth. Some horticultural enthusiasts have tulips and other flowers more than peeping through the ground.

Sap buckets and milk cans are on display in the hardware stores and from all appearance spring is just around the corner.

AT WARSAW.

WARSAW, Feb. 15.— Ground hogs have been out for several days.

Pussy willows are in low places, showing their soft grey little catkins.

The school children's greatest amusement is making drains. Their feet are often soaking wet, but it does not seem to hurt the healthy child, and some of the youngsters seem to be budding engineers.

There are bare spots on the hills and the roads are very slushy in many places.

AT MOUNT PLEASANT

MOUNT PLEASANT, March 15—The first real spring day we have had was Friday with its warm, balmy air every one seemed to be possessed of the spring spirit.

Crows have returned in numerous numbers, their lusty cawing to be heard almost continually hunting for food in the neighborhood. Robins are to be seen and heard once more. Gulls were also heard by one man who reports seeing a bluejay also.

The children are busy in the town with their shovels, hoes and sticks making drains or channels for the outlet of the water. They have also been seen sitting in the warm sun on the sidewalks playing marbles.

The pussy willows are plentiful to be seen in bloom. The men are busily engaged opening up the culverts and ditches.

Representatives on Jubilee Committee Asked to Meet Next Monday.

Additions to the list of representatives from local organizations assigned to the promotion of the Dominion Day Jubilee Celebration proposed to be held in this city, are coming in from day to day, and it has been decided, with approval of the Mayor, as President of the general organization, to hold a meeting of all those appointed or nominated from the organizations, on the evening of Monday next, March 21, in the Council Chamber of the city building. All interested will please take notice.

From those who attend a General Executive Committee will be selected, and from suggestions of the representatives present, and who know the personnel of their respective organizations, the special committees will be drafted for service. In addition to this notice a post card will be mailed to each representative, giving the date and place of meeting, that all may be appraised. The meeting will be at eight o'clock sharp. The Mayor will preside. Once these details are settled work can begin and plans may be outlined and discussed.

In addition to the Executive Committee it is known that at least twelve other sub committees will be needed to handle details, each assuming a part to have carried out. From time to time other meetings will be called and reports considered that all may know how matters are progressing. By the co-operation of all interested a demonstration worthy of the city and the occasion can be organized.

PUTS AN END TO BUNION PAINS

No Need to Suffer Another day Those Suffering Agonizing Torturing Pains.

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal and that is to apply Moone's Emerald Oil night and morning.

Ask Bond's Drug Store or any first class druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full stength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. BE ASSOCIATED WITH A WINNER.

The campaign of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, which aims at a membership of 2,000, should be facilitated by the great success scored by the Exhibition last year.

Everybody likes to be associated with a winner, and the fact that the Peterborough Industrial broke all attendance records in 1926 will be an inducement to citizens generally to become members of an organization capable of producing such results.

A $2.00 bill makes you a member of this flourishing body of wide-awake citizens and admits you to the Exhibition as often as you care to go, which will be every day doubtless, in view of the variety of attractions that are promised for this year.

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, given the impetus of a membership of 2,000, will be able to produce results that will make the achievements of the past appear modest.

The objective of the present campaign should be attained without great difficulty, in view of the enthusiasm of the people of the city and district over the success of last year's Exhibition.

THROUGH STREETS NOT SPEEDWAYS.

Already, as the streets begin to dry up, there are indications that unless motorists are checked up in their tendency to drive too fast on through streets, the stop-street plan will be shorn of much of its effectiveness.

The fact that drivers of cars coming into through streets are compelled by the bylaw to bring their machines to a stop does not exempt motorists on such streets from the section of the Traffic Act which provides for a ten-mile speed in crossing intersections.

There are far too many drivers who pass intersections at twice that speed, and it is obvious that our last state will be worse than our first if the offenders are not made to realize that the legal speed at such points is ten miles.

The stop-street legislation was introduced for the sole purpose of reducing the risk of accidents at street corners.

It was not intended to make through streets speedways for those who like to "step on the gas," and if such drivers persist in taking advantage of the fact that cars entering from side streets must stop, the bylaw will contribute little to the general safety.

Fast drivers should confine their activities to the highways, where a rate of 35 miles an hour will be legal this summer.

THIS IS THE SURE SIGN.

It is a difficult thing to be an optimist when your slumbers are rudely broken into by the noise of water gurgling in your cellar, yet the residents living in the neighborhood of the famous Downie street creek should be able to extract some grains of comfort from the annual flood.

Other signs may fail.

The robin may be a bad weather prophet, and may have planned his northward journey weeks too soon.

The small boy with his marbles and his sister with her skipping rope are not dead sure indications that spring has actually arrived.

But when people in the Downie street area find the furnace extinguished by rising waters and the contents of their cellars floating around in two or three feet of flood water, they can say with every confidence that Old King Winter has gone for good.

As a detour for road-building, while not pleasant in itself, always means a better road in the future, the Downie street flood invariably means that the seed catalogues can be read and the garden implements prepared for speedy use.

But it is safe to say none of these happy thoughts flashed across the minds of anybody in that area around 2 o'clock yesterday morning.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

The fact that the old age pensions bill has been passed by the House of Commons seems to have caused some misunderstanding among those who might expect to benefit by such legislation and who have the idea that the pension scheme will shortly come into effect.

It might be just as well, for the sake of those who are counting upon relief in the form of a pension, to explain the situation.

Should the bill be approved of by the Senate—it was rejected by the Upper House last year—it will not come into force in any Province in Canada until an old age pensions bill has been passed by that Province, as the scheme is to be carried out on a fifty-fifty basis, one-half of the expense to be borne by the Province.

There will, therefore, be no old age pensions in Ontario until the Provincial Legislature decides to participate in the plan.

All pensioners in any case must be:

(1) British subjects;

(2) Of the age of 70 years;

They must have resided in the Province for twenty years immediately preceding the application for pension; and

Must not have made transfer of any property for the purpose of qualifying for a pension.

The proposed maximum pension is $240 per year, and if the total income of the pensioner (including the pension) exceeds $365, the excess above this sum will be deducted from the $240.

PRESS AGENTS AND THEIR WILES.

The press agent of a certain California hotel asks us to inform readers of The Journal that Sir George Paish, the British financier, is a guest at what, in his disinterested way, he calls a "favorite haven for distinguished visitors from England." He mentions in an offhand manner that the hotel is situated "in a large park of semi-tropical trees and flowers," and undoubtedly it is devotion to the comfort of his guest—there could be no other reason—which causes him to regret that Sir George has not been able "to enjoy the golf links and the delightful motor rides undisturbed" because of numerous dinner and luncheon engagements. If we have omitted to give the name of the hotel we trust Sir George will not hold it against us.

The incorrigible optimism of the press agent and the confiding trust of the man who pays his salary are bright spots in a commercial age. They decline to recognize the sordid, material factors of business. They value only what they can get for nothing. The press agent has a veritable passion for giving information to newspaper editors, and sternly he refuses to recognize the rights of the business office at all. If the editor declines to give away space which the advertising manager has for sale is the press agent discouraged? Never. He comes back again and again, for his pay envelope is dependent upon energy at his end whatever may happen at the other. Incredible quantities of good white paper are wasted in efforts to secure free publicity for public institutions, for private enterprises, inventions, books, stars of the film and the stage, to the fattening of post office receipts and waste paper baskets.

The daily avalanche of this stuff is so great that most newspaper editors in self-defence arrange that it shall be weeded out of their mail before it reaches them.

"Press agents" would be a misnomer but for the fact that they do seem to be able increasingly to press busy executives into paying for their worthless services.—Ottawa Journal.

PRESERVING OLD ENGLAND.

The charm of England is infinite in its variety. Every county has its distinguishing characteristics, revealing a beauty of landscape or an historical background all its own; every city and town has its individual aspect and appeal to the interest of the visitor, for whom the fascination of London is but one phase of an experience that is impressive at every stage, whether within sound of the sea that is the symphony of English life, in the pulsing heart of the midlands, or amid the hills and lakes of the rugged north.

But when all the guide-book sights have been exhausted, it may be doubted whether there is anything in England more alluring than the amenity of her village life, so quaint and picturesque and suggestive of that past which is her richest heritage. And not the least part of the charm of the typical English village, which the speeding motorist or railway traveller too often misses, is to be found in the cottage homes of antique design and distinctive aspect that stand as memorials of an age long gone, and are landmarks of an England that is rapidly disappearing.

The cosy thatched cottages with whitewashed walls are as characteristic of Devonshire as the overhanging gables are of Surrey. Suffolk conceals much history behind the timber frames that stand out so conspicuously in its village streets. In Gloucestershire many old buildings after the Cotswold style survive; Sussex glories in its half-timbered fronts; Cornwall's plain stone homes match its rough sea crags and rocky landscape; other counties have their distinctive features of village architecture that give character to their surroundings and recall the social life of the past.

Time and the spirit of local improvement have played havoc with those seventeenth and eighteenth century homes, notable, not only for their association and design, but for the quality of the materials and workmanship contained in them. The tendency has been to treat them with the indifference usually reserved for things that have outlived their usefulness. In some cases they have been permitted to fall into ruin because it would not pay the owners to repair them; in others, they have been demolished to make way for residences of a type known as "modern" but that oftentimes is hideous.

The result has been the disappearance, in all too great a measure, of a feature of the English countryside which all true lovers of the picturesque and historic should wish to see preserved. Apart from their engaging aspect and antique suggestiveness, there are in those typical old cottage homes a beauty of design which might inspire many a modern architect, and an excellence of craftsmanship that might well serve as a model to many a twentieth century builder. And added to these are associations with the past that in themselves carry a strong appeal.

Not before time, it would seem, is an organized effort being made to save these interesting landmarks of rural England. Thanks to the Royal Society of Arts, a movement has been set on foot to raise a fund for the purpose of preserving such country cottages of the old type as need repairs or show signs of falling into decay. The object is not to maintain them as historical relics for the attraction of visitors, but to have them restored and made habitable, so that they may remain as examples of the building crafts of a former age, and as a survival of the picturesque in English village life. It is a movement which should appeal to all who value the beautiful and historic that, so amply blended, constitute the abiding charm of old England.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., March 15 (Canadian Press)—There was some demand from continental buyers for Manitoba spring wheat on the Montreal market yesterday and sales of a few loads were made, but business with the United Kingdom was again very dull.

The trade in grain in the local market was of a limited character, but the undertone was steady and prices were unchanged.

The local and export demand for spring wheat grades of flour was fair, and a moderate amount of business was done at firm prices. The winter wheat situation was quiet but steady.

The millfeed market continued active with a firm undertone. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices were unchanged.

A feature of the local egg trade was the weaker feeling that developed in the market and prices were reduced another cent per dozen. This was attributed to the continued mild weather prevailing and the prospects for more liberal supplies from Canadian producing centres in the near future. The market was moderately active. The receipts were 1,510 cases.

The demand for potatoes continued of a very limited character and the undertone was easy. Sales of odd cars of Quebec varieties were made at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

A moderate amount of business was done in New Zealand and Canadian grades of butter. The former was quoted at 44c to 44 1-4c per pound, and the latter at 43 3-4c to 44c per pound. The receipts were 136 packages.

The cheese market continued exceedingly quiet with an easy undertone. The receipts were 378 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 15 (Canadian Press)—Enlarging world shipments other than from Canada and the United States, together with the promising domestic crop outlook, gave a downward trend to wheat yesterday. Export demand for North American wheat lacked volume, sales in all position being only 300,000 bushels.

Closing quotations on wheat, although steady, were 1-8c to 1-2c net lower, corn 5-8c to 3-8c off to 1-8c up. Oats 1-4 to 1-2c down and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of 7c. Lowest prices yet on the present movement were touched by May delivery of wheat. Corn reflected 1,484,000 bushel increase of the visible supply. Further more, Montreal wired that cash interests there had Argentine corn bought for every month shipment up to August. Oats followed corn.

Offerings of provisions were light except on upturns.

Letters to be printed in the Voice of the People column must be received at The Examiner office on the day before it is desired to have them published.

THE ROBIN STAYED

565 Patterson Street, City,
March 13, 1927.

Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—Signs of Spring are in the air, many rooms having arrived from their winter quarters. I believe there has been a room in our city during the whole of this winter. It was in the city during the early part of January. Among our featured friends that have arrived and seen by the undersigned are crows, blue-jays, song sparrow, bronzed grackle red-winged blackbird. A number of interesting and beautiful birds may be seen in the city during the winter months, some that I have noticed this last winter have been the pine grosbeak, evening grosbeak, cedar waxwing, a striking and beautiful bird feeding upon the rowan tree berries. The grosbeaks were feeding upon the seed of the Manitoba maple.

There was a note appeared in a recent issue of The Examiner re the habits of the cuckoo, which may be misleading to our girls and boys if let go without some explanation. The note refers to the parasitic habits of the cuckoo, building no nest and depositing their eggs in other birds' nests, leaving the young cuckoos to the care of their foster parents, etc.

Most adults will be aware that the above refers to the European cuckoo not to our native species, both the black-billed and yellow-billed cuckoo of North America construct their own nests and rear their own young, occasionally but rare they too fall into the parasitic habit. An interesting and useful habit of the cuckoo is the fact that they can swallow large numbers of hairy catterpillars which are destructive to the farmer and gardeners' crops; sometimes a little fruit is taken. On the whole a useful and interesting bird.

Thanking you, I remain,

E. J. JULIAN

REGARDING THE NEW MARKET BY-LAW

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir.—The usual quiet atmosphere of the market building was somewhat disturbed on Saturday morning with the stern officers of the law passing around among the various vendors and those whose wares had not a resemblance of farm produce were told, "You cannot sell these things on this market."

To remonstrate with them was fruitless; they were inexorable: "Our orders were that this new law came into effect upon March the 10th."

Many expressions of mirth and wrath and enquiry were frequently heard.

The absence of many of the city aldermen was also noticeable, who on former Saturdays passed around among the large gathering with their pleasant "good mornings" and jokes. But only a few had ventured in, and their faces had a crest-fallen appearance, and they manifested an inclination to absent themselves as quickly as possible.

However, before one of them had made his exit he was assailed by a lady with home-made cooking and was asked what he had done.

As he viewed her wares, he said, "You are alright lady, quite within the law." "Oh," but the lady replied, "the police told me I could not sell my goods here."

The ray of hope encouraged another lady at an opposite table to ask about her chance. Her's apparently was another problem. She had a little fruit in her cooking to add to its flavor and attractiveness, but was informed that the new law would not allow foreign fruit to be sold.

But she expressed her willingness in the future to observe the regulations.

What is this new market by-law, anyway? The police do not know; the aldermen do not know, and His Worship the Mayor and his advisors do not seem to know. For later in the day these big sturdy officers of the law were asked again to climb these long stairs and pass around among the vendors again; but now with a smile on their faces, and say, "We were told from the city buildings that it would be alright for a while.

Evidently the appearance of the Retail Merchants' Association before our aldermen caused the giants of courage and intellect to become paralzed with fear, and did not really know what they had done.

Listen to the sham consistency of these merchants: We want you to stop the sale of all goods upon the market that is not farm produce. We have stores and pay taxes, and we have a just right to have those patrons who buy at the market to purchase in our stores.

But ask those merchants how many of their wives purchase at the local stores. The Toronto business firms will give you the answer.

I understand another meeting of the aldermen will be called in the near future to see if they can understand what they really did do upon that memorable night.

Some things are still in the dark and need adjusting.

That venerable blacksmith who for the past thirty years has defied the elements on a ten-mile drive and has been on his place on the market square with the product of his skill and has met his rural customers and sold them their requirements.

In some mysterious way his products will have to be converted into farm produce.

Perhaps His Worship the Mayor has strong strong man in his mind who will be the head of a commission to work out the details of this municipal new market control act.

But do not worry if it is a failure; the market square would make an excellent tennis court and the market hall could easily be converted into a municipal bowling alley, and would still be a revenue producing investment.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for so much valuable space.

Yours sincerely,

OBSERVER.

THE JUDICIAL MIND

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

The scarcest thing in the world is the judicial mind. It is the mind that is kept open and ready to receive any opinion and does not close up until the facts warrant it.

Most people make up their minds for other reasons than evidence. They are moved to decide their opinions by training, by tradition, by passion, by hope and by any sort of thing except the facts.

The other day Charlie Chaplin, a famous movie star, had trouble with his wife. Many ladies' clubs and others passed resolutions against him. They formed their opinion without knowing the facts. What the facts are has not yet been ascertained and people with judicial minds will wait until these facts come to light.

Of course the burden of proof is upon those who accuse Mr. Chaplin of wrong doing. His high position and the money he has acquired render him a tempting mark for the gold diggers.

We shall assume Mr. Chaplin innocent until he is proved guilty. But this proof must come in the shape of facts and not from interested parties.

A great deal of noise was made about the Aimee Semple McPherson case. Most people have made up their minds either one way or the other, yet not one of them knows the truth. We may think one story is more plausible than another, but absolute evidence we do not possess.

The State dropped the case against her because there was not enough evidence and it might be well for us to imitate the State.

The position of Mrs. McPherson has made her a juicy morsel for certain parties to attack and all stories about her should be discounted for this reason.

When there was a famous murder trial, the Halls-Mills case in New Jersey, most people expressed decided opinions one way or the other. After carefully sifting the evidence the State could not find it sufficient to condemn the accused parties.

The skies drip press agents, says some one, "educating us to eat flour, drink peppo, buy widgets, reserve space in the Eternal Rest of marble mausoleums, love rattlesnakes, shun Darwin, hate Moscow and bomb Wall Street."

"There are," says Mr. Everett Dean Martin, in "The Meaning of a Liberal Education," "five techniques of propaganda: The fixation of ideas by repetition, the trick of over-simplification, insinuation by appeal to prejudice, distortion of facts and coercion."

So it behooves us to keep an open mind.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

ART IS LONG

Customs officers have decided that the modernist sculpturings of Constantin Brancusi, the Rumanian, are not art and therefore are subject to duty, 40 per cent as usual. This will be an awful blow to the big dot-dash-and-dollar artists of Europe, who every few weeks send across their mess of color for a mess of choice American pottage. . . . They even had King George puzzled a while back. He stopped before a painting of an Abyssinian sunset or something and wanted to know if it was a dog or just a fish. . . . A picture of an Alpine crag was sent over to America recently and it took the experts four days to decide whether it was a school of salmon attacking a tin can factory or the artist's concept of a bevy of Brazilian beezarks pursuing a crazed ovis poli. . . . One of Brancusi's works looked so much like an egg to the inspector that he thought he'd boil it, but when they told him it was "Bird in Flight" he let it fly . . . But art is long and life is like that.

Well, now that General Smedley Butler has been sent to Shanghai, it will be almost safe for the boys to resume their usual entertainments.

PRESENTATION TO WESTWOOD PEOPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cardwell Are Leaving for Toronto.

WESTWOOD, March 15.—On Tuesday evening, March 8th, a large number of friends of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cardwell gathered at their home to bid them farewell ere they took their departure from this community, for their new home near Toronto. Mr. Cardwell has resided all his life upon the farm which formerly belonged to his father and grandfather, and in consequence has made many firm and staunch friends. A pleasant evening was enjoyed by those present, cards and games being played.

During the evening a pleasant event occurred, when G. A. L. Humphries called the attention of the gathering, and the following address was read by Stewart Graham.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Cardwell and Baby Benny:—

We, your friends and neighbors, have gathered this evening to show our love and express our regret at your departure from among us.

Your life in our midst has been a source of pleasure, and you have gained the confidence of a large circle of friends.

You, Ben, have always been with us, in this your boyhood home, and have been one of our leaders in our social and church life, also furthering the interest of the community in sports. As a member of the council, we, who have been associated in the political life, will miss you. Always, have we found you ready and willing to help in every way. Mrs. Cardwell, we have learned to love you since you came as a bride to our vicinity.

Your loss, to this community, will be felt by us and in order that this expression of our regard and esteem for you, may be shown in a more obvious way, we wish you to accept this wicker living-room suite, as a reminder of the kindly feelings of the people of your home community.

As you go to your new home, it is the sincere and heartfelt desire of all, that you may long be spared to enjoy the greatest happiness.

Many changes will come during the coming years, but we hope you will always keep a warm place in your hearts for your old Westwood friends. Our wish is that God may prosper you in your new home and life.

Signed on behalf of your friends:

G. A. L. Humphries,
William Morris
Lewis Beavis.

Mr. Cardwell responded very appropriately, thanking the friends for their kindness. He expressed their regret at parting with their many Westwood friends, and the hope that their acquaintance might be renewed many times in the future.

Following a hearty chorus—"For they are jolly good fellows," a dainty lunch was served.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Sharp.

The members of the W.M.S. of the United church held a quilting party on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Miss Jessie Davidson. A very pleasant as well as profitable time was spent after which refreshments were served.

Miss Annie Weir, of Villiers spent Tuesday the guest of Mrs. G. A. Renwick.

Mrs. Walter Hope of Villiers was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Hope on Tuesday.

Nasal catarrh is not only disagreeable and offensive, but it will lead to serious trouble.

That inflamed condition of the mucous membranes of the air passages of the head, nose and throat may spread to the point where it is incurable and a danger to life.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes are composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries. The warm smoke vapor is inhaled into the affected air passages and will go where sprays, douches and salves cannot reach. They contain no tobacco or cubebs, and being harmless, are used by children, as well as adults.

If you suffer from any catarrhal trouble, catarrhal deafness, hoarseness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations, or are subject to frequent colds, get from any druggist a pocket-size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes, and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effects.

Bees Invade Market Visiting Flower Stall

ST. CATHARINES, March 15.—A curious freak of nature study was furnished people on the city market when a large swarm of bees swept down on a florist's stand and attacked the flowers. The bees so gorged themselves with honey that they could scarcely fly when finally driven away. Where they came from nobody knows, as at this season all respectable bees in this section are supposed to be quietly reposing in their winter quarters, from which they cannot escape until released.

MANY MEETINGS AT MILLBROOK

Tuxis Boys Hold Sleigh Drive—Auxiliary Meeting Held.

MILLBROOK NEWS.

The boys of the Tuxis Square were hosts for a very enjoyable sleighing party on Thursday evening, extending an invitation to quite a number of the girls to join them for the outing.

Two sleigh loads of the young folk left the village about 8:30 p.m., and after a drive of three or four miles out in the country, the trip being enlivened with the singing of popular songs, and the hilarity usually prevailing on such an occasion, return was made to the church parlors, where a hot supper was served, and thoroughly enjoyed.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Freelove the supper was ready when the hungry guests arrived, the menu including hot baked beans, sandwiches, cake and coffee.

Music and other entertainment rounded out the evening in a satisfactory manner before the party finally broke up.

A few of those present were: Misses K. Lancashire, E. Elson, Alvira and Elmo Davis, Mary Wood, Beryl Wood, Peggy McCarthy, Dorothy Crossley, Messrs. J. Larmer, Ernest Burnham, H. Anderson, Aubrey and Eldrich Todd, Charlie Larmer, W. Sayles, R. Larmer, Nelles Rowland, B. Freelove, Jack Byam, Melville Braithwaite and Reg. Willis.

Auxiliary Meeting.

Mrs. H. Seaton entertained the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of Grace Presbyterian church for its March meeting on Wednesday afternoon, the President, Mrs. W. T. A. Deyell, occupying the chair and conducting the devotional exercises, which included the Scripture lesson read by Mrs. Seaton, followed by prayer by the leader.

The study book, "Moslem Women," was taken up by Miss Kennedy and Mrs. Deyell, the reading of two chapters proving of decided interest, and illuminating in detail. Mrs. L. C. Russell contributed a solo which added to the pleasure of the gathering.

The usual proceedure of having the roll call as the concluding item on the programme was followed, and the meeting was dismissed with the W.M.S. watchword.

During the social hour at the close Mrs. Seaton served dainty refreshments, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

The Grace Church Auxiliary meets on the second Wednesday of each month, and practically all the women of the congregation are enrolled in its lists of members.

Church Night.

The weekly "Church Night" drew a record attendance on Wednesday evening, when probably five hundred people were present, the Fifth Line group being in charge.

L. W. Smith was chairman, and welcomed the guests of the evening, which invariably include a number from other denominations in the village and vicinity, after which the following programme was rendered:

Opening Chorus—"Bring Back My Bonnie to Me," by the group.

Recitation—"A Little Girl," by Dorothy Smith.

Recitation—"Mother's Pride," by Esther Might.

Reading—"Why Maids Will Wed," by Mrs. J. Willis.

Chorus—"The Days of the Week," by Esther and Gordon Might, David Hatherly, Mary Muspratt, Margaret, Kathleen and Dorothy Smith; the recitation part was by Pearl Childs; each little one carried some representative article.

Selection by the Strong Quartette—Mrs. Amos Strong, piano; H. Hunter, banjo; Messrs. Amos and Melville Strong, violins.

Recitation—"Jenny Wren," by Gordon Might.

Song—"Susannah, Don't You Cry," by the 'Ebony Sextette'—J. Byam, R. Larmer, K. Skitch, L. Rowland, W. Sayles and Piercy Pitt. Encore, "Way Down in Carolin' ";

Recitation—"Taking Care of Me," by Kathleen Smith.

An interjection at this point was full of interest; the song being adopted as the special church chorus is "The Church in the Wildwood," and each group had come prepared with an original verse, substituting "The church at Millbrook," and containing an appropriate sentiment. These were sung by each of the eight groups in turn, and later the best will be selected and put on a slide for permanent use in the months ahead.

Lunch was served following the singing, sandwiches and doughnuts having been provided in what seemed unlimited quantities, and the usual social time was enjoyed.

A contest with six men trying to drink a cup of water without "putting their noses in the cup," provided relaxation as everybody laughed heartily while Messrs. P. Stinson, H. A. Fallis, F. McMahon, W. Fred Fallis, W. E. Ball, and G. W. Sayles endeavored to solve the puzzle successfully; the community singing of hymns thrown on the screen completed this section of the programme.

The pastor's talk was on "Evangelize the Inevitable," a phrase from the popular book, "The Christ of the Indian Road," the thought specially suggested being "to have the spirit of Christ pervade our play life, our church life, and our national life."

A recitation, "Keep a Tryin'," by Nelson Moore, preceded a "Chalk Talk" by Mr. Irwin Hatherly, the "mathematical puzzles" being grouped around the figure nine.

Selections by the Strong Quartette, and by the Ebony Sextette, brought the evening to a close, the National Anthem dismissing the large gathering.

The final Church Night will be held next Wednesday evening when the convenors of the eight groups are putting on the programme. In some other form the weekly gatherings will be continued for a while, and during the summer it is hoped to have church picnics at least once each month, the respective groups being still in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne, Carmel, are moving this month to the farm, near Omemee which was Mrs. Thorne's girlhood home, Mr. Thorne having purchased it from her father, R. J. Paterson, ex-M.P.P. Mr. Paterson recently moved to Lindsay to reside.

Mr. S. Bonner has bought Mr. Thorne's farm at Carmel. There will be general regret felt at losing Mr. and Mrs. Thorne from this vicinity.

Mr. W. J. White, of Omemee, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. J. Spence, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Duncan, for a brief visit this week.

Mr. Ronald Hutchison, formerly of the local Bank of Toronto staff, has recently been moved to Milton, and promoted to the position of accountant. During his residence in Millbrook Mr. Hutchison was president of the Cosmos Club, and prominent in promoting clean sport in the community.

Mr. A. A. Birchard was in Lindsay this week attending the funeral of his brother, Mr. Alexander J. Birchard, secretary-treasurer of the furniture and undertaking firm, J. Anderson, Limited, who passed away suddenly on Monday, March 7, in his forty-second year. Deceased was taken ill while returning by train from Hamilton on Saturday. He was a Past Master of the Masonic Order, and a Past Noble Grand of the I.O.O.F. Lodge. He is survived by his widow and one son. The funeral, under Masonic auspices, took place on Wednesday, interment being in Riverside cemetery.

The Women's Institute has issued invitations for a St. Patrick's Day party to be held in the Town Hall on Thursday, March 17, the committee in charge including Mrs. C. Thorndyke, Mrs. T. H. Aiken, Mrs. Will Armstrong, Mrs. Stuart Fallis, Mrs. C. C. Garside and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne.

Mr. C. B. Dawson, principal of the public school, is ill with an attack of 'flu, and his room is having a holiday for the remainder of this week. Mr. Dawson's many friends will join in wishing him a speedy recovery.

A surplus quantity of water in the school basement has caused considerable trouble this week, the breaking of a tile in the main drain, with soil sifting through and stopping the outlet, being the source of the difficulty. The necessary work is being promptly done, and the trouble will be remedied within the shortest possible time.

The many friends of Mr. J. Steele will be glad to learn that he is making progress toward recovery after some weeks of ill health. Mrs. G. Steele, of Manila, and a niece, Miss Steele, of Toronto, were recent visitors at his home.

MADOC LODGE VISITS TWEED

Oddfellows Confer Second Degree in Fraternal Visit.

WELL PUT ON

MADOC, March 14.—The officers and members of Tweed Lodge No. 290 I.O.O.F. paid Madoc Lodge No. 179 a fraternal visit last night, exemplifying the second degree or Degree of Brotherly Love on the following brothers of Madoc Lodge: Bros. At the conclusion of the degree work, the fourth degree was partaken of during which the members of the two lodges renewed fraternal acquaintances.

In the wee sma' hours the members prepared to adjourn with the singing of Auld Lang Syne, and as the last note died away, Bro. PRIZES AND DEATH.

BLOOMFIELD, N.J., March 15. — Tony Lungo, truck driver, who achieved fame by eating 60 meat balls at a sitting, won a $100 bet here by devouring 25 frankfurter sandwiches in two hours. He drank two glasses of water, one of orangeade and went home, under his own power. At Middletown, N.Y., on the same day, Sidney Condichini was running and eating a frankfurter, strangled and died.

Even to-day there are said to be more than three million persons held in slavery.

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT.

MAN HAS NOT CHANGED SINCE THE DAYS OF EDEN.

George O'Brien Shows in "Fig Leaves" That Adam is No Nearer Understanding Woman To-day Than He Was Six Thousand Years Ago

That man is no nearer understanding woman to-day than he was six thousand years ago in the Garden of Eden, is proved by the story of "Fig Leaves" which opened at the Regent Theatre last night. That the little problem of woman's dress was as much of a puzzle to the original Adam as it is to the Adam of to-day was ably demonstrated by George O'Brien, who plays the parts of both the skin draped husband in the Garden of Eden and the husband of the modern Eve. The lovely Olive Borden plays the Eve to O'Brien's Adam. The role is one for which no better or more suitable star can be imagined. As the shy, dainty Eve, coyly responding to the love of the first he-man and later as the wife of a modern small business man, she is equally charming.

The sequneces of scenes in the Garden of Eden in this picture, which is presented by William Fox, are probably the most entrancing ever shown on the screen. Through gardens of sheer beauty, garmented in little beyond the glory of her hair, the first woman wanders in all her innocence watched only by the worshipping eyes of her man and the envious eyes of the serpent.

And as in the Garden of Eden so too, to-day, the serpent watches with envious eyes the love of Adam Smith and his wife Eve. Though the serpent has changed his mottled body and is now in the form of a beautiful woman, a part ably played by alluring Phyllis Haver, she proves equal to the task of tempting Eve into deceiving her husband.

"Fig Leaves" was directed by Howard Hawks and is a splendid example of the story that hits home.

AT THE CAPITOL.

CORRINE GRIFFITH IN "THE LADY IN ERMINE"

An interesting actor in "The Lady in Ermine" is Francis X. Bushman, whom fans will remember as one of the most promising of the very earliest of movie actors, now staging a "come back" in roles which suit him to perfection. Admirers in former years of this handsome actor will note the progression he has made in the art from which he was exiled for so long. He has the part of the Austrian General, Dostal, in "The Lady in Ermine," and there is a very good-looming hero in Einar Hanson, playing Count Adrian Murillo, and another interesting male in the person of Ward Crane, who, as the Crown Pripce of Austria, gives a very entertaining performance.

The star, Corrine Griffith, with her lovely face and weak mouth, is as beautiful as usual in the part of Countess Mariana Beltrami, and does an immense amount of posing in the portrayal of the noble lady who is separated from her bridegroom on the day of her marriage, by the exigencies of war which takes him from her side, and then arouses the interest of the Austrian General who is quartered for the night at her castle, and of his companion, the Crown Prince of Austria. The outline of the picture revolves about "The Lady in Ermine," the Countess Mariana's grandmother, who helps her out of a difficult situation by way of a dream tryst with the drunken general. Adrian, returning in haste to assist his bride, is apprehended as a spy, and ordered to be shot at sunrise, but the General, under the influence of the helpful "Lady in Ermine," becomes merciful and spares him to his bride. The picture has a very beautiful setting.

The comedy is a Mack Sennett affair, "Flirty Four Flushers," with the usual Sennett atmosphere of hilarious humor. It delineates the efforts of a four-flushing lady and gentleman to appear otherwise than what they are, and has some amusing moments. The short reels include an interesting close-up of the youthful, stubborn face of George Young and of Gene Tunney, also a whimsical page from Tony Sarg's Almanac, illustrating the efforts of primeaval fire-fighters.—Jeanette.

FOUR PLANNING LONG FLIGHTS

All Trying For Prize For New York-Paris Non-Stop Trip.

3,600 MILES.

NEW YORK, March 13.— (Canadian Press.)—The prospect of a four plane air race across the Atlantic for the Raymond Orteig twenty-five thousand dollar prize loomed Sunday with the announcement of plans by Lieutenant Commander Noel Davis for his proposed non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Commander Davis, noted pilot, announced yesterday that he planned to take off from Mitchell Field, L.I., in June in an all American expedition and hoped to make the thirty-six hundred mile flight in less than 42 hours.

Plans for two other New York to Paris flights have already been announced for this summer. Commander Byrd, who flew around the North Pole last spring, has announced a Fokker plane is being built for him, while Captain Rene Fonck, French ace, is also having a plane built. A St. Louis flight, for the same race, is contemplated by Captain Charles A. Lindbergh, chief pilot of the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route. Captain Lindbergh says his plans are for a small plane and that he will be unaccompanied.

YANGSTSE FLEET CHANGES SIDES

Now Fying Natoinalist Flag —All Vessels Are Obsolete.

CHINESE BULLETINS.

PEKING, March 15.—(Canadian Press).—Defection of the navy at Shanghai, in which the Yangtse squadron of seventeen vessels went over in its entirely to the Cantonese, has not affected the war situation up to the present, except to add to the mounting toll of treachery, another tragi-comedy incident. The squadron, the best ships of which are two cruisers of three thousand tons, thirty years old, which changed masters whenever a master became tired of being paymaster for a flock of obselete craft, declared its "independence" after a quarrel with the Shantungese over the usual monthly subsidy. It is at present lying off Woosung, flying the Nationalist flag.

The Nationalists hope that the ships will be useful to cut off the retreat of the Shantung troops if they are forced to cross the Yangtse River. The Shantungese are paying little attenion to the incident, although it is reported that Chang Tsung Chang, their commander, has ordered a still loyal squadron in the south to give battle.

In the remote event that the two squadrons clash, the spetcacle would be presented of an engagement between the world's most antiquated fleets. It is pointed out, however, that hitherto money and not guns almost invariably have decided Chinese naval issues.

Northerners Claim Victory.

PEKING, March 15 (Canadian Press).—Headquarters of Marshal Chang Tso Lin Manchurian War Lord, claim further successes near Cheng Chow, in Northern Honan, which city is about to be attacked by Chang's forces preparatory to launching a drive southward toward Hankow, held by the Cantonese.

Missionaries to Return.

MANILA, March 15 (Canadian Press).—American missionary refugees who came here from Foochow in January when the Chinese city was evacuated because of the fighting will return there in three weeks.

U. S. Destroyer Fired On.

PEKING, March 15 (Canadian Press)—The United States destroyer Preble was fired on by Chinese troops on Sunday near Wuhu, on the Yangtse River, while escorting a standard oil launch with which Chinese had interfered, it was learned to-day. The bridge of the Preble was struck twice, but there were no casualties on board. The Americans replied to the Chinese fire with machine guns.

Trouble at Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, March 15 (Canadian Press).—Local industrial unrest continues. Fifteen thousand cotton mill workers are striking. Inflammatory literature continues to be posted in prominent places.

Workmen Seize Factory.

HANKOW, March 15 (Canadian Press). — The Cantonese Labor Union has taken over the British Cigarette Company's factory. This was done because the company refused to accede to a demand by the workers for an increase in pay.

ROBBER SEIZES CASH IN STORE

Makes Get-Away in Crowds at Afternoon Rush Hour.

IN DETROIT.

DETROIT, Mich., March 15. — A thug raced down seven flights of stairs in the Crowley Milner and Company department store and escaped in the rush crowds late yesterday afternoon after forcing a girl clerk in the credit department to hand over $400 in cash. The robber eluded his only pursuer, a clerk in the store, who fell down the steps when he had the fugitive within his grasp.

Shortly before 5 p.m., a man walked up to the cashier's cage and presented a note to Miss Ethel Blair, 17 years old clerk, in the deferred payment department, which is operated in connection with the store. The note read: "You are covered, so don't hesitate. I want $500. Don't talk for five minutes."

Miss Blair, frightened, glanced once at the man, then nervously she pushed a pile of bills towards him. He grabbed them and as he turned toward the stairway she screamed. The robber broke into a run and a clerk took up the chase, followed by other employees. Pursuer and pursued raced down the steps from the seventh floor, on which the credit department has offices, forcing their way through streams of employees leaving the store after the day's work.

LIBELS A TOWN

MIAMI, Fla., March 15.—"Selling out. Going back north when men are men and rents are reasonable." That was the sign that B. Lewis Kaufman placed on his novelty store here. Irate real estate men caused his arrest. A judge said Kaufman had insulted Miami, and sentenced him to ten days in jail.

Arbuckle Signs Contract To Make Comedy Series

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—(Canadian Press). — The Los Angeles Examiner says Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle, whose career was cut short in 1921 when he was accused of responsibility for the death of Virginia Rappe, picture actress, but later acquitted, has signed a contract to produce a series of comedies for Abe Carlos, an independent producer, over a period of five years, which it was said he expected will net him two and a half million dollars. Arbuckle's wife, formerly Doris Deane, will appear in the pictures.

AMERICAN SAYS 'PEACHES' LOST

Paper Claims Authoritative Knowledge of Browning Suit Decision.

JUDGE DENIES STORY.

NEW YORK, March 15 (Canadian Press).—The New York American says to-day that Edward W. Browning has won his suit for separation against his youthful bride, Frances "Peaches" Heenan Browning, and that she has lost her counter suit and chances of alimony.

The American says it has obtained authoritative advance information of the opinion of Supreme Court Justice Seeger, who tried the case.

Judge Denies Report.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 15 (Canadian Press). — Supreme Court Justice Seeger, who presided in the recent Browning separation suit trial, to-day characterized as a "lie" the published report in the New York American that he had rendered a decision in the case.

MOTORMAN HURT.

Sustains Compound Fracture of Leg When Cars Collide.

TORONTO, March 15 (Canadian Press).—Preston Dutcher, a motorman on the Metropolitan Radial Railway, sustained a compound fracture of the left leg and several passengers were badly cut by flying glass when a car at York Mills failed to take a switch and crashed into another car on a siding.

'Quake Caused $5,000,000 Property Damage in Japan

LONDON, March 15.—(United Press.) — Japan's latest earthquake caused approximately $5,000,000 damage to property, an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio said to-day. The week end snow storm which isolated most of the Japanese empire from communication with the rest of the world crippled 13,000 telephones in Tokio and broke the Boning cable, the dispatch said.

DOURO TO JOIN RURAL DISTRICT

Electric Light Users of Suburban Part of Township Hold Meeting.

COUNCIL TO ACT.

A meeting of the users of electric light located in the south end of the Township of Douro was held last night in the Auburn School in order to memorialize the Township Council to apply to the Hydro-Electric Commission to be admitted to the Peterborough rural district in conjunction with the other townships of Smith, Otonabee and Monaghan.

The Reeve and Council have been for some time, as stated by Reeve Leahy, who was present, favorable to the scheme, but were holding back owing to the objection of a few of the users not understanding the matter. When it was explained by those present it was voted unanimously to ask the Township Council to apply for admission to the rural district.

Ex-Reeve Rye of Monaghan kindly consented to come and explain the matter as far as it affected the other townships,which satisfied those present that it was desirable for the Township of Douro to join with the other townships in the "rural district."

Reeve Leahy stated that a meeting of the Council would be held in the course of a week and the necessary steps taken to join in the rural district.

BASS SEASON TO OPEN JULY 1

Committee Recommends Change To Legislature—Longer Deer Season.

DUCK LAWS STAND.

TORONTO, March 15 (Canadian Press).—The Fish and Game Committee of the Legislature this morning decided to recommend to the Legislature that the deer season south of the Trans-Continental be opened on October 10 instead of October 25, as is the regulation at the present time. The season will close on November 30, as before. North of the railway the season will remain the same as in previous years. Some opposition to the change developed among some of the members who felt that the earlier season would make it difficult to keep the meat from spoiling.

The committee also passed a recommendation which will result in the bass season opening on the first of July instead of on June 15, as formerly. H. H. McKay, biologist of the Government Department, addressed the members briefly on the studies that had been made of the habits of the bass.

The committee made no change in the regulations in connection with duck shooting, the bag limit and hours of shooting and other regulations being left as the law now stands.

OFFICERS ELECTED AT ANNUAL MEETING OF LOCAL BALL CLUB

Gordon Matthews Again Heads the Petes in Quest For Senior Honours.

MUCH MATERIAL.

Several New Players Available Who Are Expected To Strengthen Squad.

At a well-attended meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms last night, the Peterborough Baseball Club was re-organized, officers elected and plans for the coming season discussed by players and officers.

So far as players are concerned, the Peterborough Club is in good shape. All of last year's team are here except Herb. Wolfe, and several new players are available, who are counted upon to strengthen the squad.

The outlook as regards the Central Ontario League is not quite so rosy, although hopes are still entertained that a four club league can be arranged.

A preliminary meeting of the league is to be held at Belleville a week from Saturday and Max Swanton and "Shiner" Johnston were delegated by last night's meeting to represent the Peterborough Club.

H. T. McFadden, vice-president of the local club last season, declined to take an office this year in view of the fact that he is President of the Central Ontario League and he desires to carry on in that position unhampered by allegiance with any club. The following officers were elected, the majority having filled similar positions on last year's board:

President—Gordon Matthews.
Vice-President—Vic. Hamilton.
Secretary—Sheriff F. J. A. Hall.
Treasurer—Doug. McDonald.
Executive— R. M. Glover, O. De Graw, Robt. Abbott, J. W. Anderson and Jack Pilling.

The question of appointing a manager was left to a vote of the players.

The financial report showed that in spite of the three team league, and the fact that the Peterborough team did not participate in the final series, the club had broken even last season.

TOURISTS FIGHT WITH FARMERS

Quarrel Over Prices Asked For Pulling Cars From Mudhole.

NEAR LONDON.

LONDON, Ont., March 15. — The impassable condition of the stretch of road on the London-Windsor highway, about 25 miles west of London, near Strathburn, took on an international aspect yesterday, when trouble arose between a number of American tourists, who were stuck in the mud, and farmers, who refused to haul the cars out at what the owners thought were reasonable prices. The minimum charge is said to be $15 and as high as $25 is being exacted. A fist fight was threatened and an appeal was sent to High Constable Wharton to quell the trouble. Constable Haggerty of Glencoe was also called.

At one time 20 cars and trucks were stalled, and in one case 12 horses proved unable to move a large van. In many instances strange drivers drove directly into the sea of gumbo, and their wives and children had to flounder knee deep in mud to terra firma.

One woman became hysterical and tried to throw her baby through a window of a sedan into the mud of the road, but was caught in time by another occupant of the auto.

Some of the tourists have threatened to bring the matter of the condition of the highway to the attention of the American Automobile Clubs for the purpose of warning Americans to keep away from Canada. The farmers claim that their horses are worn out, and that $15 is not too much to charge for towing a car a mile and a half in the mud and clay. Larger cars of course have to pay more. Hon. George S. Henry and the Department of Highways, are coming in for very strong criticism for having failed to complete the road last fall. It is the only unpaved piece between Windsor and Niagara Falls. More than 300 cars have already been pulled out of the hole with horses.

CHANGE IN BILL ON EXEMPTIONS

Income Tax Change Will Not Affect Assessments Made in 1926.

IN SECOND READING.

TORONTO, March 15. — As a result of the revision of the Ferguson government's amendment to the Assessment act, residents in large municipalities of the province will not, if the bill is enacted, receive immediate benefit from the increased income tax exemptions. Nor will large municipalities feel the effect of revenue losses which the bill entails until two years from now.

Smaller centres, assessing and collecting all in one year will be affected immediately the law is enacted.

The revision was made in the Legislature yesterday when Attorney-General Price obtained second reading for the act, which increases exemption for householders from $2000 to $3000 and for non-householders from $1000 to $1500.

In putting the bill through this further legislative stage yesterday he revised it in part to provide that the new schedule shall not apply to taxes levied in 1927 on assessment made in 1926." Previously the bill had provided that the exemptions be construed as if in force on Jan. 1, 1927. This had meant that, if the bill became legislation, tax rates already struck and taxes already levied would be interfered with.

BURGLAR KILLED ON DARING JUMP

Shot by Police as He Leaps 20 Feet When Caught at Work.

IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Ill., March 15.—(United Press).—"The Spider," a burglar who had specialized in entering high buildings, was killed in mid-air Sunday while jumping 20 feet to escape the police.

The building he was attempting to rob was the same one in which he started his criminal career six years ago.

Abe Kopman, the burglar, a few minutes before he was shot, had jimmied a third floor window and was about to enter an apartment. Detectives Arthur Vanderpool and Michael J. Fleming were passing the building and heard a rasping sound. They turned their flashlights upwards and saw the man crouching on the porch next to a window. "The Spider" dashed to the steps, leaped over a banister, caught a two-by-four upright and started to slide to the ground, vanishing from the focus of the spotlights. When the lights caught him again he was twenty feet from the ground, where he braced his feet against a cross piece and jumped. As he did so, both officers fired. They found him slumped against a fence where he had staggered.

APROPOS OF SPRING

While looking through a book of clippings in search of some items in regard to the life of the much loved St. Patrick, I came across a poem clipped from the "Washington Star" which struck me as being particularly appropriate to the weather we are having just now. Being of a philosophical vein, it seems to me worth quoting, for though we are in the midst of a "warm wave" this week, if this March is true to its predecessors we are quite likely to freeze up again before long, and to wonder with a touch of despair if all the signs of spring have withdrawn in favour of old King Winter again. The poem is called:

Just Wait For The Thaw.

Cheer up, chillun, though the weather's mighty raw,
Every time dar comes a freeze, dar's gotter come a thaw.
It takes a little patience till de freezin' time is done,
An' if yoh lose yoh temper, why, it doesn't help yoh none.

Cheer up, chillun, 'cause de weather's on de move,
When de luck appears de hardest, it is certain to improve.
Cold wave an' warm wave, dey gotter mind de law—
Every time yoh gets a freeze, yoh gotter have a thaw.

Cheer up, chillun, an' prepare to say "Hurrah!"
De chilliest proposition by an' by is boun' to thaw,
Yoh hopes dey keeps a-droppin'—don't yoh let it make yoh frown,
Thermometers was built foh movin' up, de same as down.

So, cheer up, chillun, 'cause yoh sho'ly might as well;
We all has our troubles, an' dar's nothin' new to tell.
Each botheration seems about de worst yoh ever saw,
But every time yoh gits a freeze, yoh' gotter have a thaw."

Just at present we're having the thaw in Madoc, and the boys and girls are having the time of their lives, getting their feet wet and then having to dry their boots over the school registers. No matter how much a boy may dislike water when it comes to applying a little to his hands and face, he eyes it with the greatest of admiration and avidity when he sees it forming miniature rivers and lakes on the roads. He may weep and wail when forced to wash his ears, but he screams with delight as he carefully measures the depth of the roadside rivulet to "see if it will come over his boot tops."

Next to the joys of the melting snow, some marbles and they too, are in evidence. When marbles come, spring is surely here. They are a safer guide than even the Globe robin, which, I fear, must sometimes winter in a friendly swamp. Talking of robins, above the chattering of gossipy sparrows I heard the sweet, clear trill of a robin last Sunday morning. The air was delightfully balmy and its spring-like quality was greatly enhanced by the song of the invisible redbreast, for though we gazed searchingly in all directions we could not spot the little fellow, yet clear and high from some distant tree-top, came that most welcome of all the spring-time sounds.

Of course Mr. Crow is here, too, and I sometimes wonder if even Jack Miner wouldn't be glad to see and hear the bold black thief on an early March day, if he lived in this part of the country.

Dear little pussy willow is out in her dainty gown of silver and pink. About two weeks ago I heard some children say the pussy willows were peeping out, but not until Monday did I catch a glimpse of her shy, demure presence. Now, I have some soft, furry pink and white ones in the window where they seem to say, "Here we are again! Didn't you know it was spring?" And I feel like answering: "Well, I had a 'feeling in my bones' that spring was near, but I wasn't quite sure until I saw you."

The sap is running, too, they say, though no one about here has tapped yet to my knowledge. Speaking of sap reminds me of a question once asked on an examination, concerning a sentence in a lesson on maple sugar-making in one of the old Readers. It read: "What is the meaning of 'The sap stirred in the legs of the country boy'?" And one of the answers given no doubt expresses the feeling many a person has today, "It means he has the spring feeling in his legs."

Walking on a street beside a building with a southern exposure, I came upon a hornet, that evidently didn't have the spring feeling in his legs for he lay prone upon the walk. Nevertheless, stupid and half-awake as he was, he gave me a little thrill of pleasure, for I felt that he was another sign of spring.

The spring ploughing has begun—on the roads to Belleville and Tweed, and the cars which are doing the ploughing, have got down to the mud in several places.

GANERASKA RIVER FLOODS C. N. TRACK

Seven Hundred Feet of Railway Washed Out Near Port Hope.

PORT HOPE, Ont., March 15.—Flooding of the Ganeraska River, at Boyce's Bridge, one mile north of Port Hope, early yesterday washed out about 700 feet of track on the Midland division of the Canadian National Railway, resulting in the cancellation of train schedules during the morning.

Heavy rains on Sunday and rapid thawing of snow in the northern part of the country caused considerable swelling of the river, which flows through the centre of Port Hope. Fortunately, ice in the ponds along the creek did not give way and the swollen stream did not reach alarming proportions. Large gangs of workmen were rushed to the scene at Boyce's Bridge and succeeded in clearing away huge piles of ice which dammed the river, causing considerable lowering of the water level by noon. Emergency repairs were made to the tracks and trains yesterday afternoon were able to cross the washout by travelling at minimum speed and testing each section of track ahead. Several bridges in Port Hope were flooded. The stream has gone down considerably, and unless heavy rains come within the next couple of days little flood danger exists.

WOMAN NOT GUILTY OF KILLING CHILD

Jury Acquits Her Of Manslaughter Charge Arising From Beating.

DETROIT, Mich., March 15. — Mrs. Elma Drawe, 20 years old, who was tried on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death on February 28, of Everett Barentine, four years old, was found not guilty yesterday by a jury after six hours of deliberation. The prosecution contended that Mrs. Drawe beat the child to death, and the principal witness against the defendant was Eleanor Barentine, nine years old, sister of the dead child.

Mrs. Drawe had been taking care of the children since the separation of their parents, former residents of Hamilton, Ontario, where the mother still resides. Several character witnesses testified on behalf of Mrs. Drawe.

In charging the jury, Judge Moynihan declared if it were impossible to agree on a manslaughter verdict an assault and battery charge had been considered.

Around a garage you're bound to get hurt.

CRIPPLED BY PAINFUL SWELLING IN HIS LEG

Trouble gone after few applications of simple remedy.

As he came in from work in the evening, a garage worker of Shreveport, La., felt a pain in his left leg above the ankle, and the next morning it was badly swollen and worried him when walking.

"I applied Sloan's Liniment to it that night," he writes, "and the pain nearly all left. I applied it again and the next day the swelling was all gone. For all aches and pains I find nothing to beat Sloan's Liniment. I keep a bottle in the garage where I work."

Sloan's gets results because it stirs up the body's own powers to heal itself. Just pat it on, and at once you can feel the fresh blood tingling through the sick tissues. Inflammation, swelling, stiffness, pain, begin to give way at once.

DEATH OF WOMAN BEING INVESTIGATED

Crown Attorney Orders Inquest Into Sleigh Accident Fatality.

HANOVER, March 15.—Crown Attorney T. H. Dyer has ordered an inquest into the circumstances of the accident whic resulted in the death of Mrs. Thomas Ryan at the Toronto General Hospital on Feb. 21. The injuries came when a sleigh containing over twenty members of the Women's Institute upset while the party was returning from an initiation meeting at the home of Andrew Filsinger, Normanby Township, on the evening of Thursday, Feb. 10.

Five members of the party suffered injuries in the accident, which occurred at a dangerous corner. Mrs. Ryan succumbed in the Toronto hospital some ten days later from the effects of a splintered shoulder blade. The driver, police say, was Clayton Filsinger, a young man about 25 years of age, a son of Andrew Filsinger.

The inquest will open on Thursday, March 31. It is intimated that the body may be exhumed, and a post-mortem held.

Police claim that the sleigh was overloaded, that sleigh-box was not securely fastened, and that sufficient care may not have been taken in turning the corner, as it has been reported that the occupants had to stand up and lean over in the opposite direction from which the turn was made on more than one occasion during the trip as a precaution against upsetting.

Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford said last night that the death had never been reported to him in Toronto.

Aged Bachelor Loses Life When Trapped in Burning House.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., March 15. — Joseph Moynaughn, aged 63, a well-known farmer of Peel Township, six miles south of Arthur village, was burned to death Saturday afternoon. It is not known how the fire started or how he met his death.

He was a bachelor and kept his money in a receptacle in the attic, and it is supposed that while trying to secure the money he was trapped in the house.

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Astrologers read this as rather an unfortunate day, since malefic aspects dominate.

There is a particularly menacing sway for women, which appears to presage for them new anxieties about the men they love.

Under this planetary rule there may be serious conflicts of opinion regarding public affairs and much misinformation may be prevalent.

There is a sign read as foreshadowing disasters or battles on the high seas.

Oil interests again are subject to influences tending to precipitate troubles of various sorts.

Greed is to be rampant as never before in the world, which is to experience new throes of agony in the shape of war.

This is not a lucky day for love affairs, since there is a sway tending to suspicion and jealousy.

Lack of faith in human nature is to spread and the reign of selfishness will be far-reaching.

Under this direction of the stars it is well to stress the nobler ideals of life and to teach patriotism in its most exalted ideals.

The price of food and of raw materials of many sorts will rise within a short time, if the stars are rightly read.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year that is not important in any changes, but it should be prosperous.

Children born on this day are likely to be sensitive and fine grained. They are likely to have artistic talents.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

But asking Charles Reilly Neff, law partner of Ralph Cluny, who had been murdered and for whose murder Cherry Lane Wiley had been indicted, for information in regard to the mysterious blackmail letter which Bob Hathaway had taken from his uncle's letter files proved to be an almost impossible undertaking.

Friday morning's papers carried the news that Mr. Neff was seriously ill at a private hospital, following a sudden attack of appendicitis.

"He may die," Bob told Faith over the phone. "And even if he gets well enough to receive visitors, Churchill is very much afraid that he will refuse him an interview. The two men are ancient enemies, rivals. He would not willingly do anything to further the cause of the defense, unless he has a rare sense of justice, which I doubt."

"Can't you get a court order of some sort compelling the executors of the estate to let you look at your uncle's letter files? I've been thinking nearly all night, and it seems to me that common, ordinary justice would grant that," Faith insisted.

"Neff is one of the executors, Alexander Cluny is the other," Bob pointed out. "Both are violently antagonistic to Cherry, both believe that she killed Uncle Ralph for his money. But Churchill is putting a private detective on that letter, to search the county court records and the prison records. He'll nail the writer, if possible, even though he hasn't a great deal of faith in the letter as a clue. Are you going to see Cherry today? It's visitors' day, isn't it?"

"Yes," Faith answered. "But Churchill wants to see me before I see Cherry. I'm going over there now. You mustn't give all your time to the case, darling," she remembered suddenly. "You're an architect, dear; not just—just a detective."

"There is nothing in the world so important to me now as this case," Bob answered almost curtly.

But Faith, on her way to Churchill's office, did worry about the man she was engaged to. He was devoting practically all of his time to her and to Cherry's case. And he was putting up everything he had in the world to defend Cherry against the charge of murdering his own uncle.

She found Churchill extremely busy, and as usual almost invisible in a fog of smoke.

"Just got a minute," he barked at her. "Wanted to tell you to fix Cherry up with some mourning clothes. Deepest mourning."

"Mourning?" Faith faltered. "Mother wouldn't want Cherry or me to wear black for her. She took such joy in Cherry's beauty—"

"That's the point," Churchill snapped. "Cherry'll look more beautiful in black. Get her into plain but expensive black things just as quick as possible. Smart things, but things that look simple and inexpensive. Interviewers are taking cracks at her now for not wearing mourning. And when she goes to trial, she's got to play up to the jury. I'll coach her in courtroom behavior later, but you've got to get her clothes lined up. And by the way—skirts not to short, but short enough to show those pretty legs of hers. She's got to look like a sweet, modest, old-fashioned little girl that couldn't commit a murder to save her life. Get me?"

"Yes," Faith nodded, swallowing at the lump of misery and disgust in her throat. "I'll—I'll talk with Cherry about clothes this afternoon."

For the first time since Cherry's arrest Faith was not besieged by reporters when she arrived on Friday afternoon for a visitwith her sister in the women's ward "parlor" of the jail. Now that Cherry had been indicted, arraigned and her case set for trial for a month hence, she was not considered "hot copy" any longer; newspapers would give her and her family a measure of peace and privacy until the case should come up for trial. Then, as Faith had been warned by Bob Hathaway, the city would be a mecca for feature reporters from all over the country.

Mrs. Webb, the matron of the women's ward of the county jail, received Faith as if she had been an old friend.

"Hello, dearie. You're looking right peaked. What a terrible thing for you that your mother had to go and die on you like that! To think she'll never know whether her baby girl was innocent or not!" And Mrs. Webb shook her gray-haired head with tongue-clicking sympathy.

"Mother would not have believed Cherry guilty if every jury in the land had convicted her," Faith answered quietly. "May I see Cherry now, Mrs. Webb?"

"Sure you can, dearie. She's sure the little lady, and the way she's behaving herself is setting a wonderful example to the other girls—poor dears. You set right here and make yourself at home," she soothed Faith, with unconscious irony. "I'll go fetch her."

When Faith again was holding her adored little sister in her arms, Mrs. Webb wiped an easy tear from her plump cheek and considerately withdrew.

"Bring her a present next time you come, darling," Cherry whispered, as the two girls seated themselves. "She adores home-made fudge and taffy. She really is an old darling, even if she does talk my arm off, telling me hair-raising stories of other murderesses that she counts among her best friends—as she says." There was a bitter twist to the childish, unrouged mouth.

"Hush, darling," Faith begged, passing a loving hand over the short, gleaming red curls. "You're not a murderess, and you're not to get bitter. I've just been to see Churchill, and he wants me to get you some new clothes—before the trial starts."

"And how?" Cherry's voice was scornful but her lips trembled. "Dad isn't working yet, I suppose. I don't know where you're going to get money for food much less to buy clothes for me with."

Faith's eyes filled with quick tears but behind them glowed a light of pure thankfulness. Cherry was at last thinking of someone besides herself.

"Hush, darling! You mustn't cry like that." Faith begged, her own voice struggling through tears. "They won't let me stay long. Look up now. Smile! That's better! We'll now consider ways and means, and plan for some clothes—

"If I have to go to trial in Churchill's ideas—" Cherry laughed shakily.

"He knows how to dress you to get the sympathies of the jury," Faith retorted. "Now, first, what about Chris? After all, he's your husband. What can he do for you?"

Color flamed in Cherry's pale cheeks and lightning flashed ominously in her golden eyes.

TOMORROW: Cherry makes a confession to Faith about her wedding night.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Pink and white cross-barred lawn is trimmed with solid pink lawn in this simple washable frock. There is a white collar edged with the pink and a pink leather belt.

Cotton materials showing small neat figures of the sort that we call English prints are used extensively for little girls' frocks for spring and summer. There are checks and plaids and stripes and interesting printed linens but these things play a role of only secondary importance.

Little girls' washable frocks follow rather closely the fashions worn by their mothers—save that they are usually accompanied by matching bloomers that show very slightly below the skirt of the frock and that they are almost always made with short sleeves or with no sleeves at all.

Little puff sleeves that come half way between shoulder and elbow and short straight sleeves of the same length are often seen in these wash frocks for spring and summer—but there is some reason to believe that sleeves of this length will be favored for women as the warm weather becomes a fact and not a dream.

The skirts of little frocks are usually arranged with front and back plain and the fullness disposed of at each side by means of pleats or gathers. Frocks for the younger little girls sometimes hang unconfined from neck to hem but for the girl who is past seven or eight the belted type of frock is usually more becoming. Sometimes there is an inverted box pleat at the back of frocks that fasten at the back.

Wool voile and some of the lighter woolen fabrics that suggest challis, are used to make attractive spring frocks for the little girl who needs more warmth than that provided by cotton or linen. Small prints similar to those found in the cottons are also to be had on this light woolen foundation.

The time is ripe, according to a fashion authority in Paris, for the return of the wig. Short hair will stay—for a time anyway—because women find it so much more convenient than long hair. It is indispensable for sports. Yet the effect of long hair is better for evening. The way around this difficulty is to adopt the fashion for wearing wigs—wigs that attempt to deceive no one—but are worn as an accessory of evening dress as one might wear a bandeau or a turban. It has been suggested that white wigs might become fashionable.

"It Makes His Life Significant"

SCRIPTURE: Read Philippians 2: 1-11.

"He that hath seen me hath seen the Father" (Jn. 14:9). "The first man Adam became a living soul. The last Adam became a life-giving spirit" (1. Cor. 15:45). "But we all . . . beholding as in a mirror the glory of the Lord, are transformed into the same image from glory to glory" (11. Cor. 3:18).

See—John 5:19, 15:24; Hebrews 1: 1-4.

MEDITATION: It is good that there was once so fine a character. The conception that this goodness is at the heart of the universe means everything. Suppose instead there were selfishness and cruelty at the center of things; suppose even that there were indifference there. That would make indifference, selfishness or cruelty logical standards for our lives.

"I have never looked upon the fruitless human soul. Never till I found Thee. But Thou hast answered to the pattern in my heart."

HYMN:

Lord of all being, throned afar,
Thy glory flames from sun and star;
Center and soul of ev'ry sphere,
Yet to each loving heart how near!

Lord of all life, below, above,
Whose light is truth, whose warmth is love;
Before Thy ever-blazing throne
We ask no luster of our own.

Grant us Thy truth to make us free,
And kindling hearts that burn for Thee,
Till all Thy living altars claim
One holy light, one heavenly flame.

—Oliver Wendell Holmes, 1848.

PRAYER: Thanks for our ideals and joys.

Pray for—submission to God's will honest doubters; schools.

Collect—Our Father in heaven, whose patience knows no bounds, we thank Thee for the oncoming of Thy kingdom in the world, and for the means of grace in our lives. We bless Thee for the Son of Man; serving in Galilee, loving in Judea, triumphing in Gethsemane, atoning on Calvary and rising from the grave. We rejoice in our redemption through Him and in the hope of immortality brought to light by Him. Yet in our weakness we have set our hearts on things on the earth. We have thought success better than righteousness and ease desirable above service. In Thy patience brood over our dull spirits till love awakens in us. We commit ourselves to the Son of Man in holy living and loving service, for His name's sake. Amen.

Varsity Grads Defeat New Edinburgh 10-0 At Ottawa

GRADS TOO GOOD FOR EDINBURGHS

Ottawa Champions No Match For the Speedy O.H.A. Team.

FINAL SCORE 10-0.

OTTAWA, March 15.—University of Toronto Grads maintained a slate unsullied this season by swamping Ottawa New Edinburghs, champions of the Capital and district, under a 10-0 score in the first match of their Allan Cup play-down last night. A combination that worked like machinery and their ability to outskate and outcheck the locals, gave the Blue and White crew the long lead to take into the final game of the round in Toronto to-morrow night.

Hughie Plaxton, lanky Grad centre, stood out on the peerless team with the mean total of half of his club's goals. Trottier added a pair, and Hudson, Porter and Frank Sullivan counted the others.

The Burgh men figured in the picture for only a short time. At the start they also had a combination machine on the ice, but it went to pieces before the close-knit checking of the Grads, and especially in the last half of the game, when they were played to a halt.

Trottier Scores First Goal.

The auditorium was jammed with some 7,300 fans when Referee Billy Bell sent the teams into action. Taylor propelled the initial rush, but shot far wide. Munro and H. O'Neil answered with a thrust that ended at the Grad defence. The locals forced the early pace, and all of the Burgh forwards pounded shots off Goalkeeper Sullivan's chest.

The first determined charge of the Blue and White went to Porter, when the big fellow barged clear through to test Beveridge with a high shot.

After a nervous first five minutes, the Blue front rank settled down and their combination rushes were sensational. Their drives, however, were handled easily by the invincible net tender. When Taylor went off for boarding, Munro and H. O'Neil got inside the Grad defence and both had bullet shots.

Their team at full strength again, the weightier and faster skating Grads opened out again. Trottier and Plaxton bore in and a general melee that ensued around the Burgh cage nearly resulted in a tally.

A smooth two-man dash by Plaxton and Trottier completely tricked the Ottawa rear guards and Trottier hit the upper bar of the local net to have the disc ricochet off for the first goal.

The locals were brandishing a neater brand of combination attack, and their sorties into the Grad territory were a revelation. Sullivan was absorbing practically as many pucks as were being bounced off the Burgh netman. However, in less than five minutes from the first tally the Toronto clan showed their ability to strike at the proper time, when Plaxton broke in to catch a rebounding puck to shove it in for the second goal.

Grads Get Team Play Working.

Both teams were shorthanded when the second period opened. Trottier and Plaxton and Harold O'Neil completing the minor sentences imposed near the close of the first period.

Burnett was clear through and shot wild. Munro did the same. Hudson collared the disc and killed time by ragging, until both teams were again complete. The Toronto machine had got working smoothly by this time. Their teamwork was outstanding while back-checking turned back many determined Burgh rushes at centre ice.

CURLING NEWS

AT KEENE.

KEENE, March 15.—The Keene Curling Club wound up one of their most successful years in the history of the club on Friday night last when they had their annual election of officers for 1927-28. The prizes were also presented to the winning rinks in the local bonspiel and the inter-rink competition. Charles Nelson's rink won the wins and losses shield for the second consecutive time.

John Drummond's rink won the Manley trophy and M. Kennealey won the Dr. Walsh shield. Mr. Kennealey has been curling for forty-three years, and this was the first time he had been on a winning rink.

In the vice-skips' competition, Henry Weir won out, beating W. Fletcher, while in the knock-out W. Fletcher won from W. Hope in the final.

Seven rinks also won cuff links in the President - Vice-President series, the Vice-President winning out.

The idea of the Curling Club this winter was for every rink to win a prize, and a mystery contest was put on for rinks which had not won anything this year, there being five of these. This series was the spice of the whole programme, the prizes being very costly. H. Renwick's rink received four bottles of catsup; G. Howson's rink, four packages of muffets; S. Comrie's rink, four packages of pep, and F. A. Eason's prize was so valuable that it was thought that it had better not be put in print for fear of their homes being burglarized. W. Chapman's rink received Carter's pills.

The following are the officers for the coming year:

President—Charles Mather.
Vice-President—Ambrose Doris.
Sec'y.-Treas.—G. S. Taylor.

Large, Red Pimples Covered Her Face

Miss Mable Moore, Blenheim, Ont., writes:—"A short while ago my face was covered with large, red pimples. I tried several remedies, but all failed. At last a friend advised me to take and I took three bottles. I will never regret the day I did this as my face is entirely cleared up.

My mother has taken B.B.B. for headaches, and she hasn't had the least sign of a headache for a long time."

This valuable remedy has been on the market for the past 48 years; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BRAVES EXPECT TO FINISH IN FIRST

(By Billy Evans.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 14. — You hear no pennant talk in the camp of the Boston Braves.

The members of the team which finished seventh in the National League race seem to realize that from seventh to first is quite a hurdle.

However, don't get the impression the members of the Boston Braves don't think they form a pretty good ball cluub.

Led by the remarkable Dave Bancroft, who seemed to lose none of the uncanny ability that has characterized his play since he broke into the big show, the Braves are set to show the world that Boston has a better club than the near tail ender of last season.

The Braves are shooting at fourth place, the first division. That would be a rare achievement. Incidentally any club able to keep acquainted with the first division is always a pennant possibility.

Manager Bancroft is hopeful of better things when he looks over the showing made by the Braves during the last 50 games played last season.

During that time, in one of the most hectic races ever staged in the National League, the Braves played better than .600 ball.

It was the Braves who raised havoc during the last few weeks of play by consistently trimming the two leaders, St. Louis and Cincinnati. As a matter of fact, the late season success of Boston against Cincinnati just about put the Reds out of the running.

As a whole Boston will present much the same front as last year. Two changes are possible, only one of them of a drastic nature.

The one experiment Bancroft is now working on is the use of Eddie Moore at third base. Moore it will be recalled, is a second sacker. He played that position for Pittsburgh in 1925, helping it to a pennant and a world series.

Bancroft believes Moore can be converted into a capable thirk sacker—he has a remarkable throwing arm and is able to get the ball away quickly from any position. That is a most necessary asset.

Standing in the vicinity of third, coaching Moore, is Arthur Devlin, one of the three greatest players to ever fill that role in the majors.

Ability, plus the best of coaching, may solve the third base problem for the Braves. Bancroft—there is none better—will be at short, Gautreau at second, and either Fournier or Burrus at first.

The other contemplated change from the 196 line up is the use of Lance Richbourg in right field. That is a difficult sun field at the Braves' park and Richbourg is expected to prove capable of taking care of a troublesome spot. Eddie Brown and Jimmy Welsh will probably complete the outfield trio.

With a young ball club that has profited by last year's experience, the improvement of an added punch plus the certainty of better pitching make Manager Bancroft hope for better things than seventh place this season.

Of one thing I am sure; regardless of where they finish, the Braves will be a troublesome ball club to a lot of pennant contenders.

It is expected that flights will be attempted in the autumn of next year, from Seville to Buenos Aires, he said. The North Pole flight can be made in two days and that to Tokio in four, it is expected.

CALGARY CHAMPS OF PRAIRIE LEAGUE

Take Measures Against Saskatoon For Refusing To Continue Play-off.

MOOSE JAW, Sask., March 15.—(Canadian Press).—Calgary Tigers are the champions of the Prairie Hockey League, and disciplinary measures will be taken against the Saskatoon Shieks Club for refusing to continue the play-off, following a dispute over the decisions of Harry Scott, referee, in Saturday's game at Calgary, which the Tigers won 2 to 1.

The Sheiks were automatically suspended from the play-off series when they disregarded an ultimatum to play the third game in Calgary Tuesday night with Scott and Carl Battel, of Moose Jaw officiating, according to a statement issued here yesterday by Lieut.-Col. W. E. Seaborn, League President. Intimating that he had already decided on a course of action, Col. Seaborn refused to divulge just what it was, but admitted that fines for Saskatoon players would hardly be included in the League's disciplinary measure. The League President attaches no blame to the players, but holds Ben Hoeschen, owner of the Sheiks, responsible. Neither does Col. Seaborn attach blame to the Calgary players or officials.

The Saskatoon team left Calgary Sunday afternoon without notifying Col. Seaborn or replying to the ultimatum.

CANADIENS TO PLAY SENATORS

Decide Chances of Remaining at Head of Canadian Group.

MONTREAL FORUM.

MONTREAL, Que., March 15.—(Canadian Press).—Whether Canadiens are to retain their chances of finishing in first place in the Canadian group of the N.H.L. ahead of Ottawa will depend wholly on their showing against the Senators at the Forum tonight when the two leaders of the section encounter for the last time this season in a scheduled fixture. Ottawa has a six-point lead over Canadiens, with five games each for the two clubs remaining on the card. If Canadiens win the Ottawa margin will be cut to four points, with four games to go for each team, which would leave Canadiens a heavy, though far from impossible task to overtake the present leaders and earn the bye in the eliminations.

A loss for Canadiens would leave them still an outside chance to tie the Ottawa Club in first place, but it would be so slim as to be practically negligible. However, Canadiens are confident of a win tonight over the team which has been the only one in the league to consistently turn them back all season.

Cafson Cooper who had his collar-boner broken in a Canadien-Maroon game early in February, has rejoined the Canadiens and is taking part in skating drills on Canadiens practice days. Cooper is not likely to enter any of the club's remaining schedule fixtures, but is expected to be ready to get into action for the play-offs.

PLAYERS TO HAVE BIG MONEY "CUT"

This Year's N.H.L. Play-off Pool May Be Doubled..

NEW YORK, March 15.—(Canadian Press).—Professional hockey players participating in the National League's Stanley Cup play-off series this season will cut a bigger player "melon" than ever before. Regardless of where the games are played, this year's "cut" promises to greatly exceed if not double any previous play-off pool.

This was assured yesterday when the League's board of governors, meeting here to arrange the play-off dates, decided to lift the $25,000 limit which previously has prevailed for the players in the title series. Under the new arrangement, the players of the contending teams will get 45 per cent of the net gate receipts for the first three games of the five-game series, this to be divided on a basis of sixty per cent. to the winners and 40 per cent. to the losers.

The play-off schedule, arranged yesterday calls for home and home games between the second and third place clubs of each League section on March 29 and 31. The winners of these series will then play the leading clubs of their respective divisions in a two-game series, April 2 and 4, the winners of which will engage in a best three out of five game series for the Stanley Cup and the world's title. The first two games of the final championship series have been set for April 6 and 7.

The meeting discussed the playing rules and it was decided that no changes during the present season would be made. However, the board of governors will select a committee to study this question and the fans should not be surprised if next season they find the goalies with ten-inch pads and other players with shorter sticks. Both these talked-of changes are to weaken the defensive efforts of the teams, the first to give the goalies less chance of stopping shots, and the second to eliminate the plethora of poke-check artists who at present are making the lives of opposing forwards miserable.

On the other hand, steps will, in all likelihood, be taken to speed up the attack. Kicking the puck and forward passing by a team in its own goal area are in line with the other changes which it is expected will be recommended by the to-be-formed rules committee.

In respect to the play-offs, it has been announced that should the Chicago Black Hawks clinch a place in the American section play-offs they will play their post-season games in the New York Madison Square Garden. The Coliseum, home of the Hawks will be engaged by a six day bike race at the time of the final series.

High Grade Industrials Add Strength To Market

NEW YORK, March 15 (Canadian Press).—Reactionary price tendencies during the morning but by early afternoon the stock market was headed upward again under the leadership of a few high grade industrials. United States Steel Common sold within a fraction of its record top and the new "when issued" stock touched a new peak price at 117 1-2.

Renewed weakness of the oil shares followed the extension of recent crude oil and gasoline price cuts. Losses as a rule, were held to a point or so, with Houston showing independent strength. American woollen issue were again under a pressure as a result of unfavorable textile trade reports and weakness also cropped out in some of the merchandising issues such as Gimbel Brothers and S. H. Kress.

Pools were again active in a number of specialties, in which favorable developments are believed to be pending, Loew's Theatres and Eureka Vacuum touching record high prices.

Sharp declines took place in Cuba Cane Sugar Preferred, American Type Foundry, National Lead and St. Louis Southwestern.

Wheat Deliveries Touch Low Level On Downward Swing

CHICAGO, March 15 (Canadian Press).—Unexpected weakness of Liverpool wheat and favorable weather in this country had decided early bearish effect today on values here. All deliveries touched the lowest level yet on the present downturn. Opening 1-4 cent to 7-8 cent down, wheat showed but little power to rally. Corn and oats were easy and provisions firmer, corn starting a shade to 3-8 cent lower, later showing some additional decline.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 137 5-8; July, 132 1-4; Corn, May 76 5-8, July 80 3-4; Oats, May 45 1-2, July 46.

Noranda Advances Sharply On Firm Trading Market

TORONTO, March 5.—(Canadian Press.)—A firmer feeling was in evidence in the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. Gains outnumbered losses by a goodly margin, but the market on the whole was quiet. Noranda was the feature stock in figure in the transactions. Opening at 22.90 it advanced rapidly to 23.75 to ease off slightly at the close to 23.60, a gain of 80 cents a share. Area was active and stronger, selling up 1 3-4 to 39 3-4. Barry Hollinger firmed three to 45. Dome Mines was the firmest feature of the dividend paying gold stocks, gaining 20 cents to 8.90. Hollinger was up 15 to 21.00 Lake Shore was weaker, selling off five to 18.05, while McIntyre declined 15 to 25.25.

DOME MINES

The recent Annual Report just issued by this Company fully bears out our former statement. We estimated in our last that broken ore reserves would show 600,000 tons, whereas the Annual Report shows 575,000 tons. We also stated that the reserve for depreciation would be increased to $1,300,000. The reserve as shown in the report for depreciation is $1,349,527. We stated also that surplus would be decreased to an extent of less than $200,000 per year. The actual figure was roughly $216,000. It is interesting to note that the dividend assurance fund was increased during the past year from $2,173,827 to $2,219,432. This is directly in line with our former statement to the effect that the reserve for dividend could be maintained by paying dividends out of surplus rather than from the Dividend Reserve Fund. At the end of 1925 the President reports current assets over current liabilities as $3,489,083. At the end of 1926 this sum is $3,234,179 and does not take into account an item of $442,797 set aside as an addition to depreciation account. As stated in our last depreciation can be added to surplus, which would bring surplus account, including dividend reserve to $4,623,492.

To the above must be added the profit which will be made from broken ore and ore in place, which the management state is good for two years. This profit will amount to something over $3,000,000 disregarding any further ore which will undoubtedly be developed during the next two years, which added to the above surplus gives $7,623,492, equivalent to $7.62 per share on the issued stock. This price per share is in our opinion in sight at the present time and represents cash or its equivalent. The present market price allows very little for the speculative possibilities of the Company, which must be conceded to be important not only at the Porcupine property but in other districts in Northern Ontario and Quebec which other Companies are exploring to their very decided advantage. In the two-year ore reserve shown by the management nothing at all is allowed for ore indicated during the year by diamond drilling. A study of the diamond drilling results from the 16th level alone shows very important ore bodies indicated by diamond drilling, but as yet untouched by development. For example, hole No. 911 drilled from the 16th level showed one ore intersection, 35½ ft. wide, averaging $13.11 per ton lying about half way between the 17th and 18th levels, and a second intersection of 13 ft. averaging $44.02 at the 18th level horizon. Development of this ore has not advanced far enough as yet to reveal its importance. Hole 982, drilled from the 17th level to the S., indicated the following ore interceptions: 20 ft. averaging $6.20; 44 ft. averaging $10.27; 10 ft. averaging $6.41; 10½ ft. averaging $6.28. The greater part of this ore lies in the unexplored sediments between the 16th and 18th levels. Further diamond drilling done during the year gave the management extensive information in regard to formation at the lower levels. This information is materially assisting in present development, and we believe there is no doubt whatever that the results of this development will add very materially to present known ore.

While the Annual Report shows a reduction in net profits, these were only $121,834 short of the amount required for the present dividend rate. It is possible that Dome will cut the dividend rate in half, thereby reducing it to $1 per share per year, although at this time we cannot see that it is necessary. Interest alone on Dividend Reserve Fund and the balance of the Surplus Account amounts to sufficient at least to take care of the above difference between profits being earned and the amount required to continue the present dividend rate. So that, provided the decision is made to continue the present rate, the Company would be at the end of another year in very nearly the same cash position as they are today. If the dividend is halved then at present prices shares in this Company will yield well over 10% per annum and the Company's cash position would be very materially improved. Personally we see no necessity for cutting the dividend rate at the present time. The change in management first mentioned through this Service and which will undoubtedly take place at the next Annual Meeting, will we feel be entirely beneficial to the Company. It may be that the policy of the new management will be to cut the dividend rate. The prospective new manager is Harry Kee. This highly qualified engineer is ready to take hold of the property and in conversation with him the writer came to the conclusion that he would not be in favour of cutting the dividend rate at the present time.

MAGISTRATE JONES REFUSED ADMISSION

Will Not Be Permitted To See Sentence of Lash Carried Out.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 15—Magistrate Jones, of Toronto, was anxious to see how men sentenced to the lash were handled in the penitentiary, so he wrote to Warden J. C. Ponsford, to ascertain whether or not he could get permission to witness the punishment of a prisoner. Warden Ponsford refused permission, so it was learned to-day and Magistrate Jones took the matter up with the Minister of Justice with the result that Warden Ponsford was upheld, the minister of justice stating that only the penitentiary surgeon and the guard inflicting the punishment were allowed to be present.

DEFINITE EXPRESSION.

Colored Boy Knew What He Meant When He Said It.

The discussion was fast growing into a heated argument. The subject was the use of words. The last speaker had used the phrase "definite expression." The man who is always reminded of a story said:

"Definite expression—that reminds me. When I was in Florida last year I stood on the corner, waiting for my wife—who's always late. A big colored boy came running around the corner, all out of breath. Another black youth called out from across the street: 'Watcha runnin' for, Sam?'—in reply to which Sam shouted back: 'I ain't runnin' for, I'se a-runnin' from.' And that's my idea of definite expression."

The dictionary offer is arousing no end of discussion on the subject of words—definitions, pronunciations, and "definite expression." The coupon tells how to get this dictionary. Run for it—not from it.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of W. J. Parks, Hoards, Ont., who passed away March 15, 1926:

Fresh in our hearts his memory clings,
Yet still our hearts are sore
But each passing year will nearer bring
The day we shall meet once more.

In his grave he is calmly sleeping
His siprit shines above,
Safe in the Saviour's keeping
Waiting for those he loves.

IMPORTING OF SCOTCH MINERS BEFORE HOUSE

Hon. Robert Forke Says Some Getting Work and Staying.

OTHERS RETURN.

Plea For Exemption From Sales Tax of Small Manufacturers.

OTTAWA, March 16. — In the House yesterday afternoon, Mr. Adshead, Labor member for East Calgary, inquired if any protest had been received from Mr. Harrington, of the Nova Scotia Government, regarding the importation of Scotch miners for the British Empire Steel Corporation.

Hon. Robert Forke said he had received none, but he understood that while some of the miners were getting work and staying, the fares of the others were being paid home. There were two question of privilege. Referring to a newspaper quotation made Monday night by J. S. Woodsworth, in which he was stated to be a director of the E. B. Eddy Co., Sir George Perley denied that he had ever had the slightest interest in that company or any power concern.

Never Saw Any Brief

Ewan MacPherson, Liberal member for Portage La Prairie, took exception to criticism of his attitude towards the Georgian Bay Canal bill by The Ottawa Citizen. He resented the statement that he had made the mistake of "repeating the lobbyists' brief work for word." Mr. MacPherson said he had not been consulted by any one and never saw any brief. If there were such a brief and it coincided with his argument, then the brief was a good one.

Hon. C. A. Dunning promised to direct to the attention of the Canadian National management a complaint by A. E. McLean, M.P., for Prince County, as to a shortage of cars in Prince Edward Island, for the shipment of seed potatoes.

Sales Tax Exemption

The budget resolutions were then taken up and Henri Bourassa made a plea for exemption from the sales tax of small local manufacturers such as those who make sash and doors. Local saw mills up to $5,000 a year turnover are now exempted, and Mr. Bourassa held the sash and door factories should be in the same class.

Hon. J. A. Robb thought that the Minister had a degree of discretionary powers which might be exercised in such cases.

"It should not be done as a matter of discretion or favor, but should be specially provided for in the bill," asserted the member for Labelle.

Draw the Line

"Where would you draw the line?" asked Mr. Robb. 'There are hundreds of industries which could put up just as good an argument."

He promised favorable consideration, and Mr. Bourassa indicated that he put little reliance upon "favorable consideration" promised by Cabinet Ministers. He had had 25 years' experience.

Col. Arthurs wanted portable sawmills also exempted, and the Minister said that would be another suggestion for "favorable consideration." He promised that both these matters would be looked into carefully.

Hon. R. B. Bennett expressed the view that the Government should not give credit to taxpayers. It lent itself to a very great abuse, if more time were given for the payment beyond a certain date. It was unfair to people who did pay promptly that several millions of arrears should be outstanding.

Definite Instructions.

"Very definite instructions have gone out," stated Hon. W. D. Euler, that all current taxes must be collected by a certain date. Heretofore it has been impossible to add inter-

MANY HAPPY RETURNS.

HIS HONOR JUDGE HUYCKE, Whose Birthday This Is.

WILL NOT ISSUE HOTEL LICENSES

Commission Will Not Have Any Control Over Standard Hotels.

GRANT RENEWAL.

TORONTO, March 16. — The Liquor Control Commission will not have any control of standard hotels, as such, unless further legislation is brought down. It is quite true that permission will have to be sought from the commission at the expiration of the present fiscal year, from all who wish to renew their rights to sell 4.4, but they will be permit holders, and not licensees.

The right to grant licenses will rest in the hands of municipalities.

"In 1924, an Act was passed by the Legislature which decided that "no person shall carry on the business of a hotel unless he has paid the license fee prescribed by regulations and has received from the Minister the license to do so."

"Minister" was defined as that member of the Executive Council who is charged for the time being with the administration of the O.T.A. But the 1924 Act respecting the licensing of hotels was never proclaimed.

All of which means, according to Queen's Park legal opinion, that anybody may run a hotel without a license, but that a permit must be sought to sell 4.4 beer. For the sale of other soft drinks, no permit is necessary.

No Liquor in Office.

The question has been asked if a man under the new law will have the right to keep a bottle of liquor in his office. The official answer is a distinct "No." But there is this proviso, that the Liquor Control Board has the right to make its own regulations and may allow a man to take liquor to his office.

One Night Shop.

It is now fairly well established that in all large cities at least one liquor store will be kept open in the down town area until ten o'clock at night. This will be done in order that travellers, coming in on late trains, will not have to resort to bootleggers to get their supplies. The Government takes the view that conditions will be different in Ontario to those obtaining in Quebec, because in that province, where the vendors close at 6 p.m., persons may buy beer and wine in the hotels up to a late hour. The official closing hour in most of the liquor stores in Ontario, however, will be 7 p.m., except Saturday, when it will likely be 2 p.m.

Banquet Privileges.

So wide are the powers given to the Liquor Control Commission that it will be within their right to grant

66 PER CENT C.G.E. WORKERS HAVE INVESTED

Close of Selling Finds Results Far Beyond Those Anticipated.

$13,600 IN DIVIDENDS.

Seven Departments Had 100 Per Cent. of Staff Investing.

The result of the Employees' Saving and Investment plan of the Canadian General Electric Company of this city is away ahead of that which was expected by the officials of the company.

Last night the sale of shares closed and it was found that 66 per cent of the employees had participated in the plan and that 3,412 shares were sold valued at $170,600. Of the 1481 employees who were eligible to buy shares, 977 bought. The employees will participate in their own profits and there will be an annual dividend of eight per cent; seven per cent dividend and one per cent. profit. This dividend means that $13,600 will come back annually to the employees to be spent in this city.

The management is very pleased with the way the foremen and employees assisted in putting this plan across, for without them it would have been impossible to accomplish.

It is the employees' own money investing in their own company to participate in profits that they are earning.

The company did not need the money; as a matter of fact they purchased the shares and paid heavy premiums on them to sell them to the employees at par. It is the hope of the employees that next year they will have the opportunity to add to the investment.

In seven of the departments 100 per cent of the employees bought shares; these were the Price Setting, Tool Drafting, Induction Motor, Structural Steel, Lightning Arrester, Main Test, and Executive. The Drafting, Automatic and Fractional Horse-Power Motors were all over eighty, and the General, Meter, Switchboard, Industrial Control, Tool and Accounting were over seventy per cent.

ENTOMBED MAN SAVED UNHURT

Workers Effect Rescue After Toiling In Well All Night.

SIDES CAVED IN.

FUQUAY SPRINGS, N.C., Mar. 16 (Canadian Press).—Entombed for thirteen hours in a seventy-foot well, Jeff Ashworth was rescued early today. Ashworth had been pinned by caved-in walls forty feet down in the well and was extricated after a group of rescue workers dug away the debris all night by the light of automobile headlights, farm lanterns, and candles.

When the rescuing party pulled Ashworth out, he was exhausted but no outward physical injury was indicated in the words of thankfulness he mumbled.

Early yesterday Ashworth descended into the well to clean it. He was being lowered in a loop and when he reached the forty-foot level part of the well side above him caved in, and the stones formed a roof over his head, cutting off sunlight and air. This lack of air circulation was considered the greatest possible adverse circumstances to his recovery.

As soon as Ashworth's plight became known, a crowd of volunteers assembled and began removing the rock curbing of the well. In shifts of three men each, the rescuers were lowered into the hole, and as fast as they could fill the buckets, the debris was drawn to the top. Four men operated the windlass.

LOOT FOUND.

Suspect Leads Police To Cache of Payroll Robbery.

PITTSBURGH, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Thirty thousand dollars in currency, part of the loot of the bandits who blew up an armored automobile of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company last Friday, was found by county detectives last night buried on a farm near Bentleyville, Pa. The officers were led to the cache by Joseph Jaworski, a suspect held in the case.

CHINESE SALUTE THEIR "LIBERATOR"

Like the triumphal return to Rome of a Caesar, the arrival of Chang Kai-Shek at Hankow brought a colorful turnout of his followers. Chang, indicated above by the arrow and the circle, is the generalissimo of the Chinese Nationalists, something of a George Washington among his countrymen. Hankow is the Nationalist capital. Note the military band in the lower photo — playing, presumably, some Chinese version of "Hail to the Chief."

An additional attraction will be some vocal selections by M. H. Park, B.A.

HOLDING ROBINSON FOR EXAMINATION

Attorney General Orders Alienists To Examine Madoc Man.

TORONTO, March 16.—Attorney-General W. H. Price yesterday instructed Dr. Edward Ryan of the Ontario Hospital, Kingston, and Dr. Thomas Cumberland of the Ontario Hospital Brockville, to conduct an examination of Abraham Robinson of Madoc, recently acquitted on a charge of murdering Bailiff Charles St. Charles.

Robinson was detained by Belleville authorities late yesterday afternoon and will remain under their observation until the date of the examination.

It will be recalled that Mr. Justice Logie, the trial Judge, in addressing Robinson prior to his acquittal said: "The jury have found you not guilty on evidence upon which a verdict of guilty might equally have been returned. For myself, I think that you fired the shot that killed St. Charles, and I think some steps will have to be taken. I will make my report accordingly, for I think you are not a safe man to be at large."

Attorney-General Price's action in ordering an examination is said to be based on Mr. Justice Logie's statements.

Young Hungarian Student Claims Bible Misinterpreted; Says Second Commandment Promises Remission Of Sins

BUDAPEST, March 16 (United Press).—Discovery by a local Biblical student of what he claims is a misinterpretation of one of the most important sections of the Bible, has caused considerable discussion in church circles here.

The student is a young Hungarian, Benjamin Donath, and his contention has attracted the attention of the Vatican. Donath claims that the Old Testament idea of a "God of vengeance" has its origin in the Latin vulgate version of the Bible, which, he said, conflicts with the Hebrew original.

He said the real meaning of the twentieth chapter of Exodus, fifth verse, "I, the Lord thy God, am a jealous God, visiting the iniquity of the fathers upon the children unto the third and fourth generation of them that hate me," is that God will remit the fathers' sins for the children's sake.

Donath has been invited to Rome to discuss his theory with Cardinal Gasquet, who is the Vatican's Master of Hebraic. The latter admits that the passage is ambiguous and may be interpreted both ways.

Leaders Discuss Liquor Control Act On Second Reading

Crowded Galleries Hear Premier Ferguson Further Emphasize Some of Outstanding Features of Legislation —Sinclair Reads Statement Regarding His Attitude To Measure.

LIQUOR MAY BE BROUGHT BY MAIL UNDER ACT, FERGUSON TELLS HOUSE

Hon. W. E. Raney Moves An Amendment To Bill Designed To Limit Powers of the Commission in the Administration of Act.

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press)—Crowded galleries, testifying to the intense interest being taken by the public in the legislation providing for government control of the sale of liquor in the province, yesterday afternoon heard the three group leaders in the Ontario Legislature discuss the Liquor Control Act on the second reading of the bill which was moved by Premier Howard Ferguson yesterday afternoon. The Premier, who introduced the measure into the House last Wednesday and outlined the purposes of the bill, further emphasized some of the outstanding features of the legislation which, he thought, should impress themselves on the people. W. E. N. Sinclair, the Liberal leader, confined his remarks to reading a prepared statement regarding his attitude to the measure, which, in effect accepted "the will of the people" on the government control policy last December, "but with some misgivings as to the future," and expressed the belief that the people's condemnation of the government on its next appeal to them might be as emphatic as was their endorsation in the provincial election.

W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, in a lengthy criticism of the legislation, said it would promote drunkenness and declared that the "supreme power" in administration of the law and the authority to make new regulations given the Liquor Control Board under the provisions of the act, usurped the powers of the legislature. In consequence, he moved the following amendment to the motion for the second reading of the bill:

Amendment

"That this house is of the opinion that all the substantive provisions of the proposed act to be known as the Liquor Control Act, ought to be included in the statute, and that the authority to be given by the act to the Liquor Control Board of Ontario to make regulations ought to be confined to matters of administration, and ought not to empower the board to enact provisions by way of substantive additions to the law."

Karl K. Homuth (Cons., Waterloo South) moved the adjournment of the debate which will be continued this afternoon and Thursday.

Hope Eliminate Traffic

Premier Ferguson, in opening referred to the "emphatic manner" in which the people of the province had signified their desire for another method of temperance legislation and said that the legislation was presented by the government in the hope that it would not only eliminate the evils of the liquor traffic, but would serve to change the attitude of the people to the consumption of liquor for beverage purposes. Ontario's position on the question was not unique, as many provinces in Canada and countries in Europe had shown a revulsion of feeling to prohibition laws. The government, however, did not say that the bill was perfect, not did it claim a monopoly of the wisdom of the province or the dominion, or even of the legislature, but it must be admitted, he said, that the effort during the last ten years to bring about prohibition in Ontario had failed lamentably after a fair trial and under the immediate direction of law officers who were sympathetic to its principles. The main purpose of the legislation was to control liquor in all its ramifications and to provide that no one shall have or sell intoxicants in the province without permission of the Liquor Control Board which was created under the bill. Further the government was determined to deal ruthlessly with those who violated the law and give those who desired liquor for legitimate purposes an opportunity to obtain it, so long as they did not abuse their privilege, their family or their neighbors.

"In other words," said the Premier, "we will have entire monopoly—if you like to put it that way—of the handling of liquor in this province."

Complete Control.

The government, he continued, had taken the problem out of the political arena and had given it over to a board of capable men whose judgment would not be the subject of review by the court or a gov-

GOOD FOR CROPS.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Mar. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Five thousand head of cattle perished on the ranges near Karval in last week's blizzard, which blocked the highways and isolated several Eastern Colorado points, according to reports to-day from the ranchers.

The stock men said the storm was the worst in five years and expressed the fear they would be unable to drive the cattle to feed lots because of the huge drifts. Farmers generally welcomed the snow as an aid to crops.

HUNDREDS ATTEND.

Cattle Bring Good Prices — Ernest Spencer Sells.

(Examiner Correspondence).

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16. — At Ernest Spencer's sale of farm stock, implements, grain and other articles near Carmel yesterday, George Merrick, a farmer on the Second Concession of Rawdon, bought a tractor with disc harrow, disc plow and cultivator for $500. This group of modern agricultural machinery seemed to be almost new and was generally considered to have been knocked down at a favorable bargain.

The tractor and three pieces of machinery were first offered together, and the best price then announced was $450. Bids were next called for separately, aggregating $491. Mr. Merrick stepped into the ring with his $500 "for the whole works just as she stands," and his name was registered as the purchaser.

Ernest Spencer picked a wonderful day for his sale, and was further fortunate in attracting an exceptionally large crowd. Between two and three hundred farmers were there from Rawdon, Thurlow, Sidney and Seymour Townships, and others from Campbellford, Stirling and Frankford. C. U. Clancy of Hoard's was auctioneer and T. L. Diamond of Campbellford was clerk.

Mr. Spencer was well provided with machinery and had a barn full of Holstein cattle. All of them had wintered well, and with the horses, pigs and poultry, appeared to be in good condition, and the consensus of the crowd was that they brought good prices.

The first cow sold for $100, the next $70, another at $72, the fourth at $77 and another at $75, and there was quite a herd still to be auctioned when The Examiner representative left shortly after five o'clock. Much of the bidding was keen, especially for the horses, cattle and some of the machinery.

A sow with litter of eight pigs brought $62, the colonies of bees $8, a Chevrolet roadster converted into a truck $51, a Deering seeder $71, binder $42, hay rake $26, stiff tooth cultivator $35, gang plow $14, bobsleigh $20, wagon $16.50, disc plow $12.50, corn cultivator $8, harrow $8, heavy wagon $39 and so on. This is an incomplete list of the machinery and does not include the separators and other dairy equipment, gasoline engines and other implements.

It was reported that Mr. Spencer intended to move to Campbellford.

Road Under Water.

Long stretches of the road south of Hoard's and easterly towards Carmel were under water, and in places it was awash with the hubs of buggies and wagons. The traffic Spencer sale cut and churned up the Spencer sal cut and churned up the roads especially in some places that were almost impassable by evening.

Hundreds and hundreds of acres of the low land south-east of Hoard's were inundated by the freshet which overflowed the banks of the stream through the Hoard's settlement and broadened the marshes over extensive areas.

C. A. Payne Home.

Payne of Belleville, the young lawyer who successfully defended Abraham Robinson at the Hastings County Assizes last week, was home on a visit last night and received the congratulations of many friends here. He is a son of Magistrate Payne of this town, and is one of the most promising of the younger lawyers in Central Ontario. The Robinson case was the third time Mr. Payne defended prisoners accused of capital crimes, and in all three trials he succeeded in winning verdicts of acquittal.

SUGAR TIME.

Tap time and sap time
Muslin' thro' the maples,
Hangin' buckets on the spouts,
Beats chorin' round the stables.

Sniff the wood a-burnin'
Underneath the pan,
Cross it with the sugar smell—
Then beat that if you can.

Sap time's a sweet time
Around the sugar shack,
Boilin' and a skimmin'
Your lips pulled into smack.

Ready for the taffy,
We'll try before we'll go;
Lettin' slip the golden drip
To chill it in the snow.

A sweet time is sap time
Around the sugar pan—
Molly brings the lunch things
To feed her starvin' man.

See he comin' thro the bush—
I must run to meet her;
'Twixt the sugar and the lass
I know which is sweeter.

Mr. Bourassa proposed an amendment to exclude small sash and door factories, and was ruled out by the Deputy Speaker, on the ground that the Government, not a private member, can move to vary matters affecting the revenues. Mr. Bourassa doubted this, and was supported by John Evans of Saskatchewan, but the ruling was not contested. The Minister promised that the matter would not be lost sight of.

Finally the resolution that amends the Taxation Act went through.

BEAM WIRELESS PROVE SUCCESS

Britain-Australia Test Results in 325 Words Per Minute.

CANADA NEXT.

SYDNEY, Australia, March 16 (Vancouver Province Cable).—F. C. Fisk, managing director Amalgamated Wireless, representative of Marconi in Australia, says that test of the Britain-to-Australia beam wireless wave proved a triumph for those who consistently advocated direct communication between the extreme points of the British Empire.

The transmission of pictures by beam, also letters and official documents, is hoped for.

Senator Marconi, in a message of congratulations to Australia, through Fisk, says that, now the British service is assured, attention will be turned to the Canadian route, and it will not, he said, be more than two or three weeks before preliminary tests will be made to gauge the efficiency of that service.

The Anglo-Australian service was operated under test conditions over seven days, of thirteen to nineteen hours daily. The speed ranged to 325 words a minute. The final tests were practically free from fading.

Signor Marconi adds that it is possible that radio listeners-in will be able to hear programmes broadcast from London. This plan has recently been actively canvassed by radio authorities in Australia, who see the establishment of an Empire link of relay stations at Montreal and Vancouver for the broadcast service of the future.

THIRD READING FOR TITLES BILL

Amendment By Sir J. A. Marriott Was Rejected Without a Division.

DOMINIONS CO-EQUAL.

LONDON, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Third reading was given in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon to the Royal and Parliamentary Titles Bill, after an amendment moved by Sir J. A. Marriott (Cons., York) had been rejected without a division. The amendment would have substituted for the phrase in the bill, "under the great seal of the realm," the words, "under the great seal of the United kingdom."

The bill changes the titles of the king and parliament in accordance with the resolutions passed at the Imperial Conference. It is now the parliament of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, instead of Great Britain and Ireland. The king is, by the grace of God, "of Great Britain and Ireland," etc., instead of "United Kingdom and Ireland." "Ireland in the new royal title is of geographical, and not political significance.

Several speakers criticized the word "realm" as not being the correct definition of the nature of the great seal, but Sir William Joynson-Hicks explained that there was historical precedent for use of the word. He remarked on the time when the seal was referred to as that "of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and the Dominions thereto belonging," and pointed out that there were now no dominions "thereto belonging."

The great Dominions, certainly since the last Imperial conference, were co-equal with the United Kingdom and did not belong to this parliament, and were not subject to its jurisdiction, the Home Secretary went on. The great seal was the seal of the king, who was the king not merely of the United Kingdoms but of all the Dominions, and it would be henceforth the great seal of those territories which were subject to the king.

OMEMEE, March 16—The fire brigade received a call to the home of Mr. Ira Shaw, who resides between two and three miles west of Omemee, on Monday morning, where a chimney fire was in progress. The matter was considered but the roads would not permit the truck to navigate through the snow in places. Several volunteers made the trip and with the help of neighbors the fire, which was confined to the furnace chimney, was soon extinguished.

OLD MASTERS

Thou wast all that to me, love,
For which my soul did pine;
A green isle in the sea, love,
A fountain and a shrine
All wreathed with fairy fruits and flowers
And all the flowers were mine.

Ah, dream too bright to last!
Ah, starry Hope, that didst arise
But to be overcast!
A voice from out of the Future cries,
"On, on!"—but o'er the Past
(Dim gulf) my spirit hovering lies
Mute, motionless, aghast.

And all my days are trances,
And all my nightly dreams
Are where the dark eye glances,
And where thy footstep gleams—
In what ethereal dances,
By what eternal streams.

CREEK OVERFLOWS NEAR CAVANVILLE

Three Dams Are Undermined By Rush of Water.

CAVAN, March 16.—Three dams have given way with the onrush of water on the creek which runs through Cavanville. Forgotten Village Is Found In Japan

TOKIO, March 16.—Far in the mountains of Northern Japan census takers have discovered a village which was lost from the world.

Its 152 inhabitants do not speak modern Japanese. They dress in styles of centuries gone by, blacken their teeth, live entirely on fruits and vegetables and none of them have ever heard of the outside world. Investigators think they descended from the Heike clan, which was defeated by the warring Genji about 700 years ago. Its survivors fled and disappeared into the mountains.

In their excitement one of the horses struck the child on the head, inflicting a wound over the eye. Upon removal to St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterboro, it was found that the child was not seriously injured, but she had a miraculous escape from death.

LEADERS DISCUSS LIQUOR CONTROL

ernment of the province. There were some people who criticized the action of giving complete administration of the law to a board, but, said the Premier, there was a type of person in Ontario who could not be satisfied no matter what the government did, and the government did not propose to make any effort to meet their desires. He had neither the time nor the disposition to do so.

Premier Ferguson particularly stressed the fact that where a municipality, under local option, by a two-thirds' vote of the electorate expressed itself in favor of establishing a store in its locality, it did not mean that such a store would be established. That would be a matter for the Liquor Control Board to decide, and if it was in the interests of the people of that locality. The government was going to be engaged in the sole business of selling liquor, but it was also its aim to protect the children of the province and eliminate conditions which had caused the failure of the Ontario Temperance Act.

Mail Orders.

It would be possible for a person, he said to mail his permit and his order to a liquor store and have the liquor delivered at the same cost as if it had been purchased over the counter. He desired the public to realize that the commission had absolute authority to withdraw a permit for any reason it saw fit and deny the right to purchase liquor anywhere in the province. The government was putting the people to the test and in effect said to the person who desired to indulge in the luxury of liquor for beverage purposes, "We are going to give you the opportunity to satisfy that desire under proper conditions if you behave yourself."

The premier enumerated a number of reasons why the government intended giving wide powers to the Liquor Control Board. First, because it believed that the administration of the law would prove of much greater value in stabilizing public opinion than could any inflexible law; second, for the reason that the law prohibited the abuse of liquor; thirdly, because the legislation was unique and supplemented the best points that were contained in other government control laws in the various provinces of the dominion; fourthly in order that in the development it could meet conditions that might not be anticipated; and fifthly because the law was to be administered in the interests of the people and not in the interests of any private group or organization.

By this legislation and its administration it was hoped through co-operation and the assistance of the public to get back to conditions where it would be taboo for young people to indulge in strong liquor, and where self control would be the big factor in respecting the laws of the province.

Referring to the anticipated revenue from the control of the liquor, Premier Ferguson said he was glad to see that a very small section of the public criticized the government's profits. The permits and licenses in themselves would bring the government a revenue of more than two million dollars a year. The Drury government, he recalled, had been able to make more than one million dollars from a "medicine shop" annually, "and," added the premier, "if we are going to take care of all the trade, and if we are going to get the bootleggers business I think that we can get five times that amount.

"I have never been able to reconcile myself to being hypocrite enough to say we are not going to take any of this money, because it is tainted, but no one has gone after gambling with greater zeal than my honorable friend (Mr. Raney) on the other side of this house. Let us get away from this puritanical type of hypocricy and say to the people that if certain people desire to indulge in the luxuries of horse racing and liquor that no one has a better right than they to contribute to the revenue of this province.

Mr. Ferguson concluded his speech with another appeal to the public and and the members of all sections of the legislature for co-operation to make a success of a bill which "provides the minimum of liberty with a maximum of restriction and penalties."

Liberal Leader.

The Liberal leader pointed out that the discussion yesterday was merely on the principle of the bill, and that he promised more attention to the various clauses of the legislation when it reaches the committee stage of the House.

He admitted that the bill "will pass the house and become law, very much if not altogether in its present form" by virtue of the endorsation by a majority of the people of policy of government control.

"As leader of the Liberal party I must accept the will of the people," said Mr. Sinclair, "but with some misgivings as to the future. Under our present system of government it is rightly recognized that majority rule must prevail. Time will tell whether the bill is in aid of temperance as claimed. I express the hope that our province may not be too seriously injured by the decision of the people on December 1 whereby this bill will be carried into effect.

"Upon the details of the bill in committee, there will no doubt be be wide differences of opinion. The government should welcom criticism and suggestion. The government must accep. full responsibility for the consequences of the bill and what ever follows. The people who gave the mandate as an aid to temperance may learn that they have been deceived when it is in operation. Their condemnation of this government on its next appeal to them may be as emphatic as was their endorsation on De. 1st last."

Not been Success.

Mr. Raney took the attitude that government control in other provinces, particularly Manitoba, had not been a success, and quoted from statements made by Attorn General Craig of Manitoba, and the Winnipeg Tribune to this effect. Four years operation of the system in that province under sympathetic administration, he said, had shown that illicit traffic in liquor had increased, and that government control was no desirable.

Premier Ferguson, said Mr. Raney, had referred to D. B. Hanna, the chairman of the Liquor Control Board, as a strong man, but in his opinion it was no tribute to Mr. Hanna to be placed on a pedestal as a Sampson and then have hung around his neck the responsibility which rightly belonged to the Premier for the abolition of the bootlegger.

It had been suggested that Government control would attract a great number of tourists from the American cities, continued the Progressive leader. "Of course it will attract them," he said, "a lot of the riff-raff who will come here to have jollification and sprees in this free and open Province of Ontario."

The Government expected Mr. Hanna and his board to produce approximately $7,000,000 revenue a year through the sale of liquor, but, added Mr. Raney, the only way that revenue could be realized would be by giving every facility to the people and the tourists to purchase whiskey, because the Premier had announced that the Government would not make a cent profit from the sale of beer.

"The Government sells beer at actual cost and promotes the sales of whiskey," he said, "and they call this a measure of true temperance."

So great was the haste to make profits that municipalities would not be allowed to say whether they should have stores or not, but the Liquor Board would have the absolute right to decide where they would be located. The stores would be placed where the Board thought fit, and that fact was proof to him that the Government's main interest in the legislation was to obtain profits.

Mr. Raney feared that the bill would not bear out the statement that the Board would be free of the Government and suggested that time would show appointments made by the Board were brought about by political pressure and "patronage hunters."

Protests Permit Grant.

He protested strongly against the Board being given the right to grant permits and licenses, fix the hours of the liquor stores, prescribe the alcoholic content of beer and grant special permits to banquets, entertainments, picnics, etc., and decide where liquor stores should be located. Had the members of the Legislature not the ability to decide these matters?" Mr. Hanna had been set up "as a benevolent autocrat," who occupied the whole field of vision while the law was only a secondary matter. "However," added the Progressive leader, "this commission has absolute authority. The Premier has said so, and what are you going to do about it?"

The board had even the right to make recommendations for clemency, for the remission of fines and the reduction of sentences. It was plain to see the wide avenue that would be opened up by this power, and he suggested that the Government should provide a section in the bill which would qualify this matter.

Dominating Feature.

In conclusion, Mr. Raney said the dominating feature of the bill was its financial angle which made it very apparent that the main duty of the Bord was to sell whiskey. It was true that the Drury Government had made profits of one million dollars or more a year from the operation of the dispensaries, but Mr. Raney pointed out that the dispensaries were inherited from the Hearst administration. He had no apologies to make for taking revenue from the race tracks of the province. They were imposed upon the province by the Dominion Government, so why shouldn't Ontario tax them? He was proud to state that he had been energetic in making the tracks contribute largely to the treasury of the province.

WILL NOT ISSUE

a permit, so the legal authorities say, to any person who is staging a banquet, who may have intoxicating liquors served there, even if the banquet is held in a hotel.

D. B. Hanna, chairman of the Liquor Control Commission, is conducting the preliminary business with little or no consultation with his fellow-members of the commission who will play no part in the organization work until the Legislature has passed the bill.

LEOPOLD NAMED IN ESCAPE PLOT

Paroled Prisoner Says Murderer Inspired Plan To Kill Guards.

AT JOLIET.

CHICAGO, Mar. 16.—A plot to empty the Joliet penitentiary of its 1200 inmates, by the wholesale slaughter by poisoning of the guards, has been revealed to the prison authorities and the Chicago police by a paroled convict.

The plot, set for execution next Saturday, is the third of a series, behind all of which now looms the youthful sinister figure of Nathan Leopold, Jr., the plotter and executer of the murder of little Bobbie Franks in Chicago. Leopold is not linked directly with the latest escape plot as told to the officers by Leo Delgoda, paroled convict, but it was Leopold's original plotting, Delgoda said, that inspired the scheme to evacuate the penitentiary on Saturday by killing the guards with arsenic.

WOMEN STUDENTS START BOAT RACING

Oxford Crew Takes First Race From Cambridge University.

OXFORD, England, March 16. (Canadian Press).—Women students of Oxford and Cambridge Universities met in a boat race for the first time yesterday. The Oxford crew won The race was rowed over a half mile course on the Upper Thames.

The race was a triumph for the Oxford skirts over the Cambridge running pants. The victorious Oxford girls wore white waists, dark blue skirts and long black stockings. The Cambridge crew's brown uniform consisted of waist, running shorts and stockings.

Five thousand howling Oxford students and townspeople crowded the Thames towpath during the race. The university authorities attempted to hoodwink the boys about the hour the girls were to race. First they said it would be early in the morning. Then they said late in the afternoon. Finally they tried to stage it during the quiteness of the lunch hour, when male students are usually busy with their beef and beer.

The young varsity lads, however, fooled their dons by forsaking luncheon and rushing to the riverside to see the modish crews sweep stylishly along the river over the "gruelling" half mile course.

A King Might Be Proud To Look At These Cats

TORONTO, March 16. — Surrounded by every attention from the ship's butcher down to the train porter, two elegant gold furred Siamese cats landed in Toronto on Monday after a pleasant voyage from Liverpool on the S. S. Montnairn.

So rare and delicate are these animals that during the long journey the utmost care had to be taken to prevent them being exposed to even the slightest draught.

Employees of the Canadian Pacific Express Company, who chaperoned the party, took particular care of their diet, which consisted of cooked chicken, pork tenderloin, fish and milk.

The cats are valued by their owner, a Toronto woman, at approximately $1500 apiece. They were purchased in China, and shipped to England, where she bought them.

PICTURES DONATED FOR SCHOOL ROOM

Lakefield Receives Portrait of Prince of Wales—Lakefield News.

LAKEFIELD, March 16.—During the past week the Lakefield School received a very fine picture of the Prince of Wales, sent by the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire through the Department of Education. The picture is a large one and is framed in dark oak, the frame bearing the inscription in silver letters. The picture has been hung in Miss Duff's room, the senior room of the Public School and is greatly admired by all the school. There is a great inspiration in the picture of the most popular young man in the world whose motto is "I serve," and one feels that the object lesson will have good results.

Books for the School.

J. W. Simpson, principal of the High School, has received for the school from the Minister of Education of Ontario twelve well-bound volumes of the "Makers of Canada" series. These books are an asset to any library and are invaluable to the student of Canadian history. The books are illustrated and are printed in good type on good paper.

Mr. Simpson has received from Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, in Ottawa, a valuable book entitled "Canada as a National Property." This book is profusely illustrated and has a number of excellent maps and is intensely interesting.

These books have enriched the school library to a large extent.

Fire Alarm.

About 4:30 on Thursday afternoon a general alarm called out the fire brigade to a gasoline fire at Bullock's garage. The brigade, as usual, made a very prompt response to the summons, but on their arrival found the fire had been extinguished, which was fortunate, as it would have spread fast in the frame building. The damage was of the slightest.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Crawford entertained about thirty friends on Thursday evening at court whist and a delightful evening was spent. The ladies' prizes were won by Mrs. Gordon Northey and Mrs. H. E. Moore, while Messrs. W. J. Charlton and W. H. Casement won the gentlemen's prizes.

Following refreshments and the presentation of the prizes, an hour was spent in music, with Mr. G. G. Connell and Mrs. H. E. Moore at the piano.

The proximity of the St. Patrick's season was marked in the decorations, which showed shamrocks, hats, pigs, and other symbols of the festival of Ireland's patron saint.

Dr. H. E. Moore slipped on the ice at the Commercial House on Monday evening and fell on the pavement, dislocating his right shoulder. Dr. Moore has been unfortunate in this regard as this is the third time he has had this happen. He is progressing favorably.

"The Last Loaf" will be presented in the Lakefield Memorial Hall on Thursday evening, March 17, by the Dramatic Society of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church, Warsaw, under the auspices of the Ladies' Guild of Knox Church, Lakefield. The play comes highly recommended and the ladies are assured of a first-class entertainment. A male quartette will contribute several numbers during the evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Liberal-Conservative Woman's Organization was held on Wednesday afternoon last at the residence of the president, Mrs. A. W. Mackenzie. Mrs. L. H. Grahame gave a very interesting paper on the tariff during the afternoon.

THE CHATHAM CASE.

The First Divisional Appeal Court has ruled that the Chatham negro who was sentenced by Mr. Justice Fisher to be hanged for a horrible crime against an 82-year-old woman, is not to pay the supreme penalty.

The Appeal Court has decided that "the prisoner's low mentality and baneful influence, although not sufficient to render him irresponsible for his acts, were circumstances which if brought to the attention of the trial judge before sentence might have been regarded by him as removing the case from the category of offenses to which Parliament intended the death sentence to apply," and has reduced the penalty to twenty years' imprisonment and twenty lashes.

The prisoner's crime was terrible in the extreme, yet the action of the Appeal Court will meet with approval from the many people who have expressed regret that the first person in Canada to be sentenced to death on this charge should be a negro, fearing that following the sentencing the three white men to imprisonment and lashes for a similar crime, the impression might be created that the Chatham negro was suffering because of his colour.

TEETH IN THE ACT NOW.

Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of National Revenue, to give him his new title, is winning general approval throughout Canada by the manner in which he has tackled the great problem of re-organizing the customs service and checking the smuggling evil.

Hon. Mr. Euler has been quick to realize that the people expected him to deal with this most vital manner with firmness and in a businesslike way, and his handling of the situation has been such as to inspire confidence throughout the country that conditions, as disclosed by the customs inquiry, will be remedied speedily.

The sections of the Customs Act dealing with smuggling are being completely changed, and the Act has been equipped with teeth.

The penalties for violations of these sections are strict enough to make would-be smugglers ask themselves whether or not the game is worth while.

With the minimum fine $200, running up to a maximum of $1,000, the minimum imprisonment one month and the courts powerless to impose any lesser penalties, smuggling is not going to be so much like a bed of roses as it has evidently been for some years.

The stiffening of the Act is in line with what the public has been demanding, and it should produce a very material improvement in the conditions.

THE HOME-BREW INDUSTRY.

The Federal Government has been waited upon by a deputation representing the Prohibition Federation of Canada, which made several requests of the administration, the principal one being that the section of the Inland Revenue Act permitting the manufacture of "home-brew" should be deleted.

The Federation is justified in doing what it can to prevent the home manufacture of beer, seeing that "home-brew" is the child of prohibition.

Canadian kitchens were not converted into family breweries until the sale of beer was stopped by prohibitory laws.

Since then the industry has developed rapid strides until it has brought about conditions that are far from desirable, and until home-brewing is accepted by many families as quite as much a matter of course as the making of catsup or the manufacture of strawberry jam.

It is as well perhaps that the organization that has done so much to develop home-brewing on the grand scale should confer with the Government that legalizes the industry.

The request for a suspension of Federal sanction comes very appropriately from the Prohibition Federation.

A CHICAGO VIEW.

The action of the local Council in passing a bylaw prohibiting profanity on the part of firemen when on duty has been the occasion of considerable newspaper comment, most of the press views seeming to find an element of comedy in the measure.

Noting that a bylaw has been passed that members of the Fire Department must not swear when fighting fires, The Chicago Tribune says:

"Then how is a fireman at the top of the ladder going to tell the crew manning the hose that they are putting him out and not the fire? Of course, he might say, 'Pardon me, fellows, but your silly old hose is pointed directly at me and I am getting most uncomfortably damp. Sorry, but would you mind changing its direction?' And what about a fire chief hanging out of a window and telling his men to bring up those axes? A fire chief feels bound to give some slight description of the axes. If he said merely 'those axes' he would choke to death."

But the funniest part of The Tribune's comment is that Toronto instead of Peterborough is given credit for passing the anti-profanity bylaw.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH FOR WOMEN.

If the unofficial reports which are gaining circulation in the lobbies of Westminster are to be believed, British suffragists are at last within sight of the goal towards which they have striven for many, many years. It is authoritatively stated in London that the Baldwin Government, in compliance with the demand which has arisen, is about to introduce a measure which will give women the vote at 21 years of age under the same terms that men now receive it, and this means that the equal rights for which the suffragists of Great Britain, militant and other, have fought for decades are to be realized. It also means that woman has scored, or is about to score, another great triumph in its march towards complete equality with man.

Since the war, when the women of Great Britain proved that they were not second to their men in patriotism and usefulness, when they stepped into numerous occupations previously reserved for men and when, moreover, they showed that they could do many things just as well as men could do them, the reception accorded the advocates of equal suffrage has been much more generous than that which greeted the pioneers of the movement. It has been argued by them, and not without foundation, that if women can undertake the same work as that which is done by men and can prove their equal value as citizens, there is no reason why the ballot should be withheld from them. The granting of the franchise to women of 30 years and older a few years ago was a compromise which failed to satisfy the suffragists, since it implied that women under that age were not capable of voting with the same intelligence as that possessed by men of the same age, and it was as inevitable that the demand for equal suffrage should be maintained as it was inevitable that some Government of the future should accede to it.

Great Britain is behind-hand in recognizing the right of women to the vote upon equal terms with men. Other countries, some of them much less enlightened, yielded to the same demand years ago. But it has taken a long time to break down the conservatism and the prejudices which stood in the way of attainment of the objects of the British suffragists. The Pankhursts and their associates tried militant methods and failed; their successors have considered it more politic to rely upon reason than upon window-smashing and hunger strikes, and they have won the day.

The women of Great Britain have undoubtedly earned the franchise, just as the women of other countries possessing the same rights have also earned it. As time goes on it becomes more and more evident that women are just as well qualified to participate in the conduct of their affairs as are men, and in Great Britain, as elsewhere, the interest in public matters which is being displayed by women is growing very rapidly. The number of women of high attainments and sound character who have become actively associated with public life in the Old Land is ever increasing. More and more of them are developing a taste for politics and considering it their duty to take an active part in them. There has thus been developed a body of well-informed and well-equipped women fully capable of giving leadership to their sex and of interpreting its aspirations and the extension of the franchise to all of the women of the Old Country who are 21 years and over in age, but heralds various other reforms which will give the sex that recognition which has been long over-due.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

TENTS AND TOURISTS.

The Detroit Free Press takes a somewhat cynical view of the new Ontario liquor bill. It sees in it a bait for United States tourists, who will "need only money and a desire to obtain spirits in unlimited quantities." With his special short-term permit, the tourist can take his purchase to his "residence" in any hotel guest-room and there drink to his heart's content. If he does not care to bother about registering in a hostelry "he may unfold his tent by the roadside or in a city street, because a tent, if Mr. Ferguson has his way, will be a residence within the meaning of the law." The Free Press adds that the United States has plenty of tents of the celebrated "pup" type, and it secs them bedecking the wide-open spaces of Ontario.

This is not flattering, but it would be dishonest to deny that the Ontario Government has an eye on United States dollars. It expects that a large portion of its revenue will come from thirsty American tourists. One estimate places the amount they will pay for permits alone at $7,000,000, based on an influx of 3,500,000 visitors from across the line paying two dollars apiece to qualify as patrons of Government bottled wares. This is guesswork, but the Provincial Treasurer will be disappointed if the foreign invasion does not reach considerable proportions. Most of our guests will come in motor cars, and perhaps the Ontario landscape this summer will show an unusual amount of canvas. There is only one reference to tents in the bill, as follows:

> "'Residence' shall mean and include any building or part of a building or tent where a person resides, but shall not include any part of a building which part is not actually and exclusively used as a private residence, nor any part of a hotel or club other than a private guest-room thereof, nor any place from which there is access to a club or hotel except through a street or lane or other and unobstructed means of access."

Perhaps a more definite description of a tent will be inserted in the bill in committee. If any bit of canvas that looks like one may serve as a drinking-place anywhere in the Province the outlook is not reassuring for those who use the highways. Perhaps the tent provision is intended to reduce the amount of drinking in motor cars. This point is touched in the following clause:

> "It shall be lawful . . . . to carry or convey liquor sold by a vendor from a Government store, ... to any place to which the same may be lawfully delivered under this Act and the regulations made thereunder, providing that no such common carrier or any other person shall open, break or allow to be opened or broken, any package or vessel containing liquor, or drink, or use, or allow to be drunk or used, any liquor therefrom while being so carried or conveyed."

A motorist may not, therefore, legally open a bottle in his car. But what if he erects a tent as a drinking-place and does not wish to consume his whole supply? Will it then be legal for him to continue his journey with the opened bottle? If so, how is he to be distinguished, if his car is searched, from another motorist who breaks the seal in his car? These are some of the inevitable difficulties that will arise when the law becomes operative. They will emerge under any system of liquor sale. No doubt the Government and Legislature will try to forestall them as far as possible, but experience will be the best teacher.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

According to a Chicago despatch, this spring's styles for women are harking back to the "good old days." It must mean back to the Garden of Eden.

Peterborough's City Council having "resoluted" re the Georgian Bay Canal, the Government is now furnished with a chart that should enable it to find its way out.

The Chatham News is inclined to think that the most popular filling stations this year for tourists this summer will be the new liquor stores.

Farmers up in the London district have been charging from $15 to $35 per car for pulling automobiles out of the mud. If that industry continues very long the number of income tax returns from Canadian farms promises to show an increase.

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, March 16 — Recent price advances of from 50c to 75c on cattle in two weeks were maintained in yesterday's market; but at the same time, the higher prices are tending to slow down the demand. Supplies, however, are light, due maybe to either bad roads during the spring break-up, or to a shortage of cattle in the country, or to both causes.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 16 (Canadian Press).—The demand from the United Kingdom for Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday continued dull, but there was a little business transacted with the Continent.

The trade in cash grain in the domestic market showed some improvement and a little more business was worked at steady prices.

A moderate amount of business was done in Spring wheat grades of flour for domestic account, but the export trade was dull. Prices were unchanged. The market for winter wheat flour was quiet, but the undertone was firm.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a fair demand. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but prices were firm.

The undertone to the egg market was easy at the late decline noted, but there was no further change in prices. The demand was good. The receipts were 1,062 cases.

The market for potatoes was without any new feature to note, the demand being of a very limited character and the undertone easy. Quebec varieties were quoted at $1.00 to $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The butter market continued active and prices ruled steady. The receipts were 641 packages.

A weaker feeling developed in the cheese market and prices suffered a fractional decline. The volume of business was of a very limited character. The receipts were 39 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Unusually promising domestic crop conditions for this time of year did a good deal yesterday to ease down wheat values. Lower quotations than due on wheat at Liverpool counted as an additional bear factor. Chicago wheat closed unsettled at 3-8 to 3-4c net decline; corn unchanged to 1-4c off; oats 1-8 to 1-2c down, and provisions varying from 10c drop to a rise of 2c.

Corn developed competitive strength. There was a decided falling off in arrivals here, and country offerings were meagre, with roads in bad condition. Oats followed corn.

MILLBROOK C.G.I.T. HOLD SLEIGH DRIVE

Girls Hold Meeting at Home of Miss Elinor Fallis.

MILLBROOK, March 16.— The Wide Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training was entertained this week on Tuesday evening, at the home of the vice-president, Miss Elinor Fallis, over twenty of the members and friends being present for the occasion.

Mr. Fallis kindly provided the team and sleigh to convey the party to and from the village, and a very enjoyable time was spent.

Business items were discussed during the first part of the evening while work on the quilt being prepared for a missionary in the west was proceeded with, and afterwards two contest, one on "Authors," and the other on "How I would spend a $100 cheque, if going travelling," provided activity and entertainment for all.

Lunch was served about 11 p.m., Miss Elinor Fallis, assisted by a number of the girls, attending to this important item, and a jolly sing-song, using the new C.G.I.T. song book, with Miss Annie McMahon at the piano, completed a very pleasant evening.

Hearty votes of thanks were tendered the host and hostess for their hospitality, and for providing the drive for the girls, before the final good-nights were said, and the party drove off singing, "For They are Jolly, Good Fellows."

United W. M. S.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was held on Wednesday afternoon at the parsonage, between thirty-five and forty being in attendance.

Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard was in the chair for the opening business and devotional period, and reports received indicated a prosperous year.

Mrs. J. McKnight, president of the Golden Links Mission Circle, reported that about $90.00 had been raised, interest had been sustained, and the monthly meetings, on the whole, had been well attended. Fifty dollars of the Circle funds goes toward the salary of Miss E. C. Hawken, missionary at Wahstao, Alberta.

Mrs. Offa Williamson, superintendent of the Sunshine Mission Band, also could speak of a good year, with an increased membership, many useful activities on the part of the boys and girls, and $110.95 raised in the twelve months. Thirty dollars of the band money goes to the upkeep of the "Millbrook Sunshine Cot" in the hospital at Chentu, West China.

Mrs. R. H. Edmunds read an interesting letter received from Miss Viola Cardwell, missionary nurse in the hospital at HamHeung, Korea, and Mrs. Williamson read a letter from MissHawken, the personal touch with the work of both these missionaries being particularly helpful.

A feature of the meeting of peculiar import was the presentation of Life Membership certificates to the secretary, Mrs. C. W. Richards, and the treasurer, Miss Nellie Hetherington, the Auxiliary taking this way of expressing its appreciation of the faithful services rendered by both these officers, the duties of their respective positions requiring painstaking care and exactness.

The secretary's report showed 78 annual members enrolled, 19 life members, 9 regular meetings held, and 3 public meetings; an average attendance of 35 each month; two members, Miss A. Hampton and Mrs. Gamsby, have been removed by death during the year.

The report presented by the treasurer was particularly encouraging showing a total of $322.85 raised, and this with the amounts from the circle and band will more than meet the allocation accepted during the year, amounting to $467.00. It will be possible to send about $495.00 to the branch treasurers.

The pastor took charge of the election and the officers for 1927-28 are: President, Mrs. F. H. Howard; vice-President, Mrs. H. W. Johnston; 2nd vice-President, Mrs. H. E. Smith; Secretary, Mrs. C. W. Richard; Treasurer, Miss M. B. Hetherington; Supt. Christian Stewardship, Miss Estelle Hetherington; Strangers' Secretary, Mrs. L. Rea; Supply Secretary, Mrs. F. P. Johnson; Mission Band Supt., Mrs. G. W. Sayles; Assts., Mrs. O. Williamson and Mrs. M. McDowell; Literature Secretary, Mrs. R. H. Edmunds; Assoc. Helpers' Secretary, Convenors of the eight groups.

The Easter thankoffering this year amounted to $128.40 and was the largest in the history of the Society. The groups will report their totals at the next regular meeting, the second Wednesday in April.

The annual meeting of the Cobourg Presbytery will be held in Trinity Church, Bowmanville, on Monday and Tuesday, April 25 and 26; delegates from the local organizations will be appointed at the next meetings.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

SEEING THE INVISIBLE

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

Scientists are not content with showing us how we can talk along a wire, but now one of them, Dr. Donald C. Stockbarger, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, shows us how we can see the invisible.

An automobile headlight, for instance, can be apparently entirely dark, but will flood the highway with ultra-violet rays. When these rays strike a fluorescent substance that substance will leap into visibility.

In this way the glare of automobile lights need not be necessary. Even pedestrians can have on fluorescent clothes, so that wheW the violet rays from th automobile headlights strike them, they will be visible.

Dr. Stockbarger says that all this may come by the year 2000. He illustrated his views by showing a headlight which revealed fences, bridges and scenery otherwise invisible. They all glowed when the light was thrown upon them.

Mr. Alexander Graham Bell tried this experiment over a half century ago, but did not succeed.

It was also recently shown how a human voice could go through the ether on a beam of ultra-violet light. By putting the hand or other object into the path of the light beam the sound ceased. When the obstruction was withdrawn the speaking commenced again.

It is suggested that these ultra-violet rays may have quite an influence upon the health and that arrangements may be made so they can play undiminished upon the human form with beneficial effects.

The rays are also useful in reading aged and obliterated documents and by detecting checks which have been changed by erasing with chemicals or with rubber.

Thus slowly the experiments of the chemist's laboratory are coming into practical use and having an economic significance.

One of the beneficial effects of chemical discovery is that rubber can be protected by paint from the sun, as rubber which is exposed to the sun's rays is often injured.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

COLLEGE LIFE.

Seventeen universities have banned students' automobiles as detrimental to morals. After the students had been driving half the night, it seems they couldn't be driven to work. . . . When some of the boys ended their university careers the automobile was the only engineering they knew. . . . A fellow who had tried all evening to find a girl who'd ride in a flivver wouldn't be interested in any more experiments the next day. . . . The student whose car had four punctures and a leak in the gas tank refused to be bothered with economics. . . . The young man with the Rolls-Royce couldn't get worked up over sociology when he spent all his time declining invitations from people to ride in his car.

A student, caught in a theft, was unbalanced, college authorities decided. But then maybe he was trying to balance up.

JUDGE ADVISES ON MEMBERSHIP

No Member Of Federal, Provincial or Municipal Body On Harbor Board.

NO CORRUPTION.

TORONTO, March (Canadian Press.)—Reporting o investigation into the admini on of the Toronto Harbor Board, Judge Denton, the commissioner, states that the enquiry has clearly shown that no member of the House of Commons from Toronto or the suburbs, or of the Provincial Legislature, or of the City Council should be a member of the board. The commissioner said he could see no reason why political partisanship should be allowed to raise its head in harbor matters. Over one hundred witnesses were examined during the course of the probe, which commenced on November 1, and ended on February 8. It is estimated the enquiry will cost Toronto thirty-five thousand dollars.

The Harbor Board is at present composed of three appointees of the Toronto City Council and one named by the Dominion Government and one by the Toronto Board of Trade.

Judge Denton found that while some extravagance, favoritism, and even dishonesty had been found, there was a remarkable absence of corruption.

The friendly rivalry which exists between these two well known firms is one that puts zest into the pastime of which all enjoyed to the fullest extent. Try it again, it was never beaten.

Mrs. F. Cade, Elmwood, Man., writes:—"My little boy caught cold while out playing in the snow. He coughed incessantly all that night and the next day, and nothing I gave him seemed to relieve him. When my husband came home he brought a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup with him. After the second dose my boy was greatly relieved and after the third dose he went to sleep and slept the whole night through without any coughing. BAILEY HIGH UP IN LIST OF PRO LEAGUE STARS

Former Local Player Second in Scoring in Canadian Section.

HAS 26 POINTS.

Only Five Men in the Whole League Have a Better Record.

The scoring records just issued by President Calder of the National Hockey League show convincingly that Irvin Bailey, captain of last year's Peterboro Senior O. H. A. champions, has made good with a bang in his first year in the cash-and-carry circuit. Bailey, according to these figures, is second highest scorer in the Canadian section of the N.H.L., only one point behind the leader, Billy Burch, of New York Americans, who has 27 points to his credit, as against 26 by Bailey. The former Peterboro right winger stands sixth in scoring in the whole league, the only players ahead of him, in addition to Burch, being Dick Irvine of the Chicago team with 32 points, Frederickson of Boston with 29, Bill Cook of the Rangers with 28, and Babe Dye of Chicago with 27. In assists Bailey leads the whole Canadian section, and has figured in more than one-third the goal-scoring plays made by the Toronto team, a sweet record for a first-year player. Montreal papers, referring to his work there against Maroons, give him credit for a dazzling exhibition that outshadowed Nels. Stewart, the Maroons centre, who incidentally is five points behind Bailey on the season's record.

Peterborough fans are delighted with the showing made by the former local star, who in his jump from Senior O.H.A. ranks, has developed into one of the outstanding performers of the season.

In Peterborough Churches

ST. PAUL'S PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

In spite of the rainy weather, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was well filled Sunday evening by a congregation interested in the series of addresses on "The Jew" being delivered by the pastor, Rev. Wm. Allan. That the organ preludes to the evening service are appreciated is shown by the number of people who attend early in order to hear the organ recital that has become a feature of the Sunday evening service, starting at 6.45 p.m. each evening.

The subject of the address Sunday night was "The Jew, His Strange Silence and Startling Speech." For almost an hour the congregation listened to an address that was both instructive and thought-provoking, and which should lead any of those present who were not familiar with the numerous prophecies of the Scriptures relating to this peculiar people to look upon them with new interest hereafter.

The eloquence of the Jew, said Rev. Mr. Allan is beyond all question. He is and always has been a speaker for God. From the time when Abraham left the civilization of his day and stepped out by faith in answer to the call of God to enter an unknown land, to become the progenitor of the race, to the present this people has been hearing an eloquent testimony for God. The Jew is eloquent in his sufferings. For four hundred years they were in bondage to the Egyptians. Later, they were a captive people in Babylon. No city has had such a tragic past as Jerusalem. It has been laid low twenty-seven times. For nearly two thousand years now, in strict accord and prophecy, the Jews have been a dispersed and suffering race. The ingenuity of many nations has been brought to bear upon them, to crush and destroy them, but still they persist. The story of their career is the saddest in all history.

Then think of the eloquence of the Jew as given in song. The song of deliverance, after crossing the Red Sea, the Psalms, the Song of Solomon, and other Books in the Scriptures prove their eloquence to have been unequalled by any other race.

Daniel's Prophecies.

Rev. Mr. Allan said no matter where the higher critics place the Book of Daniel, as to the date when it was written, it contains a most marvelous outline of important events in the world's history which have been wonderfully fulfilled to the most minute detail. About four hundred years B.C. a remnant of the Jews returned to the Promised Land from their exile, rebuilt their temple, and re-established their system of worship. For a while under Ezra and Nehemiah the character of the national life of these people showed an improvement, but quickly declined until the Book of Malachi, the last Book in the Old Testament, showed that they had fallen back into many evil ways. For four hundred years between the time of Malachi and the coming of Christ, there is one of the strange silences that pertain to this race. During this period at least five generations lived and died, but there is no record of there having been a Hebrew prophet with a Divine Message for this people. However, even during this period of declension there was a remnant of faithful Jews, with the result that when John the Baptist appeared on the scene there was still a ramnant looking for the promised Messiah. The Birth of Christ took place in exact accord with the prophecies that had been made concerning Him.

John the Baptist bore testimony to the Divine nature of Jesus, but was put in prison and died because of his faithful testimony. Jesus took up the ministry in almost the same words used by John, when John commenced his ministry, by calling upon the people to repent for the Kingdom of the Heavens was at hand. The geneological tables, in Matthew and Luke prove that Jesus had the right and title to David's throne. There is nowhere in the world today a Jew who claims to be a Prince of the House of David, nor has there been one since Jesus presented His credentials.

After the Jews had been offered an opportunity to accept Jesus as the Messiah, and it was evident that He was to be rejected, Jesus began to announce His forthcoming death and Resurrection. When Jesus was later rejected, the Jews cried out that they had no king but Caesar, and announced their willingness that His blood should be on their heads. They little realized what they were doing, but the fact remains that through their instrumentality, the Saviour was nailed to the Cross. The fact of His kingship was announced over the Cross in three languages—Latin, Greek and Hebrew. Although the common people had heard him gladly, not a voice was raised in His defence.

After His resurrection Christ proved to the disciples, on the way to Emmaus, from the Old Testament Scriptures, that all the events which had transpired had been foretold by the Prophets. Just previous to His ascension, when asked by His disciples if He would at that time restore the kingdom to their race, He did not rebuke them. He knew what they meant and had nothing to say about the kingdom being the church, as is claimed by some.

The Christian Church of today came into being at Pentecost. At that time, and for some time afterwards, it was composed of nothing but Jews. For nearly two thousand years now there has been another strange silence relating to the Jews during which they have been without the voice of a prophet. God set this people apart to be a witness to the nations, but they are not bearing their testimony for Him. Yet He has preserved them. At one time they were a servant people. Today they include among their number so many bankers of international reputation in the various countries of the world that they could bring a world financial crisis should they so desire. They are not the only people who have refused to have Christ rule over them. There are many Gentiles today who also refuse to accept Christ as their Lord and Master. To all such, an earnest appeal was made by the speaker to surrender their wills to God. This series of addresses is to be continued for several weeks.

LADIES' BASKETBALL.

Final Games To Be Played on Friday at the Y.M.C.A.

The final games of the Peterborough Ladies' Basketball League will be played at the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. Brintons vs. Westclox of the Junior League, and Woollens vs. C.G.E. of the Senior League. Both games promise to be keenly interesting, as the Gordon and Harvey trophies and the Consolation Cup will be the incentive for good competition.

After the games, all teams of the League will meet at the Y.W.C.A. Green Room where presentation of cups will be made, followed by refreshments.

THE WEATHER

The beautiful spring weather of the last few days has indeed been a welcome change from the long dreary winter. Temperatures of about the freezing point at night have been succeeded by warm days in which the thermometer would rise to 55 degrees, or even higher. The snow is going, going fast, but not too fast. A very heavy white frost this morning indicated showers before long, probably to-night.—W. P.

CARETAKER AND MATRON HIRED

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Brooks To Look After Children's Aid.

REGULAR MEETING.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Management of the Children's Aid Society was held yesterday afternoon in the Council Chamber, Mrs. W. H. Gibbs presiding and the following present: Mesdames Welsh, Devey, Newhall, Wiggins, Hodgson, Darcy, Fanning and Oke; and Messrs. J. Edgar, F. H. Dobbin, B. F. Ackerman, W. J. Hopwood J. Abraham, Alderman Walter Stocker and Dr. E. H. Wood.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mr. Edgar, who also gave the agent's report and the report of the matron at the Shelter.

The report of the Purchasing Committee was read by Mrs. J. Fanning.

Mr. Edgar read a letter from the Public Trustees at Osgoode Hall, with regard to the will of the late Mrs. Ida R. Hickey, who made a bequest of $25 to the Society.

The date of the next annual meeting of the Children's Aid Societies of the province will be on April 6th and 7th, the sessions to be held in the reception room of the Parliament Buildings in Toronto. The president and agent will attend these meetings as representatives of the local Society.

The report of the matron showed 17 children in the Shelter during the past month, with three sent out. The Shelter was quarantined for chicken pox.

Mr. Edgar also reported three applications for children, three returned to parents (not wards), and one sent to the Industrial school. Five complaints were received and investigated. The month of February, according to the agent's report, was a quiet one. The death of Phoebe Martin, a ward of the society, who had been ill for some years with diabetes, was reported. The expenses of her funeral will cost the society $100. Four pairs of boots were sent to a family in Apsley, through the kindness of Miss Dickson; and supplies were also sent to a family in Young's Point. Money from the rent of the garage of the shelter amounted to $10.50, and Messrs. T. Gilgour and Son remitted the amount of their last bread account, totalling $8.17, as a donation to the Shelter.

Caretaker and Matron Hired.

Alderman Stocker brought in the report of the special committee which was appointed at the last meeting to consider applications for the positions of caretaker and matron at the Shelter to replace Mr. and Mrs. D. Rogers, who resigned recently.

This committee included Messrs. W. Stocker (chairman), and F. H. Dobbin, and Mesdames Gibbs, Fanning and Welsh.

Seventeen applications were received for the positions, all but three proving unsatisfactory in some instance. These finally whittled down to one application, which was later adopted by the Board, on recommendation of the committee, accepting the application of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Brooks of Colborne, formerly residents of this city, for the positions of caretaker and matron of the Shelter. Their salary will be $1200 per annum, with two weeks' holidays, with pay for the matron. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks will engage and pay their own help. The Board will pay for help, if necessary, during the matons' leave of absence on holidays. Regular help will be given free board at the Shelter. An agreement between the Board of the Shelter and the new appointees will be drawn up by the society's solicitor, Mr. Joseph Wearing.

Mr. Dobbin was empowered to make arrangements with the Examiner for the insertion twice weekly of an advertisement relating to the whereabouts of the new office of the agent.

Accounts and Donations.

Accounts were passed, as follows: Bredin's Bread Co. $17.82; telephones $4.95 and $3.75; J. Edgar, $14.54; B. Heard, $7.45; T. L. Edwards, $10.48; C. W. Wiggins, $2.65; E. F. FRENCH AND INDIAN WAR FINELY FILMED.

Washington in "Winners of the Wilderness."

Stirring days of the French and Indian War, when the English colonies were menaced by the French and their naked savage allies, form the colorful background to a romantic love affair in "Winners of the Wilderness," coming to-morrow to the Capitol Theatre.

The story is an exquisite blend of history and romance, and stars Tim McCoy, with Joan Crawford, noted Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer featured player, who appears in the role of the lovely daughter of the commandant of Fort Duquesne at the time of Braddock's defeat.

The cast of characters is composed of the history makers of that period and include: George Washington, as young major of militia in the service of the British crown; Captains Gage and Gates, the former a British General during the American revolution, and the latter destined to become a famous American revolutionary patriot of Bunker Hill and Saratoga.

Other historical characters in the picture are: General Braddock, whose pigheadedness caused the massacre of nine hundred soldiers of his command of thirteen hundred, the French Governor of Canada and the English Governor of the colony of Virginia.

NOVEL STYLES MARK PICTURE "FIG LEAVES."

An Elaborate Fashion Show With Gowns Designed By Adrian a Feature of the Show.

Two very individual costumes stand out among the gorgeous display of wraps, gowns and lingerie in the elaborate Fashion Show in Fox Films production "Fig Leaves." This photo-drama, starring Olive Borden, opens a three-day run at the Regent Theatre.

The first is a trim tuxedo of black chiffon velvet worn by Barbara Clayton. This is made with a severely tailored skirt, a mannish dinner coat over a black brocaded silk vest and formal tucked evening skirt. Completing the outfit is a stiff tri-corner hat of black hatter's plush and a jaunty malaca cane.

Another original outfit is that worn by Betty Recklaw for misty weather. This is a raincoat of rubberized cloth of gold made in the conventional Sou'wester style with a turban of gold rubber cloth and gold rubber boots to match.

Olive Borden wears some marvelous gowns when she appears as the featured model in the Fashion Show. George O'Brien plays the leading male role with Andre de Beranger as the heavy.

Others in the cast are Phyllis Haver, Eulalie Jensen, William Austin, Charles Conklin, Dorothy Dunbar and Cecile Evans. Howard Hawks, author of the original story from which the picture was adapted, directed the production.

DISLIKES TARIFF ON WOOLLEN GOODS

British Journal Says Canadian Industry Fostered By High Tariff.

LONDON, March 16.— "Canadian woolen manufacturers are certainly in a difficult position. Their industry has been artificially fostered behind a high tariff wall."

This is what the Financial Times said yesterday in connection with the recent session of the Canadian advisory tariff board at Ottawa over the question of an increase of the tariff on woolen goods. Continuing, the paper asks why Canada should not confine her energies to those trades in which an economic advantage enables her "to pay high wages, rather than attempt to compete with Great Britain and other nations to her own detriment in industries in which she is at a disadvantage?"

The Financial Times adds that it sympathizes with Canadian woolen manufacturers, but that the latter should thank their own tariff policy for their present difficulties. It thinks there is little chance of the tariff on woolens being raised.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE CXXIX—When the Wages of Progress Were Poverty. by MAX HAHN

IF JOHN KAY HAD BEEN CONTENT TO LIVE A HUMDRUM LIFE WITHOUT ATTEMPTING TO IMPROVE HIS FORTUNE AND APPLY HIS KEEN INVENTIVE TALENT, HE WOULD HAVE BEEN ALLOWED BY HIS FELLOW ENGLISHMEN TO LIVE IN PEACE. JOHN KAY, HOWEVER, WAS NOT A COMMONPLACE MAN. IT DEPRESSED HIM TO SEE THAT WEAVERS WERE STILL MAKING CLOTH IN 1730 IN VIRTUALLY THE SAME WAY THAT CLOTH HAD BEEN WOVEN FOR THE LAST 5,000 YEARS.

KAY WAS A PIONEER IN THE INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION, AND LIKE ALL OTHER PIONEERS HE SOON LEARNED THAT THE TRAIL BREAKER'S PATH IS THORNY. HE WAS WATCHING A LOOM ONE DAY WHEN THE IDEA HOW TO MAKE THE LOOM DO TWICE AS MUCH WORK FLASHED THROUGH HIS MIND. THIS WAS ACCOMPLISHED BY USE OF THE FLYING SHUTTLE.

IN 1745 KAY INVENTED THE POWER LOOM. THIS WAS SO UNPOPULAR WITH THE WEAVERS THAT THEY RAIDED HIS HOME, BROKE HIS MACHINES AND DROVE HIM FROM TOWN TO TOWN. WHEREVER HE WENT MOBS ATTACKED HIM. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

DESPAIRING OF RECEIVING FAIR TREATMENT IN ENGLAND HE SAILED ACOSS THE CHANNEL TO FRANCE. SOON AFTERWARD HE DIED, CARRYING WITH HIM TO THE GRAVE MANY IDEAS FOR MACHINERY IMPROVEMENTS WHICH HE DID NOT MAKE FOR FEAR OF STIRRING UP MORE TROUBLE.

MILLBROOK TROOP OF SCOUTS MEETS

Twenty-one Boys Out at the First Meeting of New Season.

MILLBROOK, March 16—The Millbrook Troop of Boy Scouts held its first meeting for the season on Thursday, March 11. This troop cancelled its regular meetings while the skating and hockey season was in progress, to allow its members opportunity to enjoy these sports to the full.

The troop got away to a good start, however, on Thursday, when twenty-one boys were present for the initial meeting. Patrol Leaders Burton, Russell, Edward Nattrass, Edward Budd, and Albert Doak each held a study class for boys who have not yet passed their Tenderfoot tests.

The special speaker for the evening was Rev. Canon Allen, rector of St. Thomas church, in the parish hall of which the regular meetings take place. As a prefix to his address Canon Allen presented to all the registered scouts in attendance their registration cards for the present year, and at the conclusion of his talk, these boys, together with the Scoutmaster, E. H. Barnes, renewed their oath, as a token that they are still prepared to live up to their promises as scouts.

It is expected that about nine members of the troop will pass their Tenderfoot Test and become registered Scouts within the next month or six weeks.

Games, and drill were conducted by the Assistant Scoutmaster, Robert Shaw, and Lynden Russell.

Scoutmaster Barnes referred to the Hamilton Conference at which he had the pleasure of being present, as well as the Commissioners' and District Officers' conference, and also spoke to the troop about the plans that the Court of Honor had under way for the ensuing year.

SENTENCE DEFERRED.

Publisher Found Guilty of Blasphemy in Christian Enquirer.

TORONTO, Mar. 16. (Canadian Press)—Ernest V. Sterry, charged with blasphemy, was found guilty in the criminal sessions yesterday. County Judge Coatsworth deferred sentence until to-morrow. Sterry was charged with publishing in pamphlet known as Christian Enquirer 'certain scandalous, unpious, blasphemous, profane and indecent libel of and concerning God, the Holy Bible, Holy Scripture and Christian religion."

CITIZENS MAY ASK HIGHER TAXES NOW!

ALMENDRALJEO, Spain, March 16. — The city has found an easy means of filling its depleted coffers. The mayor conceived the idea of taxing all women under his jurisdiction according to the length of their skirts. A damsel showing only her ankle pays the minimum rate, while those wishing to display calves or knees must give up proportionate amounts. The more fashionable the lady, the higher the tax. No increase in the length of the skirt has been noted.

Hard Boiled Bandit Makes Confession To Mother

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 16.—United News.—One of the "hard boiled bandits" who staged nine hold-ups in the Twin Cities a week ago, has confessed. Carl Johnson, former University of Minnesota student, was tough as far as the police were concerned, until his mother came to headquarters and placed her arm about his neck. Then he cried and the confession came.

Senator Returns Money Voted To Him By Senate

WASHINGTON, March 16. (United News) — Declaring it would be improper for the people of the United States to bear expenses of his personal misfortune, Senator Green, Vermont Republican, returned to the treasury $7,500 voted him for medical care after he had been wounded in a gun battle between rum runner and prohibition agents in 1924. Senator Green was struck by a bullet fired by a federal officer. He was incapacitated for many weeks and the money was voted upon a resolution offered by the late Senator Lodge. Green is still a semi-invalid.

THREE MEN FINED AT MILLBROOK

MILLBROOK, March 16.—Magistrate Floyd, Cobourg, presided here yesterday at a court session when a charge of drinking liquor in an unlawful place was preferred against five men. Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr of Cobourg, conducted the case for the prosecution and M. Frost of Lindsay appearing on behalf of the accused.

The liquor in question was stolen from the express office at the C.N.R. station by Stanley Fisher, sentenced last week by Judge McGlade, at Cobourg, to one year in the reformatory, and was offered by him to the men.

Three pleaded guilty and Magistrate Floyd imposed a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $32.22, or 21 days in gaol; they paid the fine. In the case of the other two the charge was refuted, and they were dismissed.

The charge of cruelty to a horse preferred by John Lytle of Glamargan against Joe Pericantus of the same neighborhood, was dismissed by the magistrate as lacking any foundation other than hearsay. Magistrate Floyd in dismissing the cases referred to it as apparently an act of spite because of a conviction recently obtained against Lytle for maiming a collie dog Petricantus acting as interpreter on that occasion for his fellow countryman, who could not speak English, and who was the real owner of the animal in question.

The court room was crowded while the session was being held.

MISSION BAND CONCERT.

Wide-Awake Band of Omemee United Church Gives Good Programme.

OMEMEE, March 16. — The "Wide Awake" Mission Band of Trinity United Church, Omemee, held its annual entertainment under the able supervision of Mrs. E. W. Rowland, Mrs. C. L. Morecombe, and Mrs. R. H. Williamson. The measles which has swept the village and countryside for several weeks had a dampening effect on the programme as many who were to have taken part were in quarantine. A splendid programme was given to a fair-sized audience. Particular mention must be given to the brilliant piano selections given by Miss Lenore Jamieson and Miss Jane Earle also the instrumental numbers given by Junior Band workers and the violin selection given by Master Billie Earle which elicited such rounds of applause that the youthful violinist was forced to respond with an encore.

Three quilts were sold, one having been decorated by a friend of the Juniors, while the others were pieced by Band members and quilted by several ladies of the church.

A pageant entitled, "The Easter Story", provided part two on the programme in which practically the whole Band took part. Many old hymns in keeping with the theme of the pageant were softly sung by an adult choir at intervals throughout, as well as a chorus by a number of little girls.

The proceeds of the evening amounted to something over thirty dollars.

WOOLER NEWS

St. Patrick's Day is coming soon, and many hostesses welcome it as an opportunity to entertain. Cards and dancing of course form the favorite amusements, or jolly games and contests may be the favorites. This will depend on the tastes of the guests. Emerald green must necessarily be the keynote of the decorative scheme. The yellow daffodil and narcissus blend delightfully with green and enliven the effect and pretty green candles wold be very effective. Heart and shamrock shaped cookies, green salads and jellies, and pale green ices with soft white cakes, would be very effective, in the refreshments. Sandwiches should be tied with green ribbons. A fruit cocktail can be topped off with green cherries. There are many delightful ways of using the St. Patrick color.

Will you for me then be carin'
When you see this green shamrock

REDUCTION ADOPTED.

Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company Reduces Capital.

LONDON, March 16. — Canadian Press.—The reports of the Board of directors of the Marconi wireless telegraph company, for reduction of the capital nearly 46 1-2 per cent, was adopted at a boisterous shareholders meeting here by a majority of 1,266,056 shares.

Senor Marconi had previously announced that he would resign from the Board if the proposals were not adopted.

A resolution was adopted appointing Senor Marconi as president and the four retiring directors were re-elected.

ELECTRIC IRON CAUSE OF FIRE

Lakefield Brigade Extinguishes Blaze in Thomson's Tailor Shop.

EARLY THIS MORNING.

LAKEFIELD, March 16 — Fire broke out in the tailor shop of Charles Thomson at one o'clock this morning but on account of the prompt action of the fire brigade the damage caused was very small.

Two members of the fire department were returning home when they noticed smoke coming out of the shop. They immediately turned in the alarm and the chemical truck responded.

The store is in a frame building divided into two parts, one half occupied by Mr. Thomson and the other by H. McMaster.

Considerable excitement was caused and a large crowd of citizens turned out to see the fire. On entering the store the firemen found that the fire had been caused by an electric iron being left on.

PLENTY OF WATER ON WARSAW ROADS

Wheels Better Than Runners in Many Places—Fields Flooded.

WARSAW, March 16.—The thaw of the past few days has made many bare places; from Warsaw to Payne's Mill wheels are better than runners. In the ruts made by cars, runners scrape on bare ground. Low-lying fields are under water; the ground is frozen underneath so there is no possibility of water escaping, unless it can run from the surface. The road around Watt's hill is deep slush. Water has run on to it and frozen, then more water has run down, so that the fence to the east and north is half submerged in ice. So far it is all right for travelling. A large volume of water is pouring through the culvert at the foot of Cuffe's Hill.

For one whole week only were motors stopped between Warsaw and Peterboro. There were a few other odd days when they did not run. Unknown for over twenty years, the boundary has been open all winter.

A flock of wild geese passed over on Friday. Some suggested they might be Jack Miner's.

The United Church Missionary Society held a business meeting on Thursday. The annual missionary service will be held on Sunday, March 20.

The wood sawyers will be in the neighborhood this week. Those who are through with this work are thankful they have escaped the wet.

Mark Lonsberry is moving to Warsaw. He has rented part of the old Middleton house.

T. Clements has built a garage adjoining the store.

Miss Emily Drain is visiting friends in Warsaw.

Another Armenian boy is placed, this one with Percy Bell.

A few maple trees have been tapped, but they have not run. Sap does not usually run well so early.

Barber's Evidence Saves Man From Murder Charge

BROOKLYN, N.Y., March 16. —(United News.) — A jury took only 15 minutes to acquit Charles A Mitchell of a charge of murder after it had heard his barber testify that Mitchell never had worn a moustache.

A witness who described Mitchell as wearing a moustache identified him as having been in a saloon when two men were shot and killed. His barber, Thomas Marino, testified he had shaved Mitchell for many years but never saw him with a moustache.

AGITATORS BUSY PREPARING FOR GENERAL STRIKE

Men Sent From Hankow Conduct Campaign of Terrorism.

MURDER FOREMEN.

Chang Claims Further Victories in Honan—Trouble at Wuhu.

AGITATORS ACTIVE

SHANGHAI, March 16 (Canadian Press).—One hundred and fifty specially picked and trained agitators, who arrived here in batches from Hankow, apparently have completely won the good graces of local labor unions. They are said to be conducting a campaign of intimidation and murder with the object of insuring solid and prompt response for a general strike when the call is issued.

The nearest translation of the Chinese description of these agitators is "expert intimidators." Under their direction, labor unrest in Shanghai is increasing daily. Their chief object is so to work on their fellow countrymen's fear of personal injury, or injury to their families as to create terrorism throughout the ranks of labor and force solidity when the strike call is issued.

For many days there has been an average of one murder daily in Shanghai of a foreman or some other leader among the workers who opposed the last strike. None of the assassins has been aprehended.

Today, as yesterday, determined efforts were made to disorganize traffic on the Shanghai-Nanking railway. The train control telephone system was tampered with and several signal wires were cut. Yesterday intimidators forced thirty engineers and firemen and the whole locomotive staff of Shanghai South Station to desert. The strike at Woosung is continuing.

Chang Captures Chengchow

PEKING, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Headquarters here of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian war lord, claims that Chang's troops have captured from the semi-independent Honan forces of General Ching Yun Ao, the important town of Chengchow, in the Province of Honan.

It was stated yesterday that Chang had defeated with heavy losses the Honan troops and forced them to retreat to Chengchow, and that it was his purpose to attack Chengchow.

NATIVE OFFICIALS BEATEN OFF.

SHANGHAI, March 16. — Canadian Press. — A telegram received in authoritative British quarters from Wuhu, states that the Nationalists dragged the acting commissioner of foreign affairs (a local Chinese official) and the native customs assistant through the streets and beat them. Otherwise, the telegram says, the situation in Wuhu, which was recently taken over by the Nationalists, is quiet.

Heavy Fighting Reported

SHANGHAI, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Heavy fighting is reported West and Northwest of Shanghai, where the Cantonese are driving toward the railway which connects Chang Tsung Chang with his base, Tsinanfu, in Shantung province.

Telegraphic communication between Nanking and Pengpu, Anhwei province, is interrupted, but responsible quarters do not believe Pengpu has been captured by the Southerners, as claimed by the Kuomintang press in Peking. It is believed, however, that Nanking is seriously menaced.

To the southeast, along the western shore of Lake Taihu, near Ihing, a battle is reported under way, with no indication thus far as to the probable outcome.

CAR FERRY IDEA IS ATTRACTIVE

Canadian National Representative Already Booking Excursions For Summer.

Arthur J. O'Connor, special representative of the Canadian National Railways, on the CobourgRochester Steamship Route, informed The Examiner to-day that special arrangements are being made to carry motor parties on excursions from this side of the lake this summer. There has always been a good business from the Rochester side and it is expected that this year, with the accommodation for automobiles, many Canadians will take advantage of the wonderful facilities for crossing the lake. Attractive rates are being made for special parties of all kinds —afternoon sails, moonlight excursions, fraternal and other trips. The boats have a capacity of 1000 passengers, while the automobiles are loaded on a lower deck. Large dining rooms make the serving of meals on board a pleasure, and the spacious promenade decks add to the enjoyment of the trip. Mr. O'Connor has booked excursions already and he finds that the special rate of $2.00 from Cobourg to Rochester is proving very attractive.

Wheat Movement Slackens And Prices Grow Firmer

CHICAGO, March 16 (Canadian Press)—With the movement of corn and wheat showing indications of a material decrease, both grains developed early strength today. Liverpool wheat quotations lower than due had only a transient effect here. Opening at 1-8 cents to 1-2 decline, wheat soon rose to well above yesterday's finish. Corn started unchanged to 1-8 cent off and then scored all around gains. Oats were relatively steady; provisions tended downgrade.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 137 3-8, July 131 7-8; Corn, May 76 3-4, July 80 7-8; Oats 45 1-4, July 45 3-4.

Trading Quiet On Standard; Gains, Losses About Equal

TORONTO, March 16.—(Canadian Press.)— Trading was quiet and the list narrow on the standard mining exchange to-day. Gains and losses were about equal in number. A stronger feeling amongst the dividend paying gold stock was in evidence with Lake Shore showing the way by selling up ten cents a share to 1815. Dome Mines advanced five cents to 8.90, and Wright Hargreaves five to 10.40, while McIntyre and Hollinger were unchanged. Area was active and weaker, declining 1-2 to 37 1-2. Bourlamaque featured with a five point decline to 120. Keeley was off one to 139, while Larry Hollinger gained 3-4 to 44 3-4. Central Manitoba Gold was a firm spot in the unlisted section, advancing one to 116. Noranda declined forty cents to 23.00.

Demand For Massey Harris Feature Of Quiet Session

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press)—A strong demand for Massey-Harris and the weakening of International Nickle under unusual selling pressure were the features of a quiet market on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day. Massey-Harris was in demand all through the morning session and a leader in activity. Opening at 117 it remained firm to the close and this figure represented a gain of one. There was no apparent reason for the selling which took place in Nickel and the close of 40 1-2 indicated a decline of one. Seagram was fairly active and firm at 23 7-8. Page Hersey common and preferred stocks were both stronger, the common selling half to 64 1-2 and the preferred 1-2 to 128. Industrial Alcohol sold down 1-4 to 26 3-4. Brazilian was active but weaker, declining 1 1-4 to 126 5-8. Canadian Canners common advanced 3-8 to 43 1-8 after showing signs of weakness earlier in the trading. The preferred was a soft spot, selling off 1 3-4 to 85.

Reversal In New York When Money Rate Is Cut

NEW YORK, Mar. 16 (Canadian Press)—The stock market displayed another complete reversal of form to-day, selling off sharply during the morning and then rallying briskly in the afternoon.

The late buying was inspired by the lowering of the call money rate to 4 1-2 per cent, the lowest rate since last fall, and the publication of the weekly steel trade reviews calling attention to expanding mill operations and stiffening price

General Motors was again the market leader, pushing through 176 to a new high record for the present stock. Dupont touched a new high around 205, while National Lead was up about five points above last week's closing quotations. Despite the stress being placed in steel trade circles on States Steel common and the Inde-European competition, United pendents displayed a firm undertone.

Extreme weakness developed in the Southern Dairies issues when those stocks were subjected to bear attacks, the 'A' dropping 7 1-2 points to 26 and the 'B' 3 1-4 to 93, both new lows. Warner Brothers Pictures and a number of oils and specialties also were liquidated freely. In the railroad group, the best gains were made by issues of an investment character, particularly those whose current yield is greater than that of high grade bonds.

MADAME DUSSEAU RECITAL

(By Jeanette).

The vocal recital given by Madame Jeanne Dusseau of Toronto in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, under the auspices of the Women's Music Club, proved to be one of the most thoroughly interesting musical events of the season. There was an attendance of between two and three hundred people, who appeared to enjoy to the utmost the exquisite singing of the vocalist of the evening, their applause at the close of her programme signifying their desire for more of this extremely satisfying type of music.

Peterborough has seldom been favored with a more finished type of vocalism than was demonstrated last evening in the work of Madame Dusseau. Hers is the art of singing carried to a very high pitch, and her lovely songs are delivered with ease, freedom and assurance. It is a dramatic soprano of the brilliant, somewhat florid type that this singer possesses, with a wide range and no apparent technical difficulties of any sort. A peculiar catch in the breath was the only noticeable defect at times, attributable to a recent attack of tonsilitis.

Finish is probably the outstanding characteristic of this voice, with its exquisite modulations and an echoing timbre like the fibrous sweetness of the perfectly-tuned E string of a beautifully-toned violin. The singing is done in the legato way, with a smooth binding together of the tones that argues perfect breath control and poise. Delicately polished, yet powerful in its soaring range, this is a silvery ringing voice that is colored by the sympathetic interpretation of the singer. Its "sostenuto" quality, its unstrained pitch and the 'portamento' or gliding cadences frequently used make it charming and attractive in the extreme. An atmosphere of intellectual understanding of the demands of varying types of vocalism forms a background for a sentimental appreciation of tonal values. Madame Dusseau was equally at home in the touching sweetness of "Songs My Mother Taught Me," with its heart-catching cadences, as in the brilliant, showy measures of the "Jewel Song," from 'Faust.'

The evening quartette included three foreign songs, and Grieg's "Ich Liebe Dich ("I Love Thee") sung in English. Mascagni's little song of the daisy petals, "M'ama—Non M'ama" in French, was a bright opening selection, followed by an Italian love song, Puccini's "E L'uccellino," and Strauss's. "Cecilie," in brisk tempo.

A group of sentimental numbers included a fine interpretation of "Tears and Ecstasy," and two beautiful bits, heartily applauded, in Dvorak's "Songs my Mother Taught Me," with its portamento sweetness, and "Think on Me," by Lady John Scott in pianissimo effect.

Four French songs were in a later group, Gounod's lovely "Jewel Song," the lively yet pensive measures of "Psyche," and Chabrier's song of "the happy island," in "L'ile Heureuse," also an alluring, piquant thing in the Brittany folk song of the dawn of a Sunday morning, 'Dimanche a l' aube," sung in staccato style.

The final group included a love song, "Beloved, it is Morn," also a Scotch lullaby, with poetic suggestion in its homely phrasing, the lilting 'Husha-ba-Birdie," and a sweet, whimsical morsel in "Three Fairy Songs," illustrating the artist's purity and clarity of tone.

La Forge's "Song of the Open" was the final programme number, a powerful, full-voiced number in which the singer's magnificent swelling tone and soaring sweetness in high-pitched intervals was wonderfully demonstrated. This was repeated as an encore in response to repeated applause.

The purity of her tones was excellently demonstraed in a lovely encore rendition of Teresa del Riego's "Homing" and a charming quality of gay appeal was in another little encore, the dainty "Second Minuet."

Contributing largely to the artistic finesse of the programme, and forming a perfect background of sympathetic and rounded tone to the songs of Madame Dusseau, were the very pleasing piano accompaniments played by Mrs. A. M. Russell, of Toronto, who generously responded to the request of a few lingering patrons of the concert by playing at its conclusion the lovely "Londonderry Air," of Percy Grainger.

OIL DRILLERS ESCAPE DEATH

Three Men Hurled Many Feet When Boiler Explodes.

DERRICK UNHARMED.

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 16.—Three oil well drillers, G. F. Gregory, Petrolia; Fireman G. F. Hartley, Oil Springs, and E. H. Randall, Petrolia, were injured yesterday when a boiler exploded in a shanty of the drilling rig operated by F. S. Snively at Onondaga.

Randall was the worst hurt, a gash in the head requiring six stitches, but how the three escaped death is considered a miracle. The pressure from the exploding boiler and the water and steam through the grates blew these 200 feet away, and the men were hurled for a considerable distance. The shanty was wrecked.

Gregory was holding a line at the time and was hurled many feet, still holding the line until he dropped unconscious. Hartley was hit in the back by the hot water jet and blown through the roof and over the husk blocks and draw works. Randall, a spectator at the time, was also caught by the steam and hurled 80 feet away. The stove followed the men.

The rig was badly smashed, but the derrick escaped. It stands on the farm of Zeno Deagle, near Onondaga village, where drilling operations have been carried on for some time.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT.

Canadian National Telegraphs Now Permit Use of Code in Day Letters and Night Letters.

The announcement made by Mr. W. G. Barber, General Manager of the Canadian National Telegraphs, that, commencing to-day, code may be used in the composition of day letters and night letters, not only in Canada but with the United States as well, will be welcome news to the large number of firms who use this medium of communication. In commenting upon this move, Mr. Barber stated it has been under consideration for some time, and that the removal of the prohibition against code in the day letter and night letter traffic will represent a liberal concession by the Canadian National Telegraphs, and offer a much wider scope for the use of these low rate services for long communications.

As in the case of the night letter and day letter services themselves, the Canadian National Telegraphs has once more taken the lead by the announcement of this progressive and constructive action.

STERRY SENTENCED.

Goes To Jail 60 Days For Blasphemous Libel—Deportation Advised.

TORONTO, March 16 (Canadian Press).—Ernest V. Sterry, who was yesterday found guilty of blasphemous libel, was to-day sentenced to sixty days in jail by Judge Coatsworth. His Honor also recommended that Sterry be deported on completion of his sentence. Counsel for Sterry intimated that deportation proceedings would not be protested, although Sterry had been a resident of Canada for sixteen years.

Sterry, who is an Englishman, assumed responsibility for articles published in a pamphlet called "The Chrisitian Enquirier," and as a result of the distribution of which the charges were laid.

Blasphemous libel consists in the publication of any profane words "vilifying or ridiculing God, Jesus Christ, the Holy Ghost, the Old or the New Testament or Christianity in general, with intent to shock and insult believers, or to pervert or mislead the ignorant or unwary."

In presenting the case to the jury yesterday, His Honor pointed out that persons may disbelieve in God and the Bible and may express themselves in writing, but in doing so language must be respectful, "as the subject is most sacred to nearly every person in or land."

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Don't mention his name to me!" Cherry cried sharply, so that the matron in the distant corner of the room looked up inquiringly.

"Not so loud, darling!" Faith put her arms about her sister. "I wish you would tell me about you—and Chris. Forgive me, dear, but I can't just ignore the fact that you are married."

"I wish to God I could!" Cherry whispered with passionate vehemence. "You know, Faith, I'm almost glad I'm shut up in jail, so I—I won't have to live with Chris. But I wouldn't—anyway. I—I'd have left him the day after the ceremony if we hadn't been arrested."

"But Cherry, darling, what is the matter?" Faith pleaded. "You were so much in love with Chris Wiley—"

"I wasn't in love with him! I wasn't in love with anybody! I found that out quickly enough—that first night with Chris. He—oh, I can't talk about it! Not even to you, Faith. Don't ask me. I hate him! I loathe him!"

"Cherry, you must talk to me," Faith commanded her sternly. "Tell me one thing. Was—was the marriage—could it—be annulled?"

"You mean," Cherry caught her up bravely, but her golden eyes glanced away and her cheeks crimsoned, "you mean am I truly his wife? The answer is yes. I can't ask for an annullment. "But afterwards—" her voice faltered, almost died away, "he—he sickened me with him, with marriage, with all men.

"Faith," she cried, with sudden desperate need to unburden her heart, "he spent three hours before dawn telling me of all the girls and women he'd possessed. He—he bragged of his conquests, described them to me, gloated over them. He—he told me the only reason he'd married me was because I—I wouldn't give in to him. Oh, Faith, I—I wanted to kill him! Oh, that awful word— 'kill!' I'll never be able to say it lightly again, as people do. But he deserves everything, he's suffering now, if he is suffering, and I hope he is! I told him I'd leave him the next day and he laughed at me! He said I was too crazy about him to leave him, and that I couldn't get a divorce on those grounds—disgust with him because he'd been—wicked before he married me. But I won't live with him again, ever, and I won't take any money from him now—not if I were starving. But I can't starve here," she ended bitterly. "The county furnishes me free board and lodging, though I can't say much for the table they set. You see now, don't you, darling, why I can't buy any new clothes? I've taken enough from you and Dad as it is. I don't know how you're going to get along And you mustn't bring me any more food, or have my meals sent in. I deserve to eat prison fare for the rest of my life, for having been so selfish."

"You mustn't give way like this," Faith admonished her almost sharply. "I'm going to get you the clothes Churchill says you'll have to have. I'll make them myself. Churchill will probably like that idea—make capital of it in the newspapers—that your dresses are home-made, because the Lane family hasn't any money for ready-made clothes. May I sell your mink coat, dear?"

"Of course!" Cherry brightened instantly. "I'd forgotten that I have a marvelous trousseau that cost thousands of dollars! And not a garment worn! Maybe you can find a bride—but I keep forgetting what I am now!" she wailed bitterly. "No bride would wear clothes made for Cherry Lane, the murderess!"

"Churchill wants you to wear semi-mourning," Faith began, her eyes anxiously watching Cherry's face.

"Mourning?" Cherry gasped. "He wants me to capitalize Muggy's death, just to work on the sympathies of the jury! I won't do it! I promised Muggy over and over that I wouldn't wear black. So did you and you know it!"

"I know," Faith agreed sadly. "But Mother would want you now to do anything in the world that would help you to freedom. After all, dear, Churchill must think of just these things. He's a clever lawyer, and you are smart enough to know that a jury does not decide a case on law alone. A hundred influences sway them. Whether you like the idea or not, the jury is going to remember every minute of the time that you're a tiny, tiny, girl most astonishingly beautiful, just the kind of girl that every male thing in the world dreams of having a chance to protect. They will, every man Jack of them, be in love with you before the first day of the trial is over. You can't get away from that and you'd be a fool to want to prejudice them against you by wearing colors when they'll be expecting you to be in mourning for your mother. And black will be extremely becoming to you, honey. Churchill spoke of that. You've got him soft about you already," she added cunningly.

The girl who had just declared that he was disgusted with men—all men—flushed with pleasure, which she quickly tried to frown away. "I'll do it, I suppose—wear black, I mean. But I loathe the thought of advertising to the world that I'm in mourning for Muggy. Oh, Muggy. I wish I'd been a good girl!" she moaned, covering her face with her tiny, white hands.

"Churchill wants you to wear very simple black dresses, with white collars and cuffs," Faith hastened to divert her mind. "He thinks—and I agree with him—that the skirts should be below the knees—"

"And make me look like a frump!" Cherry flamed. "Why, every girl in town—yes, and every woman under fifty—is wearing her dresses to the knees and then he wants me to look old-fashioned; a fine impression I'll make on the jury!"

"Juries are usually made up of middle-aged and old men, who talk a lot about old-fashioned girls," Faith pointed out. "Churchill doesn't mean that your skirts should be long but just below the knees—two inches probably. Sheer black silk stockings--"

"When every other girl is wearing French nude," Cherry protested somberly. "Go on. What other bright ideas has he got for me? This is good—'What the well-dressed murderess will wear—'"

"I told you I'd slap you if you used that word again!" Faith cried sternly and brought the palm of her hand sharply against the cheek of her startled sister. But she relented instantly, and kissed the red imprint of her hand upon the soft, satin-smooth, firm young cheek.

The two girls were laughing over quickly sketched out designs when the matron came to tell them that the time was up. Faith watched the two of them—the stout, pleasant-faced matron, and Cherry—go away together, Cherry's arm thrown across the older woman's shoulders with careless affection. Cherry's voice liltingly cheerful.

"If it were I—" Faith thought, then caught herself up sharply. "I ought to be thanking God that she can take it as she does—and I do, I do!"

TOMORROW: Faith plans to go to Chicago to raise money on Cherry's belongings.

A LITTLE STRENGTH

By W. D. Packwood.

A little strength, is all I ask
To keep me to my daily task;
To tread along life's narrow way,
Until I reach the "Light of Day"

I only ask in humble prayer,
Just strength enough my cross to bear;
What'er that earthly cross may be
I am content to leave to Thee.

I only seek to reach that shore,
When all my wanderings are o'er;
To lay my every burden down,
To leave my cross, and gain my Crown,

And so I ask Thy Heavenly Grace,
To help me run this earthly race;
A little strength is all I need,
To follow Thee, where Thou dost lead.

Women's Hygienic Mistakes

Being Ended—New way discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

BECAUSE one woman told another, and because doctors and nurses so urged, millions of women are discarding old-time sanitary ways for the new way called Kotex.

✓ First, you discard Kotex as easily as tissue. No laundry, no embarrassment.

Five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads, it enables one to wear sheerest frocks and gowns without slightest fear of embarrassment. Also deodorizes, thus ending all danger of offending.

Eight in every 10 better class women employ it. Once you use it you'll never again dare the uncertainty of old ways.

Obtain at any store simply by saying "KOTEX." Box of 12 costs only a few cents. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

The effect of girlishness is gained in this frock of red and white printed chiffon trimmed with ribbon and roses. The taffeta hat is trimmed with long ribbon streamers and glass cherries.

A year or so ago fashion bade us be boyish—now she has sent forth her endorsement of the girlish effect. We should cut our hair not to resemble the school boy but the school girl—we must be slender not as young boys are slender but after the manner of slim young girls. We must be naive, demure—and f streamers on our hats and frills and little ruffles on our frocks make us look more like young girls then we must wear them.

This new endorsement of the girlish fashion may lead to results quite as grotesque as did the boyish cult. There are, of course, women who could never look girlish even in their youth—and frequently they are the women who select the girly-girly type of clothes whenever there is an excuse to do so. The color range for spring might be considered more girlish than anything we have had recently—for there are right clear shades that suggest youthful daintiness, clear flower-petal blues, light luminous greens, pinks and soft grays. Apparently we are losing our taste for the effect of sophistication in clothes.

Never before did dressmakers talk so much about simplicity. But the simplicity of this spring is different from the simplicity of last spring. The new things must be simple—but not severely simple. There is nothing harsh or rigidly smart now. There are softening folds of material, hidden pleats, panels, flounces, tucks and ruffles. The waistline even is rising and some of the new frocks have girdles of ribbon tied at the back or side with an enormous bow.

Even the bob seems to have been robbed of its boyishness and here and abroad there is a growing tendency to wear the hair rather longer at the back and sides. Curls even are coming back in fashion and if the taste for young-girl fashions continues we need not be surprised to see hair ribbons tied in bows at the side of the hair before the season is over.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Thursday, March 17, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The early part of this day is rather threatening, according to astrology, but after noon a benefic aspect dominates.

Many rumors of international troubles may disturb the public mind at this time and it is well to preach peace.

This is read as an unfavorable sway for surgical operations or for dental engagements.

While this configuration prevails there may be a strong tendency toward irritability and domestic quarrels may be easily precipitated.

The seers counsel for both men and women avoidance of fatigue and warn of sleep starvation, a modern ill.

Mercury is in an aspect indicating much interesting world news. Editors and publishers are to profit greatly in 1927.

Poland and France may be seriously afflicted by malefic planetary influences that cause grave events.

According to a reading of the stars there is little hope of reduction of taxation. Instead, new burdens may be unavoidably laid upon the people.

The rights of free speech and an uncensored press probably will be advocated among nations, a tendency that will be reflected by individuals.

Divorces will continue to be prevalent and laxity in moral standards may be even more general than in the past, astrologers declare.

Gigantic forgeries and official papers that have been subjected to tampering will cause international sensations, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be unusually cautious in all lines of speculation during the current year.

Children born on this day probably will be rather venturesome, but possessed of many talents.

THE SCALAWAG

A rascal's what my father says
'At I am when I'm bad;
And then I get all sorrowful—
My badness makes me sad.

But sometimes, when I'm really good
And pleasant; then my dad
Says I'm his dandy little man,
And I all fill up with glad.

Topic for the Week
"CHRIST IS A SPIRIT"
Wednesday
"It Makes His Death Significant"

SCRIPTURE: Read—Isaiah 53.

"I and my Father are one" (Jn. 10:30). "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto myself" (Jn. 12:32). "For the love of Christ constraineth us" (II. Cor. 5:14). "And to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye may be filled unto all the fullness of God" (Eph. 3:19).

See—John 12:23, 45; Romans 5:15-18.

MEDITATION: On occasion human law has been considered satisfied when one person assumed the penalty of another; but how can one assume the penalties of untold millions? If every one ought to die for his sins, how can the death of Jesus atone for all? Think again; if the eternal Spirit who is sinned against suffers the consequences of sin Himself in place of the sinner, if the love of Christ is the love of God, and the death of Christ means that the heart of God bears the sins of men, then He wins me; He reconciles me t himself. That is atonement. Such for giving love and such consequences o my wrongdoing give me an overwhelm ing sense of the sinfulness of sin.

"Show me the power of Thy sacrifice the glory of Thy shame, the strength o Thy gentleness, the empire of Th love."

HYMN:

Beneath the cross of Jesus
I fain would take my stand,
The shadow of a mighty rock
Within a weary land,
A home within the wilderness,
A rest upon the way,
From the burning of the noontide heat
And the burden of the day.

I take, O cross, thy shadow
For my abiding place;
I ask no other sunshine than
The sunshine of His face,—
Content to let the world go by,
To know no gain nor loss,
My sinful self my only shame,
My glory all the cross.

—Elizabeth C. Clephane (1830-1869

SIGNS OF SPRING

AT WESTWOOD.

WESTWOOD, March 16.—Heralds of spring are daily becoming more prominent. Several flocks of wild geese have been seen flying northward. A Manitoba maple tree was observed to be in bud, while the pussy willow trees are blossoming. Blue jays, chickadees, robins, and sparrows have been seen, and some have already completed their nests.

IN LAKEFIELD.

LAKEFIELD, March 16.—The appearance of the noisy crow, always welcome as a harbinger of spring, and, not one robin but many, have inclined people generally to the belief that this year the spring will be early. For three years the spring has been very late so an early spring seems almost too good to be true. The fact that the gulls have returned is looked on as conclusive proof that spring is here to stay. Marbles are to be seen and one may look for the feminine equivalent, the skipping rope, any day.

The low lying parts of the village are enjoying (?) a season of half-filled cellars and a general state of dampness but in two days the water has gone in remarkable fashion, drains are opening and in consequence the streets are drying quickly.

Sunday night's rain cleared the walks and in some measure bettered conditions.

A gang of men are engaged at the streets and each day's work brings a great improvement.

TRAPPING AT HIAWATHA.

HIAWATHA, March 16.—Spring appears to be making rapid headway in this part of the county. Sleighing is now over. The mailman is driving a cart.

It looks as if the trapping of muskrats will be over by April Fools' Day, as it has been in some other years.

The warm sun is causing the snow to run rapidly to the lake. Soon the lake will not be safe to travel on. At Harwood and Gore's Landing the ice near the shore is flooded and only pedestrians with long rubber boots can walk over dry-shod.

Wise guides and trappers are preparing for the catch of muskrats by collecting the traps and procuring new canoes, etc.

Alexander Adams caught one small rat already, and as the river near Campbellton dock is said to be free of ice, more of them will soon be captured.

The marsh south of the sugar bush, which belongs to the Reserve, and where only natives can trap, has only three inches of ice at the present time. Those going there to see their traps will presently be able to paddle.

One of the boys set his trap last week in a secret place and when he returned found that some animal had built, or was starting to build, a home over it. The lad claimed this to be a sign of Spring.

The welcome gull has been seen in the air and on the lake looking for its share of the muskrat hunt. Each year some of the hunters throw the muskrat carcaseses away and the gulls assist the owls, and other birds and wild creatures in eating the carrion.

Birds at Hiawtha.

HIAWAHTHA, March 16.—Robins are now very plentiful in the vicinity. Their songs are exceedingly cheering.

In one of the bird houses made this year by one of the school boys, a sparrow family are setting up their home and biulding a nest. The house was intended for a wren, but the entrance must have been large enough to let the noisy sparrow in.

The surest messenger that we have, telling that spring is here, arrived on Sunday evening or early Monday morning. It is the blue bird. The colour of its coat makes a great contrast with its surrounding at the present time.

Several flocks of wild geese have been heard flying north to their nesting places.

AT OMEMEE.

OMEMEE, March 16.—Many evidences of spring have already appeared and every day more indications point to its arrival. The snow is fast disappearing, and in its stead the grass is casting a green tinge where it is exposed to the warm rays of the sun. Fortunately for many Omemee residents whose homes are situated in the low district, the snow is going gradually and there is hope that the cellars will escape the almost annual deluge of water. The roads are bare in many places and buggies and cars are fast replacing the cutters.

Numerous crows and black birds have been seen. A flock of gulls flew over last week, and on Sunday a flock of wild geese flew north. An odd robin was reported last week, but on Sunday many residents could be seen peering to catch a glimpse of the songsters as their sweet notes resounded from many a tree.

Orange and black fluffy caterpillars have been seen crawling slowly along.

The small boys and girls, too, have been playing marbles for some time on the sidewalk where Old Sol had melted a patch of snow, and the skipping rope, wagons, bicycles and kiddie cars have all been brought into action.

Trappers are anxiously waiting to see the ice break up, and have their traps set wherever possible, in the hope that the first rat that comes in search of food may be captured.

Spring overcoats are replacing the heavy winter garment, and millinery openings are announced for this week. Surely these are sure signs of spring.

WANTED MAN KILLS HIMSELF

Brockville Man, Sought By Windsor Police, Dies in Chicago.

CHARGED WITH THEFT.

BROCKVILLE, March 16.—Within a few hours after local police received a warrant for the arrest of Victor Maurice, former bank clerk here, on a charge laid by Windsor police, word was received from Chicago that the man had shot himself in a hotel there. He left a note telling Chicago police to notify Mrs. D. F. Ellis, 53 James street, Brockville, who is his sister.

Maurice was wanted in Windsor on a charge of stealing $500 from the Prince Edward Hotel while he was employed as a clerk there. He disappeared from Windsor two days ago shortly before the alleged shortage in his accounts was revealed.

According to information from Chicago, a man registered as P. Martin of New York City at the Hotel La Salle early this afternoon and immeditaely retired to his room. Later a maid tried to enter, and, getting no response, she summoned the house detective, who found the body lying in the bathroom and a revolver near by.

Upon discovery of the note asking that Mrs. Ellis be notified the police got in touch with Brockville authorities and it was found that the man was Maurice.

New York Yankee Club Troubles Are Coming To An End

HOLDOUTS ARE RETURNING TO TRAINING CAMP

Club officials and Players at Last Come To Terms.

MEUSEL SIGNS.

Huggins Well Satisfied With Training Results To Date.

BY BILL SLOCUM.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16.—Yankee holdouts are retiring rapidly, but not from baseball. At last the smoke is clearing from the battle between players and the club officials for those extra thousands or hundreds.

All the sectors have now been heard from and the battle is about over. The hold-out season always fades out as time for pay-day approaches, because a player must be in shape before he is eligible to collect salary.

Two days ago one player was threatening to quit camp and three others were listed as holdouts, whose plans were unknown. Then came the signing of Combs, the agreement with Shocker and yesterday the two others got into line, or close to it.

Bob Meusel checked in at the Princess Martha Hotel yesterday morning, carrying his contract with him, as he had done so often in the past. Sometime last evening Meusel and Huggins talked things over and there is no danger of Bob returning home. He lives too far. Quitting Florida to return to California would be regarded as the logical move in Bob's home state, but it would not entitle him to 1/2 pay checks on the first and fifteenth of each month until next October. So he'll stay.

Meusel took a trip to the golf links with Joe Dugan, this being one day in the week when Huggins permits his players to indulge in the game.

About the same time that Meusel arrived, it became known that reservations had been made for the arrival of Herbie Pennock. Whether the southpaw has signed or is coming to camp to talk things over, has not been announced. But the fact that he is coming here may be regarded as putting the finale on the big Winter drive against the Ruppert bankroll. No doubt that bankroll took a lot of punishment before all the athletes decided not to forsake baseball.

Combs Expected.

Earle Combs has not reported, but is expected some time this week. When Pennock arrives the squad will be complete and the holdout drive but a memory of the past, like the real estate boom down here.

Huggins is well satisfied with the training results to date, and if the weather continues as it has been the late arrivals should be fit when the club breaks camp two weeks from next Tuesday night. The rookies have been performing in a most satisfactory way, and they promise much for coming years, but the main work is to get the regulars ready for the drive ahead.

Dugan will take up his third base duties some time this week, thus completing the regular infield, and by the end of the week Huggins will have Ruth, Meusel and Combs stepping around in the outfield. He also will have the veteran batterymen working in the exhibition games. So far only Gehrig, Lazzeri and Koenig, of the group classified as regulars, have been used against the Braves and Reds.

British Golfers To Visit United States During Coming Summer.

LONDON, Mar. 16. (Canadian Press)—Abe Mitchell will captain the team of nine British professional golfers which will sail for the United States May 21, to play in the open championship tournament and also defend the rider cup. C. A. Philpot will manage the team.

(It was announced on March 3 that the following nine players would make the trip: Abe Mitchell, Ted Ray, Fred Robinson, C. A. Whitcombe, Aubrey Boomers, Archie Compston, George Duncan, George Gadd and A. C. Havers.

CHICAGO CAPTAIN IS STILL LEADING

Ranks Highest in Both Sections of National Hockey League.

MONTREAL, March 16.—(Canadian Press).—Captain Dick Irvin, of the Chicago Black Hawks, is still leading the scorers in both sections of the National Hockey League, according to the scoring and penalty statistics up to an including games of March 13, issued yesterday by President Calder. Irvin has eighteen goals and fourteen assists for a total of 32 points, which is three ahead of Frank Frederickson, of the Boston Bruins, who has 17 goals and 12 assists to his credit.

Others who are pressing the leaders are Bill Cook, of the New York Rangers, with 28 points; Babe Dye, Chicago right winger, with 27; Billy Burch, New York Americans, 27 points, and Bailey, of Toronto, with 26 points.

Nels Stewart, of the Montreal Maroons, has spent the greatest time on the penalty bench, with a total of 123 minutes. Eddie Shore, of Boston, and Babe Siebert, of the Montreal Maroons, followed with 114 each.

DEMPSEY PLANS ARE ALL UPSET

Must Undergo Operation If He Regain Heavyweight Crown.

BASE OF SPINE.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., March 16.—Jack Dempsey's training plans "are mixed up again", the ex-heavyweight champion said yesterday. He must undergo an operation, his physicians said, if he is ever to regain his heavyweight crown. Although the operation is not serious, they add, it will be necessary to remove the cause of blood poisoning which recently almost cost Dempsey his left arm.

Necessity for the operation was caused by injuries Dempsey received on the base of his spine in a fall two years ago, surgeons said.

"My training plans are all upset, and I am not sure when I will have the operation performed or when I will get back into training," Dempsey said.

Canadiens Beat Ottawa First Time In Two Years

MONTREAL, Mar. 16.—Canadiens ended the long losing sequence they have experienced in games with Ottawa when they beat the Canadian group leaders in a National Hockey League fixture here last night 4-1. It was the first win Canadiens have scored over Ottawa since Feb., 1925.

Outside of a few minutes toward the end of the first period, Canadiens held control of the games through their whirlwind speed, which had the famed though somewhat weakened Ottawa defensive system wobbling.

Club Attaches Who Criticize N.H.L. Referee Subjected To Penalty.

NEW YORK, March 16 (Canadian Press) — According to the Evening World, the board of governors of the National Hockey League, at its meeting Monday, decided that any owner, manager, player or club attache who criticizes a referee publicly will be subject to a penalty of $500 or more.

The world also says that President Frank Calder expressed a personal opinion that "it was high time that the National League set a limit upon its franchises."

Barbers Can't Tell Stories If Iowa Law Is Passed

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 16. (United News.)—A bill introduced in the Iowa Legislature seeks to prevent barbers from asking questions or telling stories when performing tonsorial operations. The bill further provides that clean towels be used instead of the index finger to wipe lather from the customer's mouth.

If the bill passes barbers will be liable to a $100 fine for violating these provisions. The bill was referred to the Committee on Animal Industry.

MONTHLY MEETING AT MOUNT PLEASANT

Branch of East Durham's Women's Institute on Wednesday.

MOUNT PLEASANT, March 15.—The Mount Pleasant branch of East Durham's Women's Institute held its March meeting at the home of Mrs. John Handley on Wednesday. There was an attendance of fifteen members. The meeting opened with the singing of the Institute Ode followed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. The President presided over the meeting and after the roll was called she introduced a roll call, interest in which the member answering to her name with the quotation asked for gets five marks. The roll is called right after the meeting opens, the ones coming in late do not get a chance to answer, and it is surprising how they try to be there on time and have their quotations. At the end of the year, the losing side or the side lowest in marks puts up the supper. Two captains were chosen and all the members divided upon both sides. Mrs. Garnet Shield and Mrs. Thomas Graham were the captains chosen.

A number of letters of correspondence were read and disposed of. Mrs. T. E. Morden reported that a bale of clothing which was gathered and left at her home, was packed and sent to Toronto.

After the usual routine of business a very interesting and beneficial programme followed. Mrs T. E. Morden gave an excellent paper on "A Country Woman's Problems," which was very interesting.

A very helpful paper was prepared and given by Mrs. Henry Lowes on "Labor-Saving Devices and Convenience in the Home," in which Mrs. Lowes told of several labor-saving devices and conveniences which all go to lighten a woman's household duties.

Mrs. Chester Best also read an eloquent paper, "The duty we owe one another," which was divided into four parts; first, "The duty we owe to our mother"; second, "The duty we owe to our husband"; third, "The duty we owe to our children," and lastly, "The duty we owe to our friends."

At the conclusion of the programme the meeting was brought to a close with singing, "God Save the King," after which the lunch committee, Mrs. Thomas Graham, Mrs. Harry Bland assisted the hostess to serve refreshments.

Those who were present were: Mrs. George Jamieson, Miss Lena Finley, Mrs. Clew Morden, Mrs. Hubert Gardiner and baby Ronald, Mrs. Henry Lowes, Mrs. Hannah Rutherford, Mrs. Harry Bland, and Aileen, Mrs. Chester Best, Mrs. Austin Best, Mrs. Thomas Graham, Mrs. Rosenburg, Mrs. Ira Lowe and Mrs. Garnet Shield.

LION GOES VISITING.

BOURGES, France, March 16. — Finding the door of his cage open, a menagerie lion stepped into the open and began to make the rounds of the village. His last stop was at Mme. Cotineau's bakery. There he jumped upon the counter and sampled all the pastries. Next he decided to visit M. Cotineau, who was still in bed. The startled Frenchman leaped through the window just as the lion tamer arrived and led the jungle king back to his cage.

LAKEFIELD TAGGERS VERY SUCCESSFUL

Young Ladies Work Hard For Orphanage Despite Bad Weather.

LAKEFIELD, March 16.—A successful tag day was held on Saturday for St. Vincent's Orphanage, the tags being miniature shamrocks, the emblem of St. Patrick's day now so near at hand. A bevy of bright young girls worked energetically all day, undismayed by the bad walking which made their task more difficult than usual. The results of the day's work fully justified the effort for practically every one in town was "a-wearin' o' the green". The girls who tagged were Misses Margaret Bissonette and Genevieve Allen, Brigetta McManus and Helen McFadden, Theo Elmsley and Josephine White, and Marie and Madeline Allen.

On Thursday evening of last week the annual meeting of the Lakefield's Citizens' Band was held in the Lakefield Memorial Hall. The reports of the work for the past seven years showed definite and satisfactory progress and a healthy organization.

A USED CAR IS ONLY AS DEPENDABLE AS THE DEALER WHO SELLS IT

HERE IT IS!

Here's a message that portrays the greatest value-giving event we have ever attempted. We have made CLOTHING HISTORY in Peterborough during the past year.

There's a Reason---

VALUE

With close co-operation with one of Canada's largest tailoring organizations, we have acquired a volume of business on a mighty small margin, creating values that have been noticeably outstanding.

A Representative of this tailoring establishment, makers of Canada's most sensational Clothes values, will be at our Store FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, MARCH 18 AND 19, and will have on display for your inspection hundreds of patterns, showing all the new shades and designs, including GUARANTEED BLUE AND GREY SERGES, FANCY AND STRIPED WORSTEDS AND TWEEDS—all new spring goods—tailored with reliable interlinings and MADE-TO-YOUR-MEASURE, for the amazing low price of $27.50, with an EXTRA PAIR OF PANTS FREE.

They are marvels of value, and the regular price ranges from $32.50 and $35.00 per Suit.

You would be justified in buying at least one of these Suits even if your wardrobe were already complete, and should you desire to leave your order and get delivery of your SUIT AND EXTRA PANT a month later, you may do so—but take advantage of this offer.

Come in and see them anyway—this is an invitation.

Yours for better clothing value,

H. LeBRUN & Co

Recognizes His Frogs By Difference In Voices

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 16 (Canadian Press).—"Pigs is pigs, but there is a difference in frogs," Percy Viosca, Jr., head of a biological concern here, maintains. The firm owns a number of frogs valued at $462.

Yesterday the frogs were missing. Two men were caught with frogs in their possession. They said it was impossible that these had been stolen because they had just been caught in marshes around the city.

Mr. Viosca protested. He declared he recognized the voices of his missing frogs. Then he demonstrated to the court's satisfaction that the deep notes of the amphibious animals in question varied considerably from the songs of their cousins of the marshes. The men were convicted and the frogs were returned.

LABOR MEMBER MAKES CHARGES

Says Mothers' Allowance Board Visitors Urge Widows To Marry.

IN WINNIPEG.

WINNIPEG, March 16 (Canadian Press).—An unusual charge was made in the Manitoba Legislature last night by Labor members. William Ivens, discussing public welfare associations' appropriations, charged that "visitors" appointed by the Government in connection with the mothers' allowances, were behaving and acting as "matrimonial agents" by pressing widowed mothers to marry again.

John Queen, another Labor member, reiterated the statement, declaring the files of the mothers' allowances department would reveal reports of the progress made by certain widows in efforts to secure second husbands.

Conversation Made Easy.

More Difficult To Talk When Not Sure of Being Right.

Many disputes arise as to the correct usage of the words "who" and "whom." As a result, those who should know but don't, use "whom" when they should use "who", and those who are careless easily fall into the same error.

This makes it difficult for those who naturally are shy in carrying on a conversation. With them it is always a question as to how certain words are pronounced and where they should be used; what terms to avoid; and how to correct careless speech.

In the Dictionary of Everyday Errors, which is an exclusive special feature of the New Universities Dictionary, will be found practically all of the common mistakes that one will meet in a lifetime. The new department referred to will tell you how to correct errors and how to avoid them, and on the whole it will make conversation easier for you by giving you confidence in your speech.

The coupon printed elsewhere in this issue explains how to get this useful new dictionary.

War Veteran Kills Himself After Pawning His Medals

PERTH AMZOY, N.J., Mar. 16 (United Press).—A World War veteran who jumped to death from the second storey window of a Salvation Army hotel here has pawned his war medals to get food, police believed today.

Papers found on the body of Arthur Netter, 35, St. Cloud, Minn., showed he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and other honors, but the medals themselves were not among his effects.

Veterans' organizations have been asked to save his body from the potters' field.

IN MEMORIAM.

HAMLIN.—In loving memody of our dear son, Clayton Hamlin, who died March 16th, 1925:
"Gone but not forgotten."
As we loved him so we miss him,
In our memory he is dear,
Loved, remembered, longed for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love and then to part
The greatest sorrow of the heart.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow.
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died two years ago.

HAVELOCK HAS TURMOIL OVER CADET TRAINING

Instructor Resigns Because of Lack of School Board Support.

MANY OPINIONS.

Agitation Against Drilling Seems To Be Confined To a Few.

(By a Staff Reporter.)

HAVELOCK, March 17.—Conscientious objections on the part of two pupils of the local continuation school to take rifle exercises with the school Cadet Corps, led to a discussion which at times threatened to disrupt and break up a meeting of the school trustees, held here last night.

A calm atmosphere, such as is usual at most school board meetings prevailed until Trustee H. W. Roche, in reply to the usual question of the chairman, Dr. A. S. Thompson, as to the correctness of the minutes, declared that there were omissions.

His remarks led to an animated discussion which ended finally with the chairman signing the minutes under protest.

Mr. Roche said that Trustee William Fraser had made a motion at the last meeting of the Board to abolish Cadet Training in the school and that Dr. Thompson had refused to put it to the meeting on the ground that it was unconstitutional. A record of this, he maintained, should appear in the minutes.

Mr. Fraser said that he had wanted to put the motion, but the chairman had refused to accept it, declaring, "What has cropped up since the last meeting to cause this disturbance? There's something behind this because you have a reporter here from The Peterborough Examiner, and there was never one before."

Dr. Thompson declared, "There has been—Mr. McGregor has been here. It is an open meeting."

Mr. Fraser: "If you want those minutes read as you say, leave them as they are. I'll introduce my resolution again, and we can have it all over again."

Was to Be Done Quietly

Dr. Thompson: "You are confusing two motions. There was one moving to ask Mr. Evans for his resignation, and another to abolish Cadet Training. The first motion we agreed to settle mutually without publicity, but not the second one."

Some of the Trustees said there was no motion, but both Dr. Thompson and Mr. Roche maintained there was. Dr. Thompson instructed the secretary to add to the minutes the following: "Moved by Trustee Fraser: That Cadet work be abolished completely in Havelock schools."

"No, no, you'll not railroad me," vehemently declared Mr. Fraser.

Trustee Anderson moved that the chairman sign the minutes as they were before the last addition, bringing forth a statement from Dr. Thompson that he would refuse to sign them unless they were correct.

Another argument ensued, after which Trustees Anderson and Rigby moved, that the minutes be read as at first, without the addition. This motion carried, the vote standing 4 to 2 in favor of the resolution.

Dr. Thompson still refused to sign the minutes, but consented some minutes later to sign them "under protest."

Dr. Thompson maintained that his reason for not putting the motion to the meeting was that it was unconstitutional; that the Board had no option in the matter as Cadet Training was a part of the curriculum ordered by the Department of Education and could not be altered.

Instructor Resigns

As a result of the stand of some of the Board members, Lieutenant John Evans, who was instrumental in organizing the Corps and who has acted as instructor during the three years which it has been in operation, has resigned. The Corps will now operate upder the direction of Mr. Hildred, Principal of the School.

The following letter from Lieut. Evans was read by the Secretary:

Havelock, March 14, 1927.

To Chairman and Gentlemen of the Havelock School Board:

Gentlemen.—The Chairman of the Board has advised me of a discussion which took place at your last School Board meeting, whereby it was decided to ask for my resignation as Cadet Instructor of the Havelock School. Due to this I have handed my resignation to Capt. Heron, District Cadet Officer, which I might say is the correct way of handling the matter, as an Instructor must resign through the District Cadet Officer. I regret having to give up the work, but due to my not having the unanimous support of the Board, it is better that I resign. The work has been very hard, due to my having to start from the bottom, but the boys are now on the road to make one of the best Corps in the District.

Shantung Quartermaster Feeds Army Dog Biscuits

LONDON, March 17. — Canadian Press.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Shanghai, says urgent demands by General Chang's forces, have had a disastrous effect on European owned dogs. These have been compelled to go on short rations in consequence of the Shantung commissariat buying all the available supplies of dog biscuit in Shanghai to feed the army.

The only ray of comfort in the somewhat depressing situation, the correspondent adds, is that despite the loss of Hangchow, which is the centre of the umbrella industry, Chang's quarter master general succeeded in placing an order for forty thousand umbrellas for his troops.

NEW GOLD FEVER ON THOUSAND MILE FRONTIER

Wild Report of Rich Strikes Spreading Through West.

ON STRAIGHT LINE.

All Discoveries Reported in Stretch on Nevada Border.

TONOPAH, Nevada, March 17. — (Canadian Press.)—The new west was threatened with a siege of gold madness along the thousand mile stretch of the old frontier from Phoenix, Arizona, to Northern California, with Weepah, Nevada, as its centre, as wild cat reports of rich strikes began to spread.

So abrupt and extravagant were the reports of new discoveries that seasoned gold miners waited for more evidence before proclaiming their belief in them.

They took notice, however, of the fact, that the reported discoveries in almost a straight line from Phoenix northwest to Trinity county, California, hugging the Nevada-California boundary through Goldfield, Tonopah, Weepah, Calaveras county, California and on to a point not far from the Oregon line ,almost as straight as the crow flies.

Weepah, meanwhile, remained the centre of this gilded frontier as one of the best claims changed hands for a sum reported to be fifty thousand dollars.

Proposal For Discoverer.

The little city took on a deeper shade of gold camp atmosphere when a New York vaudeville manager promised it a revue and a "big orchestra" if the new town hall at Weepah will accommodate the display. Frank Horton Jr., co-discovered of the field, received a proposal of marriage from an unnamed Massachusetts girl who felt that he needed love and the company of a woman in the hectic hunt for gold.

From Phoenix come reports that prospectors, capitalists and treasure seekers to-day are pouring into the dripping spring region between Globe and Winkelman, Arizona, where a rich gold strike was reported yesterday. Recent heavy rains are responsible for the Arizona discovery, miners say. Water washed away dirt from a dyke of rock, in which the gold ore is located. One of the rivulets carried bits of gold into the hut of Joe Lee, a veteran sour dough, who panned enough gold from the silt left on his floor to cause him to hastily start a search for the mother lode. Other prospectors, seeing his unusual activity, investigated. The rush followed.

OFFICER TO GUARD ABRAHAM ROBINSON

Will Go About With Madoc Man Until Doctors Examine Him.

BELLEVILLE, March 17—Abraham Robinson, of Madoc, acquitted on a murder charge last Wednesday and detained by Inspector Lougheed and Sergt. Clarke, appeared before Magistrate Mikel in local Police Court yesterday to answer a charge under Section 295 of the Code, that he was suspected of being insane and dangerous to be at large. Crown Attorney Donnan explained the nature of the charge and added: "You are not under arrest, and you will not be confined in jail, but you will be in the custody of the police until the day of your remand, which will be March 22, at 10 a.m., and in the meantime you will be examined by two alienists as to your mental condition."

Robinson commented that he was as sane as he had always been. A constable has been detailed to the case. Robinson will go about in an officer's company. Dr. Ryan and Dr. Cumberland, who are to examine Robinson, are expected here in a day or two.

CHICAGO, March 17 (Canadian Press).—Two men who slew little children faced their tragic futures from the cells to-day. One was Harold Croarkin, found guilty last night of killing five-year-old Walter Schmith. He was sentenced to life imprisonment. The other was Walter Scholl, 33, jobless accountant and former convict, who was arrested for slaying his two children by covering their faces with ether-soaked cloths

NARROW ESCAPE OF KINGSTON GIRL

Falls Twenty Feet From the Deck of a Steamer To Dock.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 17 (Special to The Examiner).—Miss Emma Woods, aged 35, had a miraculous escape from death at midnight last night, when she jumped, fell, or was pushed off the deck of the steamer George Donovan, laid up at Richardson's elevator. The young woman suffered a fractured ankle and a general shaking up, and is now at the General Hospital and is reported to be doing nicely. She fell a distance of eighteen or twenty feet to the dock. Police constables, a block away, heard her calls for help and had her removed to the hospital. Miss Woods was one of a party of two men and two women, who went on the vessel to hear a radio programme. One of the young men, W. H. Curson, was fined $10 and costs in police court this morning for being intoxicated, and the other, Samuel McQuade, was fined $15 and costs for fighting.

Priest's Purity Campaign Brings Him Into Court

PARIS, March 17 (Canadian Press). — His personally conducted purity campaign against snappy magazines on boulevard news stands has cost Abbe Bethleem, militant priest, just eleven francs, or forty-four cents.

The Abbe was fined that amount, the maximum penalty, by the police court to which he was hailed on complaint of news vendors. They asserted that the priest for more than two months had utilized every opportunity to tear up magazines, the covers of which he considered immoral.

FIRE DESTROYS C.P.R. PROPERTY

Freight Shed at Brockville Burned—Small Amount of Freight.

BROCKVILLE, March 17 (Canadian Press).—The Canadian Pacific Railway freight shed on the company's waterfront property here was badly damaged by fire this morning. The building contained only a small amount of freight. Four cars on the siding adjacent, which had been loaded yesterday, were moved to safety. The fire had gained great headway before it was noticed.

THE WEATHER

St. Patrick's Day this year is being favored with unusually balmy and spring-like conditions. This is in very marked contrast with the same date of some recent years, when the temperature was much below the zero mark. Perhaps to-morrow I may give some dates. Yesterday a letter came to the Examiner from a Lakefield gentleman, with the following enquiry: "What has happened to W. P. on your front page? I sincerely hope he is not ill. I like his little notes very much." Thanks for appreciation. I feel, however, when there is nothing particularly to write about, it is better to say nothing, but if there is anything in the weather line out of the ordinary to make a note of it. And did the reader ever notice, that when friends or strangers first meet it is the introductory topic of conversation, and when conversation lags it is always available to fill the breach?—W. P.

LOVE BIRDS TO JAPAN

LONDON, March 15. — When Prince Chichibu of Japan was called home from Oxford by the illness of his father, he took with him a pair of "love birds," popular parlor pets in England. He started a fad in his country that is bringing thousands of the birds each month into the Orient.

Pork Takes Decided Drop In Campbellford District

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 17. —It is not generally known to all the citizens of Campbellford that pork took a decided drop on Tuesday afternoon, but such is the case. This did not happen in the ordinary routine of such affairs, but was done under very exciting, not to say, sad, circumstances. A beautiful big porker, belonging to some unknown Seymour resident, in some manner strayed to Crow Bay, and got out on a piece of ice. Soon ice soon broke into sections, and piggie was so drifting down stream. Several men were on hand and tried to effect a rescue, but to no avail. Nearing the upper dam the pig jumped from the ice, but was not able to swim to shore in the cold water, and sank.

Free State On Holiday In Honor Of St. Patrick

DUBLIN, March 17. — Canadian Press. — Erin is wearing the green to-day for St. Patrick. From Cork to Belfast and from Dublin to the emerald vales of the west, the little sprigs of shamrock are seen everywhere All the saorstat is taking a holiday favored by perfect weather. All business activities in the Free State have stopped and the day is given over to religious services and celebrating. It was remarked that St. Patrick's day is just like Sunday, with the exception that Dublin saloons are not open this afternoon.

BRITISH FILM DEVELOPMENT IS OPPOSED

Provides 7 1-2 Per Cent. British Made Pictures in Theatre Programmes.

PARTIES UNITE.

Vote For Rejection of Measure Will Be Taken To-day.

LONDON, March 17. Canadian Press.—Movies took up a good part of the time of the House of Commons yesterday when Laborites and Liberals lined up against the government's bill for the development of the British film industry.

The bill which has passed its first reading would require both exhibitors and rentors to use at least 7 1-2 per cent. of British made films in all programmes, the quota being subject to a yearly increase until a total of 25 per cent. of British made films would be required.

Former Premier Ramsay MacDonald, the Labor leader, moved for rejection of the measure. A vote will be taken on his motion to-day.

Mr. MacDonald said that if the principle of the 25 per cent. for which the bill provided were applied generally, 25 per cent. of all concert programmes would have to be English made, while every tobacco store would have to sell at least 25 per cent. of the empire-grown product to every customer.

He drew laughter when he suggested that the government's next step would be to compel a percentage of the public to go every day to see films.

Mr. MacDonald also maintained that the United States producers would cite the British quota as a proof that United States motion pictures were better than the British.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Conservative, stating the government's case, said that the bill carried out the wishes of the recent imperial conference. "From the trade viewpoint," he said, "films are the greatest advertising power in the world and this is realized particularly by the American people." A proof of this he cited testimony of the department of commerce before a congressional committee, saying that films had been invaluable in developing American markets, particularly in the far east.

Sir Philip answered Mr. MacDonald's argument that other countries would laugh at Great Britain if the film bill were adopted, by saying that American tariffs against British goods had not caused the British to laugh at the Americans on the ground that the United States was protecting itself because British goods were better than American.

HYDRO ELECTRIC TO UNLOAD SOME OF UNPROFITABLE UNITS OF CENTRAL ONTARIO SYSTEM

Any Loss Involved Will Not Be Assumed By Government.

CONFERENCE HELD.

Demand Information As To Cause of Recent Increase in Rates.

The Central Ontario Power Association's conference with the Hydro-Electric Commission in Toronto yesterday was devoid of any material results its sponsors may have expected. One fact was made quite clear, that if any of the unprofitable industrial adjuncts are scrapped, the capital loss shall be borne by the Central Ontario power municipalities and not by the Provincial Government. And Mr. C. A. Magrath, chairman of the Commission, stated that plans were under way for the elimination of these same utilities, such as street railway, gas plants, pulp mill, which are regarded as alien to the proper interests and domain of the Commission.

From 10 o'clock until 1.30 p.m. the board room of the Commission was crowded with the delegation from Central Ontario, representing the consumers of Trent power.

Peterboro sent Mayor Holloway and Alderman Denne, vice-president and executive member, respectively, of the Association. Others present were Reeve C. S. Tanner of Lakefield, Reeve W. T. Wood of Millbrook, Reeve T. Curtis of Havelock, J. R. McLoughlin of Norwood, and a score or more of other delegates from the district, including strong contingents from Belleville and Oshawa.

Yesterday's invasion of the Hydro headquarters was impelled by a demand for information as to the cause of the recent increase in power rates and also by the hope that the Commission might be able to suspend the new charges until the Central Ontario Power Association was convinced that they were warranted.

Little Gained.

And, when the delegation was departing and dispersing for a long overdue lunch, Mayor Tom Holgate of Bowmanville remarked to a group of associates on the University Avenue steps, "Well, we're just about where we started." Others were frankly confused by the rambling three-hour discussion, and most of those whom The Examiner questioned were disappointed and somewhat discouraged. J. O. Herity, secretary-treasurer, of Belleville, and G. D. Conant, of Oshawa, expressed the opinion, that some progress had been made toward the Association's objective.

Quite Delightful.

However, it was a very pleasant, if unproductive, encounter, and the urbanity of Mr. Magrath was an agreeable and disarming influence in itself. But there was something almost farcical about the whole affair in the light of its inception and development. The suggestion to protest to the Commission against the new rates came from the City Council of Oshawa, which on that night two months ago spoke of a "show down" and other action that was intended "to get to the bottom of things." Out of that meeting sprang the Central Ontario Power Association, with a resolution asking the Commission for all the reasons for the increased rates and for various other information pertaining to the Central Ontario system and its management.

Finally, on Tuesday night the Executive of the Association met in the King Edward Hotel, Toronto, in a sort of "just before the battle" spirit, drew up a list of questions which they desired the Commission to answer, and generally plumed themselves for the fray. To give weight to their interrogatory they even proposed to sign it so that it would bear the names of the Executive delegates and the towns they represented.

Real Questionaire.

Yesterday, W. L. Mason, president of the Association, read the questionaire just as everything had been planned at the King Edward and that was the fast, as it was also the only direct reference to the questions until the conference was breaking up. The discussion opened upon the purchase of the Central Ontario system, an immediate and fruitless diversion of the delegation's primary thought and purpose. Nothing was gained from it, but an hour or thereabouts was lost. Everyone knew the Government had paid $8,350,000 for the properties acquired in 1916. It was stated that the interest was at 4 per cent., but that the Electric Power Company had first considered an offer of $7,-200,000 at 5 per cent., that their outstanding bonds amounted to $8,-800,000, and apparently they were satisfied to accept the smaller per-

British Traffic Law May Be Made Lenient

LONDON, March 17 (United Press).—The way to regulate traffic better is to remove or relax restrictions, the British Ministry of Transport believes. A tentative draft of a new traffic code, made public by the Ministry to test public reaction, provides either the abolition of the speed limit or raising it from 20 to 40 miles an hour.

Severe penalties for reckless driving would be provided.

Spring Definitely Here; Bethune St. Lawn Watered

Numerous paragraphs have been written on the proverbial signs of spring, but it remained for a Bethune street resident to clinch the discussion yesterday.

Standing in his shirt sleeves operating a hose at full blast, he was busily engaged in pouring gallons of water on his lawn and the sidewalk in front of his residence.

FLYING FIELD BEING PREPARED

Hundred Acres of Land Near Chemong Road To Be Used.

NEW SCHOOL.

Peterborough through the efforts of the Canadian Air Services Company, is to have a flying field. Harold Ayres, who is to be in charge of the flying school classes announced to-day that a 100 acre field has been secured about three and a half miles outside the city on the Chemong Road, on the property of Walter Milburn.

Although this field will be used by the Canadian Air Services, it will be available for civic purposes. It is about 200 feet above the level of the city and is open rolling country.

A four-plane hangar is to be erected and the landing field will be L-shaped with the arms 1200 feet long and 600 feet wide. They will run north west and south west, so it will be an ideal field in any conditions of the wind.

The field is being prepared for flying at present and operations are expected to start about April 15. One plane is already in the city and more are expected in a few days.

The school is the largest in Canada, as at present there are 40 students enrolled, and more are joining up every day.

HALIFAX, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Mr. Justice Chisholm, of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, announced at the close of to-day's proceeding that he would take into consideration the application of the National Trust Company, acting as receiver and manager, for leave to apply for the winding up of the British Empire Steel Corporation and would render his decision as speedily as possible.

Missouri's Oldest Citizens Dif fer On Cause Of Longevity No Rules, Says K.C. Man—Simplicity Says St. Louis Woman

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 17 (United Press).—One just naturally lives to be 100 years old, or he doesn't, according to E. P. Clarke, Platte City, Mo. Clarke says this advice about rules of living to grow old is "A lot of humbug."

Clarke passed the century mark yesterday, but his birthday was "nothing to get excited about," he claimed.

"It's just another year," he said.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 17 (United Press)—Over the century mark and a decade beyond will be the occasion for a celebration in the home of Mrs. Miriam Sparks Bannister, 110, St. Louis' oldest resident, on Saturday.

But ten candles will grace the huge birthday cake. The other 100 were dispensed with after the 100th birthday.

Simplicity on food and ability to forget the trials and tribulations of life were given by the little Englishwoman as the reasons for her longevity.

As a memory test, Mrs. Bannister today recalled the date and many of the details of the death and funeral of the Duke of Kent. She witnessed the funeral as a girl in Devonshire, England.

TERROR REIGNS OVER SHANGHAI

Agitators Carrying on Work in Preparation For General Strike.

SERIES OF MURDERS.

SHANGHAI, March 17 (Canadian Press). — Terror is stalking in the teeming native city of Shanghai as a result of a mysterious series of murders and the corresponding spread of a story that groups of Cantonese agitators are carrying on strong arm agitation in preparation for a general strike when the Nationalists become ready to take over the Shanghai administration.

For days there has been an average of one murder daily in Shanghai, the victim usually being a laborer or foreman who had shown opposition to strike calls. The outrages have occurred not only in the native quarters but in the international settlement as well, and the municipal authorities are taking steps to deal drastically with the situation.

"Expert intimidators" is the nearest translation of the Chinese description of the 150 specially picked and trained agitators who have arrived in Shanghai from Hankow. Labor unrest in the city under their direction is increasing daily, terrorism being the weapon used to create solidarity in the ranks of labor for a projected general strike.

Particular efforts have been directed by these men to disorganize traffic on the Shanghai-Nanking railway, the train control and telephone systems being tampered with. Tuesday the intimidators forced 30 engineers and firemen and the whole locomotive staff of the Shanghai south station to desert.

The series of murders which have been reported and the fact that none of the assassins has been arrested has alarmed the foreign population which, however, is resting comparatively easy because of the protection afforded them by the foreign troops in Shanghai.

Widens Breach.

While heavy fighting was reported west and north-west of Shanghai, with an increasing menace to the city of Nanking, reports were received from Tokio, indicating that the breach between the adherents of Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian war lord, and the Soviets, was widening.

The Tokio report suggested that Southern Manchuria was threatened with an armed invasion. If this possibility should become serious it is felt that Chang Tso Lin, who is now the moving factor behind the allied northern armies in their drive on the Cantonese, might be deterred from venturing far from his Manchurian stronghold.

From Honan Province, Chang Tso Lin claims the capture of the important railroad town of Chengchow after a desperate battle in a snowstorm. This capture, Chang's headquarters stated, completed the first phase of his offensive against the Cantonese.

Telegraphic communication between Nanking and Pengpu, in Anhwei Province, has been interrupted, but doubt is expressed here as to whether Pengpu has been captured by the Nationalists as was claimed in the Kuomintang press in Peking. That Nanking is seriously menaced, however, is believed.

Arabian King Trades His Steed For An Auto

NEW YORK, March 17.—(A. P.)—A dark-eyed little Arabian mare, named, in the Arabian, Saudia, arrived yesterday on the way for her new owner, Miss Bruce Crane, of Westover, Va., a few days ahead of the shipping from New York of a brand new motor car for his excellency Ibn Saud, "King" of an inland section of Arabia.

The two objects of the trade will meet the fond wishes of the two traders involved, it was said, the Virginia girl long having desired a fast Arabian steed, and his excellency having heard much good report of the American stream-line autos.

Indian Brave Goes On Warpath, Smashes Car With Axe, Then Wrecks Havoc Upon Crockery

LONDON, Ont., March 17—Angered because his father would not let him have the family car to call upon his sweetheart one fine Sunday evening Albert Deleary, 20-year-old Indian brave of the Muncey Reserve, proceeded to show his resentment by smashing everything he could lay his hands on through the instrument of an axe.

First he commenced making hefty slashes at the car, continuing until it looked as if it had been rescued from some antique home. Not satisfied with the damage done to the car, the young Indian found the furniture and dishes in the home broke equally as well as the more vulnerable parts of the family chariot.

After demolishing all but the kitchen stove, the son decided it was time to leave. He did and was not arrested until Tuesday at Komoka, where the Mountie found him living with his brother-in-law.

In County Police Court yesterday the boy was repentant and sorry for what he had done, while his father, who had urged the police to apprehend him, thought it would be all right if they let him go. As the charge against him read that of wilful damage to property, Magistrate Hawksaw opined that perhaps a week's stay in jail would quell his penchant for axe swinging. Then young Deleary pleaded guilty and was remanded to jail for a week.

DUBLIN CELEBRATE NATIONAL HOLIDAY

Elaborate Arrangements Made To Make It Gayest of Year.

DUBLIN, March 17. — (Canadian Press.) — Elaborate arrangements have been completed to make St. Patrick's Day to-day the gayest national holiday of the year in the Saorstat.

There will be horse racing at Baldcycle, just outside Dublin, also football of both British and gaelic types, as well as hurling, hockey and parading of troops. There will be recitals of Irish music, one of which President Cosgrave and his wife will attend. Governor-General Healy will preside at a gala banquet.

The great day will have a festive finale with all night dances to the livelist of Irish music. But in one respect officialdom has broken with tradition by decreeing the Saorstat dry to-day and nowhere in the Free State will the time-honored "drowning of the shamrock" be permitted.

Cork and many other southern towns will have all night dances, but in the "Black North" the only tribute to the festival's national character will be some wearing of the green.

FOUR MEN KILLED IN GASOLINE PLANT

Sudden Outburst Of Flames Traps Men Installing Absorption Unit.

AMARILLO, Texas, March 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Four men were burned to death to-day in an explosion of gas at a gasoline absorption plant one mile west of Shamrock. The dead were all of Shamrock.

The plant, being erected by the Columbia Gasoline Corporation, suddenly burst into flames without warning trapping the workmen, two of whom were inside the large absorption units, and two on ladders on the outside. Those on the outside were hurled fifty feet to the ground, their clothing in flames. The bodies of the others were removed from the bottom of the gas chambers.

NEWS BRIEFS.

NEW YORK, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)— The British schooner Mulhall and $40,000 worth of liquor seized by the coastguard a year ago beyond the three mile limit, was today ordered returned to the owners. Decisions by the United States circuit court of appeals since the seizure have considerably prescribed the activities of the coastguard in seizing ships outside of territorial waters.

DE PINEDO COVERS MOST DARING FLIGHT

First Man Who Has Ever Flown Across Brazilian Jungles.

RIO JANEIRO, March 17.—(Canadian Press.)— Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Italy's famous flyer, yesterday accomplished what is considered here the most daring feat of his great four-continent flight, which is to touch Europe, Africa, South America and North America.

Leaving Asuncion, Paraguay, at 6:57 o'clock yesterday morning, he turned his plane northward across the stretches of Brazilian jungles over which no man ever before had flown. He passed over the great swamps of South America, inhabited by alligators and snakes and so muddy the landing was virtually out of the questionand where there was no means of communication except with the fierce, semi-savage Indians inhabiting the region. (His plane carries no wireless).

He passed over Corumba, Brazil, his announced destination and at 3:45 p.m. landed successfully at Can Luiz de Caceres, about 200 miles north of Corumba, having flown about 625 miles over a route never covered by an aviator before.

VOTE $550,000.

Belleville Council Provides Funds For New High School.

BELLEVILE, March 17.—Belleville's new collegiate and technical high school receieved the endorsation of the city council Tuesday night and funds were voted to the amount of $550,294.84, to erect the buildings. The council undertook the responsibility on the advice of the Board of Education and passed the By-law, No. 2792. There were but two dissenting votes when the by-law to raise the money by debentures for the fund was carried on its third reading and final passing.

OTTAWA OPPOSED TO CANAL CHARTER

Controllers To Submit a Strongly Worded Resolution To Council.

OTTAWA, Ont., March 17.—Ottawa Board of Control yesterday approved a resolution opposing passage by parliament of the bill to grant a charter to the Georgian Bay Canal Company. The resolution, sponsored by Controller A. Ellis, declares the bill "is an attempt to alienate valuable water powers on the Ottawa River and elsewhere from the control and ownership of the province of Ontario for the benefit and advantage of private promoters."

Pointing out that all electric power used in the Capital is procured from the Ottawa River, the resolution contends that granting of the charter would not only endanger the present supply of power, but would result in increasing all rates for power and electric light to the people of Ottawa.

The resolution will go to City Council for presentation to Premier Mackenzie King, the Premiers of Ontario and Quebec, and various other Governmental authorities.

MAY BE PHASE OF LEAGUE PLAN

Belief Expressed By Commission Delegates Regarding Naval Disarmament Conference.

INVITE OBSERVERS.

GENEVA, March 17 (Canadian Press). — The forthcoming three-Power naval disarmament conference at Geneva, proposed by President Coolidge, may become a direct phase of the disarmament programme of the League of Nations.

This belief is expressed by European delegates to the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations. They say the naval clauses of the armament limitation treaty which their commission hopes to compile may be so complete that there will be no no reason for Italy and France refusing to be represented at the three-Power conference.

In fact, they remark that other Powers besides France and Italy might be invited to send observers. They say the league's general disarmament programme is so choked with military, naval and aerial problems that it will be physically impossible for one conference to handle all of them, anyway.

It is understood here that the British government plans to send statesment of the highest rank to the three-power conference. Earl Balfour was sent to the Washington conference.

Italy Reserved

ROME, March 17 (Canadian Press)—Complete reserve was maintained in official circles yesterday as to Italy's attitude toward the invitation of the United States to send an "observer" to the three-Power naval conference at Geneva, to be participated in by Great Britain, the United States and Japan.

The Foreign Office refused to discuss the matter beyond saying that the invitation was being carefully studied by Premier Mussolini. The proposal evoked scant interest in political circles and the press, the papers confining themselves to printing a governmental communique regarding receipt of the invitation and a few dispatches from London and Paris. The headlines, however, suggested displeasure over the United States plan for further naval disarmament.

HAVELOCK HAS TURMOIL, ETC.

Some people appear to be of the opinion that there is good pay in the work for the Cadet Instructor. It may surprise you to know that to date, the most that I have ever made after a year's work, is between $45 and $50.

In addition to the instruction work there is a lot of clerical work in connection with a new corps. The Department of National Defence grant does not cover what is allowed to Cadet Instructor. The salary in connection with the work in schools is brought up by the Department of Education grants for Cadet Corps. To date I have never made application to the Board for this grant, but I intended to make application to the Board of 1926 for the grant covering school year from September, 1925, until after Cadet Inspection of 1926. Unfortunately the grant was not received until January of this year. This grant amounts in our school to $100.00, and I wish to make application to you for $50.00 of the grant. To substantiate claim for same, I would refer you to the School Act. The grant received by you in January, covers $50.00 for the Continuation School and $50.00 for the Public School, to cover year from September, 1925, until after inspection of 1926.

In closing, I wish to thank the Members of the School Board who have supported me in the past.

Respectfully yours,
J. EVANS.

Members Laud Instructor.

Dr. Thompson and Mr. Roche, both ardent supporters of Cadet training, paid tribute to Mr. Evans' work. "I consider the Board has treated him very shabbily," said Dr. Thompson.

"Considering his length of service and the progress shown and the fact that he is entitled to the full $100, according to law, we should give it to him. It's very small recompense," declared Mr. Roche.

Lieut. Evans stated he was satisfied with $50, and that the Board could use the remaining $50 for providing sporting goods for the boys. On the motion of Trustees Roche and Scully, it was resolved that $100 be paid to Lieut. Evans.

The bogey of Cadet training came into the limelight again when Trustee Fraser said that the masters "rode the boys who would not take training." Principal Hildred denied the accusation, saying the boys in question had been punished for skipping classes, and then went to a member of the Board telling him it was because of the Cadets.

Trustee Anderson said the boy asked him, "Can that teacher keep me in for not taking rifle drill?" "I asked him," he continued, "did he mean Cadet work, and he said 'Yes.' I then told him he did not need to take Cadet work if he didn't want to."

Speaking to Principal Hildred, he declared: "The School Board is behind you in getting discipline, but we won't have them forced to take rifle drill."

Mr. Roche—I consider it our duty to support Principal Hildred.

Mr. Fraser—Can a boy excuse himself or must he have a note from his parents?

"Get out from under the thumbs of the Cadet boosters—meaning Mr. Roche and Dr. Thompson—put more interest in your teaching and less in the Cadets," he told Principal Hildred.

Mr. Roche—You're absolutely interfering with discipline.

Principal's Life Threatened.

Principal Hildred at this juncture produced questionaires which had been signed by the parents, showing that 2 out of 18 had declared against the Cadet training.

He complained that only two weeks ago, a citizen had threatened to take his life and had made objectionable remarks that, he said, could be heard a considerable distance away. This led to a resolution worded, "It is the intention of the School Board to support the Principal, and in future parents must take their grievances to the Board instead of the teacher."

Peace and harmony prevailed again, and the meeting adjourned.

Not Opposed to Cadets.

Trustee Fraser, when interviewed by The Examiner, stated emphatically that he was not opposed to Cadet training so long as it took place outside school hours. If arranged outside school hours he would support it, he said.

The reason for his objections to the training during school hours, he said, was that in his opinion education should come first. In Havelock, he said, a couple of years ago, there had been considerable agitation in connection with the number of failures at the midsummer examinations, and he was inclined to blame the Cadet movement for this. A master, since resigned, had made it so hot for one boy because of his refusal to accept the training that he forced him to leave the school. Since then, he said, there had been a shake up in the Board, only two of the old members being elected.

What Started It.

After some persuasion he finally consented to The Examiner publishing a copy of the resolution which he had introduced and which resulted in the fracas. It reads as follows:

"As we believe the outside interference of Messrs. Evans and Canard to be a detriment to our school and that time spent by the pupils preparing for Cadet inspection day could be used to better advantage in preparing for the midsummer examinations, we resolve that the Cadet training be discontinued, and only such physical training as can be given to the entire school be given by the teachers."

That the Cadet movement has a place in the hearts of the citizens of Havelock was evidenced by the fact that every person with the exception of one interviewed by The Examiner declared himself to be absolutely in favor of it, and all were willing to testify to the good work that had been accomplished since it was first started.

Dr. Thompson, chairman of the School Board, proved an ardent champion. "In Havelock," he said, "it has proved a boon to the village." Prior to its inception there was nothing for the boys to do, and they had no organizations of any kind. "Since then," he declared, "one cannot help but notice the very marked improvement in their habits and manners."

Command Of Skipper Gives Britain Laugh

LONDON, March 17. — "Row like hell, chaps." This command, given by the skipper of Cambridge university's female crew during the boat race with Oxford Tuesday, is causing the greatest amusement to the newspapers, which are speculating as to what alternative expression a woman could use.

However ,Oxford won.

J. L. Squires, a prominent merchant, and a Justice of the Peace, who has been a resident of the village for the past 23 years, expressed the opinion that "98 per cent. of the people are in favor of Cadet training. I believe," he declared, "that the Cadet movement, more than any other, has made a wonderful difference in our boys. It will always have my unqualified support."

G. W. Chiles, another merchant, said his own sons had benefitted by the training they had received. "It is certainly an asset to the village of Havelock," he concluded.

A. C. Denike, druggist, who has for the past 12 years been an ardent worker among the boys of his church, said he could speak from a "first hand chance of observation," and, in his opinion, the attitude of the boys who have had the training was a great deal different from those who have not. Since the beginning of the movement three years ago, he has found it benefitted the boys, and has developed a spirit of co-operation that was not existent before."

Evans Is Appreciated.

Lieut. G. Evans, who founded the corps in Havelock, was reticent when spoken to by The Examiner. He is a war veteran and wears the Military Medal, a mute token of his efforts in the "big show."

"I always have had, and will continue to have, an interest in the boys, and will give Mr. Hildred every help possible if he desires it," he said. "My sole reason for tendering my resignation is that I feel I should have the unanimous support of the members of the Board."

The following letter, the original of which was sent to Lieut. Evans, was read by the Chairman:

Headquarters M. D. 3, Kingston.
Lieut. J. Evans, Havelock.

Dear Mr. Evans,—Referring to your letter of the 4th instant, it is with great regret that I accept your resignation as Cadet instructor to 1177 Havelock Continuation School Cadet Corps. I accept this only in view of the fact that Mr. Hildred is a qualified Cadet instructor, and being Principal of the school, it is thought advisable to have the instruction come from him.

2. I take this opportunity of thanking you sincerely for the unceasing efforts during the past three years to bring the Cadet Corps to its present high state of efficiency. You took on this work from a sense of duty, and it is entirely due to your efforts that success has been met with.

3. I know that should your services ever be required, you will cheerfully render them, and even though you are not Cadet instructor, you will still retain a kindly interest in the Continuation School Cadets.

With kind regards and best wish for your future success,

Yours sincerely,
V. W. S. Heron,
District Cadet Officer.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

WHEN THE SHADOWS FALL

When the shadows lengthen
On the walk and wall,
Lights begin to strengthen,
When the shadows fall:
There's the lamp a mother
Sets upon the sill,
And there's many another
Gleaming down the hill.

When the shadows gather
All along the way,
Though we think we'd rather
Have the heat of day,
Then our hearts discover
Home is something dear,
When the day is over,
When the night is near.

Though we love so poorly,
Though so lightly part,
Lengthening shadows surely
Ought to teach the heart
How we need a mother,
How we need them all,
Home and one another,
When the shadows fall.

OLD MASTERS

I think I could turn and live with animals, they are so placid and self-contained:
I stand and look at them long and long.

They do not sweat and whine aobut their condition;
They do not lie awake in the dark and weep for their sins;
They do not make me sick discussing their duty to God;
Not one is dissatisfied—not one is demented with the mania of owning things;
Not one kneels to another, nor to his kind that lived thousands of years ago;
ot one is respectable or industrious over the whole earth.

—Walt Whitman: From "Song of Myself."

An instrument called a dendrograph has been invented by which a tree can write its own diary.

During 1926 the United States deported 10,904 aliens found to be unlawfully within its limits. More than 20,000 were debarred before they were able to enter the country.

The earliest measurements were based on pats of the human body. The inch developed from the width of the thumb, the "hand" was the width of the human hand, 4 inches, and the "span" was nine inches, the reach of the average hand.

SURPRISE PARTY FOR CARMEL FOLK

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne Leaving For Reaboro Shortly.

MILLBROOK, March 17.—A pleasant surprise was prepared for Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne on Friday evening when fully one hundred of their friends and neighbors gathered at their home to spend a social time together before their departure for their new home near Reaboro.

A warm welcome was accorded the self-invited "guests," and shortly after all had arrived dancing was begun and provided agreeable entertainment until after 11 p.m., when Mr. and Mrs. Thorne were asked to take seats in the centre of the company, and Miss Aileen Armstrong read the following address, Messrs. Charles Gardiner and Malcolm Ward, on behalf of a wide circle of relatives and friends, presenting them with two handsomely upholstered wicker chairs:

"To Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Thorne,
"Millbrook.

"Dear Friends,—We, your friends and neighbors, have gathered together tonight to bid you farewell before your departure for your new home.

"It has been a pleasure to have you in our midst, and when we welcomed you here such a short time ago, little did we think your stay would be so brief. Be assured, however, that you will always be as welcome in our midst as you have been in the past.

"Not long ago, Mr. Thorne, you brought your wife here a bride, and since that time there have been changes in all our lives. No doubt, as we continue to cross this 'sea of life' there will be many more changes. We trust there will be none so great as to prevent you from being with us on various occasions.

"Although we regret your departure, we look forward with pleasure to those occasions when you will be with us again, and we may have several more such good times as we have enjoyed together in the past.

"We ask you to accept these tangible token, not for their intrinsic value, but to show in a slight way the esteem in which you are held. We trust that you will use and enjoy these gifts, and as you do so will think of your friends at Millbrook.

"We wish you happiness and prosperity in your new home. May God's blessing be with you.

"Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors—Malcolm Ward, Chas. Gardiner, David L. Armstrong."

Taken completely by surprise, Mr. Thorne's reply, on behalf of his wife and himself, was brief but deeply appreciative of the gifts presented, and of the expressions of genuine friendship which were their accompaniment, and all joined heartily in singing, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The committee in charge served a bountiful supper, and afterward dancing was resumed until the wee small hours of the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorne expect to leave in the immediate future for their new home, recently purchased from her father, R. J. Paterson, ex-M.P.P., who has removed to Lindsay to reside, having received the appointment as Sheriff for Victoria County.

Missionary Writes.

Miss Viola Cardwell, missionary nurse in the Hamheung Hospital, Korea, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Cardwell, Wallace's Point, Otonabee River, has many warm friends in this district who will be interested in learning something of her activities, word of which has recently been received in a personal letter to Mrs. R. H. Edmunds. The latter is Literature Secretary in the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church, and as this organization has for several months past had Miss Cardwell as its subject for special prayer in connection with her work in the East, Mrs. Edmunds has occasion, at intervals, to communicate with her.

"It helps a great deal to know that people at home are keeping up their interest and their prayers," writes Miss Cardwell. "We need the latter very sorely, for the older missionaries say that in many ways the work here is more difficult than it has ever been."

A comparatively small gift of money remitted to Miss Cardwell has been sufficient to pay more than one month's fees in High School for a poor girl whom Miss Cardwell is educating. "Apart from an occasional gift, such as yours, she gets no help anywhere except from myself. I got interested in her over three years ago when it seemed there was nothing for her to do but go on the street, and she was about desperate. I felt I could not let that happen, for she was a refined Christian girl. And so, praying that such friends as you would be raised up to help, I told her to stop worrying and go on studying in school. During the holidays she has been a great help to us in the hospital, assisting the nurses and in an emergency taking a nurse's place."

This girl will graduate this spring, and will probably take up teaching in order to begin earning for herself as quickly as possible.

Miss Cardwell has been for some time in the Peking Hospital having treatment for a serious infection in her eyes, and may have to come home on furlough until this trouble is permanently cured.

Miss Cardwell's activities, apart from her heavy hospital duties, include classes for young mothers, to combat the effects of dirt, ignorance and superstition and to try, by means of education, to reduce the unnecessarily large infant mortality. Demonstrations, lectures, pictures and charts are used. As there is no extra grant of money for this phase of the work and its importance is unquestioned, it has of necessity been on a small scale.

The need leads to the request for prayer that a nurse with special training for "this wonderful work, as well as a nurse to take charge of the hospital nursing" may be included in the private and public devotions of the auxiliary members.

ANDREWS LEAVES FOR GOBI DESERT

Noted Explorer Asserts It Is Oldest Part of World, Geologically.

SEATTLE, Wash. March 17. — (Canadian Press).—Roy Chapman Andrews, noted explorer, to-day was en route to China again to ferret out the secrets of the Gobi desert, which he believes was the "cradle of mankind." He sailed from here yesterday aboard the liner President Jackson.

The unsettled conditions in China make the date of his departure from his headquarters in Peking problematical, but the expedition will be prepared to push its way over the age-old caravan trail to the desert as soon as the situation warrants.

On his last trip into the region, Andrews found dinosaur eggs, estimated to be millions of years old. The Gobi Desert, Andrews asserts, is the oldest spot on the earth's surface from a geological point of view.

OPPOSE BRIDGE SITE NEAR PARK

Victoria Park Commissioners Will Confer With Memorial Bridge Company.

AT NIAGARA FALLS.

OTTAWA, March 17.—(Canadian Press.)— An act to incorporate the Niagara Falls' Memorial Bridge Company met with a somewhat stormy reception in the Private Bills committee of the House of Commons this morning. After some discussion the committee adjourned to permit those interested in the construction of the bridge to confer with the Queen Victoria Park Commission as well as the commissioners on the American side of the river and select a suitable site.

The site proposed in the bill is at or near the foot of Ferry street, in Niagara Falls, Ontario, to a point in or near the New York State reservation. This site was opposed by George Henderson, K.C., appearing for the Government of Ontario and the commission at Niagara Falls, Ontario. J. B. Chaplin, Conservative member for Lincoln and also one of the park commissioners, also opposed the site proposed.

W. M. German, K.C., appearing in support of the bill, asserted that another bridge was urgently required to handle the traffic. Sometimes motor cars had to wait for hours to cross the present bridge. Mr. German said he would accept the suggestion that the site of the bridge would be subject to the approval of the park commissioners.

The snow is fast disappearing and the thoroughfares are almost bare in many places. Cars are running, also a number of buggies and waggons take the places of vehicles on runners.

The trappers are "all set" and a number of muskies have been caught already.

Prospects at present cause no fear for the usual spring floods and high water, as the snow is not deep, and the main channel and back channels are open and only a small line of ice lies on the shores.

Nujol type of treatment not habit-forming... physicians said!

RECENTLY we found that doctors prefer the Nujol type of constipation treatment for six distinct reasons. The chief of these is that it is not habit-forming. Most laxatives and cathartics are. We quote from actual reports taken at random from hundreds of questionnaires.

"Much the best treatment because it is not habit-forming. Laxatives only increase stability of constipation-habit."

"Laxatives have a tendency to form rigid habits of dependency, and are not corrective."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Eight doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons:

1. Nujol is not habit-forming.
2. A more natural method.
3. A lubricant is better than a laxative.
4. Does not gripe.
5. Is not irritating.
6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it! Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation, whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

Whatever may be the actual weather conditions the sun shines to-day in the heart of every son and daughter of old Erin.

For isn't this the 17th of March, the anniversary of the birthday of Ireland's patron saint?

It is, and Irish men and women the world over, millions of whom have never seen the green little island across the sea but whose hearts throb with love for Ireland nevertheless, are smiling the day.

Shamrock's the only wear today, the Shamrock of which Tom Moore wrote so lovingly:

"O the Shamrock, the green, immortal Shamrock!
Chosen leaf
Of bard and chief
Old Erin's nature Shamrock."

PROHIBITION DISAPPEARING.

Prohibition as a method of dealing with the liquor problem has been discarded by six of the nine provinces of Canada, and it is evident that it will soon cease to exist anywhere in the Dominion.

That the example of Ontario will be followed by the Maritime provinces is regarded as certain.

The first gun has already been fired in Prince Edward Island where the Premier, Hon. J. D. Stewart, has announced that his Government will appeal to the people at the forthcoming general election on a measure to take the place of prohibition.

In making his announcement Premier Stewart declared that it was generally admitted on all sides that the present prohibitory law, not withstanding the most strenuous attempt at enforcement, had not realized the anticipations of its sponsors.

It is presumed that the Prince Edward Island administration proposes a system of government control similar to that brought down by the Ontario Government, as a substitute for prohibition.

There is little doubt that legislation of this nature will also before long be brought before the people of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

MAJOR ROBERTS COMING.

The teachers of Peterborough are to be congratulated upon their enterprise in making it possible for the citizens to hear one of Canada's foremost literary lights, Major Charles G. D. Roberts, who is to lecture here next Monday.

Major Roberts has been styled "the greatest literary figure Canada has produced."

Certainly no man of letters in this country has shown such versatility, or such all-round ability.

Canada has given birth to poets, novelists, short story writers, nature students and historians, all of whom in their various fields have had wide success.

Mr. Roberts, however, is all of these things and in the first flight in each department of literature.

Unlike many authors he is also a very facile speaker and as he is dividing his Monday night address into to sections, one dealing with Canadian literature and the other with some of Mr. Roberts' personal adventures in the wilderness, his audience is assured of a very enjoyable evening.

The chance to hear such a speaker is one that should not be missed by the citizens of Peterborough.

TWO WELCOME SIGNS.

For the many Canadians who think that we have too many legislators in this country and that the majority of them talk too much there were two hopeful signs in yesterday's news.

One was a report from Manitoba that the Conservative party in that province had adopted as one of their planks in its new platform the reduction of the Provincial Legislature from 55 to 44; the other was the tabling in the House of Commons of a report from a special committee which had been studying the rules of the House, recommending the adoption of 40-minute speeches.

These indications of a change to better things are welcome.

There has long been a feeling that the provinces could get along with smaller legislatures; for the first time, however, a political party has flatly taken a stand on this question and will face the electors with a reduction in membership as part of its policy.

Similarly complaints in regard to the time wasted by members of the House of Commons in needlessly long speeches have been general, but the matter did not get beyond the stage of complaints.

The committee's recommendation in regard to 40-minute speeches is therefore most satisfactory as affording a working basis for bringing about a more business like and efficient transaction of public business.

TOO WIDE POWERS?

The ammendment introduced by Hon. W. F. Raney, scoring the Ontario government for delegating too many of the powers of office to the Liquor Control Board, emphasizes a criticism of the control act that has been frequently heard since the provision of the bill have been made known.

Has the Board been given too wide powers?

Would it have been enough to have confined it to matters of administration alone?

The answer of the Government to these questions is that exercise of sound judgment and discretion on the part of the Control Commission will do more to improve conditions than any inflexible legal enactment, that certain conditions might arise which only a Commission so empowered could deal with and that the legislation was to be administered in the interests of the people and not on behalf of any party, group or organization, and therefore it is necessary that wide authority should be given.

In any case, of course, the Government must stand responsible for whatever conditions are created by the Liquor Control Act.

The delegating of wide authority to the Commission does not relieve the Ferguson administration of any responsibility in that respect.

GIVE NEW LIQUOR LAW A CHANCE.

The framing of Ontario's new Liquor Law was the responsibility of the Attorney General's Department. It took nearly three months to whip it into shape. Mr. Hilliard Birmingham, the secretary of the present Liquor License Board, was sent to investigate the situation in the four western provinces and in the Province of Quebec, where there are Government Control measures. He spent six weeks on this work and got a very great deal of valuable information. He did his work so quietly and carefully that there was no comment on it until after he returned to Toronto. This meant that he got the information without bias. Mr. Birmingham has been in charge of the dispensaries for ten years and not a breath of suspicion has passed his way. This is a remarkable record considering the fact that he has had to deal with those wanting to sell liquor and others wanting to buy liquor. The Ferguson Government is very fortunate in being able to transfer him to the new commission.

When one undertakes to draw up an Act of this kind, which is more or less revolutionary, keeping in mind at the same time the promises made during the election, the difficulties are immense. Notwithstanding what anyone will say about this Act, or the administration of it, or how it should be done, the Government knows where responsibility will definitely lie. In public matters a Government can never transfer responsibility, the best that can be done is to place the administration of certain laws in the hands of honest and conscientious men who are prepared to give them the best thought. If mistakes are made the Government will be responsible.

It is understood that Attorney General Price plans to reorganize the whole police service for the province as well as several other things in his office so that this new Act will come into force with a clean sheet. It will take some time to get things running properly, but we are quite satisfied that it can be done.

Curiously enough it is expected there will be very little difficult in the selling of hard liquors or the consumption of them. The difficulty will come in the consumption of beer. One troube for instance is that beer must be cool before it can be drunk. What, therefore, is the guest in the hotel or the workman on the job, or the tourist, going to do when he buys beer? Were is he going to cool it to make it palatable unless he drinks it at once?

A frequent complaint heard is that the new law is unfair to hotel men in that it does not permit sale of beer or wine with meals in hotels, this coupled with the claim that the least objectionable and less harmful form of drinking, namely, drinking with food, is prohibited while other ways of drinking are encouraged. Perhaps there is something in this criticism. It may be well that no great harm would have been done had the Liquor Commission been empowered to permit properly run hotels to sell beer and wine by the glass with noon day and evening meals, fixing from 12.30 to 2.30 p.m. for luncheon and from 6.30 to 8.30 for dinner. Such a provision, it may be argued, would have eliminated one of the evil aspects of the O.T.A., to wit: the illicit consumption of liquor that accompanies many of the public dinners and banquets held in hotels and other public place, and which hotel proprietors are all but powerless to prevent.

But what complainants on this score forget is that the people of Ontario, when they voted for Government control, did not vote for beer and wine sale in hotels. Premier Ferguson, in his election pronouncements, gave a pretty clear outline of what he proposed to do, and certainly no word was said about sale of wine and beer in hotels. All such things—the possible defect of the Governments policy, as well as possible improvements—must be worked out in the light of experience.

Taken all in all, the Government, we think, has done very well; and while it may take time to get things running properly and while mistakes will be made and defects brought to light, the only thing for the public to do is to give the policy a chance. With a strong, honest, independent commission, backed by a reorganized, efficient police force, the new law may well work out better than many suppose.—Ottawa Journal.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., March 17 (Canadian Press)—The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market yesterday continued slow owing to the indifferent demand from foreign buyers. There was change in prices for cash grain in the local market and business was generaly quiet.

The flour market was without any new feature to note, prices for spring and winter wheat grades being steady, but the volume of business was small.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good and an active trade was done at unchanged prices. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was slow and prices were steady.

The undertone to the egg market was about steady under a moderate demand. The receipts were 2,098 cases.

A firmer feeling developed in the potato market, which was attributed to the improved demand. Quebec varieties were quoted at $1.10 per bags of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The volume of business transacted in butter was moderate and prices were well maintained. The receipts were 889 packages.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 17 (Canadian Press)—Decreasing receipts of all grain with indications that bear factors had been over-stressed, gave a general lift yesterday to wheat, corn, oats and rye. Wheat closed firm, 1-2 to 1-4c net higher; corn 1-2 to 3-c to 7-8c up; oats at 1-4 to 1-2c advance, and provisions showing seven to 30 cents decline.

Corn displayed strength almost at the start. Scantiness of receipts counted as a particular bullish factor, arrivals in Chicago today totalling only 42 cars. Wet weather delays to oat seeding put firmness into the oats market.

TRUTH VERSUS ERROR

In the article "Truth versus Error," in The Examiner Monday, March 14, why does the author say that all men will be saved, when we find in Matt. 7, 13-14: "Enter ye in at the straight gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be that go in thereat. Because straight is the gate and narrow the way, and few there be that find it. These are the words of our Saviour Himself, and if there is only one gate why does our Saviour mention, "the way that leadeth to destruction." Also what will the author do with verse of Scripture such as these "The wicked shall be turned into hell with all the nation that forget God," Psa. 9, 17. "In hell he lifted up his eyes being in torment," Luke 16, 23. "The smoke of their torment ascended up forever and ever," Rev. 14, 10.

Why is there so much about "endless torment" in the Holy Scriptures if it is not a place prepared for those who do not love God? Why does God warn us in the Scriptures to flee from the wrath to come, if all men finally land in heaven?

If all men will finally be saved, then the death of the Saviour was of no benefit.

We know that it is God's will that all should be saved, but God's will and man's will are two different things.

Why is it necessary to be a Christian at all if all men are to be saved? The Gospel is not a failure if only a few are saved, because God has done all that lay in his power to save men and if men refused to bend to the Divine Will, then they are lost in spite of the Gospel and what Christ has done.

A few good old-fashioned sermons on the terrors of the law such as Knox and Wesley and the sainted Fletcher preached years ago, would be a benefit to our country.

RESENTS SINGING

To the Editor of The Examiner:

May I crave a small space in your valuable paper to express my opinion as viewed by a way-faring man; the man on the street so called. To be brief, I was brought up in the old church, attended Sunday School, learned the Lord's Prayer, and considered it the most sacred thing of the Bible. Having been absent from Church for some time, partly by neglect, and in travelling along life's highway and its crooked winding paths, and now going down the other side of the hill, my thoughts were again turned to the dear old church. Being invited by a friend, I once again visited the old kirk.

The sermon and singing were good, but imagine my surprise and disgust when the choir and congregation commenced to sing the Lord's Prayer; a thing which ought not to be done. The Lord taught us to pray and not to sing those holy and sacred words. I wish to know by what authority the church undertook this unholy thing. I thought if a beggar came to our door and presented his appeal for bread with a song, how foolish it would seem to us and also to the Lord. I thought that if Jesus would again revisit the earth, and once more enter his earthly church, what would he say or do to express his indignation at the doings of his people. I don't know what he would say, but I believe that this is what he would do. History would again repeat itself and as he had done in old Jerusalem, long ago, he would again make a scourge of knotted cords and drive out the people for profaning his most sacred words.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

WHY LINCOLN WAS GREAT

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

Everybody knows that Lincoln was great, but there has been a persistent effort to ascribe conventional reasons for this.

Lincoln was great, however, simply because he was not great.

That is, he was the apotheosis of the common man.

He could not play the piano like Chopin, he could not read Greek like Gladstone, nor was he a great warrior or commander like Napoleon.

He simply had common sense and brought to bear upon each problem the same kind of intelligence which you and I in a measure possess.

He was not a handsome man, although efforts have been made to idealize him. He was like the man of whom the prophet speaks, "without form or comeliness." His figure was ungainly and his face homely.

It was told by him that when he was a boy he was wandering in the woods when a hunter saw him and pointed his gun at him.

"Hold on there," said Abe. "What are you doing?"

The hunter replied, "I made a solemn vow to my mother upon her death bed that if I ever saw a man uglier than myself I would shoot him on sight."

Then said Lincoln, after looking carefully at the hunter, "I guess you had better shoot."

Just as Napoleon and Alexander were not tall men and as Dr. Johnson was a gross and fat man, so Lincoln was not a handsome man. The secret of his greatness was not in his personal appearance.

He was clear-headed and his feet were firmly rooted in common sense. In fact, he had no other kind of sense except the common kind.

BRONCHITIS

The true cause of chronic inflammation of the lungs, commonly called bronchitis, is the irritation produced by toxic mucus being eliminated through the inside lining membrane of the lungs. This mucous condition is sometimes only on the main forked tubes that convey air from the windpipe to the lungs, but in the more advanced cases all the minute branches of the bronchi are involved, producing a state similar to a serious acute form. If the patient's strength is maintained through the years, a fair age may be reached, with only the wretched symptoms of constantly coughing up quantities of catarrhal phlegm, but the disease is easily cured by proper diet and by hygienic living.

This trouble is really nothing more or less than a catarrhal state of the lungs, and all mucus forming foods must be eliminated until the delicate membrane is restored to the normal, when it can again resume its work of expelling only gaseous poisons. A fast of several days will clear the lungs of accumulated material which has been forming for many years, and if a suitable diet is continued after the fasting period, a permanent cure may be expected.

There are several factors connected with tuberculosis which are not present with bronchitis, and the cure is so much more rapid with the latter disease because the patient's strength is greater, and there is less tissue degeneration to be corrected.

In the case of bronchitis, it is advisable to fast for at least two weeks, in order to free the system of the accumulated mucus; while with tuberculosis a short fast is indicated, due to the weakened condition of the patient, and the fact that it is not possible to get rid of the tubercular pus in such a short time.

As in catarrh of the nose and throat, the strictest diet must be maintained for a long time, because of the fact that the membrane has been literally soaked in mucus for years, and will tend to resume its former habit of eliminating toxins in a solid form, unless the material for such poisons is withheld from the blood.

All starches and sugars should be eliminated for a considerable period of time and only proteins such as eggs, fish and fowl should be used, combined with the non-starchy vegetables, spinach, asparagus, string beans, summer squash, lettuce, celery, cucumbers, etc. These should be used in both the cooked and raw form. It is the best plan to eliminate milk entirely from the diet, as this food, so excellent for some people, will only furnish the material for excess mucus for the one who has a tendency to bronchitis or catarrh. But the patient must persist for months and even a year or more before he can expect to be entirely free from the irritation of the bronchial tubes, and the exudation of catarrhal mucus.

It is also necessary to develop a better condition of strength in order to be able to resist the infectious diseases which are so successful in their attack on those who suffer from a catarrhal blood stream. Vigorous physical exercises should be taken each day, combined with plenty of walking. Take only a short walk the first day and gradually increase the distance until you are able to walk four or five miles. This will tone up your whole body and will help in developing strength and resistance towards every disease.

The ABOVE map shows the various points at which airship mooring masts may be erected on British Empire routes. In Canada the question of locations is still engaging the officials of national defense. An expert from Britain will shortly assist with the selections. For purposes of comparison mooring masts have been placed in the map at Vancouver, Ottawa, Montreal and Halifax. Only two of the masts are at present in existence, one at Cardington, in Bedfordshire, and the other at Ismailia, on the Suez Canal. A third is in course of erection at Karachi, in northern India. With regard to the others, a special mission is being sent out from the Air Ministry to examine the suggested sites. The proposed cites are shown with miniature airships attached.

If you or any relative or friends are worried because of varicose veins, or bunches, the best advice that anyone in this world can give you is to ask your druggist for an original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that even Pills are quickly absorbed. Bond's Drug Store sells lots of it.

Tiny Tot Saved From Death On Radial Track

ST. CATHARINES, March 17. —A little boy just able to toddle, was saved from a terrible death by the prompt action of Motorman Edward Caughill, in charge, and a passenger on a Canadian National electrical car running to Niagara-on-the-lake. The motorman saw what looked like a small brown spot on the tracks ahead, and thought it was a dog. He worked the gong vigorously to warn the supposed dog off the track, but as the car approached nearer, to his horror Caughill saw it was a child.

Robert Farmer, a passenger made a flyin jump from the front vestibule of the car, fearing Caughill could not stop in time, and dashing ahead caught the boy in his arms. The car, however, was brought to a standstill a hundred feet away. The child belonged to a family named Hunter living in the vicinity.

FLIVVER COMES INTO ITS OWN IN PICTURE "PALS IN PARADISE."
Jumps Over Cliff and Uncovers Quartz Lead Enriching Poor Prospector.

The lowly "flivver" comes into its own in "Pals in Paradise," a new production from Metropolitan studios. When the ancient relic careens down the side of an embankment it uncovers a gold quartz lead. This in turn transforms Bill Harvey, as played by John Bowers, from a poor prospector into an important citizen in Paradise, booming mining town.

Marguerite De La Motte, Rudolph Schildkraut and May Robson are featured with Bowers in the film version of this Peter B. Kyne story, which will be shown at the Regent Theatre to-day. The work of Mr. Schildkraut in "His People" and in "Young April" placed him among the ranking favorites. As a depicter of the Hebrew character on the screen, he has few, if any, equals.

Miss De La Motte is one of the most popular of the younger motion picture actresses. In "The Unknown Soldier" and "The Last Frontier" the quality of her work showed a latent talent and a brilliant future.

May Robson makes her screen debut in "Pals in Paradise." She comes direct from the legitimate stage where she has had forty-three years of uninterrupted activity.

Alan Brooks, Bruce Elwood and Ernest Adams complete the cast. The picture is adapted from the novel of the same name by Peter B. Kyne. The adaptation was made by Albert Kenyon and Will M. Ritchey. George B. Seitz directed.

BAILEY THE BEST MAN ON THE ICE

Montreal Gazette Says His Play Against Maroons Was Dazzling.

The Montreal Gazettes thus refers to Irvin Bailey's great work in a recent game against the Maroons:

"There was a surprise for Montreal in the dazzling play of Bailey, Toronto centre, who was probably the best man on the ice. Apparently the Maroons made a social faux pas when they droped this speedy young player from their reserve list at the end of last season. Bailey, who incidentally was credited with Toronto's goal, is a leading gaol-getter in the league and can give and take wholesale punishment. But with it all he carries instincts of a true sportsman. On one occasion he led a rush that ended in Benedict losing his stick. After the puck was cleared from the Maroon gaol, Bailey in passing, lifted Benedict's stick and handed it to him as he skated by.

Fire Comes To Firemen At Fort William Station

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Mar. 17.—Yesterday afternoon a blazing automobile was towed up Victoria Avenue from the west, while crowds on the sidewalk stood to gaze at the unusual sight. The travelling conflagration took the turn to the south at the Brodie Street intersection and hauled up in front of the fire hall, while the horn of the towing car sounded a loud alarm.

All the firemen had to do was to rush out and quench the fire in the towed automobile, a task which they soon accomplished.

Rhubarb Pie For Dinner On Ireland's Festal Day

Mrs. J. W. Elliott, 253 Rink street, pulled enough rhubarb in her garden to-day to celebrate St. Patrick's day with home made rhubarb pie. The patch has been covered with straw for protection. A sample stick brought to The Examiner is large and of good color but the leaf has not developed due to the covering.

Record Breaking Oil Shipment Made By Imperial Oil Limited

The largest shipment of motor oil ever made in Canada, and one of the largest ever made in the world, left the Sarnia plant of Imperial Oil Limited today for Western Canada.

It consisted of a solid train of twenty-six car loads of Marvelube Motor Oils—eighteen Imperial tank cars carrying Marvelube in bulk and eight freight cars loaded with barrels, drums and cans of Marvelube.

The shipment, which is consigned to points throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, will proceed as one train —Canada's first "All-motor oil" train—as far as Fort William, where it will be broken up for distribution to different cities and towns along the railroads.

It carries the early 1927 Spring orders of a portion of the dealers and service stations who sell Marvelube Motor Oils throughout the four Western Provinces and is the first of several consignments which will be required to meet this year's initial demands for Marvelube in both Western and Eastern Canada.

Marvelube Motor Oils are a comparatively new brand of oil, introduced by Imperial Oil Limited for the first time in April of last year. Since then these oils have been in extensive demand throughout most parts of the Dominion.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE — CXXX—A Lucky Accident. — by MAX HAHN

IT WAS A LUCKY ACCIDENT WHEN ONE OF JAMES HARGREAVES' SONS KNOCKED OVER HIS MOTHER'S SPINNING WHEEL. THE INCIDENT LED TO THE INVENTION OF THE SPINNING-JENNY, WHICH WAS A HIGH SPOT IN THE INDUSTRIAL REVOLUTION.

HARGREAVES MIGHT HAVE CHIDED THE BOY FOR BEING CARELESS. BUT HIS THOUGHTS WERE NOT ON HIS SON. HARGREAVES WAS INTENT ON THE WHEEL AND SPINDLE WHICH CONTINUED TO ROTATE DESPITE THE UPSET.

IN A MOMENT HARGREAVES HAD DREAMED OF A MACHINE WHICH WOULD DO THE WORK OF SEVERAL SPINNING WHEELS, ALTHOUGH REQUIRING THE ATTENTION OF ONLY ONE OPERATOR. YEARS PASSED BEFORE HE COMPLETED HIS FIRST SPINNING JENNY IN 1767. THIS MACHINE SPUN EIGHT THREADS AT THE SAME TIME. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

MOBS OF FURIOUS SPINNERS BROKE INTO HARGREAVES' HOME, SMASHED HIS SPINNING JENNY, AND DROVE HIM OUT OF LANCASHIRE BECAUSE HIS MACHINE COULD DO AS MUCH AS EIGHT OF THEM. THEY BELIEVED IT WOULD THROW THEM ALL OUT OF WORK. THEY WERE TOO SHORT-SIGHTED TO SEE THAT THEY COULD GET JOBS OPERATING THESE MACHINES AND EARN THE HIGHER WAGES WHICH ACCOMPANY INCREASED PRODUCTION.

GANDHI WILL FIGHT BRITISH WITH 'MASS DISOBEDIENCE'

Says He is Taking Field Again After Five Years.

COPIES CHRISTIANS

Efforts of Early Days Which Beat Pagan Rome Are His Model.

"I Am Taking the Field Again After Five Years" He Tells American Visitor—Cites Bloodless Victories of the Early Christians as Proof that Mass Disobedience Can Win—Fights the Culture of the Sky-scraper—Old Laws of Caste and Religious Factionalism Giving Way in India to New National Spirit.

BY UPTON CLOSE

"When we show the British unity, they will no longer resist us. Why, if we Indians would but spit in unison we would form a puddle big enough to drown 300,000 Englishmen."

So spoke Mahatma Gandhi, the "little naked man," sitting before me at his spinning wheel in his little hut in Sabermati village. I was but one of many pilgrims that morning who had taken the long bullock ride up from Ahmedabad station to see and talk with this mild, insignificant appearing man, who leads the mightiest movement of discontent in India. He set aside his morning meditation, the period of intense study and meditation to which he devotes a large part of every day, to tell us his plans to break the power of England.

All day a procession passed through his bare, stone-flagged study. Peasants, these visitors were, mostly, come to gaze at Gandhi's face and feel his presence; but a great Indian historian whose books are standard authorities in London, a Moslem scholar and the white-robed teacher of a great boys' school were among those of every creed, race and caste who came that day to see the Mahatma—the great soul that all India reveres.

Takes Cue From Early Christians.

"I am taking the field again," he told us, "after five years—two of imprisonment and three of voluntary retirement. My party, the Swaraj, has made gains at the recent elections throughout India, which now indorses my use of the ultimate weapon against the English, mass civil disobedience."

"What is that?" we ask.

"Every law the British make, save only those of moral regulation, we will find ten thousand people to break with fasting and prayer."

"But can that succeed?" we gasp.

"In all history it has never failed," he replies solemnly. "You of the West have been taught that it is only violence and force which wins. They have never conquered. The Christian Church conquered the Roman Empire by mass civil disobedience. The primitive missionaries conquered the world for your Christ without a weapon. We Indians believe in early Christianity more than you do, who have been taught by the apostles of the later faith.

"Bring this down to modern terms. What do we want to do with the British. We want them to stay, but if"—and here Gandhi lovingly touched his whirling spinning wheel—"they will stay on our terms and not on theirs. Our terms are that our culture and our way of life shall be paramount, that we shall take up our ancient handicrafts again, spin and weave and make beautiful things with our hands, and that we shall stop the stench and smoke of modern industrialism that is creeping over our country before it robs us o our souls as it has done in your country. Let the British tear up their railroads and dismantle their factories, send their armies home and stop their system of Western education in India and, above all, cease draining this country economically to feed England, then they will be welcome to stay and govern in India, for they are just judges and efficient administrators."

Caste System Breaking Down.

Impractical, idealistic words, they call them in Calcutta and Delhi, but I saw new things they had accomplished that no other force ever generated in India has shown. The age-long, sacred laws of caste are being thrown aside. Hindus and Moslems are uniting with a hundred other sects and races as Indians under Swaraj (Home Rule.) A Moslem fanatic recently murdered a Hindu holy man and patriot in Delhi. The British said: "See!" But hundreds of contrite Moslems marched in his funeral procession. That was different.

Gandhi is in the field again, the leader of India's leaders. He plans, he told me, not merely to travel over India, preaching his mass civil disobedience, but in the spring he is to undertake a trip to Canton. This will be another new move in this steadily growing insurgency in Asia, the collaboration in the common revolt among its two greatest and most disquieting elements.

"I cannot hope by my counsel," says Gandhi, "to turn the Chinese away from war as a means of ridding their country of the influences of the foreigner. But India's example will also speak for me; and China's own moral power, as utilized in the ancient weapon of their race—the boycott—will help me show the better and surer way toward freedom in Asia."

Has Regained Dynamic Health.

They say Gandhi is in poor health, his spirit broken by his long enforced and voluntary seclusion from India's affairs. The wish is father to the thought, for it is always Englishmen of the official class who say this. I found no trace of ill health or impaired vitality in this dynamic man in his fifties. He is still the most inspiring figure in Asia, commanding a many-sided political and social movement of revolt, which ramifies throughout India and which showed at the recent elections that its hold on the people grows apace with each fresh crisis.

"His bolt is shot," said the old Scottish official who traveled with me as we started on the hot, monotonous journey back to Bombay. "India's not a lot of blessed saints, not Young India anyhow, by a long shot."

"What have you to combat mass civil disobedience?" I asked.

He lifted his head and smiled self-assuredly. "Machine guns," he said.

Is it enough?

The final article in this series will appear in tomorrow's Examiner. It declares Japan is planning to use awakened Asia to break down American pride.

NORTHERN FORCES WELL TRAINED

It is estimated that the rival armies in the Chinese civil war operating in the Shanghai sector exceeds 1,000,000 men. ABOVE is seen a detachment of perfectly drilled soldiers of the northern forces who are striving to defend the international city from the converging Cantonese. At the TOP LEFT is Liang Shih Yi, prime minister of the northern government, which has its seat at Pekin. He is an experienced statesman having been prime minister before and he conceded that with the fall of Shanghai the whole of the northern territory is in peril of falling into the hands of the Cantonese.

ORLAND NEWS

ORLAND, March 17. — Mrs. Jane Cooper fell on the ice and received a very bad bruising. Dr. H. Clarke is in attendance. Warner, who rendered first aid. The patient is doing as well as can be expected.

SIGNS OF SPRING

AT BONAR LAW

BONAR LAW, March 17—Spring is here in earnest; most of the birds are back; the snow has all departed into great ponds of water; the woodchucks are out; some of the farmers are tapping their sugar bushes. By the appearance of the weather at present a poor sugar year is expected.

The roads are in bad shape; some of the culverts are completely washed away. One farmer had the bad luck of stalling his "Lizzie" in the deep waters at Trout Creek and was quite delighted to have a couple of good Samaritans pull him out after throwing him a rope which he attached to the car. But all these little incidents remind us of the dear old Summer time which is fast approaching.

The cassowary grows to a height of six feet in New Guinea and with its powerful legs and sharp claws can defend itself against most of its enemies.

Could Not Sleep Heart and Nerves Were So Bad

Mr. Geo. Mock, Windsor, Ont., writes:—"I suffered with my heart and nerves and could not sleep at night for noises in my head. I managed to keep at my work somehow, until I began to have dizzy spells which got so bad I could not go to my work. I was afraid to go out any place, for very often I would stagger on my feet, and everything in front of me would turn black and fade away. While I was home sick a friend told me to take I got four boxes and by the time I had used them the pains and noises in my head ceased and I was able to get a good night's rest. Although that was six years ago I have never been troubled with that complaint again."

Mining Market Quiet; Gains and Losses Equal

TORONTO, March 17 (Canadian Press).—There were no outstanding features in the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. The market was generally quiet, with gains and losses being equally divided. A gain of twenty cents a share by Nipissing to 7.70 was the feature of the strong movement. McIntyre was a weak spot, declining 31 cents a share to 24.75. Barry Hollinger was active and firmer, gaining ½ to 45½. Premier sold up two to 2.12. Teck Hughes was firm, selling up seven to 6.52. Area declined ½ to 37. Keeley dropped three points to 140. Noranda attracted most attention in the unlisted section and advanced thirty cents a share to 23.60. Potter Doal was active and weaker, selling off ⅛ to 49½. Central Manitoba Gold firmed two to 119.

Several Stocks Show Gains On Toronto Exchange To-day

TORONTO, March 17 (Canadian Press).—A decidedly stronger feeling was in evidence in the trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Several stocks scored considerable gains, while only two of the more prominent issues suffered declines. Massey Harris was the leader in activity, and under selling pressure sold off 1-8 to 117 3-4. Noranda in the unlisted section came second in activity, and scored a gain of 45 cents a share to 23.75. Maple Leaf Common was a strong feature, soaring up five points to 70. The Preferred was unchanged. C.P.R. gained three in small lot trading to 187. Canadian Bakeries continued strong and sold up 2¼ to 34¼. Canada Bread recorded another new high when it sold up to 111, a gain of four. Canada Bread "A" Preferred was up ½ to 114 3-4. American Sales Book gained four to 74. Seagram was quiet and weaker, declining 1-8 to 23½. The Page Hersey issues were firmer, the Common advancing one to 65½, while the Preferred gained two to 130.

Speculators For Rise Control Market To-day

NEW YORK, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)—The major speculative interest in to-day's market was again on the upside. National Lead soared nearly 10 points to a record high for all time at 196 1-2, following the publication of the annual report showing $35.33 earned on the common stock last year, as against $14.17 the year before. United Steel common, General Motors and Dupont all reached new high ground, but American Telephone sold off sharply from its early high on official denial of stock dividend rumors.

Several stocks were freely liquidated for individual reasons. Sugars, for example, lost ground in sympathy with lower commodity prices. Cluett Peabody broke almost six points on the withdrawal of interests long identified with the company and the announcement that recent changes in styles of collars had hurt the business.

Despite these and other drawbacks, operations for the rise were confidently conducted in scores of other issues, but buying was concentrated largely on those with large current earnings and excellent prospects. Speculation among the lower priced issues was most active in American Chicle, Union Bag and Paper, and Foundation Company. Rails displayed a firm undertone, with Lackawanna, Pittsburgh and West Virginia, Southern Pacific and Missouri Pacific preferred, on the forefront of the advance.

Wheat Averages Higher On Buying From East

CHICAGO, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)— Some eastern buying, together with the absence of selling pressure, made wheat average a little higher to-day in the early dealings. Reports that Argentine wheat was proving to be of a less desirable quality than was looked for tended also to strengthen values. Starting unchanged to 1-4 cent up, wheat later scored a slight general advance. Corn, Oats and Provisions were easy, with Corn opening unchanged to 3-8 cents off, but subsequently showing power to recover.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May, 138 3-8, July 132 7-8. Corn, May 77 3-8, July 81 3-8. Oats, May 45 3-4, July 46 1-8.

Castle Trethewey.

Nothing particularly new at this property since our last. Production is holding at approximately 90,000 ozs. per month. Work of shaft shinking on the No. 1 property is under way and as there is approximately 300 feet of sinking to be done before any lateral work will be carried on it will be two months before any interesting information from this work will be available. We, along with others familiar with this section of the Gowganda District, believe that extensive ore deposits will be found on this property. As stated in our last, there is no doubt but that the appointments of Angus Campbell as Manager will hasten important developments on the Castle No. 1 property, owing to is knowledge of the ore deposition on the adjoining Miller Lake O'Brien, with which Company he was associated for a number of years.

Work on the N. property continued as before, with development of new ore being about sufficient to keep pace with production. Reserves at the end of the Company's fiscal year, March the 31st, will show between 2,500,000 and 3,000,000 ounces or about the same as last year. We do not expect to be in a postion to say anything definite in regard to the Company's dividend policy until the end of their year, or until the return of the President from Europe. There is a strong possibility that an interim dividend will be declared at the forthcoming Annual Meeting.

The declaration of a dividend by Castle has certainly been postponed by the very material drop in the price of silver. This drop has however been in effect now for some little time, and according to the best authorities on silver the present low price is likely to be in effect for several years at least. With this in view it becomes apparent that a property such as Castle Trethewey will not be materially benefitted by postponing the payment of dividends, even though the rate of such payment be materially reduced from that which might be expected were silver to come back to its former price. While the above-mentioned drop in silver has materially hurt properties such as Castle Trethewey, we consider it to be a fair speculation at present prices. They have reserves amounting to close to half a million dollars, the greater part of which is in the form of cash or its equivalent. From this a dividend of at least 5% could be paid on their $2,000,000 capitalization. This would require only $100,000, and would leave the Company amply financed to carry on their extensive exploration and development campaign under way.

Aconda Mines.

Are now cutting lines on the Armstrong group of 41 claims recently acquired from Noranda. These lines are for the purpose of conducting a dip needle survey as well as a survey by the Lundberg Electrical method. These surveys will be under way during the present month. The property is well located, has favourable geology, well managed and financed, and is considered to be good speculation.

Corona Mines.

Camps have been erected and lines are being cut for the Lunberg Electrical Survey which is to commence on this property early in March. This survey is to be followed by diamond drilling. Interesting surface showings have been uncovered, as reported by us before. On the Company's Dasserat group of claims Numbers T5176-8-9 and T5180 to T5184 it is not the intention at present to carry on any work until the Spring. Looks like a fair prospect.

Porcupine Crown.

Nothing new. Prospects only.

Waite Montgomery.

Nothing new. Should be an announcement in regard to financing on this property before long.

Amulet.

Diamond drilling still under way, drill now being on its fourth hole which is vertical and has reached a depth of approximately 200 ft. The first hole on this property was drilled at an angle of 45 degrees to a depth of 204 feet. The second hole was drilled at an angle of 45 degrees to a depth of 212 feet. The third hole was vertical and reached a depth of 180 feet. Disseminated chalcopyrite has been encountered but its value is as yet undetermined. It is the intention in the immediate future to start work again from the No. 4 shaft. It is probable that considerable diamond drilling will be done here. Amulet are not dependent particularly upon ore in this section of the property as they have close to $6,000,000 in ore already known to exist in other sections with a very considerable tonnage not yet calculated. The recent drop in the shares of this Company has been caused by the ridiculous rise and reaction in Area who had based their hopes on a block of 500 acres adjoining Amulet on which the electrical survey gave such good indications. We can see no reason whatever why shares in Amulet should be looked upon in any way the same as shares in Area. They are two entirely different propositions ,the former being a proven property with known ore, while the latter is a prospect. Amulet at present prices looks decidedly attractive.

Area.

The fourth diamond drill hole on this property is now down approximately 200 feet. Hole No. 1 was put down at an angle of 45 degrees to an incline depth of 150 feet. Hole No. 2 was put down at an angle of 60 degrees to an incline depth of 200 feet. These holes were put down to meet the attempted vertical hole which was started in the centre of what was considered to be the most important indication shown by the electrical survey. Hole No. 3 was drilled between 400 and 500 feet W. of the main indication, was put down at an angle of 65 degrees to a depth of 265 feet. All three holes showed from sulphides but no important chalcopyrite deposition. This drilling is being done aproximately 400 feet from the Amulet boundary and up to date has shown little or nothing.

Grover Daley.

Constructon of camp buildings practically finished. All supplies necessary for the exploration campaign which has been planned for this property are now in, and we expect important results will be obtained when this work gets well under way. Good speculation.

Duprat.

Diamond drilling is continuing on Claim No. 2074 close to the Waite Montgomery line where encouraging results were obtained from the Lundberg survey. This drilling lies close to the diabase intrusion coming over from the Waite Montgomery and in an area of a fold of this diabase. The first hole being drilled is vertical and has reached a depth of approximately 200 feet. We do not expect that it will reach the diabase, which has a dip of 65 degrees to the N. The general strata in this section has a dip of 26 degrees South. About all that can be expected from this first hole is geological data with an outside possibility that an ore zone will be encountered.

On what is known about the strike of the Waite Montgomery orebody and its dip there is a possibility that this drilling on Duprat will locate an extension of or a similar deposit. This would be at a considerable depth, however, and remains to be proven.

Nothing is being done as yet on the Montbray holdings of this Company. It is the intention to get camps erected before the spring in preparation for exploration during the summer.

South Keora.

Covered in our last, since with nothing particularly new. Sinking at the Cobalt property should be well under way any day now and important results should be quickly obtained. Nothing has been done as yet on the 12 claims which the Company purchased in Duprat Twp. Rouyn District. Preparations are under way for intensive exploration of these holdings and on the growth of their location, together with encouraging results obtained on adjoining properties, these claims appear to be of considerable importance. Fair speculation.

Vipond.

Production at this property during January amounted to $60,300, a slight improvement over the previous month. It is not expected this production will be increased to any extent in the near future, although preparations underground for increase in hoisting capacity are well under way. Before many months the property will have a second shaft which will very materially help in bringing up the tonnage to 300 per day or better. While underground development has not yielded any out of the ordinary results during the past few months, the mine is gradually working into shape where such developments can be expected, particularly on the 5-8 vein system which is proving to be the chief ore carrier of the property. This system has developed widths up to 30 feet. It is located on the boundary between the N. and S. Thompson lots and while work on this system has been confined to developing down to the 300 foot level, diamond drilling to below 700 feet has indicated its continuation to that depth at least. Diamond drilling is continuing in various sections of the property. It is, however, too early as yet to definitely correlate the results obtained. Indications recently northwest of the main shaft at various depths down to 800 feet show important ore deposition. Until these various indications have been opened up by development and exploration, nothing of great importance in the line of information can be expected. While the dividend which is to be paid in April and which amounts to 3 per cent is on an interim basis it is the intention of the management to shortly declare a regular annual rate. With both the cash and ore reserves increasing steadily, and with future earnings promising decidedly more profit than at the present, the management feel that they can pay a fair annual rate of dividend and at the same time continue to increase the Company's cash position. Looks like a very good speculation.

Old Book Out Of Date.

Old Style Clothes No Better Than Old Dictionary.

Due to the rapid advances in science, the development of radio, aviation, and other discoveries and inventions, almost a new language has come to us before we realized it. Only one big publisher saw this far enough ahead to give the people the benefit of it. He started his editorial staff to work on a new compilation before anybody else thought of it. And now his new dictionary is being distributed to newspaper readers on the coupon plan.

The printing plates formerly used for this progressive publisher's dictionary were all abandoned when this new one came out, so those who take advantage of this offer are sure to get the new volume. With its enlarged vocabulary and its exclusive special features, it far surpasses any similar work of the kind—and it's so easy to get.

Then why use an out of date book? Might as well wear old style clothes. Get this entirely new and authoritative volume as explained in the dictionary coupon printed elsewhere in this issue.

Earliest Fires In History Menace Michigan Forests

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., March 17. — Forest fire warning went out to all quarters of Northern Michigan yesterday as blazes were reported from several localities.

It was said here that conflagrations were reported along the roadsides, but serious spread is feared unless immediate steps are taken. The warning was believed to be the earliest in the state's history. Unprecedented early disappearance of the snow, and a week of drying sunshine, are responsible for the early menace this year, fire wardens reported.

NEW GOLD FIND ATTRACTS MANY

Men and Women Struggle To Scene Through Howling Storm.

ORE ASSAYS $78.

TONOPAH, Nev., Mar. 17 (Canadian Press)—The land of gold at Weepah held ever increasing numbers in its spell to-day as novices and desert rates alike heard news of the latest discovery at Barrel Springs, five miles to the south. Two hundred men and women struggled through a whining mountain storm from gold field to barrel springs and staked out claims in a new area yesterday.

The rainbow chasers plunged out through the night while the gale arose to such strength that it blew the storm doors and plate glass windows out of the Goldfield hotel.

The latest discovery is reached from the head of a precipitous canyon, where a geologist found ore assaying $78 to the ton at a depth of twenty feet in an old shaft.

HYDRO ELECTRIC TO UNLOAD, ETC.

centage, presumably for the appearance of the larger capital sum, although in effect the Commission estimated an advantage of $24,000 a year to them in interest.

Although the late Sir Adam Beck is reputed to have said that the original purchase price was $2,000,000 too much, and although the municipalities had previously expressed their belief that the amount contained a "lot of water," Ald. Schell of Oshawa was the only delegate to press the demand for recapitalization. He even used the word "water," but Mr. Magrath, whether ingenuously or not, interpreted it in the literal sense.

Were Not Partners.

Alderman Schell argued with the chairman that the municipalities in this district were not partners in the Trent power purchase. They were not consulted. The Ontario Government put through the deal which saddled power users of Central Ontario with the losses during the last ten years from the Peterboro Street Railway, the Campbellford Pulp Mill, and other such industries. Now, when the scrapping of these was proposed, the Hydro-Electric Commission, as managers of the system, refused to cast any losses upon the province, but decided that such losses should be allocated to the Central Ontario power consumers. This had been one of the contentious questions discussed at the Oshawa and Cobourg meetings, but the Commission indicated no intention of receding from their position yesterday.

Adopt Western Plan

Mr. McGrath stated that the Commission desired to co-operate as fully as possible with the Trent towns. He advised them to acquire and own their local distribution systems, after the example of Peterboro, and thereby adopt the public ownership policy of power like that which obtains in Western Ontario.

The chairman repeated this suggestion several times, and the Oshawa delegation followed it up with questions covering the financing the purchase from the Hydro of the transmission lines in Oshawa. F. A. Gaby, Hydro engineer, who bore the brunt of the delegation's questions and who incidentally evaded some of them, rather surprised the Oshawa delegates with the statement that the money expended on transmission lines in the Trent towns and cities was only $2,000,000 of the $14,000,000 total investment.

Reeve Tanner of Lakefield disturbed the aplomb of Mr. Gaby by recalling that engineers had estimated the cost of generating power in Lakefield at $12 that when the village signed a Hydro contract for $18 the Council was told this covered sinking fund and overhead, and that the rate would probably be reduced; instead of a reduction the Hydro power charge to Lakefield had soared to $36, then to $42 and finally to $76.

Reeve Tanner asked Mr. McGrath about the position of several municipalities that were considering the advisability of developing for their own use nearby water powers. The chairman replied that from what he had seen of Hydro ownership he did not think any of the municipalities would change, but Mr. Tanner remarked that it might probably be for their advantage to use adjacent power themselves. He was obviously referring to Lakefield and Peterboro.

Alderman Schell and Reeve Tanner and also G. D. Conant of Oshawa did slightly ruffle the serenity of the conference atmosphere, but if the others wanted anything keenly from the Hydro commissioners they kept the thought to themselves.

Mr. Conant pointed out that a municipality would likely have to pay a higher interest rate if it purchased the local distribution system, because the province could borrow money at a lower rate than Oshawa for instance. He suggested that the government borrow the money and lend it to the municipality, but Mr. Magrath answered that municipalities in Western Ontario would demand similar assistance.

The chairman said that 50,000 h.p. could be bought for Central Ontario whenever it was needed. The power was available from the Quebec-Ontario district. Mr. Magrath said he hoped this district could expand itself industrially.

Mr. Gaby expained why it has been preferable to operate the "lame duck" industrial adjuncts, using Trent surplus power, than to shut them down permanently. Whenever the surplus was exhausted, as in 1923, these plants such as the pulpmill, were closed.

Frank L. Mason, president of the Central Ontario Power Association presented the preliminary resolution and questionaire. At the King Edward Tuesday night it was proposed that the delegates meet Wednesday afternoon following the conference, but when it was suggested as many of the delegates were leaving the Hydro building, several demurred and the follow-up meeting was called off. That three-hour session was enough.

INFANTRY MAN STILL SUPREME

Dominion Rifle Association Says Nothing Has Yet Displaced Him.

SMALLER TEAM.

OTTAWA, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)—Among all the instruments of warfare which have been invented during and since the Great War, there is nothing to take the place of the infantry man and his rifle, was the keynote of the report of the Council presented at the annual meeting of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association to-day.

A feature of the Council's report was the recommendation of the treasurer that careful consideration be given the suggestion that the size of the team representing Canada at Bisley be reduced from two officers and eighteen shooting members to two officers and fifteen shooting members. The suggestion was made in view of the increased cost of ocean transportation.

There were 14 other entries. The Prince rode a well judged race and finished a length ahead of the second. He was given a great ovation by the crowd.

"My trouble began with a few pimples on my face and hands and soon spread all over them. The pimples were very hard, large and red, and festered and scaled over. They itched and burned so that I scratched them, which caused eruptions. My face was disfigured, and I could not put my hands in water and could hardly do my work.

ST. PAT'S LAMENT

St. Patrick picked a shamrock
And stuck it in his hat.
Said he, "Now I'm an Irishman,
And what do you think of that?"
For all this talk about my birth
I do not care a rap,
I'm heart and soul for Ireland
Since I put her on the map.

Some say I came from Italy,
And some from Scotland, too.
Is it anybody's business
If I came from Timbuctoo!
The U.S.A. may claim me,
They always want their share!
But Ireland is my country
And my heart's all there.

Oh! beauteous little island!
When first I reached your shore,
I said, "This is my homeland,
I'll leave it nevermore.
The primrose growing on the bank,
The honeysuckle wild.
Proclaimed this little sea-girt gem
As Nature's loveliest child!

I tried to drive away the snakes
Of ancient spite and feud,
And craved to see this glorious land
With love and peace imbued.
The kind hearts of its people,
Their loyal souls and true,
I felt, with spite and hatred
They should have naught to do.

* * * * * *

But now I'm high in glory,
And looking down I see
The cruel snakes are back again,
As wicked as can be.
There's broken homes and wounded hearts
And wars that never cease—
Oh! who will go to Ireland now
With the olive brance of Peace?

Madoc Firemen Have To Use Engine To End Flood.

POWER CUT OFF.

MADOC, March 17. — Spring floods are higher in Madoc than for many years. On Tuesday it was found necessary to get out the fire-engine and hose and draw off the water which had formed a lake along St. Lawrence Street in front of the United Church and R. Bristol's planing mill. Mr. Bristol has been unable to operate for two days, much of his lumber being submerged in the wood-yards behind the mill, and the water being up to the front doors of the mill. The basement of the United Church was also flooded, and it is not yet known whether the pecuniary damage will be great or not. Fortunately, the piano was lifted to the platform at an early stage of the flood. The engine was at work all day Tuesday, Tuesday evening, and most of Wednesday.

On Monday evening Madoc was without lights for about three hours. A large cake of ice snapped a wire near Deer Creek just at six o'clock. The lights were not in working order again until after nine.

A meeting of the Horticultural Society was held in the Public Library a few days ago, at which Mrs. George West, who was the Society's delegate at the convention held in Toronto in February, gave a very interesting report of the meeting. The Society here intends holding its annual peony, gladioli, tulip and general flower shows in due season. Many members were on hand to hear Mrs. West's report.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE SQUIGGLERS RAFT.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Once upon a time there were two little red spotted Squiggle Bugs named Dimmy and Simmy. Their names had nothing to do with the spots on them, but I thought I would just tell you who the bugs were so you would remember them.

"Let's crawl down the path and have an adventure as Uncle Wiggily does," buzzed Dimmy Squiggle to his brother Simmy one morning. "We shall have time before school."

"All right," agreed Simmy. "It will be lots of fun to have an adventure."

So the two little Squigglers, one named Dimmy and one named Simmy, started out from where they lived in the Knot Hole of the fence, to seek an adventure.

"I'm glad there isn't any snow," buzzed Dimmy as he crawled over a twig on the ground.

"Yes, so am I," chuckled Simmy. "Snow makes it very hard for little chaps, such as we bugs are, to get around. I'm glad winter has almost gone."

"It will be—let me see—it will be spring—" Dimmy began counting on his six legs. "It will be spring when Monday comes," he finished.

"How do you know?" asked his brother.

"Because the old song says 'March the twenty-first is Spring. The little birds begin to sing,' and Monday is the twenty-first of March."

"I'm glad you remembered that," buzzed Simmy. "We have such fun in spring and summer. We can crawl around and get honey out of the flowers."

The Squiggle Bugs, you know, like the bees and the butterflies, gathered honey from flowers.

"But there are no flowers yet," went on Dimmy. "We shall have to look for something else to eat."

"Adventures are what we want—not something to eat—we just had breakfast!" laughed Simmy. For they had eaten in their Knot Hole house before starting to go to the Hollow Stump School, where they were taught their crawling and other lessons by the Lady Mouse Teacher.

Along and along crawled Dimmy and Simmy until, all at once, they reached the pond. Floating near shore was something that looked like a round, dark brown, or black log.

"That log will make a fine raft—just like a boat!" buzzed Dimmy. "Let's get on and have a ride before we go to school!"

"That's what we'll do," agreed Simmy.

The Squigglers jumped from the water's edge to their new raft and pretended they were sailors and pirates and such jolly chaps.

Pretty soon the school bell began to ring. It seemed to say:

"Hur-ry to school! Hur-ry to school! Ding dong!"

Mimmy, who was a sister to Dimmy and Simmy, looked around the school yard for a sight of her brothers.

"Oh, they aren't here! Yet they started out ahead of me!" buzzed Mimmy. "They are going to be late! Oh, dear!"

"What's the matter?" asked Uncle Wiggily, who, just then, hopped past the school.

"Dimmy and Simmy will be late!" cried Mimmy.

"I'll go look for those little Squigglers!" offered the rabbit. He hopped back to the pond for he thought the little chaps might be there, and he saw them on their raft. But now the raft was out in the middle of the pond and the little bugs could not get back to shore.

They started out from the Knot Hole.

"The raft sailed away with us!" buzzed Dimmy.

"I don't see how it could go without sails!" added Simmy sadly.

Uncle Wiggily began to laugh.

"That is a live raft you are on!" he told the Squigglers. "It is the shell back of Mr. Poke, the mud turtle. Ha! Ha! You got on his back, thinking it was a log, and he paddled out from shore with you!"

"Bless my tail! Is there some one on my back?" called Mr. Poke, who was half asleep. "Dear me!" And when he knew Dimmy and Simmy wanted to leave their funny raft to go to school Mr. Poke paddled to shore so the Squigglers could crawl off his back without getting wet. Then they hurried to school, just in time not to be late. And if the pail of water doesn't turn a somersault and spill itself all over the floor, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Little Lizzie.

Allen Boudria, engineer, of 432 St. Patrick St., is one of Ottawa's best known citizens. "My purpose in telling the facts of my experience," he said, "is to help others who suffer as I did.

"For five years I was in misery. My whole system seemed out of gear, but my stomach troubled most. Even a drink of cold water would cause my stomach to bloat and swell abnormally. Gas would prevent me from sleeping at night so that I had to get up and walk the floor for hours. Violent stomach pains nearly drove me wild. I've seen time when I was doubled over, unable to straighten up.

"My friend M. Laponte told me how Tanlac had helped him out of similar trouble, so I got some and used 9 bottles in all. It just made me over. I feel 30 years younger than I am, and weigh 214 pounds. My appetite and sleep are both fine. I eat what I like and sleep like a top. Tanlac and nothing else, made this great change. I'm for Tanlac."

HUNTERS USE KITES

PIERRE, S.D., March 17.—Taking a leaf from "Bed Time Tales," hunters near here are employing kites in rabbit hunting. The kites are drawn over the territory being worked, frightening the animals before them until they enter the ambush of the marksmen. The bunnies mistake the kites for large hawks, it is believed. Anyway hunters are reaping small fortunes from the sale of hides gained in this way.

PRESSURE FROM DENSITY CAUSE OF IMMIGRATION

Call of Greater Opportunity in New Lands Proves Appealling.

CANADA'S CALL

Rendered Urgent by Provisions Made for Larger Population.

FOR HEAD ZEIHR TAKE ONE¶¶

Article No. 1.

This is the first of a series of articles which will be published in The Examiner as a result of arrangements made with the Department of Immigration and Colonization at Ottawa. The articles will deal in a non-controversial way with the immigration situation as it affects Canada, with the various schemes under which settlement is now being carried out by the Department of Immigration and Colonization, and with the governmental machinery available for this purpose. In view of the importance of the subject discussed and the wide-spread interest in immigration matters, The Examiner commends these articles to the consideration of its readers.

Immigration in the modern world arises mainly from two causes closely related to each other—the pressure of population in thickly settled countries, and the search for opportunity. When it is remembered that the population of all Europe averages 120 persons to the square mile and that the population of Canada as yet amounts to less than three persons per square mile, the importance of the part which this Dominion is to play in the readjustment of the pressure of population in the Old World and the New is appreciated.

Not only does this increasing pressure of population in older countries continually tend toward stimulating migration to newer lands, but the call of opportunity from these newer lands, where social and economic life have not yet hardened into rigid strata, is particularly appealing. The prospects for young men or men with families to make a start for themselves and attain independence are admittedly more attractive in a new land, where great natural resources await development, than in older countries where the population has already reached or even exceeded the maximum which can be supported in reasonable comfort.

The advantages to Canada of a movement of immigrants who will develop the natural resources of the country are almost self-evident. All the change which has taken place in converting this greater part of the North American home of over 9,000,000 people has been due to immigration. Natural resources are valueless until the magic hand of labor converts them into exchangeable commodities. This labor in the past has been, and in the future no doubt will be, largely supplied by immigrants.

Canada's call for population, although securely based upon ample natural resources, is rendered the more urgent by the optimism which in past years made provision for larger population than the country yet contains. The maintenance of law and order and the provision of educational, social, and transportation facilities serving vast areas but sparsely occupied, are an uneconomic procedure. That Canada has been able to discharge these responsibilities is a testimony to the readiness with which her natural resources yield their wealth, but is no argument for confining to 9,000,000 people the overhead which might as well be distributed over many times that number.

While the argument in favor of immigration is unanswerable, the argument against a wide-open policy allowing the entry of all races and classes is equally convincing. Mere numbers of themselves would contribute nothing to Canada's prosperity. Idle men without means are never an economic asset and may on the contrary become a very heavy drag upon the producing part of the population. It is essential that immigrants coming to this country come not only to Canada, but to employment. It is equally essential that in finding employment for themselves they do not displace others. This is particularly evident when the ease with which native-born Canadians can transfer themselves to the industrial fields of the United States is borne in mind.

The task before Canada is, therefore, not merely to find immigrants but to find employment for immigrants. This employment must arise, in the first place, out of the natural resources of the country. Agriculture, which is simply the conversion of soil fertility into raw materials for food and clothing, is the industry to which the new settler in Canada can be most confidently directed. Lumbering, fishing, mining, and the labor required for converting running water into electric energy all afford fields of employment, but all are secondary to and to some degree dependent upon agriculture. Urban population, which already exceeds fifty per cent of the whole, is equal to the country's present requirements, and the continual drift from country to city which is a feature of modern life, not only in Canada but elsewhere, is likely to at least maintain that proportion. For this reason the Department of Immigration and Colonization of Canada confines its activities to securing people of the type who will work on the land, either as farmers or as farm laborers. Houseworkers, for service in the homes in both country and city, are also particularly encouraged.

Precautions are taken against the admission to Canada of unsuitable types by rigid inspection as to physical, mental, and moral qualifications, and also (except in the case of the British Isles, the United States, and some Northern European countries), an examination as to occupational fitness to engage in agriculture in Canada.

Any movement of classes which can not readily find employment is guarded against, and, through an efficiently organized Land Settlement Branch which has ramifications in all parts of the Dominion, the farm settler or laborer is guided toward suitable lands or employment and advised as to the course most likely to start him on the road to success. Immigration to Canada has ceased to be merely the admission of great numbers who, after arrival, were allowed to shift for themselves, and has become instead a matter of directed colonization with specific attention to every individual case.

An outline of the procedure followed by the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization in its efforts to obtain desirable types of immigrants and at the same time protect Canada against the entry of those who would be of no economic value, will be given in the succeeding articles on this subject. These articles will deal with the Organization of the Department, with Immigration Laws and Regulations, Publicity and Propaganda, Empire Settlement, Transportation, Land Settlement Organization, and other branches of immigration activities of interest to Canadians. The next article, dealing with Organization, will appear in an early issue of this paper.

The Home and School Association of the school acted as hostesses; the president, Mrs. W. H. Lacey, receiving the guests, assisted by Mrs. B. Staunton. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. Mowat and Mrs. K. S. Wightman, at a table charmingly arranged with green streamers and shamrocks, bud vases containing daffodils and green candles in silver holders. Several small tables were attractive with shamrocks, green candles and baskets of Spring flowers. These were in charge of Mesdames Bennett, Hall, Patoine, Welbourn, Lush, Westbrook, Flannery, and other ladies assisting were Mesdames Skitch, Weir, Vincent, Spencer, Hood, Detcher and Bartlett. An enjoyable musical programme, in charge of Mrs. G. Evans, included vocal solos by Miss E. Dix, violin selections by Mrs. M. B. Hoyland, and piano numbers by Mrs. G. The Women's Patriotic League of Ashburnham were hostesses at a delightful and very well-attended St. Patrick's Day Tea, held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Heffman, Hunter Street West. The green novelties of the season and quantities of spring flowers made up a lovely decorative scheme. Bowls and vases of tulips, hyacinths, stocks and daffodils were in the reception rooms and the sun room, where a sale of home-made cooking was held. The table was exceptionally attractive, with its Florentine lace cloth and centerpiece in an Irish harp of smilax and white stocks. Large flat green Shamrocks, a tiny Irishman in a candy potato patch and green papiermache pigs were novelties in the decorations. Green candles were in silver holders and silver specimen vases held orange calendulas. The color scheme of the refreshments was also carried out in green and white. The guests were received by Mrs. T. H. Glover and Mrs. R. H. Parsons, assisted by Mrs. T. H. Adams and Mrs. James McDonald. Tea was poured by Mrs. T. N. D. Kelly and Mrs. A. S. ANNOUNCING THE NEW CAKE FLOUR

Peterborough Product Gets Its First Publicity In Its Home Town.

The new Quaker Cake Flour is announced for the first time in The Examiner today.

In placing this product on the market The Quaker Oats Company has made the first distribution in its home city. Already the new Cake Flour is well known in Peterborough homes through the displays in the windows of The Examiner office and grocery stores throughout the city and by word of mouth by those who have used this wonderful new product.

Unlike cake flours which contain wheat flour only, cakes made from Quaker Cake Flour will keep fresh for many days. The finest Ontario winter wheat is used and only the hearts of the wheat are good enough for Quaker Cake Flour. To this is added a proportionate amount of high-grade potato flour.

While the new Cake Flour is exceedingly delicate in texture, it is simple to use. Its very delicacy permits it to retain to the full the flavours of other ingredients in the cake. Excellent recipes are printed on the package but it may be used with any good cake recipe. You must remember, however, to use less of it than of ordinary flour.

Quaker Cake Flour can be secured at practically any grocery store in Peterborough.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

When Faith had planned so impulsively to sell Cherry's trousseau she had forgotten, for the moment, that Cherry's trunks, containing all of her wedding outfit except the wedding dress itself, one suitcase containing clothes for the train journey to New York, the going away costume into which Cherry, the bride, had intended to change after the ceremony, and the mink coat, now famous throughout the country as evidence of the aged fiance's generosity to the "belle of Myrtle Street," had been checked on Ralph Cluny's tickets to New York, there to await the arrival of the bridal couple.

But she did remember this fact after she left the jail. When Bob Hathaway called that night she took the matter up with him.

"I've heard something to the effect that the executors of Uncle Ralph's estate have ordered the trunks to be returned, Bob said thoughtfully, though I can't say exactly just what has been done. Of course the trunk checks were found after his death, together with the railroad tickets. I think Banning, the district attorney, turned them over to Neff, who in addition to being Uncle Ralph's partner, is one of the executors of the will, you know I'll ask Alexander Cluny—the other executor—to see that you get Cherry's things. They have no right to hold her trunks, and Alex knows it. If necessary, I'll have Churchill handle it for you—issue the necessary legal papers, whatever they may be. But in the meantime I think you have every moral and legal right to dispose of the mink coat and the other things that weren't in the trunks. I think it's a splendid idea. As for Cherry's notion that nobody would want to buy her clothes, she's all wet! There are hundreds of women throughout this esthetic land of ours that would pay double the worth of it to be able to say they own the mink coat that Ralph Cluny gave to Cherry Lane, the most beautiful mur—"

"Don't say it, Bob, or I'll scream!" Faith warned him. "Of course I won't sell it on that basis at all. Now what do you think about our right to the jewelry that your uncle gave her? Oh, I know it sounds horrible to suggest it, but after all, he did give the things to her—"

"You turned them over to Murchison, didn't you?" Bob asked. "That night of the discovery of the murder?"

"Yes—I'd forgotten. The state will keep them until after the trial, of course," Faith blushed with shame.

Faith had been in Chicago only twice before in her life, and she knew almost nothing of the huge, clamorous city through whose business district she found herself wandering rather forlornly one Monday morning early in December, two huge suitcases bumping against her knees. She had registered at a cheap, small hotel near the station, and her cheeks were still burning with the flush of humiliation at the curious stare with which the hotel clerk had regarded her after reading her name, "Faith Lane," written in a clear, vertical hand. It was unbelievable to her that that modest name was famous now, or rather, notorious.

In her tiny, cheaply furnished room she had searched the classified telephone directory for the names of furriers and modistes, making a list of those that seemed at all promising. She had come to Chicago with such high hopes, but as she walked from one unfamiliar street to another, she became almost ill with fear and distaste for her self-imposed task. With the assistance of an occasional policeman, she had found several of the addresses on her list, but each time had turned away, physically unable to force her feet to carry her into the imposing, exclusive-looking shops.

At last, weary to exhaustion with the weight of her suitcases, and dazed by the roar and strangeness of the city, which seemed like a great, sprawling, gray beast crouched to spring upon her, she turned into a side street.

A beady-eyed little old Jew stood in the door of the furrier's shop, his beak nose quivering for the scent of a customer. Without giving herself a chance to think, Faith accosted him breathlessly, the flush of shame staining her pale cheeks darkly.

"Do you—do you buy fur coats? Slightly used coats?"

His bright black eyes canned her shabby old brown cloth contemptuously.

"I'll show you," Faith answered hurriedly, pushing past him into the dark, narrow interior of the shop.

"Here it is!" she said eagerly, lifting the lovely, rich thing from the suitcase. "Genuine mink. It—it cost thirty-five hundred dollars."

The shopkeeper's hands seized upon the coat with almost savage avidity. She watched him in an agony of suspense as his hands smoothed or ruffled the sleek brown fur, and as he flipped the coat wrong side out to pick at the exquisite brown satin lining. There was not a sign of wear upon the lining. The coat could have gone upon the display rack of the most exclusive furrier in Chicago without a minute's work being done upon it.

"Tree hundred dollars!" The Jew lifted the coat from the counter and reached for a hanger as if the transaction were closed.

"But—I just told you!" Faith gasped. "It cost thirty-five hundred dollars. Give me back my coat!" She leaned across the counter and made a futile grab at it, her hands trembling with fear.

"Five hundred dollars and—no questions asked," the Jew grinned at her like an evil conspirator. "I got to remodel it, make a new coat out of it—"

"It's the latest style," Faith protested, not understanding his innuendo. "It's new, I tell you! I—I've had it less than two months and it's been worn very little. Give it back to me! I'll take it somewhere else!"

"Und go to jail for stealing it!" the old man snarled at her, holding the coat out of her reach. "Better you thank God you sell it to me—to old Jacob Blumfield—who don't ask no questions."

"You think I stole it?" Faith's voice rose shrilly in her terror and anger. "If you don't give it back to me immediately, I'll call the police. I mean it! The coat is mine. I'm not afraid of the police—but you are!"

TOMORROW: Faith meets with encouragement in disposing of the coat.

"CHRIST IS A SPIRIT"

Thursday:

"It Means He is Present with God"

SCRIPTURE: Read — John 16:25-33.

"I came out from the Father, and am come into the world; again, I leave the world, and go unto the Father" (Jn. 16:28). "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto the Father" (Jn. 14:12). "Looking unto Jesus, who . . . that sat down at the right hand of God" (Heb. 12:2).

See—John 14:20; Philippians 2:9; Hebrews 10:12; 1 Peter 3:22.

MEDITATION: The attempt to understand the nature of God, Father, Son and Spirit is praiseworthy. Is this too deep a mystery for us? It is not difficult to conceive of the Jesus of Galilee and Jerusalem as continuing in company with God; that is; it is easy if He Himself is a spirit and not simply a physical being. Materialism sees the extinction of that person when nerve cells cease their work. Faith on the other hand sees those nerve cells as the temporary instruments of a spirit too loving to be allowed to cease living. God lives; so does Christ. The Spirit brings him to us. We walk in that presence. Let us walk reverantly and lovingly.

"Let me love Thee for what Thou art, not for what Thou givest."

HYMN:

Dear Lord and Father of mankind,
Forgive our feverish ways;
Re-clothe us in our rightful mind,
In purer lives Thy service find,
In deeper reverence, praise.

Drop Thy still dews of quietness,
Till all our striving cease;
Take from our souls the strain and stress,
And let our ordered lives confess
The beauty of Thy peace.

Breathe through the heats of our desire
Thy coolness and Thy balm;
Let sense be dumb, let flesh retire;
Speak through the earthquake, wind and fire,
O still small voice of calm.

—John G. Whittier, 1872.

PRAYER: Pray for—trust in God's blessing on our gifts and charities; the discouraged.

Collect—Almighty Father, whose power knows no limit, let us feel within us the movings of Thy might. We thank Thee for life, marvelous in its ways. We bless Thee for the world, rich in its wooings of life. We rejoice that Thou art a spirit with whom our spirits may commune, and that Thou hast shown forth Thy nature in the Christ who lives with Thee and with us. We praise Thee for the high privilege of prayer in which spirit blends with spirit. Mercifully forgive us that we have so often chosen the satisfaction of our lower instincts to the impoverishment of the soul. Quicken, we pray Thee, our inner awareness of Thee; so shall temptation have no authority over us. Through Thy grace, we engage to walk in all Thy ways. Amen.

DRESS

The mauve chiffon frock shown on the figure is ornamented with a buckle of amethyst grapes. At the left above is a jeweled clasp holding the drapery of a fringed frock and at the right is a large emerald and ruby brooch used to pin the drapery on a white crepe frock. Below is a buckle consisting of two coin-shaped sections of green and white enamel. It is used on a white sports frock piped with green. Just above this is a carved gold buckle used on a ribbon belt.

Sad but true—women's clothes are gradually losing that simplicity of arrangement, that ease in the wearing that has characterized them for the past few years and that in other days might have been looked upon as negligence.

In effect they may be no more complicated but they must fit more exactly if not more closely. All sorts of troublesome little accessories have come back into use. Belt buckles and belt clasps which we had fondly thought never to see again are once more in evidence and however you personally feel about adding such needless details to your wardrobe the chances are that you already possess a spring frock with a belt buckle or will do so before you finish your spring shopping.

Some of the new frocks have a rather narrow belt of the material placed at a rather low waistline, attached to the frock at the back. An ornamental clasp holds the ends of this directly in the front and when the frock is on and the belt in position the clasp holds the belt rather closely around the hips. Many of the new evening frocks are practically untrimmed save for an ornamental buckle or clasp connected with the sash or girdle or fastened at the back or one side to hold the drapery in position. Sport frocks are provided with narrow leather or belting ribbon completed usually with ornamental buckles.

Related pieces of jewelry are much liked now-a-days. Your neck pendant must match your earrings, or the earrings must be worn to go with a brooch. Necklet and bracelets are of the same sort—a hat pin matches the brooch—a striking ring shows the same diamond-studded bee or other emblem as the brooch or hat pin. Sometimes two identical buckles are bought and one is used on the hat and one on the frock, thereby giving the hat and frock the much-to-be desired effect of purposeful agreement.

Someone said recently that it ought to be taken as an indication of a more docile spirit among women—that they had given up the tiger skins and leopards which were so much in fashion a season or so ago, and had begun wearing the skin of the mildest of all animals—the calf. Lambskin too, has enjoyed much favor this winter and is still to be seen in some of the fur wraps for spring.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY MARCH 18 1927

Early in the morning the planetary aspects should be stimulating to business activities, according to astrology, but later the influences will not be helpful.

This is a day for cautious policies in important matters, a time to plan rather than to execute.

All the signs appear to promise great gains for manufacturers and merchants. Scientists, especially chemists will benefit.

This should be a fairly fortunate rule for ocean travel and it is foretold that many thousands of Americans will make long journeys.

The navy will center attention and will perform important service for the nation, it is prognosticated.

This is read as an unlucky day for seeking any sort of favors or even for claiming rewards for past services.

All in search of political appointments should be careful not to test their luck while this rule prevails.

It is not an auspicious direction of the stars for those who seek employment of any sort, but the seers assure them that there will be much for every one to do before the end of the year.

Under this sway the mind may be exceedingly sensitive to impressions and inclined to believe the worst and to dread the future.

France is subject to the most threatening signs for the whole year, which may end the nation's most ambitious hopes.

Saturn is read as strong in its influences in China where a new military influence is to gain the ascendancy.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of travel and changes. They should not take everyday matters too seriously.

Children born on this day probably will have careers that are eventful. Both boys and girls may have a trend toward politics and public affairs.

Read this message from Mrs. H. Taylor, Peterborough—

"Rinso suds soak everything clean, so I have no more boiling to do, no hard rubbing on a washboard. Little wonder that my clothes last a lot longer. And Rinso isn't hard on my hands either. I have tried all kinds of laundry soaps and chips for a good many years, but nothing but Rinso for me now. It makes my washing so easy and my clothes so white and bright."

THE EXPERIMENT

(By Jeanette).

John MacGregor opened his eyes. In the bassinet beside him lay Johanna MacGregor, his twin sister. They had just arrived.

In the room across the hall, John MacGregor, Senior, talked excitedly to the doctor. The latter appeared to be uncertain and interjected a remonstrating remark, from time to time. But Mr. MacGregor talked on and seemed to be gaining ground. Cocking an attentive ear, John, Junior, listened carefully. He was a remarkable child and his hearing, although just attuned to earthly matters, was very acute. As he listened, his color, somewhat florid in cast, changed perceptibly. His face grew pale and he shook with fright. Johanna opened her eyes and emitted a tiny wail of discontent. She was an ordinary baby and was content at the moment to lie asleep in her warm nest. In response to the cry, the father and his companion hurried into the room and soothed the little girl by wrapping her up more warmly. John, Junior, closed his eyes and appeared to be asleep.

"Do you think the girl would make a better subject for experiment, doctor?" enquired the fond father, surveying the two sleeping infants with an anxious eye. John, Junior, listened hopefully. After a moment's consideration, the physician shook his head. "No, the boy would stand up better," he said. "I am doubtful, as you know, as to the wisdom of this idea," he went on. Mr. MacGregor interrupted, impatiently. "But they are my children, doctor," he said, "and think of the interest the whole world will take in the result of this experiment."

Still conversing, they went out. John, Junior, who had been listening intently, sighed—a long sigh. Then, with a fond look at his sleeping twin, he turned on his side. His small face puckered up as if he were crying, and then turned gradually paler and paler. Finally, he ceased to breathe.

Down in his office, MacGregor, Senior, propounded his idea to a long-faced clerk, who listened with unsympathetic attention.

"I have been of the opinion for a long time," said the proud parent, "that many of our worries arise from health causes. You know what life is like. First you have one illness—then another. When you are small, you suffer from teething troubles. Then you have, in rapid succession, such ailments as measles, chickenpox, tonsilitis, scarlet fever and mumps. Later on, you get pneumonia, perhaps, or diphtheria, and you are sure at some time or another to run into an operation for appendicitis and have to have your tonsils removed. Now, what I propose to do, is to take one of these babies of mine, preferably the boy, and have a lot of these things done when he is small. As fast as it can be managed, I am going to have his tonsils removed, then his appendix, and finally, when he has got most of his first teeth, I am going to have them taken out and false ones inserted. The best years of his life, when he should be studying and learning, will not be spent, if I can help it, in suffering, cooped up in some hospital room. Before he has a chance to contract them, I am going to have him inoculated for mumps and measles and scarlet fever, and I'll tell you another thing I have been considering. You know how much trouble parents have with boys who take to drink?" His listener nodded.

"Well," went on Mr. MacGregor, triumphantly, "I am going to have him inoculated for that, too. Give him a liquor distaste, as it were. Take time by the forelock, and lock the stable before the horse is stolen."

The long-faced clerk shook his head, dubiously. He was stroking his chin and considering the wisdom of asking the fond parent if he had forgotten smallpox, when the telephone rang. Mr. MacGregor jerked the receiver off the hook. As he listened to the message over the wires, his eyes filled with anguish. Replacing the receiver, he turned to the listener, and, in a voice filled with grief, said, brokenly:

"The little boy is dead." He buried his face in his hands.

Casting several backward glances of commiseration at the man whose fondest hopes had just been dashed to the ground and whose dreams of fame were doomed to unfulfillment, the long-faced clerk tiptoed from the room.

HOUSE BURNED IN HAVELOCK

George Pacey Injured When Fire Destroys His Home.

FAMILY SAVED.

HAVELOCK, March 17. — The residence of George Pacey, with its contents, on Concession street, was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday morning about 9.30.

Mr. Pacey was badly burned about the chest, arms and hands, and is at present in Mrs. Cummins' hospital, where his condition is reported as being not as serious as was at first thought, the wounds not being very deep. If it had not been for the assistance rendered by C. W. Coon, who was loading wool near by, Mrs. Pacey and the two children might have lost their lives, as they were upstairs, and were just rescued in time from an upstairs window. The fire is believed started from the cook stove and spread so rapidly that by the time the chemical engines arrived nothing could be done to save the house. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

BEAUTIFUL DELHI AGAIN IS CAPITAL

Reconstructed Into One of World's Finest Seats of Government.

DELHI, India, March 17 (Canadian Press Despatch).—Beautiful and stately are the new government buildings, the "New Delhi," where the seat of Indian government has now been re-established. Sir Edward Lutyens, with the assistance of other noted British architects, designed the buildings, which were just completed in time for the recent state opening of the Indian Assembly by Lord Irwin, Viceroy.

The magnificent Central Vista is the outstanding feature of the new capital. One end is closed by the grand ruinous pile of the old Fort built in the 16th century, and three miles west of the Fort rises the superb mass of the Secretariat, with a broad road running between its twin towers and two mighty wings, to the Viceregal Lodge, which stands high on rising ground on the horizon.

On both sides of the Vista are wide stretches of turf with three lines of trees and a series of long, shallow water-filled tanks. A few yards north of the Secretariat is the great Council House, or Parliament House, built on a pattern resembling that of the Coliseum. Massive columns encircle the building on the first floor and form a finely proportioned balcony. Due north runs the road towards the Juma Masjid (Great Mosque), which closes the view in that direction. Green lawns and palms around Parliament House add to the beauty of the nobly conceived building.

From the balcony the Viceroy will see the New Delhi spread beneath him, its mathematically straight roads (diversified by the numerous rotundas which are characteristic of the place) running between brilliantly white bungalows in their spacious compounds. Inside the gates of Parliament House three courts, with turf and flowers and fountains, stretch below the verandahs of the Chamber of Princes, the Council of State, and the Legislative Assembly. The Chamber or Council of Princes, one of the wonder rooms of India, is richly panelled, with slabs of beautifully colored stone relieving the carved paneling. The galleries for purdah ladies are behind carved stone screens, and the room is softly lit by sunlight, diffused and dimmed by the lacework of stone, which takes the place of windows in the other Chambers. The Chamber of Princes seats 86 persons, the Council of State 92, and the Assembly Chamber 162.

FINE FACILITIES FOR OLYMPICS

Grandstand at Great Stadium Will Accommodate 40,000 Spectators.

OTHER STADIUMS

AMSTERDAM, March 17 (Canadian Press Despatch).—The following description of the scenes and equipment for the 1928 Olympic games, to be held here is furnished by the Dutch Olympic committee:

The grounds, where in 1928 the Olympic Games will be held, cover an area of 40 acres (including grounds for training and motorcar-parking, 128 acres) and is situated in the southern part of central Amsterdam.

Besides the Main Stadium there will be a swimming-stadium, a Pavilion for fencing and one for other indoor sports, a cricket ground and somewhere in a quiet corner a lawntennis-stadium (3 centre—and 10 other hard courts). The chief building, the grand stadium will accommodate 40,000 visitors. There are about 20,000 seats and half of them will be covered.

In the centre of the Stadium lies the football ground of international dimensions. Around it there will be a cinder racing track (436 yards in length and nearly 9 yards across) similar to that in Colombes. Round the race course the cycling track will be constructed which will be the same width but will be 545 yards long.

The competitors will be seated near the finish and the Press will be excellently accommodated opposite the finish; 600 seats are reserved for press representatives.

The two covered stands are in the centre. One contains the Royal and other official boxes and under the other stand lies the Marathon Gate. There will also be a Marathon Tower (150 feet high) bearing on the top a large plate, from which a permanent smoke column will mount to the skies during the games.

COUNSEL CLAIMS TRUTH PUBLISHED

Tells Jury in Sapiro Suit That Everything Printed Was True.

DETROIT, March 17.— (Canadian Press.)— Senator James Reed, chief counsel for Henry Ford in the million dollar libel suit brought by Aaron Sapiro, told the jury to-day he expected to show that everything printed about Sapiro and his marketing associations in the Dearborn Independent was the truth. "The law puts no bridle on the truth," he said.

The evidence would show, Senator Reed claimed, that Sapiro sent out organizers throughout the country who painted a panacea for ills of farmers, promising them fine homes, riches, college education for their children, and large automobiles.

Better than a mustard plaster

Walter Goodfellow, great English naturalist, despite several narrow escapes from death and some close encounters with the stewpots of hungry and primitive people, does not share civilization's aversion to the ways of nature's simple human children. He would like to see New Guinea set aside as a preserve for primitive man.

RAW MILK BLAMED FOR TYPHOID CASES

Montreal Authorities Believe They Have Uncovered Source of Disease.

MONTREAL, March 17. — There does not seem to be any diminution of the typhoid epidemic that broke out on March 4 in Montreal, and which has claimed 242 cases to date, although the mortality has been practically nil.

Typhoid takes from ten days to three weeks to develop, and as it was only towards the end of last week that the supposed source of the outbreak (a milk dealer who was dispensing raw milk) was discovered, the figures may continue to grow for a few days. If the source of the typhoid has been effectually checked as the health authorities say, the figures of new cases will rapidly decline.

There were 42 new cases within 24 hours on Tuesday and all the hospitals are full to overflowing with the typhoid patients. In fact it has been necessary to turn away people suffering from other diseases.

Verdun has had a slight attack of typhoid, there being one death and 8 cases reported. The disease is supposed to have been caused by unclean milk and from impure ice cream obtained from a grocery store that also handled the raw milk.

The city has a pasteurization law passed after great opposition, but the authorities have been somewhat lenient in enforcing it.

TORY MEMBERS ADVOCATE SALE BY THE GLASS

Continuation of Debate on Second Reading of Control Act.

PREVENTS DIVISION.

Homuth Attacks Statement Read By Liberal Leader on Tuesday.

TORONTO, Ont., March 17.—(Canadian Press.) — Two Conservative members of the Ontario Legislature advocated the sale of beer by the glass in the continuation of the debate on the second reading of the Liquor Control Act this afternoon when Progressives charged that the government could not substantiate its claim of having taken the question of temperance out of politics. Unexpected participation of F. A. Wilson, (Con., Windsor East) prevented a division on the second reading to-day.

Karl K. Homuth, (Cons., Waterloo South) and Mr. Wilson frankly declared that the legislation did not go far enough and that it should have provided for the sale of beer by the glass for workingmen. Mr. Wilson painted a word picture of "a million and a half of thirsty souls in dry territory' 'in Detroit across the river from the border cities who would practically invade Ontario 'for their drinks."

J. G. Lethbridge, (Pro., Middlesex West) charged that the government was keeping the temperance question in politics because of the fact that appointments to be made to the staff of the Liquor Control Board had to receive the approval of the Lieut.-Governor in Council. He moved, seconded by J. W. Widdifield, (Ontario North) the following amendment to the amendment of W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, which sought to restrict the powers of the Board:

Amendment.

"That this House is of the opinion that the Liquor Control Board to be appointed to administer the proposed law ought to be a non-partisan body with authority to employ and discharge its subordinates without interference by the government of the day or members of the Legislature or Patronage committees as fully as the Hydro-Electric Power Commission now has authority to do."

Premier Ferguson said he regarded the amendments of the Progressive members as a challenge and expressive of want of confidence in the Government.

L. Oke, (U.F.O., Lambton East) adjourned the debate.

Attacks Statement.

Mr. Homuth opened his address with an attack on the statement read by the Liberal leader in the House Tuesday and said the statement left Mr. Sinclair free to take some credit for the success of the liquor legislation because he had not definitely declared himself on the question. The member for Waterloo South, however, assumed his share of the responsibility for the measure and said he preferred it to accepting responsibility for the wood alcohol poisoning cases in Ontario last year under the Ontario Temperance Act. He believed that every man had the right to do as he chose as long as he did not infringe the rights of others.

Mr. Homuth did not think that the bill went far enough and he had no hesitation in openly advocating the open sale of beer. He believed that it was was necessary in order to effectively check the bootlegger. He would not ask the Premier to revoke his pledge to the people, but ventured to predict that as time went on the Liquor Board would see the necessity of permitting the sale of beer in at least some communities where people had been accustomed to look upon it as part of their daily food.

HOME GARDENER GETS QUALITY

Vegetables Fresh From Garden, Would Command High Price.

SUITABLE VARIETEIS.

Many a city business man has figured out his gardening operations on cost accounting basis and found that he lost money. He would have saved hard cash had he bought his vegetables at the grocer's, his figures tell him, but like most conclusions reached in this manner they are wrong because based on assumption of positive value to intangibles. The city business man with all the money in the world could not buy in the market the quality he raised in his own garden. If a grocer sold his vegetables, fresh picked from the garden to order, he would charge accordingly, and some reliable figuring might be done. The economy would be overwhelmingly in the favor of the home garden in this case. Added to this is the fact that gardening is a pleasant hobby, the greatest economizer of health, and the only source of the very highest quality of vegetables for the table.

Suitable Vegetable Varieties.

The Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa recommends the following list of vegetable varieties as suitable for planting in this part of Canada: Asparagus — Washington, satisfactory from the standpoint of disease resistance and a good cropper. Beans—Pencil Pod Wax, Round Pod Kidney Wax, Stringless Green Pod with Kentucky Wonder Wax and Early Wonder Golden Pod as pole sorts. Beets—Flat Egyptian Early and Detroit Dark Red later. Cabbage—Golden Acre, as a round-headed first early, followed by Copenhagen Market Enkhuizen Glory as mid-season, with short stem Danish Ballhead for winter storage. Cauliflower—Early Snowball and Early Dwarf Erfurt. Carrots—Cantenay and Danvers. Corn—Extra Early Corn, Golden Bantam, and for later use, Stowell's Evergreen.. Cucumbers—Perfection. Celery—Golden Plume. Lettuce — Grand Rapids, Iceberg. Muskmelons—Hearts of Gold or Hoodo, Miller Cream or Osage, Bender Surprise and Emerald Green. Onions—Yellow Globe Danvers, Prize Taker Yellow Globe Red Globe. Peas—Thomas Laxton, Blue Bantam, Hundredfold, Stratagem. Parsnip — Hollow Crown. Radish—Scarlet Turnip White Tip. French Breakfast. Spinach—King of Denmark and New Zealand, which is a perpetual variety. Squash — Golden and Green Hubbard or vegetable marrow may be used for early use. Tomatoes—Avon Early is first early, followed by Earliana with John Baer and Bonny Best as the main crop. Turnip—Any table turnip. It is well to remember that the quality of the seeds is even more important than variety. After all, few but the most suitable varieties of garden vegetables have survived and if high quality fresh seed is purchased half the gardener's worries are over.

Holidays and the Garden.

If at all possible the urban gardener should take into consideration the time of his summer holiday when he is planting his flowers and vegetables. Of course, in the perfect garden there will always be a good show of bloom and a steady supply of salad material from the first of June on, but in the amateur's layout there is usually a time when the garden is at its best. This should not come when the owner is away at some summer resort or on a distant motor tour. One can quite easily arrange to have things come on at the full either in July, August or September. If the gardener is going away, for instance, in July, it is best to delay planting of gladiolus, dahlias and the main annual flowers grown from seed until a week or two later than usual. The same rule should be practiced with beets, carrots, corn, tomatoes and melons. When this is done, the main crop, of both flowers and vegetables will come on in August. If one is not taking holidays until August, however, it is well to get some flowers and vegetables in as early as possible, and the balance in very late, so that there will be a succession. This is especially true of the flower garden. Order new varieties of gladiolus and dahlias early. Stocks of these are soon exhausted.

Never attempt to lay out a vegetable garden without previously drawing upp a plan on paper.

When the soil will crumble after being pressed between the hands, it is ready to dig. If it sticks in a ball, it is too wet and should be left or a day or two.

The Largest Single Shipment of Motor Oil ever made in Canada

THIS week, the largest single shipment of motor oil ever made in Canada—a solid train-load of twenty-six cars of Marvelube Motor Oils — pulled out of our Sarnia Refinery for delivery to Imperial service stations and dealers in Western Canada.

This train was made up of eighteen carloads of Marvelube in bulk and eight carloads of Marvelube in barrels, drums and cans, ordered for Spring delivery to supply this year's initial demands of the motorists of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

One year ago Marvelube was unknown to the motorists of Canada! Today the demand for this "finest of all motor oils" is such that a record-breaking oil shipment is necessary to fill the orders of dealers serving the needs of only one section of the Dominion.

This huge demand for Marvelube has been created by the satisfactory lubricating results given by the oil in practical use during 1926.

From the Atlantic to the Pacific across Canada, 200,000 motorists are now using Marvelube regularly and exclusively.

No other oil ever won, by sheer merit, such a huge number of satisfied users in so short a time. No other oil could, because Marvelube, used regularly in the proper grade, always proves itself superior on every basis of comparison, to any other motor oil sold in Canada.

This year, start your car off on the correct grade of Marvelube Motor Oil. You will get improved operation with more power and smoother, cooler running, and as the months pass you will realize the operating economies which Marvelube so unmistakably brings by the better lubricating results it gives.

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

75,000 CHICKS HATCHED DAILY IN INCUBATOR

Large Electric Plant Has Capacity of Two Million a Month.

IN CALIFORNIA.

100,000 Eggs Are Set Daily, Mostly of the White Leghorn Variety.

PETALUMA, Cal., March 16.—Seventy-five thousand new orphans every 24 hours!

That reads like the start of some gigantic catastrophe, but in reality it is quite constructive.

The 75,000 is the total of baby chicks hatched each day in the peak run of an incubator plant costing a half million dollars, which has just been opened here. The plant has a hatching capacity of 1,800,000 chickens every three weeks.

Man has harnessed electricity to do the work, so that it may well be said that electricity has become "the greatest mother of them all."

Plant is Enormous.

The capacity of this plant is said to be nearly double that of any other hatchery in the world. It represents the rapid progress made by Petaluma, already famous as "the world's egg basket," since 1925, when Leo A. Bourke, head of the hatchery, erected a plant of 900,000-chick capacity.

Bourke is one of these "single-track" men you often hear about. Ten years ago he started with the idea that electricity would be a better and more faithful mother to chicks than would the brood hen or any other heating agency previously used for artificial incubation of eggs.

His first hatchery handled 100,000 chicks each three weeks. By 1923, when fire destroyed the plant, its capacity had gone to 400,000. Bourke rebuilt on a scale of 600,000 capacity, but in less than four years has grown to three time that size.

High Voltage Stepped Down.

Electricity is brought into the plant over 4,000-volt wires, and stepped down in voltage and amperage to meet hatching needs. None of the great manufacturing plants of the San Francisco bay region use as much electricity as this egg hatchery.

Here are the statistics revealing the extent of the enterprise:

225 hens laying for the hatchery.
100,000 eggs set each day.
75,000 chicks hatched each day.
1,800,000 eggs total capacity.
180,000 eggs to each of ten aisles of incubators.
3,780 separate incubators.

Nothing is left to chance. The eggs are turned each 20 minutes by helpers who work all around the 24 hours of the clock.

Not only is his the largest hatchery in the world, but similar plants also located here turn out an equal volume of newly hatched chicks.

All but one per cent. is of the White Leghorn variety, to be raised both for food and laying purposes.

FARMERS OPPOSE NEW GAME RULES

Allowed To Shoot Pheasants In British Columbia, But Not To Bag Them.

Farmers in British Columbia are still having trouble with the game authorities, particularly in connection with the European pheasants, which were introduced some years ago, and are now well established. As a result of many deputations last season agriculturists were allowed the privilege of shooting these birds any time when found damaging crops. Recently, however, an amendment to the game laws states that pheasants so killed must be left on the ground to rot or handed over to the nearest charitable institution. The Agricultural Committee of the Provincial Legislature considers this amendment nothing but a "slap in the face," and a fight is expected.

This committee will also fight in the Legislature for the right of farmers to kill deer or fur-bearing animals which are destroying crops, without notifying game wardens of their action. It is pointed out by the Secretary of the Advisory Board of the Farmers' Institutes that farmers are struggling against serious difficulties in the way of official restrictions in their efforts to protect their land from deer and other game.

National Farmers' Union.—The National Farmers' Union of England now has a branch in every administrative county in England and Wales. There are over 1,000 sub-branches in the various counties and their membership exceeded 130,000. The success of the Union is said to be very largely due to the sympathetic way in which they have been treated by the national and county press. It is supported by working farmers on behalf of working farmers, and in the main membership comprises only those who are wrestling with the soil with the object of getting a living from it.

Wheat Sown in Russia.—The International Institute of Agriculture at Rome reports that the area sown to winter wheat in Russia, for the 1927 harvest, is estimated to be 24.8 per cent. greater than for 1926, while that devoted to rye is 10.9 per cent less than last year. In Russia the winter acreage is normally about 30 per cent of the total wheat acreage. These estimates bear out earlier predictions that wheat acreages might be increased at the expense of rye. The actual acreage sown to winter wheat this year in Russia is estimated at 9,500,000, while rye acreage is 12,594,000.

Essex Farmer Makes New Ploughing Record

B. Stothers, Agricultural Representative in Essex County, rubbed his eyes, believing he was the victim of a mirage or something of the sort. For in the near distance, on the farm of Harvey Ellis, Naylor Sideroad, Maidstone Township, was a plow being operated by a tractor.

Mr. Stothers told The Globe he believed that Mr. Ellis had established a record for Essex County, the "banana belt" of Canada, by starting plowing as early as March 10. "I never remember having heard of plowing going on at this early date," Mr. Stothers said.

EXPORT MARKET PRICES WEAKER

Rate Cut Encouraging, But Cattle Prices Too Low for Shipping.

14,800 EXPORTED

Although the recent cut of $5 to $7.50 per head in ocean rates on cattle shipped via the Canadian Merchant Marine and the Reford Line is encouraging to exports and will be of very real assistance in developing the feeder trade, no great rise in exports can be looked for until the British market improves materially, expert say.

"There can be no revival in this trade until British prices improve," C. C. Lyster market representative for the Dominion Live Stock Branch at Toronto, stated recently. "I know of several cases where considerable money has been lost on export shipments, in some instances as high as $30 per head. A cut of $5 will not help in this case. Good cattle are worth $7.25 in Toronto this week; it costs more than $4 per hundred to get them across, and the price on the other side is only $11.25."

Stockers and Feeders.

With improvement in the British cattle market the cut in rates is expected to stimulate shipment of stocker and feeder cattle. "When I was in Britain three years ago farmers there seemed to be quite disappointed that they were not getting more stockers and feeders from Canada," said L. E. O'Neill of the Ontario Live Stock Branch. Under the old rates of $20 and up, he explained, it was necessary to ship heavy stuff in order to hold down charges per hundredweight.

From Jan. 1 to Feb. 24, 1926, nearly 14,800 Canadian cattle were shipped overseas. During the corresponding period of this year fewer than 3,300 went over.

MAKE STUDY OF SOIL PRIOR INOCULATION

Care is Required in Selection of Seed and in Proper Tillage.

Although in some cases inoculation may mean the difference between success and failure, yet it should always be remembered that it is but one factor in successful legume production. Even the best of cultures will be unsuccessful if the other conditions necessary for a good legume stand are not met. An inoculated crop requires the same care in seed selection and in the preparation and tillage of the soil an uninoculated crop. When good soil and climatic conditions prevail, and when the crop is cared for, properly, inoculation is most likely to bring benefit.

Failure of inoculation to benefit a crop may be assigned to a number of different causes. Information on this point is being accumulated by the Division of Bacteriology, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, through reports of field tests returned by farmers using nitro cultures. Of the hundreds of reports received for the years 1924 to 1926, 78 per cent indicated that the crop was benefited through inoculation.

In a large number of cases the reason for apparent non-success is due to the soil being already inoculated. Both treated and untreated plants grow equally well in an inoculated soil, the added bacteria being obviously superfluous.

In other instances, however, where crop growth is poor with treated as well as untreated seed, adverse climatic or soil conditions may be responsible for lack of success. Drought, poor drainage, soil sourness, etc., are outstanding causes for legume failures, even with treated seed, the adverse conditions affecting the bacteria as well as the plants themselves. Good drainage and liming are frequently necessary before a good legume stand can be established, the amelioration of the soil from these improvements favoring the crop, not only directly, but also indirectly by fostering the nitrogen gathering bacteria, which then have a much better chance of surviving when introduced into the soil. When a soil is being limed for legume cultivation it is best to add the lime well in advance of seeding to give it sufficient time to react with the soil before inoculated seed is planted. Adding lime together with treated seed may result in the destruction of large numbers of legume bacteria.

In still other cases, non-success may be simply the result of using inferior seed, the crop being thus handicapped from the start. The remedy in such cases is obvious. In considering inoculation it should always be remembered that legume bacteria are living things and may be quite powerless to overcome detrimental factors; that the better the soil and cultural conditions, the better will be their chance to perform their useful work.

UNITED COUNTY APPLE GROWERS HOLD MEETING

DIRECT SALES BEST.

Producers Are Urged To Concentrate on the Growing of Spy and McIntosh Classes.

In no uncertain terms producers a the annual meeting of the Northumberland and Durham Apple Growers Association here today were told that much of the trouble with the apple business at the present time traced back to poor varieties. In this district, it was disclosed, almost 75 per cent. of the total apple crop was made up of Ben Davis and Starks, two varieties for which there was very little demand today. "You may sell a customer a lemon in the place of an orange," said George Wilson, from the Norfolk Co-operative Fruit Growers' Association, "but it is a pretty hard proposition, and it can't be done very often. It may be a sign of weakness on our part as growers to give the consumer what he wants, but it makes sales easier." Andrew Fulton of the Fruit Branch, Ottawa, voiced the same opinion, and further added that it was sometimes hard to sell even good Ontario varieties of apples because the consumer has been educated to ask for varieties grown in British Columbia and the Western States.

Market Depressed.

There is a good deal of dissatisfaction in this section over the apple-market situation, according to President J. G. Waite, Colborne. For the past few years the business as a whole has not been very prosperous, and growers are anxious to learn the reasons why. According to Mr. Fulton, the big crop in the States this year was one of the most visible causes of the present depression, and he claimed that prices would have been still lower in domestic outlets had not the dumping clause been applied. But the real reason for depression was the large percentage of poor-type apples grown in Ontario, this speaker maintained. He strongly urged concentrating on a few of the better-class apples, such as Spy and McIntosh, both of which, he claimed, could be planted without fear of overproduction; and, with these as a base, he would pack well, and, if possible, develop new markets. He explained that the Government was doing all in its power to establish new outlets, and had made trial shipments to many countries at present not served with our fruit. Mr. Fulton stressed the necessity of orderly marketing, claiming that it was not fair to dealers or producers to ship carloads of stuff to markets without first ascertaining whether that market was supplied or not.

Direct Sales Best.

This phase was also discussed by Mr. Wilson, who pointed out that the best way to sell was direct. In that case, he said, the dealer would take some interest in the fruit he had already purchased and would see that it reached a market where there was a demand, and would also sue the railway if there was any damage in transit. Mr. Wilson thought that the box pack might be extended in Ontario, but warned his hearers that this would be possible only with certain varieties, and then only if growers made up their minds to take more care in growing, grading and packing. Rough handling, he stated emphatically, would not do.

Toronto Market Poor?

In answer to a query by C. B. Sissons, Newcastle, Mr. Wilson stated that the Norfolk growers did not ship to Toronto to any extent because that market was usually glutted early in the season by huge quantities of cull fruit brought in by truck from near-by orchards. He thought there might be a chance of doing something there later on in the season, but he would not want to ship fruit on consignment.

Grafting and Spraying.

James A. Neilson, from the Horticultural Experiment Station at Vineland, gave the growers some concrete advice on changing their poor varieties to something better. Where the trees were healthy, fairly young, free from disease and of good shape, these, he said, might be top-grafted with scions of varieties for which there was a demand. Prof. L. Caesar, O.A.C., Guelph, outlined the latest methods of spraying, emphasizing the necessity of plenty of power behind the nozzle, and of giving the tops of the trees an extra dose.

New Buffalo Park

The map shows the new wood buffalo park situated on the northern boundary of Alberta. The portion below the Peace River was added this year to give the buffalo the winter around Lake Claire and Mamawi Lake. The new portion is about 6,500 square miles. The older portion was about 11,000 square miles. The photo shows buffalo taken after they had landed from a scow in their new home. Buffalo transported from Wainwright Park in Alberta to their new home, have always been in charge of "Jim" Cornwall, veteran of the north-west.

Letters from a Farmer's Wife

Dear Olive:

It's snowing like sixty today—just what I've been dreading after the spring-like weather we have been having. I told the folks it would seem like winter just setting in if it turned cold and stormy; but of course, we might know better than to expect a lovely mild winter all through. One thing consoles us, the winter is so far advanced that we will not have so long to put up with storms and cold.

Hasn't it been a great winter for the lumbering men to get their timber out. Its been a busy season in the north country and I believe they are getting pretty well caught up. I'm always glad to see the first snowflakes in the fall and really enjoy the winter weather, for it always seems to be a time of rest for everything (except the woodsmen) after the long hot days of summer. We farmfolks have the most to do just at the time of year when so many others are sporting; so when winter comes we can relax a little also and sit around and read or knit.

I've been terrible lazy this winter and about all I've done is do the housework, take care of my hens, and oh yes! I've done quite a bit of knitting; two whole pair of socks, and refooting four or five pair, also a small pair of mittens for a little lad that happened to be minus a pair. His dear little paddies were cold so I sent him some. I do love to give little folks warm things to wear and see them all "comfly clothed" as a nice old lady used to say. Outside of this knitting I've been telling you about, I've just sit around and read. On mail nights when the Peterborough Examiner comes, Eva and I grab the papers, and of course she looks over the parts she is interested in mostly and the same with me. You know our mail comes three times a week, and we both want the oldest paper; most everyone wants the latest, but not so with us.

Have you ever read "The Mill On The Floss?" It's an English story. I never did until this winter and I like it fine only I'm sorry poor Tom and Maggie were drowned, although if Maggie had lived there was bound to be sorrow for she couldn't have married Stephen and Philip, both; and if she had taken Stephen, the one she really loved, poor Lucy and Philip would have been heart-broken; so I guess the author (George Eliot) thought it the best way to end it. For a small book there is a lot of reading in it, and I was so interested that I wanted to be at it all the time. I had it in my hand so much that Ethelbert wanted to know what that book was about for I seemed to be glued to it.

Yesterday I was going to wash clothes and bake bread, and I did want to get to the end of that book, so I'd wash a while and read a while. It reminded me of being home and having a novel hid away upstairs. I'd sly away for a few moments to read, when mother would miss me and call me. I did like to linger just for another line and before I knew it she was calling again; I'd answer 'yes' in a minute and glance another line or two, having that uneasy feeling that I shouldn't be doing it. That was the way it was yesterday; but nevertheless the washing, baking and book all were ended at about the same time by dividing my attention between them. You'll be saying I'm as much of a kid as ever; it's the same with this letter. I shouldn't have started it until after dinner for I had to leave it and start the meal. I put meat over to stew quite early this morning, I'm cooking cabbage with pork, cut up in small pieces to flavor it; we do love cabbage and pork together. I'm different from Father Jiggs, it's always beef and cabbage with him; also I peeled a "dose" of little potatoes for dinner. I haven't told you how economical I've become this winter, well sir, I am using all little potatoes to peel. Ethelbert couldn't imagine what had struck me to do that, for I've always used the biggest ones I could pick out, and leave the small ones for seed. This winter I've changed plans and will have the big ones for seed and to sell. I wash the peelings and cook them for the hens and then mix shorts from his pig feed with them, put in some pepper and I had a churning of cream, that wouldn't go into butter, so I saved it and mix some of it into the cooked peelings and shorts and say! it smells dandy, that cream just gives it the right touch and don't the hens like it? I'll say so. They don't lay to amount to anything though just an odd egg. It beats me how a hen can lay today and then not again for a week. I got three eggs two weeks ago Sunday and I thought now I'll be getting eggs right along and I guess maybe 5 or 6 is all I've had since, but a hen cannot lay all winter and summer too, so they will make up for it later.

About the turkey raising, I don't believe there is any set rule for success with them. I had the best luck this last two years. My cure all for diseases with turkeys is Epsom salts. If you see them getting dropsy just pour a good big dose of salts dissolved in warm water down their necks and it always helps mine, unless they are too far gone. I take them out of the nest as soon as they are hatched and keep them warm for two or three days. They don't need any food for two days, then I wash the mother hen in a good disinfectant, and put her in a coop to dry her feathers and when she is dried I give the little turkeys to her. I keep her shut up and feed them soft feed, bread soaked in milk or cottage cheese or any table scraps, no salty stuff, though. When, in a few days they are strong and able to follow the mother hen I let them go where they like and they will grow, like weeds and keep free from lice and disease far better than if kept around the buildings.

One thing I love to see spring coming for is to be setting the eggs for hatching. I always use mother hens. I never cared for an incubator, it is too much like factory made stuff for me. I like to hear the mother coaxing the little chicks when they are having their struggle to come out of the shell to listen to the mother hen clucking as if in sympathy for their weakness and trying to offer encouragement by telling them to be patient, it won't be long until they will be in the outside world. Did you ever think about how everything must put forth an effort to gain deliverance for this life here, even to plants, even nations.

Soon it will be 60 years since this Canada of ours gained freedom and liberty by really getting out of the bondage of perplexity and numerous difficulties. I have read the Canadian history through again this winter and such troublesome times as those pioneers did have; sometimes we think our own present times are bad enough, but nothing like theirs.

How is the girl doing at the marcelling and hair-dressing job in Toronto? Fine, I hope. It still storms, spoiling our good roads, but it will all come out right yet—don't take long to beat them down again—love and adieu.

FRONTENAC MAY FOLLOW LEAD OF PETERBORO

Agricultural Representative is Endeavoring to Start Cow Testing.

PAYING OPERATION

Cows Ought to Produce 8,000 Pounds of Milk Yearly.

Kingston.—Mr. A. W. Sirett, agricultural representative in this district, is endeavoring to get the farmers in Frontenac county interested in "cow testing." Already a number of the farmers have decided to test their cows, so that they can tell whether or not they are paying for themselves.

Interviewed by a representative of The Examiner, Mr. Sirett stated that the average amount of milk produced by the cows in Frontenac county was about 4,000 pounds yearly. The records which were kept for the cheese factory season show that Frontenac county cows on an average gave 3,700 pounds of milk in a year. To this Mr. Sirett said that he was adding about three hundred pounds obtained during the winter months when the cheese factories were closed. It is claimed that if a farmer is to make money out of his cows, they must produce about 8,000 pounds on the average. The experts at the Agricultural College, at Guelph, who have gone into the question from all angles, found that its costs, between $50 and $60 per year to feed a cow which means that the cow which only gives 4,000 pounds per year, is not a good financial proposition.

It is claimed that if a test is made, the farmer will soon learn the cows in his herd which are paying for themselves and the owner would be well advised to dispose of the low producers and get a better class of cow.

Although no scheme will be decided upon until a meeting of the farmer interested is held, it has been suggested that meetings be held in various parts of the county and the subject discussed. It is a very difficult matter to get the farmers to attend meetings held in the public halls, and for that reason the suggestion has been made that barn meetings be held and the farmers in the different districts could have a free discussion on this all-important question.

The Department of Agriculture for the Dominion of Canada has issued a pamphlet in which there are numerous examples of farmers who have tested their cows and benefited greatly.

CROW TRAP PLANS MAY BE OBTAINED

By Writing to Department of Biological Survey in Washington.

Jack Miner, of Kingsville, Ontario, owner of the Jack Minder Bird Sanctuary, who invented a trap to catch crows, has given full plans, specifications and particulars of same to the United States Government, who, in turn, will supply any individual, free of charge, with blue prints, plans and full details for erecting same, upon application to the Biological Survey, Washington, D. C., providing the party making application is interested to the extent of building such a trap. Jack Miner has caught several thousand crows in his crow trap on his Jack Miner bird sanctuary, as high as 510 at one catch.

Jack Miner was recently in the New England States where it was circulated "that he had patented crow trap and was going to sell plans." Jack Miner wants such a statement contradicted as he says, "I am going to devote the balance of my life to conservation of bird life on the continent and anything I have invented, such as traps to catch crows, or anything else on sanctuary will not be sold or commercialized in any way, manner, shape or form and have given all such plans to people of North American who can secure them through the Biological Survey of Washington, D. C." Jack Miner says, "My idea of conservation is not to conserve the wild fowl of the continent to die of old age but to conserve them in order that they may not become extinct so that generations to come will always be able to hav the increase of such fowl.

Alfalfa For China.—Two hundred tons of alfalfa have been shipped from Coaldale, Alta. to Hong Kong, China. This is probably the first order for alfalfa hay from that quarter, and it is probably due to the concentration of British troops in China. Only No. 1 well baled hay was sent by the Southern Alberta Corporation Association, which furnished the whole lot. Grading was done by C. G. Tapp, Government Inspector, before the hay was loaded on cars at Coaldale.

Canning Crops.—The production of fruit and vegetables last year in the counties of Kent and Essex amounted to more than $1,500,000, according to statistics compiled by Henderson Durham, federal inspector for the district. There were 4,977 acres under canning tomatoes, and the yield was 1,041,450 bushels, while the value of this crop is placed at $416,580. Six hundred and forty acres of the field tomatoes produced a crop valued at $277,761.

SWINE IMPROVEMENT.

Department Aids Farmers in Selecting Bacon Breeding Stock.

In order to assist farmers in Southern Saskatchewan in securing select bacon breeding stock, the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture has stationed a man at the Moose Jaw Stockyards to look after the bacon-type sows that will be purchased there, bred to pure-bred sires and sold at cost, plus feed and service price. This work is being carried on through the co-operation of the department with the Stockyards Company, the packers and the Live Stock Exchange. The Dominion representative has agreed to pick out the choicest sows as he grades them, and packers and commission companies have agreed that the department will be allowed to have the very best sows that come on the yards.

RAISERS OF SHEEP HAVE CLEAN FARMS

Ninety Per Cent. of Troublesome Weeds Are Readily Eaten By Sheep.

The variety-loving habits of sheep in the matter of diet render them very useful in destroying weeds that give trouble in crop growing. It is a well understood fact that the sheep-raising farmers have the cleanest as well as the richest farms. It is calculated that fully ninety per cent of the troublesome weeds are readily eaten by sheep, and these include practically all of the kinds that demand special methods of cultivation on many Canadian farms. With intelligent management cropped land may be entirely cleaned of nearly all weeds, while the few that remain will be so thoroughly kept in check as to give little trouble. If allowed to act as scavengers, sheep will render excellent service in the work of cleaning up permanent pastures, private roads, fence borders and other out of the way places, and if turned on stubble following a grain crop many late seeding weed plants will be nipped off and turned into mutton.

ENGLISH BOYS GIVEN A SPECIAL TRAINING

Alberta and Ontario Have Schools For Educating the New Arrivals.

Two provinces have taken up the scheme of giving farm training of English boys with a view to placing them on the land as actual settlers. In Alberta a course is given in one of the agricultural schools, followed by a period of apprenticeship on farms under the supervision of the department of agriculture. A similar scheme is being carried through in Ontario, where a farm has been bought for training the young men after arrival. The farm is situated near Guelph and bears the name of Vimy Ridge, which in itself should be an inspiration. It is equipped with all modern farm machinery and is stocked with fine cattle and hogs. Accommodation is provided for about sixty boys, and last year 13 graduated to farm positions. The boys, who are under contract to the provincial department of agriculture for three years, are given a month's intensive training on arrival and then placed with farmers who, the authorities are satisfied, will help them in every way to become proficient at the calling they have adopted. The department undertakes to keep them in farm positions for three years, at the end of which time its advice is available should the youth desire to establish himself upon a farm in the province.

STATION DEVELOPS PEDIGREE BREEDING

Records Are Kept of All Eggs and Chickens in Up-to-Date Manner.

The pedigree breeding of poultry is being carried on by careful methods at the Lacombe, Alberta, experimental station. The report of that station for 1925 explains that all breeding stock is mated to the best males that it is possible to obtain. The breeding hens are all trap-nested and every egg that each individual hen lays that is suitable for hatching is marked with the hen's number and put in the incubator. On the eighteenth day of incubation, all the eggs are sorted and each hen's eggs are put in a small cheesecloth, or mosquito-netting bag, and on the twenty-second day all chicks hatched are leg-banded with a small band which is numbered, and the number is placed opposite the dam's and sire's numbers in the pedigree hatching book. It is possible in pedigreeing poultry in this way to ascertain the results from each male and female mated. As the years go on, by using always best producers, males and females, that have the vitality and vigor to stand the cold winters, that are true to the standard of the breed, that are prepotent in transmitting these qualities to their progeny as well as the qualities of good hatchability of eggs and livability of chicks, it is possible to have a strain of poultry which is a credit to the poultry industry.

BEETS PROFITABLE

The average acre income from sugar beets in the Taber Irrigation District of Alberta in 1926 was $71.58, three times greater than that of wheat.

BIG CO-OPERATIVE GAIN

Figures collected in 1922 and 1925 for co-operative associations handling dairy products, fruits and vegetables indicate the small association lost in relative importance and the large association gained.

ALFALFA EEED VERY POPULAR WITH SHEEPMEN

One of the Most Nutritious Fodders Grown on Canadian Farms.

HARVEST EARLY.

For Hay It Should Be Cut When About One-Fourth in Bloom.

Alfalfa as it becomes known is growing in favour among sheep raisers as a fodder crop. It is not only a heavy cropper but it is one of the most nutritious fodders grown on Canadian farms, and practically all classes of farm animals consume it with great relish. On account of its deep and strong rooting habit it is peculiarly adapted to dry or gravelly bottom land, but it may be grown successfully wherever wheat growing is or may be carried on, except, perhaps, in very cold latitudes. It has a food value quite equal to red clover both as hay or pasture, and because of its strong growth, producing from three to four cuttings in a season, it is more valuable as a crop. Alfalfa has obtained a strong foothold in Ontario and east, as well as in British Columbia, and is gaining ground rapidly in Alberta, where it is expected to become perhaps the chief fodder crop, more particularly in the dry and irrigated sections. In Saskatchewan and Manitoba it is grown to some extent, and strong hopes are entertained that in these provinces it will yet become one of the staple forage crops.

Alfalfa hay for sheep fodder should be harvested before it becomes tough, and should therefore be cut as nearly as possible to the time at which it is coming into bloom. If allowed to mature beyond that stage tough fibres develop, which are slow to digest and are liable to cause trouble in the digestive tract of the sheep. Sheep feeding on over-mature alfalfa are occasionally lost by reason of balls of fibre forming and clogging the outlet of the stomach. There is no danger from this cause if the alfalfa has been cut on the green side. Alfalfa for sheep hay should therefore be grown alone or with an early grass such as orchard grass. If grown with a later crop the latter has to be cut too green or the alfalfa becomes too far advanced.

Alfalfa is claimed by some, who have had little experience with it, to be unsafe for pasturing sheep on account of its extreme succulence and liability to cause bloat and its attendant evils. An extensive sheep raiser, who has adopted alfalfa as his chief pasture, has the following to say in its favour:—

"Thirteen years' experience with alfalfa convinces me that it is beyond doubt the best and most economical pasture for sheep. I consider it a very safe pasture, as I never yet saw the first evil result to any class of animals, in fact I have never lost a single animal pasturing on this crop. No crop is more valuable, especially as a pasture, and of course for hay as well. It makes better hay than red clover, although by analysis it ranks about equal. It is cleaner than clover and stock eat it more readily.

"For hay, alfalfa should be cut when about one-fourth in bloom, put in very small cocks very green, and allowed to cure that way. It is my most valued crop and is good for all stock, pasture and hay alike."

NEW BASIS SOUGHT MARKETING HOGS

Government Asked to Form New Scheme to Govern Sale of Swine.

Representations have been made to the Federal Department of Agriculture with a view to a new price basis being established, governing the marketing of swine.

The agreement now in effect was concluded some six years ago between the Dominion and Provincial Governments, the Select Swine Committee and the packing interests. One of the conditions provides for a premium of 10 per cent. for hogs of a certain type. It is understood there is a move in certain quarters looking to a different arrangement. The matter is now under consideration and no official pronouncement is available, but the attitude of the department is understood to be that there can be no new price basis or new hog purchasing agreement without repudiation of the existing agreement until the four parties to the original agreement have been consulted.

ALFALFA ENRICHES SOIL

Alfalfa adds to the fertility of the farm whereas grass hay crops deplete the stock of organic and mineral elements and leave the land poorer on that account, says Ford S. Prince, soils and crops specialist at the University of New Hampshire.

ALBERTA HAY FOR CHINA

Approximately 200 tons of alfalfa from the Lethbridge district has been ordered by the British Government for shipment to China. The hay is being supplied by the Southern Alberta Co-operative Association.

ARE LOOKING AHEAD

An international grain show commencing at this year's Saskatchewan Provincial exhibition, is one of the features arranged by the directorate of the Regina Exhibition Association. A greater feature of the work of the directors is their plan to hold a world's Grain Congress in Regina during the exhibition of 1932.

Varsity Grads Defeat New Edinburgh 17 to 1 On Round

GRADS DEFEAT NEW EDINBURGHS

Win Game Seven To One and Round Seventeen To One.

ENTER FINALS.

Will Meet Western Winners in the Allan Cup Play-offs.

TORONTO, March 17—The University Grads inflicted another defeat on the New Edinburgh team of Ottawa at the Arena Gardens last night. It was the Grad's final appearance here this season. They treated the visiting team much easier than they did in the first game at Ottawa, and were content with the big end of a 7 to 1 score. The lone Ottawa tally came in the second period, and was really scored by "Red" Porter of the Grads, who tried to take the puck away from Mueller when the latter was endeavoring to clear McEvoy's shot. The Grads won the round by a total score of 17 to 1, which just about represents the difference in the two teams.

The game drew a small crowd of fans, who came, apparently, to get a big laugh out of the proceedings. In this they were successful, the Grads playing under wraps most of the time, but spurting occasionally just to prove how much better than their opponents they were. They toyed with the rubber at time, and created some divertisement for the fans by the deliberate manner in which they would scoop the puck from the sticks of their opponents. Plenty of opportunity was given the Ottawa players to score, particularly in the last two periods. Joe Sullivan guarded the nets in the opening session and he had nothing difficult to handle. In the last two periods, Mueller replaced Sullivan, and but for Porter's miscue, he would have kept the goalless record of the Grads against Ottawa without a blemish.

Plaxton Again the Chief Scorer

Hugh Plaxton proved The big goal-getter again last night. He tallied four of the seven counters, and the other three were from the sticks of Trottier, Porter and Gordon. The Grads could have piled up an even bigger score than the one at Ottawa had they so desired. The New Edinburgh were outclassed in every position, and under the speed of the Grad's attack they were helpless. Beveridge, in the Ottawa nets, made many excellent stops, and all the goals that beat him were well earned.

Tom O'Neill, the New Edinburgh defence man, who was responsible for a lot of illegal body-checking in the game at Ottawa, did not make the trip here. His place was taken by Reid, who showed an inclination to rough it at times. Reid was handing out stiff body-checks, particularly in the final period. In the second frame he was carried off the ice after Trottier had backed into him on the wing.

Just prevoius to this Reid and Trottier had a mix-up behind the Ottawa goal, and the Grad player took a punch at Reid that missed, but sent the players to the ice in a close embrace. No harm befell them, and they were not penalized. Trottier's body check that sent Reid to the dressing room a few minutes lates was accidental.

In the final frame Reid and Hudson exchanged body checks, the latter serving a penalty for his. Reid went to join him, however, when he charged into a Grad player a minute later. Outside of these few infractions the game was clean.

CLOSE BATTLE IN BILLIARDS FINAL

Two Ex-Soldiers Play For Ontario Amateur Championship.

SMALL DIFFERENCE.

TORONTO, March 17.—In one of the most grueling battles ever witnessed on a billiard table, H. Osborne, of the West End Canadian Legion, gained a scant lead of six points over W. Johnson of the same club in the first block of their 1,000 point game for the Ontario title on Tuesday at Brunswick Hall.

For the first 200 points of the game Johnson had things pretty much his own way, but at this point Osborne suddenly got into his stride and from then on it became a most spectacular game. At one point the score stood 419 all, and from then on up until the very end it was anybody's game. There were no extraordinary breaks, Johnson's 46 in the early stages of the game being best, but with the style of play employed by both players big breaks were out of the question.

Johnson is a wizard at cannons and as a judge of angle there is perhaps not another amateur can equal him. Osborne's specialty is red-ball play and most of his breaks were made in this manner. There was only one "fluke" during the game, this being made by Johnson when, having missed a cannon, his ball, which had grazed the red, rolled back and dropped neatly into the side pocket.

The finish of the session was most exciting. The score stood 499 to 495 in favor of Osborne. All three balls were in balk and it looked as if Johnson would be able to come through, but he missed, and Osborne had an easy cannon, closing the block with the score of 501 to 496.

HORNSBY'S BAT RINGS IN CAMP

Average For Exhibition Games is .385—Sees Return of Crown.

BACK IN FORM.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Rogers Hornsby viewed with confidence his chances of recovering the National League batting championship to-day as figures for the Giants' training camp campaign gave him an impressive exhibition average of .385.

He added only one hit to his total yesterday while the Giants were punishing the Braves at Sarasota, 8 to 0, but the blow figured conspicuously in a five run, seventh inning rally. Rogers also had a hand in two double plays, increasing the team's spring total to 13.

Tearing off one of their old time hitting rampages, the Yankees pelted the Baltimore Orioles with a shower of 18 hits to win at 11-2.

Cedric Durst and Ray Morehart led with four safeties a piece.

The Brooklyn Robins divided their day between a practice workout and a round of rejoicing over the return of Pitcher Bill Doak.

After packing his grip and deserting camp on Saturday, Bill came back to renew negotiations with Manager Robinson.

BRITAIN WILL SEND COMPETITORS

Represented By 250 in the Olympic Games at Amsterdam.

NEW YORK, March 17. Canadian Press. — Great Britain has notified the Dutch Olympic committee that she will be represented by more than 250 competitors in the 1928 games to be held at Amsterdam. The British track and field men will number 100 while other major British objectives, rowing and swimming, will account for two score more wearing the Union Jack on their shirts.

Germany, making her first appearance in Olympic competition in 16 years will send 400 athletes to Amsterdam.

The United States will probably have 300, according to Frederick W. Rubien, secretary of the United States committee.

PLAY TO-NIGHT.

New York Americans To Meet Maroons at Montreal.

MONTREAL, Que., March 17. — Canadian Press. — The New York Americans will meet the Montreal Maroons here to-night in a national hockey league fixture. By winning this fixture the Maroons can climb the third rung in the Canadian section of the league.

PAYS FOR POORS' ILLS.

LONDON, March 15.— Lord Chief Moore has ruled that a doctor is not entitled to charge a wealthy man more than a poor one. But Secretary Cox, of the British Medical Association said: "That is all wrong. I cannot see the heart of the public bleeding for a millionaire who must pay big fees so the poor may receive the highest medical skill at small cost."

FORTY-FIVE years back, George Gore of the Chicago Nationals stole seven bases in a ball game. That was in 1881.

Thirteen years later, to be exact, August 31, 1894, Billy Hamilton, the Ty Cobb of his day, who holds the record of 115 bases stolen during a season, equalled the record set by Gore. He played for Philadelphia against Washington.

Hamilton's performance of stealing seven bases in one game is 33 years old. Since he gave that sensational exhibition of baserunning, no modern player has threatened the mark except Eddie Collins.

That may occasion considerable surprise to a lot of the fans, who perhaps do not now consider Collins a speed merchant. True, his legs have gone back on him, and today he would be called slow, but baseball has had few greater baserunners than Eddie Collins.

Twice has Collins stolen six bases for a modern record. Both performances came late in the season of 1912. Playing for Philadelphia against Detroit on September 11, he first threatened the record mark. On September 22 against St. Louis he repeated the trick.

"I came within a whisker of equaling the record of seven stolen bases in one of those two games," remarked Collins to me recently.

"Which one I cannot say. However, one play on which I was called out was very close. I didn't think I was touched, but the umpire did, and that settled it.

"Had I been declared safe, as after events proved, I would now share the baserunning record for a single game with Gore and Hamilton."

CAMBRIDGE IS PICKED TO WIN ANNUAL RACE

Light Blue Has the More Evenly Balanced Crew.

DATE SET APRIL 2.

Has Captured Last Three Races—First Contest in 1829.

LONDON, Eng., March 17.—The great annual boat race between Oxford and Cambridge, to be rowed over the time-honored stretch of the Thames from Putney to Mortlake, on Saturday afternoon, April 2, will dramatically climax the ten weeks of humdrum but severe training undergone by both crews.

"Rowed" gives a poor indication of the thrilling nature of the race, which is a grueling struggle exerting towards the close of the 4¼-mile course every ounce of stamina the crews possess.

Impartial critics believe Cambridge's crew this year a shade better than Oxford's, although conceding that the Oxford crew's training form may be improved by the day of the race. Cambridge has won the last three races in succession, and in fact every one since the war except one, in 1923. On the whole series, however, Oxford has a majority over the Light Blue, having won 40 to Cambridge's 37. The other race bringing the total to 78 was a tie, in 1877. The first contest was in 1829, but the race did not become an annual event until some years later.

Contestants.

The Light Blue crew is exceptional this year for its "length," or reach. R. J. Elles, stroke, is a stylist with excellent rhythm. About a month before the race he was kept from training by indisposition, but it was believed that he would be fit for the actual race, and would return to training before the day approached. The crew as a whole is rhythmical, with an impression of real "stride" and their rowing is easy. J. A. Brown, the Old Blue, who is again coxswain, has steered Cambridge to a win in each of the last three years.

The Oxford crew is not so even as the Light Blue. Their defeat last year was very unfortunate, caused as it was by the collapse of H. R. A. Edwards, old Westminster boy, who was a passenger for the last half of the race. One of the Dark Blue's main hopes this year is E. T. C. Edwards, Christ Church, who as number seven has been, in training at least, a little below the high standard expected of him. Kingsbury and Rathbone, six and five respectively, are as good as the six and five of Cambridge, and with the aid of Edwards, if the latter regains his form, will turn the crew into a really fast eight, according to the experts.

Hundreds of thousands of people will watch the race from all conceivable points of vantage along the whole course, and the celebration in London's West End, particularly if Oxford wins, will be a boat race night to be remembered for a long time.

The Boats.

The Oxford boat is practically the same as that used by Oxford in last year's race, and is an abandonment of the extreme stream-line type of boat of earlier post-war years. It has been designed for a crew averaging 174 pounds. The Cambridge boat is on the orthodox lines of recent years and is of such dimensions that there is no fear of the Cambridge crew being underboated. It has been designed for a crew averaging 177 pounds.

The race will be umpired this year by Col. G. D. Burnell, old Oxford oarsman, who succeeds F. I. Pitman, famous Cambridge oar of days gone by, who umpired the race for the last quarter of the century. Col. Burnell, like his predecessor, has been connected with the Henley regatta for many years. He rowed for Oxford from 1895 to 1898 and was in the Magdalen College crew in 1895. He also rowed in the historic race between Leander and Cornell, when Leander was left at the post.

The crews, in order and weights, are as follows:

Oxford.

N. E. Whiting (Worcester), bow, 160 pounds.
2. P. Johnson (Magdalen), 162 pounds.
3. xT. W. Shaw (Christ Church), 172 pounds.
4. xJ. W. D. Thomas (University) 182 pounds.
5. xW. Rathbone (Christ Church) 181 pounds.
6. H. T. Kingsbury (Queen's), 187 pounds.
7. xE. C. T. Edwards (Christ Church), 173 pounds.
W. S. Llewellyn (Balliol), stroke, 162 pounds.
xSir James Croft (Brasenose), cox, 124 pounds.

Cambridge.

Hon. J. S. Maclay (First Trinity), bow, 152 pounds.
2. T. E. Letchworth (Christ's), 164 pounds.
3. J. C. Holcroft (Pembroke), 165 pounds.
4. R. Beesly (First Trinity), 172 pounds
5. xL. V. Bevan (Lady Margaret), 179 pounds.
6. xJ. B. Bell (Jesus), 178 pounds.
7. xS. K. Tubbs (Caius), 165 pounds.

They are Miss Rose Drimmie, Master Maxwell Northey and Master Irvin Drimmie. The following address was read by Marguerite Cowie:

Dear Rose, Max and Irvine,—This morning it affords us a pleasure and also a sadness to give you each a little picture frame as a token of esteem shown by your fellow pupils and teacher. We hope that in your new schools that you will make many friends and endeavour to improve yourselves. We trust that you will remember us and that often you may write to Hiawtha.

Signed on behalf of the school—Marguerite Cowie, George Paudash, Ralph Loucks, Afan Thomson, Alex Adams, Bernice Howard, Winnifred Blaker, Isabel Coward.

The small French ivory picture frames were presented by George Paudash, Jr.

The pupils thanked their friends for the kindness bestowed upon them.

Mr. J. J. Howden was in the village last week.

In order to get into the gravel pit, Hanlan Howard and Ambrose Dorris used nine sticks of dynamite. The frost was not down as far as Mr. Dorris had expected. The gravel is to be hauled to Mr. W. A. Anderson's, who is to brick his house soon.

Miss Muriel Thomson was home over the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Thomson.

NEW YORK, March 17 (Canadian Press).—Albert Galline came a few days ago from his birthplace, Caraquet, N.B., to seek work as a painter in New York. He was successful, and bright and early yesterday morning turned up at the Hell Gate Bridge to start his honest labor. Three hours later he touched a high voltage electric wire and last night his body lay in the Astoria morgue.

LIFE IMPRISONMENT

Pickets yesterday, according to the News, drew knives when an effort was made to rescue a Chinese clerk who had been seized.

URGES SOLDIERS TO VOTE TOGETHER

Col. Webb Says They Could Compel Government To Toe the Mark.

CALGARY, March 17.— (Canadian Press.) — "Canada should bow her head in shame over seventy-five thousand former Canadian soldiers who have been forced to go to the United States in order to get a living. It is about time that something was done to assure a square deal for the thousands of returned soldiers and widows and dependents of men who laid down their lives during the war. There is still a way, and if 423,000 former soldiers, their wives and relatives use their vote, they can compel the government to toe the mark on the returned soldiers question," said Colonel Ralph Webb, D.S.O., M.C., Mayor of Winnipeg, when he addressed more than two hundred former soldiers who attended the annual smoker concert of the 31st Battalion Association here last night.

Detective Emulates Saint By Dealing Death To Snake

OLEAN, N.Y., March 17. — (United Press). — Detective John Randall emulated St. Patrick on the eve of the day dedicated to honor Ireland's patron saint by blowing a snake to bits with a riot gun.

Workmen unloading a freight car of bananas rushed into the street when they observed a large snake among the fruit. They told the police the reptile was ten feet long, but Randall said it was one of ordinary length.

OWEN SOUND BAY SOON TO BE OPEN

South Wind Is Blowing Ice Out of Harbor—Vessels Not Ready.

OWEN SOUND, March 17. Canadian Press. — A new record for the early opening of navigation in Owen Sound Harbor will be established tomorrow, if the south wind now blowing continues. The ice in Owen Sound Bay is rapidly blowing out into the Georgian Bay, and the local harbor should be ready for business on Friday, if any is offered. The Owen Sound harbor has been clear of ice until about a month ago when quite a large amount of drifting ice from the north shore lodged in the bay. This means that navigation here will open fully a month ahead of last year. Although the removal of the ice will allow navigation to begin, very few of the boats in Owen Sound harbor are yet ready to begin the season.

Former British Naval Commander Faces Serious Charges

CONSERATIVE LEADER BEATEN ON AMENDMENT FOR REMOVAL OF TAX ON CLOTHING AND SHOES

Government Sustained Over War Revenue Act of 1914.

HEAVY BURDEN.

Premier Expects To Make Statement on Duncan Report To-day.

OTTAWA, March 18.— Before the orders of the day were proceeded with yesterday afternoon, Garland of Bow River enquired whether it was the intention of the government to proceed with civil service salary revisions during the present session.

Premier King replied that a definite decision had not yet been reached.

Dr. McGibbon of Muskoka referred to a despatch stating that Canada would not be invited to attend the disarmament conference at Washington. "In view of our declared status," asked Dr. McGibbon, "what steps are being taken to give Canada representation at the conference?"

"I don't think that this is a matter which should be discussed at present, or until the government has been informed. So far we have no knowledge. We prefer to wait and see before making any statement."

Maritime Report Friday.

McQuarrie of New Westminster asked if the postmaster-general had reached any decision with respect to rural mail delivery boxes.

Hon. H. J. Veniot replied that the department had not yet reached a decision as to the style of the boxes to be adopted. Tenders, however, would be called for.

Premier King informed the House that he had intended making a statement with respect to the government intention regarding the Duncan report on Maritime rights. He had however been delayed and would make the statement to-day or on Monday at latest.

Pass Revenue Act.

The House then went into committee of the whole on the bill to amend the special war revenue act of 1914. The act passed committee after brief debate, but when third reading was called for Hon. Hugh Guthrie, leader of the Conservative opposition, moved in amendment, "That the sales tax on clothing, boots and shoes should be removed," inasmuch as it imposed a heavy burden upon the shoulders of the people.

Mr. Guthrie declared that by the practice of ministerial economy it would not be necessary to place or maintain a tax on clothing, boots and shoes.

In reply Hon. James Robb, minister of finance, admitted that the sales tax on clothing, boots and shoes certainly constituted a burden on the people. "We have been gradually reducing the sales tax," he said. "And we eliminated it altogether on implements of production, while on boots and shoes it has been reduced to two per cent. and on clothing to four per cent."

Mr. Robb pointed out that the sales tax could not be taken off ordinary clothing without also taking it off the more expensive gowns and other garments. He also pointed out that many merchants had purchased large supplies of goods and that if the sales tax were taken off at one stroke much injury might be done to the small merchants, who had purchased on the basis of the old sales tax.

The country merchant said the minister, "willl not look on this proposed amendment with any degree of favor. Opportunity must be given them to absorb."

Mr. Robb stated that if the amendment carried it would be necessary to abandon all the general reductions proposed.

Amendment Beaten.

The Farmer and Labor members on the opposition side voted with the official opposition. That the Liberal Progressives were going to vote with the government was indicated when they failed to follow their colleagues of the left. The prime minister cast the first government vote but the Tories gave vent to ironical applause when Mr. Dunning followed suit.

When the vote reached the middle of the third row of the government benches the Liberal-Progressives, nine in number, voted unanimously with the government. The two independents, Bourassa and Neill, also voted with the government.

The Guthrie amendment was defeated 101 to 80.

Moves Again.

E. J. Carland, U.F.A. (Bow River) sprang a surprise in the House moving an amendment that "in the opinion of this House the application of the customs tariff in respect to personal clothing, on boots and shoes places a heavy burden on the people of Canada and should be discontinued.

Mr. Garland explained that the opposition having approved the elimination of the sales tax on these things and the sales tax being the same sort of an imposition as the customs tax they ought to vote for it.

The House gasped for a moment. This seemed like turning the tables. There were roars from one side of

Dozen Trips To Town His Record In 49 Years

LUDINGTON, Mich., March 18.—Living within 10 miles of Manistee and Scottville, Edward Cahill, 64 years old, has made less than a dozen trips to the two cities in the 49 years he has lived on his farm on M-11, just south of the Great Sable River.

He has never attended a movie, has never caught a fish, though living within a stone's throw of the Great Sable River, and has taken but one ride in the automobile owned by his brother, Tom.

His favorite farm work is plowing and his greatest diversion is riding. He knows United States history well and follows carefully the political trend of the day. A faithful Democrat, he never misses caucus and election days. These are the only occasions on which he visits Free Soil, which is but four miles from his home.

AUSTRALIA WILL BEAR FAIR SHARE

Will Take Up Her Part in Cost of Imperial Defense.

LAUNCH CRUISER.

GLASGOW, March 18 (Canadian Press Cable) — Australia is determined to bear her fair share of the cost of Imperial defense, Sir Joseph Cook, the commonwealth's veteran high commissioner in London, said at a luncheon which followed the launching yesterday of his majesty's Australian ship "Australia," most powerful and efficient type of cruiser under the limitations of the Washington Treaty.

The Australia is of 10,000 tons displacement, with armament of eight 8-inch guns and a number of four inch weapons.

Sir Joseph stressed that while limitation of armament was to be desired, in the meantime an adequate naval defense force was a strong factor in promoting peace.

The Australia took the water from the John Brown yards on the Clyde. Lady Cook performed the christening ceremony while crowds lined the bank and aeroplanes circled overhead. When the vessel had slipped into the water, its unfinished bulk, potentially a slender but capable defender in the time of need, represented the first popular evidence of Australia's new naval construction programme.

The Canberra, sister ship, is on the stocks at the same yards. Two big seagoing submarines are being built at Barrow, and a 6,000 ton seaplane carrier is being built in Australia. The other feature of Australia's nautical forces of the next few years, is a floating drydock capable of accommodating the big cruisers, which is now being constructed by the New South Wales government, subsidized by the commonwealth.

THE WEATHER

Yesterday was probably the warmest St. Patrick's Day that this section has ever experienced. It was certainly the warmest in over thirty years. The temperature in the afternoon was up to 64 degrees in the shade. On the morning of St. Patrick's Day last year it was zero. In the following table is given the readings of the thermometer on the morning of the 17th:

1916	6 below
1905	2 below
1904	4 below
1900	8 below

On the morning succeeding St. Patrick's Day in 1916, we had it 18 below. Yesterday's temperature of 64 was about 10 degrees higher than any previous 17th for 30 years back.—W.P.

Repetition Is Feared Of Insult To Kerensky

NEW YORK, March 18 (Canadian Press). — A well-dressed woman, bearing a bouquet and a pair of gloves, was barred at the door of the banquet hall of the Waldorf Astoria Wednesday night, where Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador, and others, were speaking at a dinner in honor of the diplomatic corps, given by the American Women's Association.

Gloves and a banquet were the weapons and ruse employed by the woman who slapped Kerensky recently.

House To Hold Night Sittings Four Days Next Week.

TORONTO, March 18 (Canadian Press).—Sale of beer by the glass found another advocate in T. Legault, of Sturgeon Falls, one of the four members of the Ontario Legislature who have so far indicated their intention of supporting the Liquor Control Act, when the debate on the second reading of the measure was continued for a short period yesterday afternoon. Mr. Legault followed a brief discussion of the bill by Leslie W. Oke (U.F.O., Lambton East) and was speaking when the House adjourned at six o'clock. He will continue his speech on Monday afternoon.

Before moving the adjournment of the House, Premier Howard Ferguson announced that he is desirous of giving every opportunity to all members of the Legislature to discuss the measure, and for this reason the House will hold night sittings on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

At the outset Mr. Legault referred to the tributes that had been paid his compatriot, Dr. Paul Poisson (Con., Essex North), and expressed the hope that the bonne entente between the English and French-Canadian members of the House was not "just diplomatic veneer," but would be productive of good results.

NORTHERN ONTARIO

As a new member he was impressed with the attention being paid to Northern Ontario by the Minister of Lands and Forests and the Prime Minister, and he looked for strong assistance for those people who were hewing homes and new communities out of the wilderness of the north.

Mr. Legault announced quite frankly that he hailed with approval the introduction of the Government Control Bill and would advocate that it be respected and enforced to the full extent of the law. He took advantage of the Premier's suggestion for constructive criticism of the bill, and said that it had its shortcomings. These, could, however, be remedied by experience. The Trades and Labor Council of Sturgeon Falls had petitioned him to advocate the sale of beer by the glass, and this petition he presented to the Premier. He had to consider the proposed legislation in the light of the man earning from $15 to $20 a week who had the same desires, the same

Chimpanzee Perishes In "Conquest" Of Fire; Sets Himself Afire With Matches In Berlin

BERLIN, March 18.—Allured by desire to master fire and thus raise himself above the level of the beasts, Tarzan, the trained champanzee appearing at the Scala Theatre, set fire to the straw in his cage last night while playing with matches and was burned to death before the flames were noticed.

Tarzan lighted matches in his act. His trainer noticed that fire had a peculiar fascination for the beast and often was obliged to interfere on the stage to prevent his lighting one after the other until the box was gone.

The animal was especially affectionate with his master at parting after last night's show. This is now believed to have been part of Tarzan's scheme to sneak a box of matches from his master's pocket during their embrace.

Though he had burned his fingers many times, the beast never seemed to be able to realize the danger of fire. The trainer kept Tarzan in a cage instead of with him in a room, as formerly, because on several occasions the chimpanzee arose during the night and played with matches while his master slept.

People Outside Peterborough Realize What Hydro is Doing

When I was in Toronto this week I met a gentleman from Orillia and another from Campbellford. They were not together nor acquainted with each other, but their common remarks and questions, regarding our power situation in Peterborough would give you the uncanny feeling that they were acting in concert with each other.

SCORN OF THE OPEN EYE

Each one of them remarked: We have read some of your articles in The Examiner. You pay more than twice as much per horsepower than we do. You know, we own our own water powers. We did not join in with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission scheme and we are glad we did not. Your city gave away its birthright when it joined in with the Hydro Commission. How do you like Hydro management of your street railway? Something like riding on a corduroy road in an ox cart? They say you can buy lots of gas but you pay nearly two prices for it. Is that so?

PAINFUL TRUTH ACKNOWLEDGED

And thus we sit and "grin and bear it," while our neighbors in Orillia and Campbellford take great pleasure in telling us the truth, and permit me to tell your readers that when faced with great difficulties and the follies of blundering, "there is nothing more painful than the truth." Therefore let us face the facts and acknowledge the truth even though it "strikes us sore in all our joints."

NO FOREIGNER FOR LOCAL NEEDS

We are throwing away tens of thousands of dollars a year by not either looking after our own public utilities or contracting with a private company to supply our local needs under a long term contract properly drawn with safe-guarding provisions.

GET AT THE FACTS—TROUBLES DISAPPEAR

To solve our troubles we must get at the facts. If the Hydro has made a failure of our street railway under public ownership management and want to close it down, why should it do so, before giving our City Council and our taxpayers the detailed information accounting for their large annual losses when private owners made a profit? Why should not the Hydro take our City Council into its confidence, and give detailed statements showing the facts in detail that have transpired and which have resulted in exorbitant price for gas?

THE GREAT THREE—ALL GREAT

With a knowledge of the facts, three representative men or rather three men representing the people in different capacities, can solve our troubles to the advantage of all concerned.

THE MAYOR, COUNCIL AND PEOPLE

The Mayor of our City with the solid support of the Council and taxpayers behind him acting earnestly and inspired by faith can remove "the mountains" in our way, "the lions in our path and "put to flight the army of the aliens" that are robbing us of our birthright.

THE MINISTER OF RAILWAYS AND CANALS

The Minister of Railways and Canals can see that a lease may be obtained of Burleigh Falls and of Dams 4 and 5 on fair and reasonable terms either to the city or a private company.

THE PRIME MINISTER OF ONTARIO

The Prime Minister of the Province of Ontario can release us from the ties that bind us to stagnation and decay. He can release us from the management that is running our street railway underground. He can release us from the bonds that bind us to pay an excessive rate for gas. He can give to this city the right to enjoy all the benefits of the water privileges that Providence so bountiful showered upon us, and which we so lavishly threw away under the iron heels of the Hydro gods.

These three representatives working in harmony can solve our troubles to the mutual benefit of all.

W. E. RANEY RENEWS HIS ATTACK ON OPERATION OF RACETRACKS

Opposes Second Reading of Bill Amending Corporation Tax Act.

LIBERALS DIVIDED

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 18 (Canadian Press). — W. E. Raney, Progressive leader in the Ontario Legislature, returned to his attack on the operations of race tracks in the province yesterday afternoon when he fought strenuously against the second reading of a bill to amend the Corporation Tax Act sponsored by Hon. J. D. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer, which, among other things, provides for a reduction in the tax on race tracks from $7,500 to $5,000 per day, but stipulates that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, at any time considered advisable, increase the amount of the tax to $10,000 per day. Mr. Raney contended that the racing organizations should be made to either "pay the present tax or get out of business," and forced the House into the first division of the session which resulted in the bill passing second reading by a vote of 85 to 15. All the Conservative members voted with the Government which also had the support of the Liberals in the House with the exception of E. B. Miller, Elgin West, and W. L. P. Newman, Victoria North, who voted against the measure, and two United Farmer members, F. L. Oliver, Grey South, and Leslie W. Oke, Lambton East. The Progressives voted solidly behind Mr. Raney in opposition to the measure. A. Belanger (Liberal, Russell), while voting for the bill, considered the right to increase the tax by Order-in-Council "vicious."

Outlining the clauses of the bill which affected race tracks, the Provincial Treasurer pointed out that the statements of returns from the ten race tracks in the province indicated that there was a declining interest in horse racing from a betting standpoint, in the last few years, and that a check up of the amount received at a Hamilton track last year disclosed that it had operated at a loss. While the Government was reducing the perdiem tax from $7,500 to $5,000, he said, there was a provision in the bill by which the tax could be increased to $10,000 per day by Order-in-Council. He considered that this provision would fairly meet the situation and enable the Government to obtain more revenue from the race tracks if the attendance and the receipts from betting showed appreciable increases. The tax of five per cent. on all wagering, he added, would be retained.

The Progressive leader reviewed the history of race tracks in the province since 1911, and claimed that since the tax of $7,500 per day had been imposed, the receipts from horse racing had considerably increased. For instance, the returns showed that in 1921 the Ontario Government received $770,440 in taxes; 1922, $769,910; 1923, $670,774; 1924, $848,945; 1925, $998,690; and in 1926, $855,000. According to his calculation the Government was facing a loss of approximately $350,000 by the proposed reduction, based on an average in the receipts at race tracks in the last few years.

The reduction, said Mr. Raney, was really a gift to the racing associations, and he contended that the present tax of $7,500 per diem was right and proper.

"What harm would be done to the Province of Ontario," he asked, "if several clubs went out of business, or if they all went out of business?" He suggested that Mr. Monteith withdraw the bill for the present and obtain further information on the operation of the race tracks. For one thing there should be a proper audit of all the moneys received by the racing organizations from meetings. But it made no difference in the long run to him. "They should be made to pay the $7,500 or get out of business."

Attorney-General Price said he held brief for the racing associations, but there had been a considerable falling off in the wagering at the Ontario tracks in the last three or four years. At one track, he said, the total amount wagered at two meetings dropped from $5,705,000 in 1922 to $2,306,000 in 1926. The Government, by proposing a reduction in the tax, was really dealing fairly with the situation and would not lose any revenue from this source, because power was given to increase the tax if conditions warranted it. If horse-racing in Ontario was wiped out, as Mr. Raney suggested, there would be more "bookies" for the law to deal with, and he wondered if it was not better to have men place bets in the

DETENTION OF FORMER OFFICER CAUSES INTEREST

Director of Public Prosecution Will Conduct Case Against Mayer.

DISCLOSURE FEARED.

Details of Huge New Submarines Being Carefully Guarded.

LONDON, March 18 (Canadian Press).—Great Britain was showing great interest to-day in the arrest and detention, without the privilege of giving bail, of a brilliant former officer, Lieut. Commander Colin Mayers. He is charged by the Admiralty with illicitly possessing official documents, among them the plans of Great Britain's largest submarine.

So important is the case regarded that the Director of Public Prosecutions will conduct the case for the Admiralty when Mayers is arraigned. Meantime the Naval Intelligence Department will go through a quantity of technical correspondence which has bearing on the charge against Mayers, who voluntarily retired from the Navy last January, and since has been employed by the submarine department of Vickers, Ltd., builders of war craft and ordnance.

Charges Secret.

There is complete secrecy respecting the details of the charge against Mayers, which the prosecutors yesterday described as one of considerable gravity. The magistrate in declining the responsibility of granting bail, said that his refusal was due to the very serious nature of the case. He added that the prisoner might make application for release to a higher court if he so desired.

It is believed that the Admiralty, fearful of the disclosure of secrets regarding its latest submarine, "X-1," led to the arrest of Mayers. He was charged with having possession of plans of "X-1" and "O-1." "X-1" was launched in June, 1923, and when completed will have cost five million dollars. It is 350 feet long, and has four large guns in armored turrets. The calibre of these guns and the number of torpedo tubes and other details of the craft have been kept close secret by the Admiralty.

Brilliant Officer.

Mayers, who was born in British Guiana, is 36 years old. He entered the Navy in 1907 and served on various ships. Since 1922 he commanded successively three submarines. He had a brilliant war career in the submersible division of the Navy.

OBITUARY.

MRS. AARON COX.

Word was received in the city last night of the death of Mrs. Aaron Cox, a former resident of this city. The remains will be brought to Peterborough for burial. Funeral announcement later.

'Kitty Boy' Loses Out Doesn't Get Big Estate

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Mar. 18. (United Press.) — Kitty Boy, a five year old cat, almost fell heir to a fortune that would have made all his nine lives a round of pleasure. Kitty Boy was the pride of Mrs. Elizabeth Lynch, Long Beach who died several days ago, leaving no relatives. A soiled document purporting to be Mrs. Lynch's will, left Kitty Boy $500 worth of personal property, a life insurance policy and real estate, including a house. The house was to be tenanted by any person who would take good care of the cat. But Public Administrator Bryson ruined Kitty Boys' prospective "cat heaven." "Ye cant appoint a guardian for a cat," he ruled yesterday; so the will is invalid and the estate will go to the school fund.

FRANCE WON'T SEND REPRESENTATIVE

Not Even an Observer To Attend Three Power Conference.

PARIS, Mar. 18 (Canadian Press) —France is not likely to send even an observer to the three-power naval disarmament conference proposed by President Coolidge, it was stated to-day, since Washington's disagreement with the League of Nations Disarmament Commission was apparent in a note made public yesterday at Geneva.

Urges Greater Penalty For Driving Automobile While Drunk.

TROUBLE ON BORDER.

Larger Patrol Needed To Prevent Short Circuiting Along Lake Shore.

TORONTO, Mar. 18 (Canadian Press)—Great difficulty is still experienced in enforcing the Ontario Temperance Act, Major General Victor A. S. Williams, commissioner of Provincial Police, stated in his report on the operation of his department for 1926 which he presented to the Ontario Legislature today. He voiced the opinion that in view of the crowded condition of the highways of the province the minimum penalty of seven days imprisonment for persons convicted of driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor was far too inadequate.

The department seized and had confiscated by the courts during the year $41,651 worth of liquor, while 72 automobiles were also confiscated but a number were afterwards released to their owners by order of the Supreme Court.

Dealing with the illicit traffic General Williams stated that in the western section of the province there were large stretches of river and lake shore which had to be patrolled and guarded in an effort to prevent short circuiting of liquor from the export docks. These places had been raided at frequent intervals, but with varying success. Only small quantities of liquor were kept on the premises.

In the eastern section of the province the report said that motor boat patrols had been operated on the St. Lawrence river with good success, until its activities were terminated by the burning of the boat and boat house by bootleggers. So far sufficient evidence had not been obtained to successfully prosecute any one for the act.

Major Williams expressed the view that in order to circumvent those engaged in the illicit traffic in liquor on the St. Lawrence river it would require a force of men altogether out of proportion to the present staff under his command.

New posts were opened during the year at Kapuskasing, Red Lake, Hudson, Pine Ridge, Gogama, and Ansonville. The conduct and discipline of the force, with few exceptions, had been excellent.

Voronoff Predicts Active Life Of 125 Years With Three Months "Old Age" And Then Death

PARIS, March 18.—A vigorous life of 125 years, three months of old age and then death was the pleasant prospect held out to humanity as quite possibly realizable by Dr. Serge Voronoff at the weekly luncheon of the Anglo-American press men in Paris yesterday.

Since he began his gland operations, Dr. Voronoff said, he had operated on 1,000 human beings and was now able to draw statistical conclusions from these operations as well as from the thousands he has performed on animals.

His claim that human life could be extended to 125 years and senile old age practically eliminated was based on his experience with men and partly on that with animals, he said.

The human organs, apart from the glands, were capable, in healthy subjects, of functioning, for well over a century, he contended. That had been proven over and over again by centenarians.

Dr. Voronoff has defended the use of monkeys for his operations on the ground that their blood, alone among that of all animals corresponds exactly to human blood. His difficulty is now to find a sufficient number of healthy monkeys and to insure a supply he has started a monkey-breeding farm in the South of France.

LYER CROSSES SOUTH ATLANTIC

Beires Successful in Non-Stop Flight From Africa To Brazil.

2,000 MILES.

FERNANDO NORONHA, Brazil, March 18 (UP) — Sarmento Beires, Portuguese aviator, arrived at 11.26 a.m. yesterday, after a flight of nearly 2,000 miles across the South Atlantic ocean, from Bubaque, in the Bissangos archipelago off the West African coast.

The seaplane Argus, carrying Sarmento and his two companions, appeared in the northwest, causing the belief that the Portuguese intended to proceed on to Port Natal on the mainland.

Beires brought his ship around and alighted in San Antonio bay, about 200 yards off the beach.

The craft was anchored there in a calm sea. Weather conditions were good.

Officials immediately began preparing a reception for the flyers, and to provide them with oil and fuel.

Major Beires left Lisbon December 2 on a 90-day flight around the world. He made several attempts to rise for the cross-ocean flight at Bolamo, but each time found his fuel load too heavy. Recently Colonel De Pinedo, the Italian aviator, was forced to descend near Fernado Noronha, in an effort similar to Beires, and was towed to that point by a naval craft. De Pinedo started from the Azores, while Beires took off from the African mainland.

Arctic Explorer Paroled; Had Served Three Years

FORT WORTH, Texas, March 18.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook, physician, scientist and Arctic explorer, convicted in Fort Worth three years ago for using the mails to defraud, was granted a five-year parole yesterday by Judge James C. Wilson.

Cook was sentenced to 14 years and 9 months in the federal pentitentiary.

United States Attorney Henry Zweiffel immediately served notice that the government will appeal the parole decision.

open at race tracks than have them frequenting pool-rooms and other resorts for this purpose.

Opposes Provision.

Mr. Belanger said that he was not objecting to a reduction in the per diem tax, but considered the provision of the bill which gave the Government power by Order-in-Council to increase the tax was a vicious principle.

Power to impose taxes was something that solely belonged to the Legislature and should not be usurped by the Government.

Why not initiate a schedule of taxation by which the tracks would pay to the Government according to their profits? asked Mr. Belanger. That, he thought, would be the proper method of placing a fair taxation upon the racing associations of the province and would give the Government a revenue in proportion with the profits made by them.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE SAME OLD ROAD

Let an old man speak in a young man's ear,
Though a young man's heart may not want to hear,
But it's not to scold (as a man who's old
May want to do when the dusk draws near.)
It is just to say, what is always true,
For an old man once was as young as you:
That you'll always find, when the road's behind,
'Twas the same old road that has brought you through.

Though we often look for a quicker trail
To wealth, to honor, the short-cuts fail.
Men have always found that the solid ground
Was the one sure road through the wintry gale.
Though we doubt the old, though the new we praise,
I have always learned there were certain days
That a path I trod where I needed God,
Yes, the same old word in the same old ways.

Let an old man speak, for an old man knows
There is one sure path that a fellow goes;
It's a path to climb, and it all takes time;
But it's not as hard as the young suppose.
There is just one road to the thing you seek,
There is just one path to the sunlit peak:
It is honor's goal, it's a Christian soul.
It's the same old road. Let an old man speak.

EX-NAVAL OFFICEER ARRESTED UNDER OFFICIAL SECRETS ACT

Charged With Possessing Plans and Documents of Submarine Service.

REFUSED BAIL

Had Served for Nineteen Years in British Navy.

LONDON, March 18. — (Canadian Press.)—Fears of a possible leakage of secrets connected with Great Britain's biggest submarine are believed to have prompted the admiralty to request the arrest of Lieut. Commander Colin Mayers, on the retired list of the navy. He was remanded in the Bow street police court yesterday, charged under the Official Secrets Act, of having in his possession plans and documents dealing with the submarine service. The case is so serious that the magistrate refused bail.

Although no evidence was tendered at the preliminary hearing yesterday it is understood that Mayers, who had a brilliant war career in the submarine service, was charged with being in possession, contrary to his duty, of plans relating to the submarine 0-1 and K-1. The latter is described as the biggest submarine in the world. It was launched in June, 1923, and cost £1,000,000. It is 350 feet long and carries four big guns in armored turrets, but the size of the guns, the number of torpedo tubes, and other details have been kept a close admiralty secret.

Mayers is 36 years of age. He was born in British Guinea and served for 19 years in the British navy, mostly in the submarine service. He retired at his own request a few months ago to join the submarine department of Vickers, Limited, builders of warships and ordnance.

The royal navy list issued in January of this year includes Lieut.-Commander Colin Mayers among the active officers of the navy, and shows that he was commissioner lieutenant-commander October 1, 1920. He was in charge of the M2, one of the monitor type of British submarine 303 feet long and carrying a 12-inch gun in a turret mounted on the centre of the hull.

The operation of this gun is unique. It is elevated to a high angle, and then the submarine sinks about 12 feet beolw the surface, leaving the muzzle of the big rifle above water. There is a bead sight on the gun quuzle, which is sighted by periscope and fired while the submarine is running at shallow submersion. To reload it is necessary to return to the surface.

OLD MASTERS

I cannot see what flowers are at my feet,
Nor what soft incense hangs upon the boughs,
But, in embalmed darkness, guess each sweet
Wherewith the seasonable month endows
The grass, the thicket and the fruit-tree wild;
White hawthorn, and the pastoral eglantine;
Fast-fading violets covered up in leaves;
And mid-May's eldest child,
The coming musk-rose, full of dewy wine,
The murmurous haunt of flies on summer eves.

Darkling I listen; and, for many a time
I have been half in love with easeful Death,
Called him soft names in many a musèd rhyme,
To take into the air my quiet breath;
Now more than ever seems it rich to die,
To cease upon the midnight with no pain,
While thou art pouring forth thy soul abroad
In such an ecstasy!
Still wouldst thou sing, and I have ears in vain—
To thy high requiem become a sod.

SOVIET AGAIN ASKS RELEASE

Blames White Russian For Suspicious Documents on Seized Vessel.

CHANG REPLIES.

SHANGHAI, March 18 (Canadian Press).—A wordy battle is going on between Peking and Moscow over the seizure of the Russian vessel, Pamiat Lenina and the arrest of Mme. Borodin and three Soviet couriers. In a new note demanding the release of the couriers and the vessel, the Soviet government accuses white Russians of placing suspicious documents aboard the boat to afford a pretext for its seizure and conversion into a warship.

The note asserts the couriers were subject to "barbarous indignities."

Marshal Chang Tso Lin, war load of the Northern Chinese armies, who has ignored the two previous Soviet protests, makes the charge that Russia not only has violated the China-Russian agreement but has ignored international obligations by abetting the Nationalist movement at Hankow.

"Considering that the China-Russian agreement of 1924 and all international codes are thrown to the winds by the very presence at Hangow of Michael Borodin and his fellows who play such an important part in the de-nationalized Nationalist movement," he says, "it is amusing and ridiculous that the Soviets should charge the Chinese with violation of international law."

He says that the presence of "Red propaganda" aboard the Pamist Lenina was incontrovertable evidence of violation of the agreements.

Communications Interrupted

Some interruption of telegraphic communications with the fighting areas west and northwest of Shanghai yesterday prevented definite news reaching here. Whether this lack of news is screening new movements, especially around Wuhu, is not known. That city was captured by the Cantonese recently.

Early yesterday the Kiangnan docks, where a number of foreign vessels are being built, were seized by General Pi Chu Chen, who claimed he needed them for the repair of warships of the northern forces. A United States warship was immediately despatched to the docks.

There were rumors of negotiations between General Pi, commanding the Shantung troops in Shanghai, and General Chang Kai Shek, commander in chief of the Southern armies, for the purpose of arriving at an agreement whereby Shanghai could be peacefully occupied by the Nationalists.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

LONDON, March 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Reuters' Shanghai correspondent as received from a Chinese official source a written statement on the Chinese case for the seizure on Feb. 28 of the Russian steamer Pamiat Lenin in which Mme. Borordin and three soviet couriers were travelling to Hankow.

The seizure and arrests brought two sharp notes from the Soviet government to the northern Chinese authorities. Mme. Borodin is the wife of Michael Borodin, a Russian citizen who has for some time been acting as adviser to the Cantonese, or Southern Chinese, regime.

The Chinese statement reveals that decision to search the ship at Nanking was made on reliable information that she was engaged in unlawful acts. The result of the search, it says, more than justified the suspicions, for buried under 150 tons of coal in the hold was a tremendous quanity of anti-foreign propaganda and pamphlets in Chinese, Russian and English. The statement continues:

"In some diplomatic bags in custody of the 'diplomatic couriers' who were not travelling under diplomatic passports as they should have been had they really been diplomatic couriers, were documents containing schemes for action in the Yangtse Valley and in and around Shanghai, which if carried out, would endanger other than Chinese interests."

Fear International Crisis.

After remarking that the Chinese authorities refrain from saying more about these documents for fear of precipitating an international crisis, the statement proceeds:

"Besides the regular crew were 11 Chinese compradores, and over 30 coolies who claimed to be deckhands for handling cargoes. In river transportation in China there is no need for such hands as all handling of cargo is done by wharf coolies and no ship carries more than one compradore. Unless it is concluded that these compradores and coolies were there for the purpose of handling a special kind of cargo, their presence in the ship is a mystery.

"'Mrs. Grosberg'—Mme. Borodin—reluctantly revealed her identity only when cards and mail bearing the name of Borodin were found among her possessions, which, unfortunately for her, also included important Soviet documents.

"That so-called diplomatic bags should contain such plots as indicated is a matter which the military authorities are unable to understand and which now is the subject of communications between Russia and China."

Turnable Villa To Follow Sun Built By Frenchman

PARIS, March 18.—A house on a turntable, to follow the sun, is proposed by prominent French architects.

A model exhibited at Nice shows a villa mounted on a modified railroad turntable, with an electric motor to enable the occupants to turn the house at will. A strong pivot is designed to resist wind pressure.

The original model provides for a $50,000 house, with the turntable feature costing $8,000 but cheaper designs are predicted, with the turntable costing only about $800.

HASTINGS CHURCH CALLS MINISTER

Carman Hie of Bobcaygeon to become their pastor at the beginning of the Conference year, July 1st. Mr. Hie who is just completing a successful five-year pastorate at Bobcaygeon, preached here to large and appreciative audiences on Sunday, February 27th. Besides fulfilling the duties of a busy pastorate, Mr. Hie is convener of Religious Education for Lindsay Presbytery, and is also business manager of the Bay of Quinte Conference Summer School.

The present pastor, Rev. M. L. Hinton, who is concluding a seven-year pastorate here, has received a unanimous invitation to Bobcaygeon.

feelings and the same obligations to meet as had men with much greater incomes who could purchase beer and whiskey by the case. Many poor men could not even afford to purchase a bottle of beer, and for this reason a beverage which they enjoyed and gave them refreshment should be placed within the limits of their expenditure.

The member for Sturgeon Falls was not so sure that Ontario had made any reform in banishing the bar. While the bar had been an affliction he wondered if there had been really any progress made in purifying the morals of the people. He was sorry to say this could not be said of the northland where winters were long and summers short.

Vice Centralized

Vice was centralized in the days of the bar, but the habitues of the tavern had been chased to hidden places to drink in seclusion and the people had been forced to seek what was ostracized by the government. They had become demoralized and lost respect for the law. If the law was enforced to the letter in Toronto today, said Mr. Legault, the authorities would have to put the roof of a prison over half of the city. The same applied to any other centre. The people had become lax in the spirit of tolerance, the law was not being enforced, bribery existed in every form and a large portion of the citizens seemed to be saturated with the idea of bootlegging. This was an age of secret immorality and the more efforts were made to eliminate evils by laws of intolerance the less would the authorities succeed.

Mr. Legault firmly believed that the Liquor Control Act would cripple bootlegging, but it was not going to kill it.

Waited for Final

The member for Lambton East did not think that the Progressive amendments to the bill should have been moved on the second reading of the bill, but when the measure reached the committee stage of the House. While the people had given the government a mandate for control of the liquor traffic and their voice should be respected, Mr. Oke said he could not support the bill for the reason that his constituency in the main had expressed themselves against the system and in favor of the Ontario Temperance Act.

T. L. Kennedy (Con., Peel) introduced a bill in the House entitled the Fruit and Vegetable Consignment Act which lays down the procedure in reference to the handling of fruit and vegetables on commission. Under its provisions the commission agent must keep a record of each consignment of fruit and vegetables received and the person to whom it is sold and the amount received. In order to provide against loss if a shipment is received in a damaged condition, the shipper must be immediately notified.

SAYS JOURNALISM IS NOT PROFITABLE

Lord Beaverbrook Wishes That He Could Retire Immediately.

LONDON, March 18.— (Canadian Press.)—Lord Beaverbrook, who has become a powerful figure in the British newspaper world, was entertained by the Manchester Publicity club yesterday. The celebration marked the inauguration of the northern edition of Lord Beaverbrook's London Daily Express, printed simultaneously in London and Manchester.

Lord Beaverbrook said he regretted that he was not establishing a really new newspaper, for such was greatly needed in England. Three evening papers in London were not nearly enough, he thought.

The newspaper magnate described the Manchester Guardian as the "sweetest and cleanest newspaper in England."

In the Daily Express Wednesday Lord Beaverbrook wrote that "if I consulted my own inclinations I would retire from journalism tomorrow and live in ease and comfort on the fortune built up in Canada before I set foot on Fleet street. Fleet street has never recompensed me a penny in return for the efforts I have made there."

Use Of Capital Letters.

Easy Enough When One Becomes Accustomed To It.

The question that always confuses the thought of those who were heedless at school, now often arises when they attempt to use capital letters in the right place.

Many there are who make the mistake of capitalizing the seasons—spring, summer, autumn, winter. This should never be done unless the word starts a sentence. But the days of the months and the days of the week always should begin with capital letters.

It's easy enough when you know how, and a few simple directions and explanations in the New Universities Dictionary will make it easy for you to learn.

This new dictionary with its enlarged vocabulary and its many exclusive educational features, is just the book you need for everyday use. It is being offered to readers on the well known coupon plan. Clip and present your dictionary coupon today.

LATE BLIZZARD HITS MANITOBA

Cold Wave Sweeping Over Provinces After Heavy Snow Storms.

CLEARING ROADS.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 18.— A sharp drop in temperature has followed in the wake of the severe blizzard that swept Alberta and Saskatchewan and the cold wave yesterday was rapidly enveloping Manitoba.

It was snowing again yesterday morning at many points on the Prairies but the wind had abated, permitting drift-bound settlements to tackle the task of clearing blocked roads and to rescue range stock, caught in the storm.

Snow shoes were in general use in country districts, and it will be several days before normal communications can be re-established.

While the high pressure wave has moved over the Great Lakes, prospects in the West are for continued cold and unsettled weather.

Train Was Dug Out.

Saskatoon, Sask., March 18.—The marooned C.N.R. mixed train at Downe siding in the Loverna subdivision, has been got out of the snowdrift, in which it was stalled with its 17 passengers for many hours, and the line is open again.

OFFICERS HELD UP BY TWO STRANGERS

Investigation of Port Hope and Toronto Episodes Under Way.

TORONTO, March 18.—Constable Ranney, of Belmont police station, was held up on Russell Hill road, at six o'clock yesterday morning by two men, believed to be aliens, one of whom was carrying a bag. According to Ranney, they covered him with revolvers and made their escape. No shots were fired, it was said.

Whether Ranney actually held up his hands is not known.

An hour and a half earlier at Port Hope, Constable Irving, night policeman, was held up, bound and gagged, and relieved of his revolver by two men who suddenly emerged from a lane. At the time he was making his rounds, inspecting stores.

Investigations of both episodes are under way. Due primarily to the distance separating them, it is not believed there could be any connection between the two.

Given By M.N.O.P. Ladies of St. Andrew's Church, Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18.—The Ladies of St. Andrew's Church whose initials were M. N. O. P. gave a very successful social in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening. The proceeds were $76, a larger amount than was made at the former teas. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Grier, was chairman for the evening and after the customary words of welcome to the audience, called the following programme:

Duet—Misses Mary and Margaret McGregor.

Chorus by the Junior Choir, accompanied by Mr. Pearson. Encore.

Hawaiian Duet by Misses Grace and Bertha Blue—"When You and I Were Young, Maggie." This received a hearty encore.

Selection by Male Chorus — Messrs. E. Henson, W. Blakely, G. Batley, I. Clemens, J. Dickson, F. Osborne, A. McDonald; accompanist, W. Pearson. The gentlemen received a hearty encore and responded with several diversified selections, such as:

She'll never be a cat,
For she's a pussy willow;
What do you think of that?"

Violin Solo—"Lochinvar," Mr. John Brown. Encore, "Mary of Argyle."

Duet—Miss Anderson and Rev. Mr. Grier. Encore.

Selection by Male Chorus. Encore.

Hawaiian Selection by Messrs. Godden. Encore.

Solo—"There's a New Star in Heaven Tonight," by Mr. R. Dunk; accompanist, W. Pearson. Encore, "A Warrior Bold."

"We're Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground," by Male Chorus (Mr. Grier thinks a suitable nom-de-plume for the choir would be "Nonsuch").

Solo—"Coming Thru the Rye," by Miss Dorothy Reynolds; accompanists, W. Pearson. Encore, "The Campbells Are Coming," accompanied by the Male Choir.

Duet.—"When Ye, Gang Awa', Jamie," by Miss H. Atkinson and Mr. J. Storie; accompanist, Mrs. J. Storie.

Encore —"Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Community Singing, led by Mr. Pearson.

After the closing of the programme the ladies served a bountiful lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee, and a pleasant social time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Grier made a vote of thanks to all who had assisted in the evening's programme helping to make it a success, and to all who were present.

St. John's Young People

The Young People of St. John's held their weekly meeting on Monday evening and the attendance was far above average. The president, Mr. G. F. Phillips, presided over the opening exercises, and after the business of the meeting was dispensed, Miss Nellie Hoover, convenor of the Missionary Department, had charge of the following programme:

Bible reading was taken by Miss Lucille Rowe; Vocal Duet by Miss L. G. Young and Mrs. F. Smith; Reading by Miss N. Hoover. The topic for the evening was "Tithing," and was capably given by Miss Grace Payne. The Leaguers took their Bibles and followed Miss Payne's talk through the different passages of Scripture. Miss Payne's talk was very much enjoyed by all. The grouping for the race was taken, the Hudson car still in the lead. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

MILLBROOK NEWS

MILLBROOK, March 18.—The officers and members of Golden Sheaf Rebekah Lodge, No. 176, were hostesses for an enjoyable euchre on Monday evening, in the I.O.O.F. Hall, and though the unfavorable state of the roads lessened the attendance yet sixteen tables were in use for play, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Supper was served about 11.30 p.m., and afterward the prize winners were announced by Brother W. E. Ball, N.G. of Millbrook Lodge No. 308; and the prizes presented by Sister Maud Armstrong, recording secretary of the Rebekah Lodge.

Miss Ruby Bonner won the ladies' first prize, and Miss J. B. Syer the consolation; Mr. Russell Bonner had the highest number of points on the gentlemen's cards, and Mr. Nelles Rowland the lowest.

Dancing, music, and social converse provided further entertainment for those who wished following the supper hour, and it was considerably past midnight before the gathering finally dispersed.

League Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Young People's League was held on Monday evening, the attendance being larger than usual, and a keen interest evidenced as re-organization for the ensuing year was effected.

The reports presented were most encouraging from all departments. Miss S. Hetherington stated that the Christian Fellowship committee had provided a devotional programme one evening each month, using the study books, "Stewardship of the Whole of Life" and the one still to be completed, "The Larger Fellowship."

Mrs. J. McKnight, president of the mission circle, reported for the second Monday each month, the mission circle taking this meeting, using the study book, "New Days in Old India", and raising over $90.00 during the year; a pageant, "The Challenge of the Cross", given by the choir of Garden Hill church, had been effective, and as basket of Christmas cheer had been sent to a needy family in the holiday season.

Letters from former officers, now living at a considerable distance, had kept the young people inspired and in intimate touch with the mission fields, and with other work.

The pastor reported for the Tuxis Square, which looked after the citizenship programmes, and the leader, for the Wide Awakes C.G.I.T. group, which had charge of the literary evenings, taking up the study of Canadian authors, etc. The group has now a membership of 22, with 4 honorary members; it has raised over $80.00 during the year, and has contributed ten dollars each to the church thankoffering fund, the Ladies' Aid repair fund, and the Maintenance and Extension fund, helped provide the flowers for the front of the church, and in other ways been helpfully active through the past twelve months.

After a lengthy discussion it was decided to organize along different lines for the new year, calling the society the "Church League", and making a definite endeavor to enlist in interest and membership those 18 and over who are not at present linked up with other organizations in the church which meet on a week night.

A feeling has been growing that a definite prayer service should be held each week, and next Monday night the Church League will complete organization, the only officers elected at the annual meeting being the Honorary President, Rev. J. Wilks, and the Honorary Vice-President, Rev. F. H. Howard; with the President, Miss Estelle Hetherington.

It is intended to carry on at least two departments, the devotional, and the missionary, though vice-presidents have not yet been elected, the feeling of the meeting being that "to make haste slowly" was the wisest course. There was no thought of disbanding the League altogether, but that its field of usefulness must be widened, and it must carry on along in a way of interest many who have hitherto felt themselves outside its range of influence.

The Forward Movement for missions will be continued, Mrs. G. W. Sayles, the convener, reporting that $75.00 had been raised, and $15.00 contributed to the church funds. The allotment for the League is $60.00.

The Tuxis Square, and the Trail Ranger work is being re-organized under the leadership of Mr. H. J. Anderson, Mr. C. C. Garside and the pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard.

Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley motored to Peterborough on Monday and were guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Jones, returning home on Tuesday.

Mrs. A. C. Darling and daughter, Betty, of Peterboro, were guests of Mrs. E. S. Burnham on Tuesday.

Mrs. W. Leith has moved into her house on Main street, and F. McIvor, the former tenant, has removed to the house on King street west formerly occupied by Mr. W. Budd; the latter is now living in Mr. N. Lamb's house just about opposite his previous home. Mr. and Mrs. Lamb are now living on the farm purchased from Keegan brothers, 8th Line, Cavan.

WHY NOT NOW?

The time to join the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition is now.

The more members in the organization at the present time the more weight behind the Exhibition, and the greater enthusiasm, interest and impetus to a body that ranks among the livest in the district.

Diamond jubilee year should see Peterborough's big fair climb to new heights in attendance, revenue, variety of attractions and prize money paid out.

Every wide-awake citizen of the Peterborough district will surely feel like having a part in the work that will bring about such a record, and the chance is his for a $2.00 bill, which also furnishes him with admission to the Exhibition as often as he cares to go.

Here is a real bargain—a chance to become associated with the best Exhibition between Toronto and Ottawa, and to be a booster for the best district in the Province.

Two thousand is the objective.

It should be attained without the slightest difficulty.

MERCUTIO SAID IT.

The people of Ontario, regardless of their political affiliations, are watching the Georgian Bay Canal bill controversy with intense interest.

So far as they are concerned, they are playing no favourites as between the Sifton interests and the Holt combination.

For these private corporations who are battling for the juicy plum of the power rights along the Ottawa River they have nothing to offer save Mercutio's comment, "A plague o' both your houses."

In a three-cornered fight of this kind among the public and two rival private corporations, there can necessarily be only one winner and two losers.

The people of this Province, judging from the unanimous resolution of the Legislature and of various municipal bodies, are determined that the public shall be the winner, letting the private bidders for this rich power proposition console each as losers.

A MISSION THAT FAILED.

There must be something in the atmosphere of the headquarters of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission that is hypnotic, judging by its effect upon deputations.

After much preliminary discussion of the subject and strongly worded declarations to the effect that the Hydro Commission were to be pressed for a general "showdown," a deputation representing the municipalities of Central Ontario waited upon the Commission Wednesday.

It cannot be said that the visit was a success.

Perhaps the comment of one of the delegates, after he had recovered from the effects of the conference, "Well, we're just about where we started," sums up the results of the effort about as accurately as is possible.

As to definite information along the lines wanted, the visit almost completely failed to attain its object.

The Central Ontario Power Association did, it is true, secure possession of one piece of information, far from its liking, to the effect that if any of the unprofitable utilities taken over when the power system was purchased are scrapped the capital loss will fall upon the shoulders of the Central Ontario power municipalities, and not upon the Provincial Government.

And with that and the admonition from the Commission to other towns in the district to run home and follow Peterborough's example by purchasing their own transmission system, the deputation had to be content.

Apparently Mr. Magrath is as successful in dealing with deputations as Sir Adam Beck used to be, although his plan of campaign differs materially.

EDUCATION IS NEEDED.

The Ontario Prohibition Union, at its annual meeting on Wednesday, attacked the whole principle of Government control, and re-iterated its belief that nothing short of total prohibition will end the evils of the liquor traffic.

The members of the Union have a right to thus give expression to their opinions, despite the objection of prohibition by most of the Canadian Provinces, but there are many people who will feel that more emphasis might have been placed upon the necessity of a campaign of education against the evils of intemperance and less insistence upon prohibitory legislation.

If the Liquor Control Act is going to work out as badly in practice as some of the speakers at the prohibition convention declared, it is surely the duty of temperance workers everywhere to lose no opportunity to impress upon the peoplpe of this Province the folly of immoderate drinking.

Temperance education was practically abandoned when the Ontario Temperance Act came into force; apparently it was the belief of temperance organizations that the law would do the work and education was not needed.

But the law did not stop the use of strong drink, and because drinking was driven into the corners and the old-time warnings against intemperance were heard no more, a new generation began to experiment in a spirit of adventure or bravado with liquor, with results that have caused grave alarm among those who have realized the situation.

When the sale of liquor is again being legalized in Ontario there is little profit in prohibitionists passing resolutions of faith in prohibition.

The people have just thrown that method overboard, and what is needed now is the weapon that was allowed to rust in temperance armouries during the O.T.A. years—education against intemperance.

JUDGE COATSWORTH'S CHARGE.

The charge which his Honor Judge Coatsworth yesterday addressed to the jury trying the case of a man charged with blasphemous libel will be heartily endorsed by the overwhelming mass of the people of this Province, irrespective of the religious denomination to which they belong. In the midst of much that is discouraging today it is distinctly encouraging to have from a distinguished and honored member of the judiciary of Ontario such a clear and reverent statement of the cardinal truths of the Christian religion. On the case itself there is no necessity to comment. The court will deal with that. Judge Coatsworth made it plain that freedom of speech was not involved when he said:

We do allow that any person may disbelieve in God and the Bible, and may express that belief in language or by writing. We insist, however, that in doing so the language or writing must be couched in respectful terms, such as are appropriate in dealing with such a subject as is most sacred to nearly every person in our land.

When the language or writing is in such disrespectful and indecent terms as to be resented by and be an offense to all our God-fearing people and to outrage their feelings and sense of propriety, then it becomes blasphemy.

The right of every man to hold and express his own opinions on religion or other matters is recognized in this country, but when the language of any one, whether spoken or written, passes the bounds of decency and violates the most sacred convictions of the great mass of the people, it is time to call a halt. Judge Coatsworth's brief setting forth of the religious basis of our laws and our national life will do great good.—The Globe.

CASE FOR THE WOOLLEN INDUSTRY?

(From The Hamilton Herald)

A very strong case was made out by the representatives of the Canadian woollen industry who appeared before the Tariff Commission at Ottawa to support the application for a revision of the woollen tariff schedule. It was shown that the industry has been steadily declining during past five years, and that the decline is due mainly, if not wholly, to the increasing importation of woollen textiles from other countries. In 1922 the quantity of raw wool used in the Canadian industry was 32,619,481 pounds, and last year it was only 22,330,960. The quantity of domestic wool retained for manufacture declined from 20,206,567 pounds in 1922 to 9,038,233 last year—convincing proof that the farmer who raises sheep suffers from the stagnation of industry as well as the manufacturer. Machinery is idle, mills have been shut down or are working on short time and thousands of workers have lost employment through excessive importation. It is asserted that if the bulk of the woollen goods imported into Canada had been made here, every unit of machinery would be busy and every worker steadily employed.

It is claimed that the needed revision of the tariff can be made without cost to the domestic consumer. It must be confessed that how this can be done is not made clear. If relief is to be obtained it must be through a tariff which will enable the domestic manufacturer to compete successfully with the foreign competitors, and if he is to compete successfully his competitors must be restrained from underselling him. This means an advance in prices, though the advance might be only slight.

At present competition is made particularly hard for the Canadian manufacturer because he has to pay wages twice or thrice as high as those paid by his foreign competitor. It is out of the question to lower the standard of wages in this country to the European standard. But fairness to Canadian producers demands either the lowering of wages or an increase in the tariff which will enable them to compete on something like fair terms with foreign producers.

In behalf of British woollen manufacturers agents argued against revision in the woollen schedules, and their arguments were that such a revision might be bad for the Canadian consumer and would certainly be bad for the British manufacturer, who is being hard hit by competition from continental Europe. As for the Canadian consumer, his interests can safely be trusted to Canadian hands. It might pay him better to have the decline in a very important industry checked and the industry made prosperous even if he were required to pay a little more for woollen goods. If British manufacturers are exposed to unfair competition from the continent, there is a remedy; Britain has imposed protective duties on many commodities—why not on woollen goods. It is hardly fair of them to ask that Canadian industry be made to suffer in order that they may be reimbursed in Canadian trade for the losses suffered by too keen competition at home.

The British preference in the Canadian tariff should remain, but the general date should be raised. It is right to allow British producers a preference over foreign producers, but not over Canadian producers.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Eventually—why not now? Join the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition at a time when your assistance will be most appreciated.

Let us hope, at least, that the deputation which waited upon the Hydro Commission got some enjoyment out of the trip itself.

Ex-Premier Drury describes the new Liquor Act as T.N.T. Evidently he means that the measure is not a dud.

At the risk of making a lot of people feel old, it may be mentioned that it was just thirty years ago yesterday that Bob Fitzsimmons defeated Gentleman Jim Corbett.

If lobbyists at Ottawa are as plentiful as gossip reports them to be, the proposal to register them at a fee of $25 should develop into the major class as a revenue producer.

Limiting speeches to 40 minutes would be hard upon T. L. Church, M.P. To cover the same ground he will have to make about five times as many speeches as he has been doing, and that doesn't seem possible.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, March 18 (Canadian Press).—There was an improved demand from the United Kingdom and the Continent yesterday for Manitoba grades of wheat, and on the decline in prices at Winnipeg local exporters were in a position to accept some of the orders, and a few odd loads of barley were also worked.

A feature of the cash grain market here yesterday was the demand from New York exporters for Manitoba Spring wheat which resulted in sales of several loads of tough No. 1 Northern at $1.49 1-2 per bushel, c.i.f. Bay ports. The trade in coarse grains was quiet and the undertone was easy, but prices showed no change.

The tone of the Spring wheat flour market was steady under a quiet demand. There was no change in prices for Winter wheat flour and business was slow.

The demand for all lines of millfeed continued good and the undertone was firm. A steady feeling prevailed in the market for standard grades of rolled oats, but the volume of business was small.

A weaker feeling developed in the local egg market and prices were reduced another cent per dozen and the prospects are that they will reach a still lower level owing to the marked decrease in the Canadian production of late. The receipts were $1,129 cases.

A moderate amount of business was done in potatoes and prices ruled steady. Sales of car lots of Quebec varieties were made at $1.10 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track.

The demand for butter slackened off somewhat yesterday, but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 1,774 packages.

The cheese trade continued inactive, and the feeling was easy. The receipts were 155 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 18 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices underwent a sharp setback late yesterday, discouraged holders letting go on a thin market. Selling pressure came after the fact became apparent that efforts to lift values because of threatened low temperatures in domestic wheat territory had practically been a failure. Wheat closed weak, 1 3-4 to 2c net lower; corn 1-2 to 1 1-8 down; oats 1-2 to 1c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 15c.

Other grain followed wheat. Slowness of cash demand for corn and oats offset the fact that rural offerings were light.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, March 18 (Canadian Press).—Hogs, 40,000; top $11.80; bulk better grade 140 to 200 pound averages $11.50 to $11.75; 210 to 250 pound butchers $11.00 to $11.50; 260 to 300 pound weights $10.95 to $11.05; 30 to 350 pound offerings $10.65 to $10.85; packing sows $10.10 to $10.40; pigs mostly $11.00 to $11.50; good and choice strong weights scarce, upward to $11.75.

SAYS IT HURTS CITIZENS

The Editor of The Examiner:

Dear sir:

I have always thought that the Peterborough City Council made laws which favored the citizens. But, according to the new market by-law, which they have just recently passed, it seems as if they are trying to boss the people themselves.

I will just try to show you a few ways how the market was advantageous to the citizens up to now. I, myself, bought a pair of shoes there, which, if I wanted to buy in any store, I would have to pay two or three dollars more for them than I did pay. I noticed it said in your paper that oranges and such fruits would be prohibited from being sold. To tell the truth, the same oranges that I have to pay 60 cents per dozen in the store, I can get for 40 cents per dozen in the market. The same thing is also true about fish. I can get fish cheaper in the market than at any store in Peterborough. This by-law will also prevent blind men from selling their wares on the market, thus depriving them of the means for making a living. These, and many other things, show the advantages of the market until the present by-law was passed.

It is a wonder to me that the Council could have thought of passing this by-law, which takes away from the home citizen, who pays taxes, rent, and license, the right to sell in the market and make a living for himself and his family.

I think that it is a big shame for the Council to have looked after the good of the merchants instead of looking after the good of the citizens of Peterboro, which they should have done instead.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for printing these few words, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

A PETERBORO' CITIZEN.

OUR DEBT TO PROFESSIONAL ATHLETES

There have been many arguments recently in college circles about the effect professional athletics would have upon amateur athletics; so many have predicted that college athletics would be injured in some way, although, in what way, I have never been able to clearly understand.

An athletic star in college is too busy with his studies to give very much time to outside professional athletics. However, when he leaves school, if he has developed a proficiency in any branch of sport, there are always thousands of people who are willing to pay to see him perform and, it seems to me the height of folly for such an athlete to refuse to sell the ability he has to be an inspiration to others, and to give others a wholesome thrill from an athletic contest which they themselves are unable to take part in.

Hundreds of thousands of people in America will be benefited by the inspiration which they receive from watching Suzanne Lenglen play in her professional engagements, who would never have had the opportunity if she had remained an amateur.

I predict that thousands who have never been interested in tennis, thus will be stimulated enough to take up the sport. The manufacturers of tennis rackets and tennis balls will find their sales will double in every city where she plays during her tour.

In baseball the example of Babe Ruth has inspired millions of boys to get out on the sand lots and play ball, who otherwise might be using their time in studying how to become boy bandits.

Red Grange and other professional foot-ball players are firing boys with an incentive to become athletic heroes.

The example set by Helen Wills and Gertrude Ederle has shown its effects, immediately, in the new interest in America among young women in out-door athletics.

As soon as an athlete becomes extraordinarily proficient in any line of interesting sport, he becomes a money-maker either for his college or for himself, and I cannot see where anything but good can develop from an athlete commercializing his ability so that the profits are diverted to his pocket rather than to the coffers of his college or the amateur athletic unions.

Encourage your children to use all of their spare time in becoming proficient in, at least, one branch of athletics. This will not only develop them physically, but keep them away from dance halls and pink teas.

FEAR THAT GIRL FELL INTO RIVER

Police Search For Adopted Daughter of Allumette Island Man.

GONE FIVE DAYS.

PEMBROKE, Ont., March 18.—Missing from her home since late Saturday night or early Sunday morning, fears are held for the safety of Blanche Lanthier, aged 16, adopted daughter of Patrick McCauley, "The Ridge," Allumette Island. The young girl has disappeared as mysteriously and completely as though the earth had opened and swallowed her up. Word from the home of John McCauley, where the girl had been staying with her aged, adopted father, was to the effect that not a single trace had been found of the girl, not a single clue as to her whereabouts. Fear is expressed that she has been drowned, for the honeycombed ice is treacherous at this time of the year. The police were notified on both sides of the river and in Ottawa yesterday. Blanche, indications point, left her home without luggage unprepared for a trip, wearing the clothes in which she had worked all day. The only indication that she contemplated leaving is the fact that she asked Mr. McCauley, when the family retired at ten o'clock, if she might extinguish the lamp, which usually was kept burning downstairs all night. Mr. McCauley consented.

The missing girl slept upstairs with Madeline McCauley, a daughter of the house, and to get downstairs had to pass through the bedroom of another daughter, Reta. Both are approximately of Blanche's age.

Madeline must have been asleep when Blanche went upstairs to retire, for the latter's side of the bed was apparently never occupied. She had only rested momentarily on top of the covers. She apparently tiptoed out of her own room, through that of Reta's downstairs and disappeared into the darkness.

Although fairly tall for her age, about five feet 10 inches, Blanche does not look her years. She has dark hair, dark eyes, wore a grey hat, grey stockings, red flannel dress and a greyish blue coat.

Blanche's aged foster-father, Patrick McCauley, is broken-hearted over the girl's disappearance. He holds to the belief that she is dead, for he can think of no reason why she should run away. She was treated as one of the family and was given all necessities and luxuries of other daughters of the house, clothes, money and an education.

Blanche is the fourteenth child Patrick McCauley and his wife, now dead, adopted. Patrick McCauley had no children of his own and the adopted children are now all away from home, nearly all married. Blanche, who is of English parentage, was a ward of a home in Ottawa, and was adopted five years ago. The inspector of the institution paid regular visits to the McCauley home and was well pleased with the girl's surroundings, and so reported.

MY IRISH ROSE

(By Jeanette.)

The annual Seventeenth of March performance by the Dramatic Club of St. Peter's Holy Name Society was accounted for last evening, in the presentation at the Grand Opera House of "My Irish Rose," a comedy drama in three acts, enacted by a group of talented amateurs, under the expert tuition of Mr. J. J. Southern, to whose professional type of direction the major portion of the success of the entertainment was undoubtedly due. About seven hundred people were in attendance.

The parts were taken in very capable fashion, the production was admirably staged and the costumes worn were quite suitable to the roles portrayed, with some especially pretty gowns worn by the ladies in the cast. The entire performance was a credit to those taking part and to their director, and was one of the most successful of the plays put on in recent years by the Dramatic Club of St. Peter's Holy Name Society.

The story of the play deals with the romance of Rose Creigan, a little Irish country lass who is the pride of her bachelor uncle, Colum McCormack, and her aunt, Ann Mary. Her brother, Terence Creigan, has been cashiered from the army on account of the enmity of a superior officer and has gone to Buffalo, "in the wilds of America," as his relatives phrase it. Maurice Fitzgerald, a wealthy Dublin artist, while recuperating at the farm after an accident, falls in love with Rose, and paints her picture. He proposes marriage and is accepted. Shortly afterwards, he learns from his family lawyer, Mr. Michael Pepperdine, that his cousin has been killed and that he is heir to the estate and a baronet. Mr. Pepperdine suggests that he break off his matrimonial entanglement, but Maurice spurns the suggestion with contempt. He marries Rose, and the third act shows her established in his Dublin mansion. A former sweetheart of Maurice, Lady Agnes Barricklow, tries to make trouble between husband and wife, and almost succeeds. The arrival of Rose's brother, Terence, and the departure of Lady Agnes, coincide. Rose suspects her husband of favoring Lady Agnes, and resolves to make him jealous. He gives up his mild friendship for the trouble-making lady, and everything ends happily, with the black-haired siren out of the way, and Rose and her husband and brother united. The opening act and the second act are set in Colum McCormack's farm yard on the outskirts of a village in County Kildare, Ireland, on "St. Patrick's Day in the Morning," while the third act has as a background the library of Fitzgerald's house in Dublin, a year later.

The part of the "Irish Rose," Rose Creigan, the stellar role in the performance, was splendidly taken by Miss Lillian Simons, who received much applause for her spirited rendering of the little Irish lass with the independent ways and loving heart. Joseph Daly had a fine performance as Maurice Fitzgerald, her lover; while John Holland as her uncle, Colum McCormack, a prosperous Irish farmer, and Mrs. Joseph Dwyer as her aunt, Ann Mary McCormack, were exceptionally good. Charles Carson was a good-looking figure in the soldierly suit of Terry Creigan, brother of Rose, and Miss Ernestine McManus had a role that suited her admirably, and was well enacted, in the part of Maurice's sister, Miss Eileen Fitzgerald. Miss Madeline Asta gave a striking portrayal of the role of the handsome mischief-making Lady Agnes Barricklow, who "hesitated at nothing" in trying to achieve her aims, while the Widow Hannigan, "with an eye on Colum," and a lady "with money in the bank," as she was fond of asserting, was one of the hits of the show. Miss Annie Simons gave a distinctly professional touch to this part and its costuming, in a red and yellow-flowered skirt, black shawl, "specs" and beflowered bonnet. Her accent, manner and delineation of her role were exceptionally good, and much applause greeted every appearance of the inquisitive "widow." Another interesting feminine portrayal was that of Miss Minnie Allen, as Pegeen Burke, a maid servant with a pretty face and a saucy tongue, whose trim appearance and bright face contributed much to the attraction of several of the scenes.

Mr. James Condon had an extremely good delineation of the role of "the laziest man in County Kildare," Shawn McGilly, suffering from a disinclination to work, and other well-enacted parts were those of J. A. LeBlanc as a wealthy English tourist, Archibald Pennywitt, with a passion for Eileen Fitzgerald, and Martin Guerin, enacting the role of Michael Pepperdine, eminent Dublin barrister.

At the conclusion of the performance, each of the ladies in the cast was presented with a pretty bouquet of flowers. Musical numbers prior to the play and between acts were given by the Opera House Orchestra, in some excellently-played Irish airs, and there were also enthusiastically-applauded vocal solos given by Miss Annie Simons and Mr. Ted Bartley. Both were in splendid voice and received hearty encores. Miss Simons sang "That Old Irish Mother of Mine" and Mr. Bartley gave "The Ould Plaid Shawl" and "Kathleen Mavourneen," his fine baritone especialy good in the last number. Accompanists for the solos were Mrs. F. A. Hodgson and Miss Louise Letellier.

Husband's Defence League Formed To Make War On Wave Of Feminism In All Departments Of Life

CHICAGO, March 17. — The husband's defence league has been launched in East Englewood, but so fearful are the members that the roster of officers and even the names of members were not given out. Only married men are eligible and the henpecked variety are welcomed most of all.

They have declared war on the wave of feminism that has inundated all the channels of life. A member is quoted:

"Man has become so completely domesticated that not only is he tame, but he is almost useless. Women are not only taking men's jobs away from them, but they are expecting the men to do the housework and tend the babies where there are any."

The bill of rights follows:

1.—No housework except in case of sickness or at least three children.

2.—One evening a week out with no explanations.

3.—A dollar a day allowance. No questions asked.

4.—No razzing by in-laws.

5.—Preference over wife's relations in all things.

6.—Final authority in all things.

The latest hard luck story was brought to club headquarters by a member. He not long ago lost his head and got into an argument with his mother-in-law. Subject of the debate was, "Resolved, that the worst woman is better than the best man." He had all the logic, but she had the mop and won.

AT THE CAPITOL.

"WINNERS OF THE WILDERNESS."

An out-of-the-ordinary setting in the stirring times of 1755, an exceptionally well-staged production of a story which centres around the thrilling romance of a famous spy and a very fine cast, make "Winners of the Wilderness," an extremely interesting movie drama. There was an appreciative audience at the Capitol Theatre last night for the big picture, with its atmosphere of French and Indian wars, its colorful background of historical romance, and its portrayal of so many famous characters, including George Washington, Captain Gates, a later hero of Bunker Hill and Saratoga, the French governor of Canada at the time, and the English governor of the old colony of Virginia, also the renowned General Braddock. Tim McCoy and Joan Crawford have the stellar roles, with Roy D'Arcy, always a notable villain, a close third for the honors of the piece.

The story centres about the adventures of the supposed spy, General Sir Dennis O'Hara, played by Colonel Tim McCoy, who is the hero, also the lover of Renee Contrecoeur, daughter of a French general. O'Hara discovers a secret treaty between the Governor of Quebec and Pontiac, the leader of the Six Nations Indians, and at the point of a pistol, takes it from the Frenchman. He meets an Indian later in the woods and fights with him, letting him go free, however, instead of killing him, thus making a friend of the redskin, who later befriends him in many ways. Returning to Quebec, he attends the Governor's ball and dances with Renee, ousting Captain Dumas (Roy D'Arcy) who becomes his bitter enemy in consequence, and betrays him to the authorities, accusing him of being a spy. Again he escapes, and goes to Virginia, where he becomes embroiled in the colonial wars of the time. A magnificent battle picture is shown at this juncture, with Braddock's death and burial as a finale. O'Hara is once more taken prisoner by the French and falls into the hands of Dumas, who hands him over to the Indians. They, however, only pretend to shoot him, Pontiac saving him from death. This time he takes Renee with him, and later, pursued by Dumas, has a hand to hand fight with him on horseback, providing another colorful final episode in a thrilling picture.

The comedy with the programme is a funny affair involving a circus, some escaping animals, two villains, and a very innocent ticket-seller, and there is a very interesting short reel showing the fastest long-distance train in the world, running between New York and Chicago.

AT THE REGENT.

"PALS IN PARADISE" TRIUMPHS.

New Western Metropolitan Picture Interpreted By Notable Players on Stage and Screen.

Proving itself indisputably one of the most novel and strongest western photoplays ever presented here, the latest Metropolitan picture, "Pals in Paradise," featuring such notable players as Marguerite De La Motte, John Bowers, Rudolph Schildkraut and May Robson, the latter famous legitimate artists, achieved a triumph at the Regent theatre yesterday. Almost every scene of this thrilling Peter B. Kyne story evoked applause, while the artistry of the individual players was hailed with enthusiasm.

This picture tells the story of a modern gold rush. Everything in it is up-to-date—one of the ancient methods employed in western pictures, whiskey-drinking miners, with guns at their hips, burros, chuck wagons and the like. The miners are well dressed, everybody travels in flivvers or sedans, the women are dressed in the pink of fashion and the residents of Paradise swallows soft drinks only! Yet despite this reversal of old mining picture traditions, "Pals in Paradise" is distinctly one of the best we have seen in many months.

John Bowers as the hero—a young gold prospector—is an admirable foil to Marguerite De La Motte, a gritty girl with whom he falls in love. Both are excellent in their portrayals. But much praise is due Mr. Schildkraut, as the Jewish storekeeper and constable, and May Robson, as his wife. Their portrayals are delicious in every respect. The three crooks played by Alan Brooks, Ernie Adams and Bruce Gordon respectively, are colorful and they do much to make the production notably entertaining and thrilling. "Pals in Paradise" is a real picture. It was splendidly directed by George B. Seitz, and its investiture was thoroughly in keeping with the subject. Its success here is assured.

Try Dr. Blosser's Medical Cigarettes in the Next Attack.

If you have catarrh you are in danger of losing your hearing. The first symptoms of catarrhal deafness are roaring or buzzing sensations and a stopped-up feeling in the ears. A neglected cold, or an uncured cold, leads to catarrh, and as everybody knows, catarrh affects the eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs and frequently undermines the general health.

The secret of the successful medication of these hidden parts was discovered by Dr. Blosser in his medical practice. This remedy is applied by smoking a certain combination of medical herbs (containing no tobacco) in a pipe or cigarette. Dr. Blosser's Remedy produces a dense smoke vapor which is inhaled or forced into the Eustachian tubes leading to the middle ear. It penetrates to parts impossible to reach with balms, salves, sprays, douches, pills, tablets, liquids and so-called "constitutional treatments." This Remedy is absolutely harmless and is being used successfully by adults and children.

You can get from any drug store a convenient pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant beneficial effects.

PLAY PRESENTED IN SENTINEL HALL

"Always in Trouble" Provides Amusement for Large Audience.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, March 18.—Those who missed the play presented by the Rylstone Young People in Sentinel Hall on Friday evening certainly missed a treat. The title of the play, "Always in Trouble" was an exact description of the numerous difficulties of those taking part. The whole evening's entertainment was decidedly comic, the audience being kept in gales of laughter from the time the chairman, Rev. Mr. Gardiner, opened the programme until the National Anthem was sung. The play was in charge of Mrs. Fred Rutherford and she deserves great credit for the splendid training which she gave her pupils as every member of the cast was well coached, while the acting was exceptionally good for amateur players. The trouble around which the play centred seemed to enter the very daily lives of the members of the cast as one after another was taken ill during the practice weeks and even to the last day the condition of one member was quite serious. Then, too, the trouble seemed to follow after the play was over as two of the number narrowly escaped serious injury when their car crashed into the ditch while going home from the hall. A broken wheel was the cause of the accident. The proceeds of the play, which were over $60.00, go to the Rylstone Sunday school. The crowd was large and the "standing room only" sign was out before the play commenced.

The cast of characters was as follows:

Misery Moon, a real coon—Eldon Anderson.

Godeon Blair, a millionaire—Granville Meiklejohn.

Tom Rissell, a college youth—Douglas Barnum.

Hiram Tutt, a crazy nut—Wilfred Spencer.

Pat Keller, a ticket seller—Reg. McKeown.

Samantha Slade, an old maid—Agnes Samson.

Rosebud Reise, a millionaire's niece—Evelyn Bonnycastle.

Paula Melik, a Bolshevik—Bessie Meiklejohn.

Lulu, the jazz girl—Winnie Spencer.

Act 1—A railroad station at Slabtown, Missouri. Misery looking for eats comes off second best in an encounter with the railroad kitchen cook. Tom Rissell will fall heir to a million if he marries Godeon's niece. He mistakes Samantha for Rosebud and decided to hire Hiram Tutt to impersonate him and so get a refusal to the proposal and still hold the money. Tutt is trying to escape from his "Red" wife, Paula, who is trailing him with a bomb. "Sh-h, not so loud", is his constant reminder. Godeon threatens to fire Pat is he doesn't get married, so he marries the lunch counter girl, Lulu, with Misery performing the duties of clergyman.

Act 2—Paula on the trail, the bomb exploded. Rosebud arrives and falls in love with the real Tom neither knowing who the other is. Misery has a terrible time trying to recover nine dollars lent to Godeon Blair. As his ideas of hard luck grow his family increases from six children to twenty-one but Blair is unmoved. Paula gets sight of Hiram and hires Misery to throw the bomb for her. It lights at the feet of Godeon Blair instead and Misery at great risk to himself carries it out.

Act 3—An hour late. "Sh-h, not so loud." Rosebud doesn't want to marry Hiram whom she believes to be Tom and threatens him with all manner of atrocities so that he will refuse her. Tom arrives and explains matters and the happy young couple find that marriage won't be so disagreeable after all. Misery has been rewarded by Godeon with a thousand dollars and he is very hilarious. Tom gives Hiram one hundred dollars and tells him to get his wife out of jail and go live with her again.

It would be impossible to pick any star performer in the cast as one and all were splendid. The audience seemed to enjoy the antics of Misery Moon more than the others perhaps as he was ludricious in the extreme.

Between acts the three clowns, Fred Rutherford, Eldon Anderson, and Reg. McKeown provided fun for the crowd with several freak stunts including a laying-out scene, with Reg. McKeown as the corpse, which refused to stay dead; a baseball act; a chicken thief stunt with a rooster, the nigger and a collie dog as the principal actors; and a kiddie car race with numerous spills.

Mrs. Fred Rutherford provided music at the piano before the play began, and between acts.

The drawing of tickets for the winner of the quilt donated by the Women's Institute resulted in the lucky winner being Mrs. Alfred Spencer of Havelock. Mr. Frank Bonnycastle drew the ticket and made a short speech.

The regular League service on Thursday evening was in charge of the missionary eonvener, Mr. Earl Fairman, with Clarke Haig as leader. Forty-three were in attendance. The programme was as follows: Hymn by the Blues; Scripture reader by the leader; prayer, Mrs. Amos Barnum; devotional talk, Rev. Mr. Daniel; reading, Jessie Wright; quartette, Messrs. Fry, Nelson, Anderson, and Fairman. The topic "Around with the Missionary Doctor" was given by Earl Fairman. The next meeting is in charge of the citizenship committee.

JAMES HENDLEY, of Apsley, who attained his 105th birthday on Tuesday, and seems to grow younger every year. Beyond being rather deaf, "Jimmy" is in possession of all his faculties, hale and hearty, and has been doing chores all winter.

ICE ENDANGERS OMEMEE DAM

Boathouse Broken By Huge Cake Hurled Down Stream.

WATER VERY HIGH.

OMEMEE, March 18.—So great is the ice jam and excess of water in the pond that all day Tuesday many citizens watched while workmen were busy trying to stay the volume of water pouring over the dam in Omemee at Stephenson's grist mill. At this season, the water is so high that there is but very little fall, but now there is much less and as it cannot get away fast enough it madly splashes and jumps and it was feared that along with the dam would go the wooden bridge leading to the mill. On Tuesday evening the small dam at the east side of the mill gave way and the water is now rushing over the road for a distance of 75 feet or more into Pigeon river on the other side. About 7 o'clock the same evening a large cake of ice broke loose and was hurled with such force down the stream that when it came in contact with a boathouse below the iron bridge the impact was heard by residents a distance away. The boathouse was crushed in as a result, and possibly damage was done to a boat inside.

Never before in the memory of the present generation at least, has the pond been known to break forth with so much fury and volume and the scene is the centre of attraction.

OBITUARY

JOHN O'CONNOR

The funeral of the late John O'Connor of the Township of Otonabee will be held from the family residence, Otonabee, on Sunday, at 2.00 p.m. to Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's Cemetery.

HUGH JONES BOYD

MARMORA, March 18. — On Wednesday afternoon, under Orange auspices the funeral of the late Hugh Jones Boyd took place from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Smith; service being taken at St. Paul's by the Rector, Rev. Bro. A. B. Caldwell. A goodly number of Orange brethren were in procession. Fellow members of L.O.L. 319 acting as bearers were B. Robson, J. Grey, B. C. Hubbel, C. A. Bleecker, T. E. Potts, and C. Duncalfe. The coffin was draped with the banner of L.O.L. 319 and surmounted with choice floral emblems.

The church was filled to overflowing. The hymns sung were "Nearer My God to Thee," "For Ever With the Lord," and "Abide With Me." The Rector based a most impressive sermon on "It is appointed unto man once to die and after that, the judgment."

Rites of the Order were taken at the graveside in Marmora Cemetery by Rev. A. B. Caldwell and W. J. Cottrell, P.M. and Chaplain of L.O.L. 319. Among those attending the funeral was Mr. John Wiggins of Cordova, a veteran Orangeman now in his eighty-fourth year, who initiated the late Hugh Boyd into the Orange Order approximately half a century ago.

DOUBT IS RAISED CONCERNING WOLF

Rumor Has It That White Animal Was Dog—Bounty Paid.

HIAWATHA, March 18.—Rumors have been flying hither and yon that the wolf killed January 19 by William Anderson from the motor car driven by John Sexsmith, four miles east of this village, was a large dog. The following is an extract from the Cobourg Sentinel-Star of the issue March 3:

NOT WOLF BUT DOG

A short time ago a story appeared in the papers of this district that a large wolf had been shot on Rice Lake and after being pursued for some time by two men in an automobile. It now appears that the animal killed was not a wolf but a large German police dog belonging to one of the American residents at Rice Lake. The dog has every appearance of a wolf, but lacked that animal's characteristics. It was valued at $150, and the owner is unable to recover his loss from those who shot it.

According to this, one would think that the local men were being asked to pay over the one hundred and fifty dollars and refused to do so.

Such is not the case. Rather they have enjoyed spending the twenty-nine dollars received for the bonnty from the Department of Game and Fisheries and the sale of the pelt.

After the skin returned from Toronto, Mr. Anderson received the following letter:

Dear Sir:

There is a wolf skin here returned from the Department. Kindly come in and identify to same.

Respectfuly yours,
ED. M. ELLIOT,
Treasurer C.P.

It is thought that the rumor arose from the fact that Mr. Kelly, who owns a large estate on Shearer's Point, five miles south east of Hiawatha, lost a young police dog this winter. It was gone ten days and he advertised for it in one of the papers of Cobourg. He found it in South Monaghan township.

It was home two weeks before the wolf was shot.

The correspondent called to see Mr. Kelly recently but he was absent and his manager, W. Lounsberry, stated the dog was not shot and as far as he knew no other large dog belonging to any American resident was missing. He expressed the thought that a wolf had not been killed but a dog.

Mr. Elliot, Peterborough County Treasurer said, "No mistake was made about the wolf skin. It came back to me and as I had instructions to give it to its owner, I did so.

"It's color", Mr. Elliott added, "was lighter than the general run of skins."

William Fletcher, who bought the pelt, was perfectly satisfied with his buy and last week said, it had been shipped to Montreal.

Y.P.S. MEETING.

Missionary Programme Given at Meeting at St. Andrew's.

CAMPBELLFORD, March 18.—The meeting of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. opened by the singing of "The King of Love, My Shepherd Is." This was followed by the repetition of the twenty-third Psalm in unison. The Scripture lesson was led by Mrs. Scott, taken from Psalm 119, verses 9 to 16. "Oh Worship the King" was then sung. A short period was set aside for business. The president then called upon the missionary convenor, Mrs. C. Massie, to take the chair. An interesting topic was given by Miss Mary Dunham on, "West of the Great Lakes." It was taken from the Study Book, "The Burning Bush" and dealt with the growth of the Presbyterian church in the West. Miss Dunham explained he difficult task of the pioneers there in keeping up their church in order to have their own form of worship.

An interesting discussion took place. It was explained by Miss Watson and the subject was, "Why is missionary work needed in a Christian country." Miss Grace Blue tabulated the points and the results were six points for the Blues and three for the Reds.

The collection was then taken and the meeting closed with "Jesus Shall Reign" and the repetition of the Mizpah benediction.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE CHARGE DISMISSED

Magistrate Finds Evidence Not Enough To Send Woman To Jail.

PRESTON, Ont., March 18.—Mrs. Thomas Smith, Galt Road, charged in Police Court yesterday with unlawfully attempting to commit suicide, was dismissed, Magistrate John R. Blade commenting that there was not enough evidence, in his opinion, to justify sending the accused to jail for two years.

The incident in question occurred on the evening of February 26th. It was at first thought that the woman was struck by a northbound Grand River Railway passenger train, a short distance south of East Preston, but after an examination, railway officials stated that no marks had been found on the car which could be coupled with such an accident.

Dr. H. R. Scott, who attended the injured woman, stated that the injuries could have been caused by a fall or by a blow from either a sharp or blunt instrument.

Maturing Sept. 1, 1945.

The Dominion Square Garage is owned by the Stanley Realty Corporation. The location is probably the best in the City of Montreal. The bond issue of $400,000 constitutes a first mortgage. The value of the land alone approximates the whole bond issue. The property is being operated at a very satisfactory profit over and above all Operating Expenses and Interest Charges. KINGSTON BOARD IGNORES CLAIMS

Weather Man To Blame For Ruts on Roads, Say Aldermen.

KINGSTON, March 18—The city has received a number of claims for damages from auto drivers for damages suffered by their autos while running into ruts on the road caused by the recent big snow storm. The members of the board of works feel that they cannot be held responsible for the condition of the road under such circumstances and the claims for damages are being held up. That the Weather Man is to blame and the city cannot be held responsible is the attitude taken by the Board of Works.

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SATURDAY, MARCH 19, 1927.

Friendly stars rule this day, according to astrology, which reads that many favorable influences prevail.

News of world moment may be expected under this sway, which indicates much interest for editors and publishers.

Writers again are to profit through drama in real life, that includes wars, sieges and marvelous events, the seers prophesy.

This is a promising sway for all lines of industry and there appears little doubt that workers in many trades will profit exceedingly before the end of the year.

New leaders are to develop this year, and they will suffer at first most severely from envy and jealousy.

As a period in which great masses of men must stand together approaches, there will be an emphasis on individualism.

A London astrologer foretells for early autumn a sensational case of blackmail in England, also epidemics of fevers and diptheria.

Cholera is to appear in certain parts of Europe and astrologers warn this country to aid the health authorities in every country.

Airplanes are to perform marvelous feats before the end of the summer when they will be used in some new commercial enterprise.

It is prognosticated that late in August or early in September the United States stages a formidable movement of troops.

Bermuda may suffer from a severe hurricane, those who read the stars foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the forecast of an exceedingly active busy year.

Children born on this day probably will be unusually clever. They should become organizers or they may succeed wonderfully in advertising and publicity.

NATIONS LEAGUE IDEA EXPLAINED

Rev. J. E. Todd Gives Instructive Address To Council of Women.

The regular monthly meeting of the Local Council of Women was held yesterday afternoon in the green room of the Young Women's Christian Association, with a good attendance from the affiliated societies. The president, Mrs. C. H. Ed-s, occupied the chair. An interesting feature of the meeting was an address on "The League of Nations" delivered by Rev. J. E. Todd, pastor of George Street United Church, also an outline of the Old Age Pensions Bill given by Mrs. Charles Ray, convenor of the committee on laws.

The report of the secretary was given by Mrs. J. Wearing, the report of the finance committee by Mrs. N. D. Seaton, and Mrs. A. Mowat read the correspondence and called the roll.

A letter was read from Miss Elizabeth Hewett, convenor of the committee for the conservation of natural resources, calling attention to the efforts of the councils in the Banff district to preserve the Spray Lakes from the encroachment of commercial interests who wish to exploit their natural beauties for financial gain. The Hydro-Electric Company, the letter said, was seeking to gain control of these lakes for the development of power, and the women thought that Alberta's immense coal resources might be utilized for this purpose instead, leaving the district free for tourist traffic.

The president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, was appointed as the Council's representative at the forthcoming meeting of the sub-executive of the National Council, to be held in Ottawa on March 30th and 31st. With regard to the agenda for this meeting, attention was called to the recommendation of the Toronto council, that a board of censors be appointed to supervise literature coming into Canada, also to the recommendation which will be made to Parliament to pass an act defining the regulations with regard to the granting of alimony.

Rev. Mr. Todd's Address

Rev. Mr. Todd gave an interesting and thoughtful discourse on the philosophical side of the League of Nations. "Ever since man became a consciously rational being," he said, "he has found within himself potentialities both for war and for peace. For many years it was taken for granted that war was a necessary evil, just as slavery was imagined to be, and just as the liquor traffic is looked on in these days by many good men. But the nations today are not looking upon war in this light. They are thinking actively in terms of peace. The nations are today turning to Christ, to see if He has anything to say on this subject, and they are discovering that the League of Nations was the very thing that He came into the world to talk about, only He called it 'the Kingdom of God. He said: 'He that loseth his life shall have it.' The dream of the League of Nations will continue to torment and haunt the minds of men until it has become established as a reality."

Some of the difficulties which stand in the way of realization of the complete ideal of the League of Nations were enumerated, in "the man who has an axe to grind," and who is willing to use the forces of militarism to attain his own ignoble ends, also in the men who believe that war, because it has always been in existence, must continue, world without end, and in the overlapping and intertwining complications of the varied interests of the nations of the world.

"Statesmen have been educated in the terms of nationalism, and this spirit is naturally struggling desperately against the spirit of the League of Nations. The settlement will only come when statesmen can look beyond the borders of their own national interests. Nationalism is not the word that will save the world, nor solve our problems."

Rev. Mr. Todd spoke of the new inventions in warfare, the poison gas that could wipe out the city of London within three hours and the machine guns which are capable of firing five hundred shots per minute. In these engines of destruction, however, with their terrible potentialities, he saw some hope of such a comprehensive prohibition of warfare that they might even tend to its final destruction as a means of settling disputes between men.

The Court, as modernly constructed, had caused considerable cessation of warfare, declared Mr. Todd, referring to its work in the settlement of disputes between individuals, communities and states. The court had taken the place of the ancient practice of duellism, once considered as the only means of settling disputes between men of honor and had also supplanted the blood feud between families.

The speaker referred to the necessity of the Christian Church acting as a compelling force in the needs of the present time, instead of concentrating attention on "abstract dogmas and metaphysical truths," and said that war was composed of ugliness and lies, "whereas peace sets man free for adventures in truth, beauty and goodness."

A hearty vote of thanks to the speaker was voiced by Miss A. Lancaster, and presented by the president. Words of interest in the address were also added by Mrs. W. R. Morris and Mrs. A. Stevenson.

In summing up the business of the session, announcement was made of satisfactory arrangements having been made with the management of the Regent Theatre, with regard to holding a theatre night, for which the Local Council of Women will sell tickets. This will be held in connection with the picture, "Faust," to be presented here on May 2nd, 3rd and 4th. A committee will make arrangements for this night, composed of Mesdames Edwards, Mowat, Stevenson, Seaton and Hodgson.

Mrs. A. Stevenson was appointed to attend, with the president, Mrs. C. H. Edwards, the meetings called by the City Council to consider arrangements for Dominion Day celebrations here.

It was decided to bring Miss Preston, of the Dominion Department of Agriculture in Ottawa, who will be in this province in April, to the city to give one of her demonstrations in canning and preserving of Canadian fruits and vegetables, about which the Department wrote the Council some time ago. Mrs. C. Ray will act as convener of a committee to make arrangements for this Miss Lancaster reminded the members of the lecture to be given by Charles G. D. Roberts next Monday evening.

A very lucid and clear outline of the Old Age Pensions Bill was given by Mrs. Charles Ray. This bill, which passed three readings of the House of Commons last year, to be finally killed by the Senate, has again had three readings in the House this year, and it is expected that the Senate will ratify it later. Even if finally passed, however, in the Dominion's Senate, each province will require to bring in a similar Act, as each province is required to pay fifty per cent. of the pensions allowed.

It makes provision, in the case of British subjects, or widows who were British subjects before marriage, for the payment to those of seventy years of age or over, who have been residents of the Dominion for twenty years immediately preceding the granting of the pension, of the sum of $240 per annum.

Indians and persons with an income exceeding $365 a year are excluded from the provisions of the legislation, and the amount is subject to reduction if possession is had of an income over $125 a year.

Minor provisions in the Act were outlined by Mrs. Ray, who was heartily thanked at the conclusion of her brief address.

Secret Service Officers Arrest German at Manila

MANILA, March 18. Canadian Press. — Secret service officers today arrested Rudolph Hildebrand, a German subject, who arrived from San Francisco, aboard the Steamer "President Cleveland," charging him with Bolshevist activities. Hildebrand was dressed as a priest.

The "Cleveland" docked to-day, and the arrest was made immediately, presumably upon the order of Governor General Leonard Wood.

Hildebrand will be held for investigation.

Proposal On Postcard Sends Man To Hospital

MINEOLA, Li., March 18. — (United Press).—"Be mine, say yes, or I will go to the bowwows," read a post card received by Mrs. George Xanchos.

It made George furious. He pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of shooting Harry Petrides, who is sending out his mail now from the Nassau Hospital.

All Good Things Come in Threes

Fashion was evidently of this mind when she designed the new Spring Apparel, for in many of the most stunning creations she offers either three distinct colors used in combination or blendings of three different tones of the same hue. The former triple entente she happily calls Composé and the latter Degradé.

Here You Will Find Compose' and Degrade' Themes Subtly Worked Out

Sweaters take their colors in horizontal stripings and so frequently do the coats. The dresses, however, exploit three colors, and three tones in tiers, flounces and less obvious ways. To appreciate the effectiveness of this new fashion whim you must see the new modes. Why not look them over to-morrow?

New Hand Bags 89c Each

Hats May Be Large or Small

But never for a minute can they afford to be anything but individual. The Hats we have so carefully assembled make the most of their crowns, which are creased, folded, tucked and laid in pleats to give that moulded-to-the-head effect. Brims when they appear at all are youthfully rippled or turned up saucily in front.
